New White Metal Alloy.

Metallurgical investigation has resulted in the perfection of a new white metal alloy. 'Atherium' it is called, and it is stated to be lighter than aluminium. The metal is said to be superior to the pure metal, to make good, sound castings, and to work well in rolling and turning. It can also be soldered, welded, and forged; it does not tarnish, and is impervious to corrosion and the action of sea-water. It should prove an excellent substitute for German silver under these conditions, and be effective for a great variety of purposes for which aluminium would be used were it stronger, and lightness combined with strength is the superlative consideration. Owing to its electrical conductivity, the new alloy should be extremely useful in a wide range of applications in this phase of industry.

To Locate Underground Water.

A French inventor has contrived an application of the microphone to the discovery of underground water. One end of a tube is inserted in the ground the upper end being attached to the microphone. The sounds of flowing or dropping water are conveyed to the ear from great depths. In the Marne valley two springs were discovered with this apparatus at a depth of about 50 feet below the surface of the ground. It is believed that the apparatus will be of great service in mining operations both for indicating the location of concealed springs and for communicating with imprisoned miners.

TO ABOLISH ELECTRIC CHAIR

Penalty for Murder Would be Life Imprisonment

Albany, N.Y., Jan. 19— The recent agitation for the abolition of the death penalty in this state, which is favored by Governor Dix, and Col. J. P. Scott, superintendent of state prisons, resulted in the introduction of bills by Senator T. D. Sullivan and Assemblyman Kopp, of New York which, if enacted, will banish the electric chair.

The bill makes the penalty for murder in the first degree life imprisonment. Similar measures also were introduced by Assemblyman Merritt, of Schenectady, the latter the socialist member.

ATE HER OWN CAKE AND TOOK ILL

Morristown, N.J., Jan. 19 — Miss Leonora Merchant, a prominent New Jersey girl, is seriously ill here from poisoning contracted from eating cake in which floor varnish was used instead of molasses.

Miss Merchant baked the cake herself at the home of a friend. She used what she thought was molasses in the cake, taking the liquid from a jar she found unlabeled on a shelf. The cake tasted fairly good, but the four persons who ate it were immediately taken ill.

The others quickly recovered but Miss Merchant's condition is serious.

GRATEFUL MOTHERS!

What Zam-buk Did for Their Little Ones

Thousands of mothers in Canada owe a debt of gratitude to Zam-Buk for its cure of their children, and hundreds of them are not slow to recognize the claims.

Mrs. J. Quiding, of Ninette, Man., says: "My little boy was suffering very badly from a form of skin disease over his eye. I applied Zam-Buk to the affected part, and in a very short time the sores were completely healed."

Mrs. F. Miners, of 311 Suffolk St., Guelph, Ont., says: "My little daughter Lorinda (6), contracted a skin disease. This first broke out like tiny water blisters afterwards taking the form of dry scabs. These would disappear for a short time and then reappear worse than ever.

"We tried Zam-Buk, and with each application the irritation and soreness were greatly relieved and the child rested easier. Perseverance with Zam-Buk worked a complete cure."

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, upon receipt of price. Refuse harmful substitutes.

BROUGHT HIS TOOTHBRUSH.

But Saint-Saens, the Composer, Didn't Shock Parisian Society.

The Cri de Paris told the following story of Saint-Saens, the composer: A rare visitor to Paris, he is on his visits much sought after as a social lion. One lady succeeded in persuading him to accept an invitation to dinner, promising to send to fetch him and also to deposit him at his door when he left, his only stipulation being that he should be allowed to make his adieus at 10 o'clock.

The son of his hostess was dispatched in good time and found M. Saint-Saens in a velvet coat seated before his piano. He rose at once, however, and asked for ten minutes to dress, at the end of which he appeared, tying his white cravat. As he was shutting his door behind him he ejaculated:

"Good gracious! One minute more! I have forgotten my toothbrush!"

The young man, to his amazement, saw his guest dive into his dressing room and reappear with a toothbrush, which he put away in his breast pocket. On arriving home he told his mother, who in some uneasiness informed her friends, and everybody was in wonderment as to what the great composer was going to do with his toothbrush.

Every eye was fixed on him throughout the dinner, watching him as he ate and drank and used his finger glass. In the drawing room Saint-Saens talked with the ladies and played any piece that was asked of him till 10 o'clock struck, when he bade farewell politely to the company.

The journey home was without incident, and when they reached his house M. Saint-Saens simply offered to shake hands and say good night. Curiosity was too strong, though, for the youth, who said:

"Excuse me, maiter, but I should so much like to know why you so particularly wanted to take your toothbrush with you."

"Oh, my young friend," replied Saint-Saens, "it is very simple! My lock is very stiff, and I always hurt my fingers in turning the key. So I now pass the handle of my toothbrush in the ring of the key and turn it easily. Voila!"

THOROUGHLY WARMED.

An old time gentleman of Newburyport, describing his school days in the opening years of the nineteenth century, has this to say of a wintry day:

"We found our inkstands all frozen up. These required to be thawed out. To do this there was a board held up by bricks over the stove on which the pewter inkstands were placed, but before the copy was written down the ink would be again frozen. Then the boy took his ink to the stove again and while it was thawing laid in a store of caloric for himself, standing by the stove, watching closely that the pewter should not melt.

"The clothes of the boys were made of corduroy, jacket and trousers in one, and nothing under but a shirt. These absorbed the heat like sheet iron, so that when a boy retruned to his seat he was often compelled to carry his inkstand in his mouth, employing both hands to hold his trousers off from his knees, and with every precaution the skin was often mottled and scorched."

Another old time schoolboy in his later years recalled an even severer experience.

"I can remember," he recorded, "how, crowding close to the stove to toast the shivers from my poor little body, I scorched a hole in my trousers in front and exclaimed aloud at the disaster, whereupon the master thrashed a hole into them behind, and when I went home to my mother she told me grimly it was well that things should match and that as my shirt was such an old one she was willing to risk fraying it on the back, and she reached for a strap and did!

"I was thoroughly warmed, and it was the coldest day of the year, but I regretted my shivers after all."—Youth's Companion.

Helpful Son-in-law.

"So you asked my wife for our daughter's hand, did you?" said the stern father.

"I did, and she began to give me a piece of her mind about my persumption, and I"—

"And you beat a retreat and came to see me. Well, sir"—

"Oh, no! I didn't retreat. I argued it out with her, and before I left she had given me her consent. So I"—

"You did? Bully for you! You can have the girl, and you can live right here with us. I want to study your system of defying my wife for a year or so anyway."—Woman's World.

The Widow.

"I noticed as I came in," said the caller to her dear friend the widow, "that you have made a change in your servants. You have a white butler now."

"Yes," sighed the widow, "a white butler, but a negro cook. I go into half mourning this season."—Harper's.

A SHIP'S BAND.

Have Long Hours, and Do All Sorts of Other Work on the Ship.

Probably few men lead a stranger life than those who ship as bandsmen-stewards on long-distance liners. I have worked for some years as leader of sea-orchestras, and cannot recommend it as a pastime.

As a rule, the band consists of about five performers, and our working day totals sixteen hours, or perhaps more. We are only musicians, incidentally, having signed on as "bandsmen-stewards," we have to fill up our odd hours with various duties, which might be anything from cleaning boots to assisting in coaling the ship.

The band plays to the steerage-passeners, the first and second saloon passengers in turn, in all kinds of weather, and it is not the easiest thing in the world to balance yourelf on a high stool, scraping on a bass fiddle, while the ship is tearing her way through a monsoon.

So long as the passengers are not sea-sick, and want to hear music, it is understood that we have to do our best. This leads to trying situations sometimes, especially as the piano has to be lashed firmly to prevent it toppling over on the top of the man who is playing it. When performing under these circumstances in the first dining-saloon, I have known the bass fiddler to be shot head-over-heels half a dozen yards away.

Before he could pick himself up another lurch of the boat sent the violinist with a heavy cannon into the flute-player, landing them both on the floor, while I was struggling to uphold the honor of the band with one hand, using the other to hang on with for all I was worth.

Once I took part in an unrehearsed scene which caused shrieks of laughter and cost a broken leg. We were homeward bound in the Bay of Biscay, and I was accompanying the violinist, who was playing a solo. There was a heavy sea running, giving the ship that awkward motion known as the "corkscrew." Suddenly she lurched sideways and backwards violently, and the violinist was pitched against me.

He fell clear, and was not hurt, but, owing to an oversight, the piano had not been lashed, and it crashed forwards on the top of me. Not noticing at first that I was under the piano, the passengers roared with laughter after they had recovered their own balance. The wreck of the orchestra must have looked very funny, but I was in hospital for several weeks after it.

Sometimes the passengers insist on having a dance when the ship is rolling, and I must admit that it gives the orchestra a certain grim form of amusement when the ship gives a sudden jerk, to see two or three couples roll over together in the scuppers. The band would rather die than be forced to stop playing on these occasions.

Twice in my life I have known a harsh, grating sound to interrupt the music, showing the vessel had hit something, but on both occasions we got a quiet signal not to stop. The first time the ship actually sank two hours later. It is somewhat thrilling to go on playing in order to keep the passengers from being alarmed, when a situation like that arises.

Scotland's Water-Power.

It is a well-known fact that the annual rainfall is very considerable in Scotland, Wales and certain parts of Ireland, all of which countries are mountainous and thereby offer as good opportunities for obtaining water power as can be found in other countries, at a cost which promises quite satisfactory returns for any capital which may be invested in their development. Scotland especially has advantages in this respect which few other countries can show. Compared with Switzerland — which is often called the country par excellence for water power—with an extensive and highly developed industry. Scotland has, says The Engineering Review, the great advantage of its geographical situation, enabling the almost exclusive use of cheap water carriage for the raw material as well as the finished industrial products to the places of consumption, whereas Switzerland has to obtain practically all raw material from abroad, and to pay heavy railway rates on them and on the manufactured goods.

All the Year Bathing.

Although, according to his own confession, Sir Henry Poland, K.C., was never very strong and far from being an athlete, he was accustomed, when living on the Thames at Twickenham, to have a plunge in the river every morning all the year round. "The great thing to attend to," he says, "is to take your header directly you are out of bed, and to take care to keep warm until you plunge. For this purpose you should put on a coat lined with flannel, with a thick coat over that, trousers lined with flannel, slippers lined with lamb's wool, and warm gloves. You should stand on a piece of carpet and throw your clothing off like a quick-change artist, and on coming out of the water you may stand in the open and thoroughly enjoy the east wind for the first time in your life, and the snow, sleet, hail, or rain will only be a diversion."

Big Bells of the World.

Some of the old world bells are heavy indeed. "Great Paul," of St. Paul's Cathedral, weighs nearly 17 tons, and is nearly 30 feet around. The first "Big Ben," of Westminster, was cast a little more than fifty years ago and weighed about 14 tons, being about 28 feet around. But "Big Ben" had a crack and was made over, losing some weight, and the clapper was made smaller, being now 600 pounds instead of about a ton. "Peter of York" cost $10,000, weighs 12 1-2 tons, and is 22 feet in diameter, or thereabouts.

Widows' Pensions.

The New Zealand Government have introduced a bill to provide pensions of $65 annually for widows with one child, or with more than three children $150. It is estimated that the project will cost the Dominion $165,000 annually.

Mrs. Wm Stevens, of Yarmouth, township, fractured both legs by falling from a barn loft.

EARLY KINGSTON.

Fort Frontenac Was Forerunner of Present City.

The first permanent settlement made by white men on what is now the site of the city of Kington, was military in purpose. It was expected by its founders that a post standing on the shores of Lake Ontario, at the mouth of the Cataraqui River, would attract the fur trade of the Lake region, but that was a consideration secondary to the service such a post would perform in holding in check the Iroquois, whose cantonments were across the lake in what is now the western part of the State of New York. If they could be held in check, New France would be relieved of the greatest scourge that had plagued her since the flag of the Bourbons had been planted on Cape Diamond at Quebec.

It was, therefore, to the military advantages of the place that Kingston owed its beginning, and from that day to this Kingston never wholly lost its military character. During the last hundred years of the old regime the French maintained there a garrisoned post, which stood a siege before it hauled down its flag to the British in the Seven Years' War. The British increased its strength, and during their last war on this continent it was a military post and the naval base for Lake Ontario. After the close of the war Great Britain spent hundreds of thousands of pounds on the fortifications at Kingston—works which for size and solidity were equalled only by those at Quebec. To-day they are obsolete, abandoned, and ruinous, but still Kingston has not wholly lost its military character. It is the seat of our principal institution of military education—the Royal Military College—and the headquarters of part of our permanent militia — the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery. A soldier founded the place for the use of soldiers, and soldiers have been there ever since.

The soldier who founded that first post on part of the site of the present city of Kingston, was Louis de Buade, Count de Frontenac, the grim old war-governor of New France, and one of the strongest characters in the early history of this country.

From the seat of his government at Quebec, Frontenac, in the spring of 1673, issued an order requiring the inhabitants of Quebec, Montreal, Three Rivers and other settlements to furnish him, as soon as the crops had been put in, with a certain number of armed men, and the requisite number of canoes. He also invited officers settled in the colony to join the expedition. In this way he collected the force with which he set out upon an invasion of the western wilderness, which, at that time, came down to the palisades of Montreal, then little more than a fort and trading post on the edge of the forest, which stretched away to the Great Lakes and the treeless prairies beyond. While the men, the canoes, and the supplies were being collected, Frontenac sent LaSalle, the great explorer, to Onondaga, the capital of the Iroquois confederacy, to invite the tribes to send delegates to a great council. A spot on the shores of the Bay of Quinte was first selected as the meeting place, but this was changed to the mouth of the Cataraqui River, where Kingston now stands.

Accompanied by his guard, Frontenac set out from Quebec on June 3. He stopped at Three Rivers, and a few days later arrived at Montreal, which he then saw for the first time. It consisted of a rude fort, a long row of small dwellings along the banks of the river, and towering over all there were the massive seminary and the spire of the church. The city of that time stood on ground now occupied by the wholesale quarter of the present commercial metropolis.

Profits In Trees.

The owner of a suburban or country home with an estate attached should not jump to the conclusion that a bit of "bush" will be unprofitable. In the first place it will help to retain the moisture and thus affect surrounded land which is cultivated. In the second place, it adds much to the beauty of an estate, and may be a joy forever to the inhabitants of said estate.

Writing in The Canadian Farm, R. H. McMillan, of the Dominion Forestry service describes a small white pine plantation, thirty-five years old, which produced 88 cords of wood per acre. This, he claims, represents an annual return of $10 per acre for each year of the life of the plantation.

He tells that in a certain 34 years old larch plantation there are 710 trees to the acre. The thriftiest trees average nearly 8 1-2 inches in diameter, breast high, and 55 feet in height. At 34 years this plantation yielded 620 posts and three cords of firewood per acre. The net value of these products, after deducting with interest at three per cent. the cost of establishing the plantation, was $330.82 per acre. This was at three per cent. an annual profit per acre of $5.73 during the whole life of the plantation. The cost of establishing this plantation was $18 per acre. Planting larch will at least be as profitable as growing ordinary farm crops. Larch is adapted to well drained soils, but will fail where drainage is poor. It should be closely spaced, and should never be planted with trees which will grow faster and overtop it. Trees which might profitably be mixed with larch are spruce and sugar maple.

Odd Coincidence, This.

Sir James Grant, the veteran physician of Ottawa, at the Health Congress recently, congratulated Miss Ellen Babbitt of New York, on a paper she had read on the care of children, and incidentally mentioned a case when, in 1864, he had been on a train on the way to Washington, and had heard a baby coughing croup and about to choke. He had a bottle of medicine in his grip, and he hurried the porter to the mother, to tell her of the danger. Dr. Grant administered the medicine and saved the baby.

When he referred to the incident, Miss Babbitt said: "Why, that must have been my sister. I have often heard mother tell of that terrible night train journey, and how my sister was saved. But she never knew who the physician was." Her sister is still in the land of the living.

NO ESCAPE FROM THE ELECTRIC FOR AVIS LINNELL'S MURDERER

Boston, Mass., Jan. 19— Death in the electric chair will be the expiation of Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson's brutal murder of his girlish sweetheart, Avis Linnell. Hope of executive clemency that buoyed up the ministerial murderer so that he was able to stand calmly and listen to Judge Sanderson's sentence of death was abandoned to-day by his counsel and his few remaining friends They read the handwriting on the wall in the action of the Governor, who, although absolutely opposing the infliction of the death penalty failed to urge the executive council to extend clemency to Silas N. Phelps who will be executed next week for the muder of Sheriff Haskins. Gov. Foss failed to act only after he had privately canvassed the nine men of the council and found that several believed in enforcing the law as long as it remains on the statute books.

The appeal to the Governor to act will be made by Artorneys Morse and Lee, Richeson's counsel, but they admit to-day they have no hope. The sentiment against the minister is too strong. Thousands of letters have been received by the Governor and the Council demanding that the punishment the law has fitted to the crime be meted out.

Richeson will not be told that there is no hope until after he is removed to gloomy old Charlestown jail ten days before May 19, the date set for the execution. To do so would mean another breakdown. It was probably fear of the death chair that forced the confession.

ONE THING AT A TIME SAYS STREET RAILWAY MANAGER

The work of street railway extensions is discussed around the city quite extensively these days, and particularly the question being asked is, when are the street cars to run to East City. Mr. J. H. Munro, manager of the Peterborough Radial Railway, was asked to-day about what operations were under way or in contemplation for street railway extension, and replied that although much talk is taking place, he could announce nothing definite, as he was not in a position to do so. In regard to rumored extensions in the north end, Mr. Munro personally considered the route suggested as a good one, and although not exactly feasible, was worth considering. It was simply a matter for the company to decide, said Mr. Munro.

"It is better to do one thing at a time, in my opinion," he added.

The Byersville extension will be commenced as soon as the frost is out of the ground, the rails and ties being placed in the vicinity ready to start spring operations.

MR. J. H. GARBUTT IS PRESIDENT OF PETERBORO INDUSTRIAL

Elected to Office at Annual Meeting Mr Turner Suggests Improved Entrance to Grounds.

The directors of the Peterboro Industrial exhibition met at two o'clock this afternoon in the City Council chamber with the majority of the members present.

Mr. J. H. Garbutt, vice-president of the society, opened the meeting with a reference to the regretted death of the late president R. H. Leary, who had given splendid service. Then briefly reviewing the work of the Board during last year he urged a co-operative policy on the part of the Board, to bring the society to an even more flourishing condition than it is at present.

The reading of the minutes of the last meeting were accepted as read. Secretary F. J. A. Hall read the financial statement of the society, showing a balance on hand.

On motion the financial statement was received and adopted.

FIELD CROP COMPETITION

The question of holding the annual field crop competition, was brought up by the vice president. Prizes have been offered and Mr. Garbutt considered it was something which the farmers should take more interest in this year. There is no entry fee, and the contestant must be a member of the local society.

Mr. Collins moved that the field crop competition be carried on as in other years, and that white oats be grown. The motion was seconded and carried.

Whether departmental judges should be engaged or not was brought up.

"We are always sure of departmental judges, if they say they'll come," said Mr. Garbutt.

R. M. Glover moved that the department be asked to send judges this year as in other years. R. N. Scott seconded the motion. Messrs. Turner and Denne moved that the matter of judges be left to the executive. The amendment motion carried.

The Board, on motion, was affiliated with the Central Association of Fairs and Exhibitions.

The revision of the prize-lists was left with the executive. There was no correspondence of any account to be considered.

J. J. Turner said he would like to see a proper entrance to the fair grounds built as soon as possible as it would improve the appearance of the entrance. The question of buying a ticket turn-stule was recommended. A little argument occurred between Mr. Conway and Mr. Turner, out of the statement that many people gained admission to the grounds without paying. Mr. Conway considered the issuing of passes to be a loosing game.

UNANIMOUS CHOICE.

Mr. J. H. Garbutt was the unanimous choice of the Board for the presidency of the Board of Directors. Mr. Garbutt, however, at first declined on the ground that he would not have sufficient time during exhibition to attend to the duties and preferred that some citizen would take the office. It was the general wish of the Board, however, that Mr. Garbutt be appointed to the position, which he was prevailed upon to accept.

Wm. Collins was nominated for the vice-presidency. Mr. Denne and Mr. Gillespie, Mr. Conway and Mr. Neill were also nominated for the office.

STATEMENT FROM OFFICIAL OF THE POWER COMPANY

He Says Water Power Leases Have Not Been Granted

Ottawa, Jan. 18.—Denial of any refusal of the Electric Power Co., which controls most of the power development on the Trent River, to sell out to the Hydro-Electric Commission, was given this morning by A. L. Colville, of Campbellford, vice-president of the Electric Power Co., who is in town. "The Electric Power Co." he says, "has at the present time 16,500 horse power developed on the Trent River, which has all been sold and is being delivered in the various cities, towns, and villages in the district extending from Napanee on the east to Oshawa on the west.

"Their lines also extend into the mining district of North Hastings, and they supply Peterborough, Lindsey, and Millbrook in the north. They have over 200 miles of 44,000 volt transmission line, and 24 sub-stations. The powers are either held in fee simple or under lease from the Crown. The leases were granted by the Department of Railways and Canals. They have now under construction two additional power houses of 5,000 horse power and 11,000 horse power capacity the first to be finished by July 1st, the second by January 1st, 1913 Thirty-year franchises have been obtained in practically every town of importance in the district, and the rates are under the control of the Dominion Railway Board.

"The Hydro-Electric Commission, which in 1908 had an offer for a supply of power from the company, which however, it did not take, now desires to extend its policy of Government-owned power and transmission lines to Central Ontario," said Mr. Colville. "And the Electric Power Company while perfectly satisfied with its business, has no desire to stand in its way It has offered to sell to the Hydro-Electric Commission the whole of its undertakings, including power houses transmission lines, sub-stations, electric plants, street railway etc., at a price to be fixed by arbitration."

When asked regarding Hon. Adam Beck's statement that the Department had been granted leases of dams numbers 4 and 8, which were claimed by the Electric Company to the Hydro-Electric Commission, Mr. Colville said his company had heard of no such Order-in-Council.

TO EDUCATE THE PUBLIC

A laudable effort is being put forth by the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Temperance Alliance to educate the public in both the legal and the moral aspects of the temperance question. The holding of a County Field Day is part of this educational program. On that occasion representatives of the Alliance speak in every pulpit in the city and county open to them. The addresses vary according to circumstances but the general subject of temperance is not lost sight of and almost every feature of the temperance question is discussed some time or other.

Last year nearly three thousand meetings were held and the educational value of such a propaganda can scarcely be over estimated. The Field Day in Peterborough will be held on January 28th. Many pulpits in the county, and several in the city, will be occupied by representatives of the Alliance.

Two meetings will be held in the Opera House, Peterboro, one of them will be for men only at 4 o'clock, and the other, open to all, will be held at 8.15. Mr. Howard Russell, winner of one of Earl Grey's medals will sing at each meeting, and addresses will be delivered by Rev. R. M. Hamilton B.A., Field Secretary; Rev. Dr. R. H. Abraham, Field Secretary; Rev. B. H. Spence, General Secretary, and Rev. Professor Hallam of Wycliffe College, Toronto.

NOT SATISFIED WITH SCHEDULE

Kingston Teachers Think Maximun is Too Low

Kingston, Jan. 18— At a special meeting of the Woman Teachers' Association on the new salary schedule was discussed and while a step in the right direction has been taken by the board of education, they feel the new schedule does not go far enough in that the maximum is still too low. Also by this scheme a few teachers, who have always given satisfaction, have not benefited, as have some who have taught a much shorter time.

LULU GLASER GRANTED DIVORCE

Hubby Wanted to Show Her Who Was Master

Chicago, Jan 18.—Mrs. Ralph C. Herz, known on the stage as Lulu Glaser, was given a decree of divorce to-day by Judge McDonald in the Superior Court.

Some weeks ago Miss Glaser told the court her husband had beaten and choked her a number of times. Judge McDonald withheld the decree because of newspaper reports that Herz did not contest the suit for chivalric reasons, Herz was summoned into court, and there admitted he had beaten his wife "to show her who was master."

GET AFTER COMBINES

Hon. Mr. Oliver Raises Question in the Commons.

Ottawa, Jan. 20.—Hon. Frank Oliver declared in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon that the main question in regard to combines was over-capitalization.

He was welcomed by W. F. Maclean (S. York) as a recruit to the number of those who were making an effort to get this abuse dealt with.

J. H. Burnham also spoke in denunciation of over-capitalization, and Hon. Robert Rogers declared that the Government had been seriously considering the question.

When the House went into supply on the estimates of the Department of Labor, E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) proceeded to throw a few bouquets to Hon. T. W. Crothers for his announcement that the Combines Investigation Act would not be amended at the present session. The Minister now sat with hands folded, unable to act, though, while in opposition, he had been impatient for action.

J. H. Sinclair (Guysboro): "Would the Minister appoint a board of conciliation at the instance of a union having its headquarters in the United States?" He himself would favor the Canadian union.

Hon. T. W. Crothers declared that the Department established boards of conciliation without reference to whether the men were members of an international or any kind of union. No such question had arisen since he had assumed charge of the Department.

Hon. Frank Oliver declared that, when a combine had been formed in the baking of bread, the time was ripe for a new view to be taken in regard to combines. The main question today was the over-capitalization of companies, which took a double toll of both producer and consumer, on one of the most intimate necessities of life.

W. F. Maclean (S. York): "I can see now that I and some other members of this House are likely to get more support than in the past in dealing with the capitalization of companies of all kinds."

"Our Combines Act to-day is left to the initiative of private individuals, but, as in the combines law of the United States, there is a clause stating that it is the duty of the Attorney-General of the United States to enforce it, and there is provision made for the appropriation of a large sum of money to enforce that law.

"We have combines in Canada, it is true, and I assert boldly here that these combines must be regulated by the law of this Parliament, and that law must be put in operation against them by the federal authority."

J. H. Burnham (W. Peterboro) declared that the people of the country would not submit to their bread being taken away by over-capitalized combines, and, if the Government could not deal with them, then the people would take over the means of production and transportation.

W. E. Knowles (Moosejaw) commended the cement merger to the Minister of Labor as a question to be grappled with.

Hon. Robert Rogers agreed with much that Hon. Frank Oliver and W. F. Maclean had said. The Government had been seriously considering the question. He taunted the Opposition with their new-found zeal against combines.

E. B. Devlin (Wright) thought the meat combine was even worse than the cement combine.

Hon. Charles Murphy declared that the bread combine was a creation of the Ontario Government. He would like to know if the Toronto correspondents of The Labor Gazette had drawn attention to it.

Hon. T. W. Crothers: "No, they have not."

Dr. Clark (Red Deer) took his free trade hobby out for a canter. It was the tariff, he declared, that artifically protected combines, which only became dangerous when they got the field to themselves.

The evening session was taken up with charges about the dismissal of civil servants and counter charges from the right of the Speaker as to the iniquities of the preceding Liberal regime.

CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY

Special to the Review.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Senator Albert B. Cummins, progressive Republican from Iowa, to-day issued a statement announcing his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination.

DUKE TO OMIT WASHINGTON

London, Jan. 20.—The fact that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, with their daughter, Princess Patricia, are not to visit Washington while they are in the United States, is causing comment here, although it is believed there must be some good explanation for their decision.

It is usual when royal personages are on a visit to a foreign country, even if semi-official, for them to pay their respects to the head of the nation in which they are guests. The Duke of Connaught has the reputation of always doing the right thing, and people here refuse to believe that he is now making any mistake.

The visit to Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid was arranged before the duke went to Canada and follows the farewell dinner given to the duke and duchess at Dorchester House. They, in fact, have been frequently guests of the U. S. Ambassador.

It pays to advertise in the Review.

ULTIMATUM HAS BEEN DELIVERED

Republicans Send Drastic Note to Premier Yuan—Propose to Change the Capital.

Nanking, Jan. 20.—A most important step was taken by the Republican Government yesterday when it telegraphed an ultimatum to Premier Yuan Shi Kai at Pekin. The terms of the document are very drastic and are substantially as follows:

"In the first place the abdication of the throne and the surrender of the sovereign powers are demanded.

"In the second place no Manchu may participate in the Provisional Government of China.

"In the third place the capital of the Provisional Government cannot be established at Pekin.

"In the fourth place Premier Yuan Shi Kai cannot participate in the Provisional Government of China until the republic has been recognized by the foreign powers and the country has been restored to peace and harmony."

Yesterday's decided action by the Republican Government is due to Premier Yuan Shi Kais demand that Dr. Sun Yet Sen resign the Presidency.

The ultimatum telegraphed to Premier Yuan Shi Kai by the Republican Government yesterday, contains, according to the Republican leaders, the last word of the Republicans.

President Sun Yet Sen said yesterday to the Canadian Press:

"I have taken an oath to oust the Manchu rulers and restore peace to the country before resigning. I have taken an oath to establish a republic in China and if I consented to the propositions laid down by Yuan Shi Kai, I should be foresworn.

"I am convinced that a republic is not only practicable, but that it would be the best thing for China. Those asserting otherwise know nothing about the Chinese.

"China cannot permit outsiders to dictate her form of government. This republic is now an established fact. Nothing can swerve me from what I consider my duty to my fellow countrymen.

"Undoubtedly the best thought of China unanimously supports the republic. There is no question of north and south. I am firmly convinced that the people of eighteen provinces are in favor of a republic.

"We are now confident of the righteousness of our cause and of the superiority of our military strength. If Yuan Shi Kai persists in obstructing, our armies will be ordered to march northward."

Situation In Pekin.

Pekin, Jan. 20.—There has been considerable effervescence in Pekin throughout the day among both foreign residents and the Chinese. There were many rumors of the possibility of a Manchurian outbreak, which, however, appears unlikely at present.

The ex-regent, Prince Chun, and the former Premier, Prince Ching, visited Premier Yuan Shi Kai yesterday afternoon, and had a long conference with him. It appears that the court has not produced the gold it promised to provide, and the Imperial soldiers do not show any anxiety to fight for glory.

The Mongol princes who most strenuously oppose abdication, are those of Inner Mongolia from the districts south of the desert. Their opposition is strengthened by the fear that the Republicans will confiscate their estates.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai was invited several times to participate in the conference of the princes, but he steadfastly refused, as he desired to London Railway Combine.

London, Jan. 20.—It was officially announced yesterday that Sir Edgar Speyers has successfully terminated a merger of the Underground Electric Railway Co. of London and the London General Omnibus Co.

This is one of the most important achievements that has occurred in many years in transportation circles in this city. One company controls most of the underground railways, and the other a very large majority of the busses operating in London and the surrounding districts.

It involves investments aggregating over $150,000,000.

ESTABLISHED A WORLD'S RECORD

Special to the Review.

Paris, Jan. 20—Aviator Verrept established a new world's record today, carrying two passengers to a heighth of thirty three hundred feet in a monoplane.

Berlin Police Commissioners.

Berlin, Jan. 20.—The board of police commissioners met yesterday afternoon and organized for the year. Chisholm is again chairman, and Police Magistrate Weir is secretary. Mayor Schmalz was also in attendance. The commissioners will recommend to the City Council the appointment of two adidtional men to the force and some increases in all salaries.

Miss Nella Moffatt, daughter of John Moffatt, died yesterday afternoon after a lingering illness.

REPORTED THAT CHINESE PREMIER IS PRACTICALLY HELD PRISONER

Is Believed to Secretly Favor a Republic—Forced to Champion Manchu Cause

Special to the Review.

London, Eng., Jan. 20.—Advicas from China to-day sav that Yuan Shi Kai is practically held a prisoner in Pekin and champions the Manchu cause only because any other course would mean his death. Yuan's friends believe he is secretly in favor of a republic.

THREE FIREMEN INJURED IN COSTLY BLAZE IN TORONTO

It is Estimated That the Loss Will be $125,000—Car Service Was Crippled far a Time.

Toronto, Jan. 20.—Damage roughly estimated at $125,000; three firemen injured by a loose lay of hose carrying a high pressure stream, the partial demoralization of the street car services, affecting the lines serving two of the big theatres, and one more demonstration of the crippling effect of overhead wires upon fire fighting, were the results of a blaze which broke out in the Allan Manufacturing Co.'s five-storey brick building at the southeast corner of Simcoe and Pearl streets at 7.50 last night.

Those who lose are the Allan Manufacturing Co., who own the building and occupy the three lower floors and basement, where they manufacture whitewear, blouses and umbrellas, and operate the Swiss Laundry, and R. D. Fairbairn, who manufactures whitewear and blouses in the two top floors. The estimate of the damage sets it at $25,000 to building, and $100,000 to contents by fire and water.

The fire broke out in either the third or top floor, and was seen by A. J. Phillips of the Toronto General Electric office on Simcoe street, who says he heard something which sounded like an explosion and ran into the street to find flames bursting from the windows of both floors at the middle of the building on Pearl street. He turned in an alarm at once and says that the firemen were there almost immediately.

A clear or accurate estimate of the damage could not be had. Mr. Fairbairn was not in the city, being on his way here from Montreal on the train, and did not learn of the fire until his arrival in Toronto this morning. None of the Allan firm could be seen.

There was one fortunate feature of the fire and that was that the section of the Fairbairn premises lying to the east of the firewall and being untouched either by fire or water contained the factory, where more than three hundred girls are employed. This will save these employes from loss of occupation. A number will be out of work in the laundry and Allan factory.

There will be a lot of folk whose laundry will be like a purchase at a fire sale, only wetter. The firemen were kept on the job until morning, and the car service did not settle down to normal routes and conditions until after midnight.

BIG DONATIONS TO Y.M.C.A. FUND

Special to the Review.

London, Eng., Jan. 20.—The Y.M.CA. fund was swelled to over a quarter of a million dollars this morning by the receipt of over a thousand letters containing donations amounting to more than twenty thousand dollars.

PROBABILITIES

Moderate to fresh south to west winds, generally fair and cold to-day and on Sunday, but some light local snow chiefly to-night.

Clerical Riots of Spain.

Lisbon, Jan. 20.—Many persons were injured yesterday at Sao Bartholomeu during a conflict with the militia. A priest attacked from the pulpit the separation law and announced that he would close the church.

Republicans among his auditors protested, and a fight between them and the clericals ensued. The military was called out and drove the warring factions from the church, but in doing so many persons were injured.

ITALIANS SEIZE SECOND STEAMER

French Mail Boat is Searched by Destroyers on Suspicion That She Carried Turkish Officers.

Tunis, Jan. 20.—Some Italian destroyers yesterday seized the French steamer Manouba, bound to Tunis from Marseilles. The Manouba is a mail boat belonging to the French line.

Marseilles, Jan. 20.—The steamer Manouba, which is the regular Tunis mail boat, carried when she was seized by the Italian warships a Turkish medical mission, consisting of 27 members of the Red Crescent, headed by Drs. Enymin Bey and Rifki Effendi. She also had on board 67 sacks of mail for Tunis and one for Tripoli.

Searched for Turks.

Tunis, Jan. 20.—The Italian officers who effected the seizure of the Manouba declared that the reason for her arrest was that it was believed Turkish officers were on board disguised as nurses.

Italian destroyers also stopped and searched the German steamer Schleswig of the North German Lloyd, which left Marseilles on Wednesday and reached here Thursday, and is due at Alexandria on Jan. 22.

Intense Feeling Aroused.

Paris, Jan. 20.—The seizure of the French steamer Manouba by the Italian cruiser yesterday has aroused intense feelings in political and commercial circles. Premier Poincare has instructed the French Ambassador at Rome to protest against the seizure and several members of the Chamber of Deputies declare they will interpellate Premier Poincare about it. The Premier, however, has announced that he will make a declaration on the subject Monday.

The Association of Ship Workers of France has written a letter to M. Poincare pointing out the injury to neutral shipping caused by the Turco-Italian war, as clerly demonstrating the urgent necessity for the establishment of an international prize court, and asking him to do his utmost to hasten the ratification by Parliament of The Hague convention of 1907, the Declaration of London of 1909 and an additional protocol thereto of 1910.

Will Release Steamers.

Rome, Jan. 20.—The Italian Government last night telegraphed the authorities at Cagliari to immediately release the steamer Carthage, which recently was seized by the Italians and her cargo. It is said that the steamer Manouba, a French line mail boat, which was captured by Italian destroyers, also will be released after a number of Turks, who were on board her, were landed.

The order for the release of the Carthage was sent after the French charge d'affaires here had assured Foreign Minister San Guiliano that Aviator Duval, who was a passenger on the steamer, had announced to the French Government a formal undertaking to place neither himself nor his aeroplane at the service of either the Italians or the Turks in Tripoli, whither the Carthage was bound when she was captured. The charge d'affaires told Marquis San Guiliano that the French Government would see to it that Duval strictly observed his promise.

Bombarded Zoara.

Tripoli, Jan. 20.—As punishment to the inhabitants of Zoara, who fired on Italian boats, the warships Carlo Alberto, Iride, Fulmin and Ciprio Casiope yesterday bombarded that locality, destroying the barracks, the residence of Kainsakan, or administrator, and sweeping the Turkish trenches. A number of Turks were [illegible] disorder. Many of them were struck by Italian shells.

Turks Fought Bulgarians.

London, Jan. 20.—Turkish troops have had a sharp fight with a Bulgarian band near Kratovo, a town of 6,000 in habitants in the Vilayet of Kosova, a short distance east of Uskup, says a despatch to a news agency from Saloniki. Five of the Bulgarians, including their leader, were killed, while the Turks lost one man. It is said that bombs and a number of important documents were found on the dead Bulgarians.

CHURCH ANNULLED THE MARRIAGE

Court Will Uphold the Decision as Husband Did Not Appear.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—The marriage case of Dame Anne Meunier vs. F. X. Blanchet comes again before the court. A month ago she made application to have the marriage annulled. The two were Catholics and married by a Catholic priest, but it is claimed they are cousins and of the third degree in collateral line of consanguinity, and therefore that the marriage was illegal, owing to the prohibitory rules of the Catholic Church. The judge had dismissed the application, as there was no ruling by the church and the case could not be considered by the civil court till there was.

"Madame: I am instructed to announce to you that his grace, the Archbishop of Montreal, has pronounced a sentence of nullity of marriage in the case you have submitted. (Signed) Emile Roy, chancellor."

The judge now takes the case en delibre, but it will go in favor of the woman by default, as the man did not appear.

O.M.A. SECRETARY TO SPEAK HERE

Health Association Considering Engagement of District Nurse

The executive of the Peterborough Health Association met yesterday afternoon. A women's auxiliary for the aid of the Association was considered, and authorized to be formed.

Dr. Porter, secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, and an authority on the treatment of tuberculosis, was invited to be present, and address a meeting within the next ten days in the Collegiate Institute hall.

Steps for procuring the services of a district or ambulatory nurse were taken. Her duties will be to visit, under the guidance of a medical practicioner, any sufferers from tuberculosis and be of what assistance possible.

The accounts of the ladies who sold the Health Association calendars, were presented and showed a balance of $300 on hand. A resolution of thanks was tendered to the ladies for their efforts to extend and assist the work of the society.

A special train from Paris, with passengers for America, caught fire near Cherbourg, and the postal vans were destroyed.

UNION LABEL

"FIXED UP" LIQUORS

License Inspector Stewart is going to take active steps to stop the practice of handing out "fixed up" liquors in the bars of the city. As long as the bars are permitted to exist, they should be made live up to the letter of the law in every respect, or heavy fines should be handed out. Samples of liquor should be taken frequently and if they do not come up to the standard, the offenders should be promptly taken into court. If a man goes into a bar and pays for a drink of liquor, he should get the article called for, unadulterated, but he seldom does, if reports can be believed. There have been many complaints of late to the inspector, and he has dertermined to protect the public against inferior liquors being handed out.

WERE DISSAPOINTED

Many people were disappointed that Mr. Joseph Fels, the millionaire soap manufacturer and exponent of the single tax idea, did not appear in the city last night as scheduled to give an address in St. Paul's church. His address had been looked forward to with interest by many, and some of these freely expressed the opinion that they could see no good reason for the visit of Mr. Fels being cancelled. The reason given is that Mr. Fels made remarks which were considered to be defending the McNamaras, the dynamiters, and is said to have expressed other views, which Mr. Cowan, who had charge of the meeting arranged here, did not think created a good impression. Mr. Cowan promptly called up Rev. Macdonald, of the Globe, and the latter said, while he was in sympathy with Mr. Fels and his work, he would not advise his coming to Peterborough. Mr. Cowan then notified Mr. Fels not to come to Peterborough. Just why the Rev. Editor Macdonald should be asked to decide whether the people of Peterborough should hear Mr. Fels is a puzzle. We have yet to learn that he has been appointed censor for the city. Mr. Fels is a gentleman, and, while he might have views that the majority of people would not agree with, that is no good reason why he should not be heard. He has spoken in many of the larger cities of the United States and in the Dominion, and has been greeted by large audiences and has been accorded every courtesy.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Prisoners in the Toronto jail were fed at a cost of a little less than three cents a meal. Why all this talk about the high cost of living.

A New Jersey girl put varnish in a cake instead of syrup. Perhaps she thought some of her friends needed polishing up.

An exchange says: "A politician is that the people make him." The people should be heartily ashamed of some of their "makes" if this is true.

A Michigan specialist says alcohol fills the asylums. It fills more than the asylums if some of the jags we see around here are to be taken into consideration.

A crusty old bachlor says that beauty is the recompense given to woman for her weakness. No married man would have the nerve to say it.

An enterprising merchant has the following sign in his store: "The Lord helps those who help themselves; but the Lord help those who are caught helping themselves here."

Several firms in American cities are offering prizes for the girl who will admit that she made a Leap Year proposa. to the young man. Some enterprising Peterborough merchants should try this scheme.

The persistent advertiser is the man who gets results. The Review covers Peterboro and district thoroughly and it goes into the best families; the people who have money to spend.

France is very wrathy because the Italians seized a French steamer with aeroplanes aboard. These vessels of the air are supposed to have been for the Turks in Tripoli. France will demand release of the steamer and an apology. Will the Italians comply. Sure thing. They are having a busy enough time with the Turks, thank you.

Kingston policemen are paid $50 a month, and the men are asking for higher wages. If a policeman in a place the size of Kingston is a good officer, surely he is worth more than that amount. These guardians of the law have many trials to face, including all kinds of hardened criminals to deal with, and have to put up with many hardships on account of the weather in the winter.

Money Back Dandruff Cure

Wm. Madill Guarantees Parisian Sage for Dandruff and Falling Hair

Destroy the dandruff germs that's the only known way to eradicate dandruff, and PARISIAN SAGE contains just the ingredients that will destroy germs.

Dandruff causes falling hair and baldness, because the little dandruff germs rob the hair roots of the nourishment that should go to supply life, luster and vigor to the hair.

PARISIAN SAGE costs but 50 cents a bottle at Wm. Madill's and druggists everywhere. It is guaranteed to banish dandruff, stop falling hair or scalp itch, or money back. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle. It is a most delightful and daintily perfumed dressing that quickly invigorates the scalp.

"My hair was falling out badly until I began to use PARISIAN SAGE, but it looks fine now. My hair was getting very thin, but it is getting thick and wavy.—Eliza Archer, 60 Church street, Hartford, Conn., June 5.

Manitoba's New Grief

Canadian Courier

Manitoba has a new brand of trouble. The population of the smaller towns shows a falling off which is not encouraging. Neepawa's population has fallen from 1895 to 1883 in five years. Carman has gone from 1530 to 1236, Killarney from 1117 to 1010 Morden from 1437 to 1130, and so on through the list. Sixteen towns show a combined loss of 1900 although there has been an increase on the whole.

Recently a deputation of provincial character waited on the Hon. George Lawrence, Minister of Agriculture, and suggested a more active immigration campaign. Mr. Lawrence announced that arrangements were being made with the Ottawa authorities which would, he believed, bring justice to Manitoba, so far as this problem is concerned. Manitoba does not propose to be a New Brunswick or a Nova Scotia if united effort will prevent it.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

Now it was the eastern wing or gable which sheltered the library, the conservatory, and Mr. Page's bedroom, and it was thither the second man's foot-prints led. I followed them round the corner of the house.

From their appearance it was easy to trace all the mysterious intruder's movements. Evidently after the door had closed behind the first arrival, Number Two had stood for some time at the east end of the porch. Then he had moved toward the same end of the house, pausing at every window and trying the sash to ascertain whether it was fastened. Turning at the corner, he had proceeded along the side of the house, still testing the windows and bestowing particular attention upon the glass conservatory. This was true of every window as far as the bedroom, at least; beyond that I did not explore. Just as I drew opposite the first of the bedroom windows I came to an abrupt halt.

There was a light in the room.

Nor was this all. Some person was in the room, too, and by the silhouette on the blind I could see that he was industriously applying himself to some task, the nature of which I could not determine. The longer I watched the shadow on the blind, the more puzzled I grew. I could imagine no occupation that would account for such singular actions.

The shadow was a man's; I could distinguish that much. He appeared to be bending over something, while his hands flew hither and thither, as if they were performing a quick-step upon a piano. But no sound of music came from the lighted room.

It would be impossible to say how long I stood there, the snow nearly to my knees, fascinated by the remarkable antics of that shadow. Then of a sudden the hands ceased flying. The man straightened and became motionless, as if startled by some unexpected sound.

Well, perhaps within the next second he knew what had alarmed him; I'm sure that I did not. The shadow flashed away the blind. Then my scalp tingled and the blood seemed to freeze in my veins.

From within the room there came a most unearthly cry. It was weird terrifying, utterly unlike anything I had ever heard—save once. For it was a repitition of the wild, inhuman note that had thrilled me when I first dashed open the bath room door the previous night.

The terrible cry was not immediately repeated, but for a while the utmost confusion prevailed within. I could hear furniture knocked and slammed about,' a tumult of stamping scraping feet, and once—for the briefest moment—another shadow was projected upon the blind.

It was a hideous, squat, dwarfish shadow. Two long gorilla-like arms were upraised in an abandonment of fury. Then came that awful, bloodcurdling scream again, and the shadow's owner seemed to plunge forward.

Another crash followed. The light was suddenly blotted out. The silence was once more absolute.

CHAPTER XXII

Ashes of Old Romance.

It was Friday afternoon when Genevieve started on her mission; the following Wednesday morning I received a telegram from her announcing that she would be home that same afternoon. The interim was so uneventful that my note-book mentions only two incidents as being worthy of preservation.

Late Friday night the welcome news came to headquarters that Alexander Burke had been found. He appeared at his lodgings shortly before midnight, looking wretchedly ill and exhausted. Saturday morning a physician was called in, and the whilom secretary was not able to appear upon the streets again until Tuesday. Then it was observed that a change had come over the man. His impassivity had been penetrated at last; it could no longer hide a nervousness and apprehension which kept his head perpetually pivoting in backward glances across his shoulder.

I smiled with satisfaction when Fanshawe told me this.

"Stay with him," I said; "it makes no difference whether or not he knows that you are always close behind him. In fact, I want him to know it; I want to break that man, and I will."

The other incident referred to was a meeting I succeeded in securing between Maillot and Miss Belle—memorable for me as being the first occasion upon which I was favored with a glimpse of Mrs. Fluette.

Sunday afternoon mother and daughter drove up to headquarters in the family carriage. Although the girl had been tactful enough to eschew a heavy veil and sombre apparel, it was plain to be seen that the event was almost too great an ordeal for even her proud and dauntless spirit.

Belle descended from the carriage hesitantly, and then stood looking about with an air of such helpless terror that I approached—I had previously resolved to keep myself effaced during the visit—and conducted her into the Captain's private office, where Maillot was waiting. She gave me an embarrased, beseeching glance, and murmured a barely audible "Thank you." No more was said. She faltered an instant on the threshold, then, sobbing, rushed in. I made haste to close the door and rejoin Mrs. Fluette.

This lady was slight and frail, with hair as white as snow, and about her there hung an intangible something which gave me the impression that she was a woman who had suffered much. Although I strove to speak cheerfully of the prospects of Maillot's early release, her manner was quite discouraging to all my overtures. When she spoke at all it was only in the faintest monosyllables—usually with her eyes avoiding mine. She looked at me, when at all, shyly, started at every unusual sound, and trembled during the whole time she sat in the Captain's big easy-chair.

At the end of the allotted half-hour—I wasn't very particular over the number of minutes—Mrs. Fluette's increasing nervousness and impatience moved me to rap upon the private-room door. Belle emerged, her cheeks white and her eyes swollen with weeping. The poor girl pressed my hand when I helped her into the carriage—clung to it despairingly, to be exact—and the tears again rushed to her eyes.

"This is killing me!" she moaned. "Oh, it is! it is! I can't stand it much longer."

"Courage, Miss Fluette," I undertoned assuasively. "Everything is working for the best, believe me."

Ah, but was it? I could not say the words with much assurance. They drove away, two sad, harassed women.

Touching again upon Wednesday afternoon, I was pretty sure that the Fluette carriage would meet Genevieve at the station—very likely with Belle, or possibly Mrs. Fluette. In anticipation of the request that she find an excuse to meet me at the earliest possible moment, for I was all impatience to hear her report.

But Genevieve had anticipated also. She arrived armed with a commission from the Ohio cousin, the performance of which would brook no delay. So I had a minute alone with her downtown. She had been thoughtful enough to record a detailed statement of her investigations; it lies before me now as I write; and I shall condense from it those portions that are essential to advancing this chronicle.

In the early '50's Clara Cooper was the belle of the village of Merton. Wooers were many, but favors were few and grudgingly bestowed; and in time all suitors withdrew, leaving the field clear to Alfred Fluette and Felix Page.

The Coopers and the Fluettes represented the wealth and aristocracy of the community, while Felix Page was a poor, struggling young man whose only advantages and prospects for the future lay in his indomitable pluck and a resolution that was ready to ride roughshod over all opposition.

And Clara favored the poor young man. He went forth from Merton resolved to wrest a fortune from the world and lay it at his sweetheart's feet. She promised to wait for him until he returned with the fulfilment of his ambitious aims.

AN OPEN LETTER

From a Well Known Clergyman Showing How Indigestion Can Be Cured

Rev. T. A. Drury, Beamsville, Ont., writes as follows:—"For eighteen years I have been increasingly impressed with the wonderful effects for good wrought by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For some years I had suffered almost constantly with chronic dyspepsia of the most stubborn type attended by different other troubles, which invariably follow, or accompany it as it results, prominent among which were kidney trouble and piles. Again this complication of diseases I waged a vigorous warfare for several months, using many different remedies, none of which gave permanent relief. In my discouragement I was about to discontinue treatment, although when I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, the use of which, though under very unfavorable circumstances, soon revived my drooping courage. The medicine struck at the root of my weakness and the different troubles of which dyspepsia was the prime cause, released, let go and disappeared. In one month I increased fifteen pounds in weight, and received a new lease of life. Only six boxes of pills produced this wonderful change in my health, which was miraculously permanent.

Later my sister became so reduced by anaemia (though under the care of our family doctor) that she could scarcely walk. In this dangerous extremity Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were resorted to, and in a brief space of time restored her to perfect health.

Being a minister of the gospel many test cases have come under my notice, in all of which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have fully sustained their world-wide reputation. This is why I can conscientiously recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as being superior to anything known to me in the treatment of the many diseases for which they are recommended."

Say Commissioners Must Go.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—At a largely attended meeting of the Club Cartier, held last evening, a resolution was adopted asking the Federal Ministers to demand the resignation of the three Montreal harbor commissioners.

Mr. Charles Bellemare, M.P. for Maskinonge, spoke briefly, declaring that as far as he was able to judge opinion at the capital the commissioners would soon be replaced.

J. P. O. Guilbault, M.P. for Joliette, also spoke, declaring that although he did not speak for the Cabinet he was sure the commission would soon give place to one more in harmony with the powers that be.

SAVED FROM THE SURGEON'S KNIFE

"Fruit-a-tives" cured Appendicitis

NEWBURGH, Ont., Feb. 12th. 1910.

"Just about a year ago, our daughter Ella (fourteen years) was taken with terrible pains in the right side. We at once put her under the care of a first-class doctor, who pronounced it a case of Appendicitis and advised an operation. We took her to a Hospital in Kingston where she was again immediately examined by an eminent specialist. He said she had Appendicitis and must be operated on at once, if we wanted to save her life.

"Luckily for us and for her, an uncle came in with some 'Fruit-a-tives' and insisted on Ella taking them. Good results were apparent almost from the first dose, and the treatment cured her. 'Fruit-a-tives' saved our daughter from the surgeon's knife and to-day she is enjoying the best of health".

It is currently reported that the irreconcilable Prince Tsaitao, brother of the ex-Regent, is inciting the Manchu troops to cause trouble.

Ask Foreign Negotiation.

Nanking, Jan. 20.—The Republican Government yesterday sent an appeal to the powers for recognition. This took the form of a circular, which was sent to London, Washington, Tokio, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg, and was signed by Wang Chung Wei, the Foreign Minister of the Republican Cabinet.

The terms of the circular are as follows:

"The Manchu Government having entered into negotiations with the Republic of China for the purpose of abdicating its entire sovereign rights powers, and privileges, we reverently pray for recognition in order to avoid a disastrous interregnum.

In Race With Ice Floes.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 20.—All of the Gloucester fishing vessels, comprising the fleet in Newfoundland waters have started for home, according to information received here yesterday. Following the news received Thursday and the day before regarding the successful dash for liberty made by the eighteen schooners, which had been imprisoned by ice in Bay of Islands, despatches from Newfoundland yesterday stated that the seven vessels which had been shut up in Bonne Bay struck out into the open sometime Thursday and began a hazardous race with the ice down the west coast of Newfoundland.

The coroner's jury which inquired into the death of Peno Domenico, shot last Sunday at a party in Montreal has brought in a verdict holding Giuseppi Polatti and Francisco Pineapelli responsible for his death.

John Redmond, the Nationalist leader in the British Commons, was able to leave his bedroom yesterday. He says he is determined to attend the home rule meeting at Belfast on Feb. 8, even if he has to be carried there.

A large frame barn and two sheds belonging to Joseph Allen of Melrose, near Belleville, were burned. Twenty-five head of cattle were cremated, 60 tons of hay burned, and also many implements. The loss is estimated at about $6,000.

Burned In Fire Hall.

Kenora, Ont., Jan. 20.—Charles Nelson, a fireman in the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was burned to death yesterday morning in a conflagration which completely destroyed the local fire hall. The horses of the fire department, four in number, were burned, and the occupants of the building, all of whom were asleep when the flames broke out, had a narrow escape.

Nelson had been arrested earlier for threatening to shoot up the town. He had no relatives in this country.

Dynamiters In Pueblo.

Pueblo, Colo., Jan. 20.—A terrific dynamite explosion early yesterday partly wrecked the Colorado Laundry, in the heart of the business district of this city, and damaged the office of the Globe Express Co.

The city detectives, who immediately began an investigation, found a dynamite fuse in the alley outside the express office.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY. CONSULTATION FREE.

EXPONENT OF SINGLE TAX WAS ASKED TO STAY AWAY

His Address for St. Paul's Lecture Hall Cancelled at Last Moment.

The unexpected frequently happens, and when Joseph Fels, the millionair single tax exponent became conspicuous by his absence last night at St. Paul's church, the fair sized audience who had assembled to hear him speak were keenly disappointed. When H. B. Cowan, president of the Men's Brotherhood of St. Paul's, who had charge of the arrnagements whereby Mr Fels was to lecture nere, explained the reason for the non-appearance, matters were straightened out. Mr. Cowan stated that, while in Toronto, he heard and read of unfavorable criticisms of some Mr. Fels utterances, and particularly an account of an interview with Mr. Fels where the millionaire had practically endorsed the actions of the men who had destroyed the Los Angeles building. Becoming informed of this Mr. Cowan attended a banquet at which Mr. Fels spoke and after hearing him deemed it inadvisable to bring him to Peterboro. He phoned, however, to Rev. J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Globe, about the matter and on his advice cancelled the engagement of Mr. Fels.

Mr. Cowan expressed his willingness, however, to try and fill Mr. Fels' place in speaking of "Single Tax" and for about an hour covered the origin and history of single tax, pointing out what, in his opinion, were some of its most commendable features.

The following is the account of the interview which occurred in Toronto with Mr. Fels, and which the Toronto News published—

Toronto, January 18.—Judge not that ye be not judged."

In this scriptural exhortation Joseph Fels, the millionaire soap manufacturer and advocate of the single tax system, expressed yesterday his final opinion of the McNamara brothers' crimes in blowing up the Los Angeles Times and committing other outrages.

In reply to a request for an expression of opinion on the guilt of the McNamaras and their responsibility in the eyes of fellow unionists, Mr. Fels, who is professedly of socialist sympathies, dictated a statement which substantially argues partial justification for the famous dynamiters and places them as victims of a "system" rather than common murderers. Mr. Fels said:

"My opinion is that the McNamara brothers were obsessed, as hundreds of others are obsessed, with the idea that there is a distinct class consciousness in this country, and that the monopolists and special privilege men are in opposition to the laboring man, and therefore his deadly enemy. Such men as the McNamaras reasoned that monopolists are banded together to use labor at the cheapest rate it can be bought at, and at as long hours as it will stand, and keep as large a percentage of laborers out of work as will depreciate wages. They contend that in banding together men who are the victims of monopoly and special privileges, they are justified in making monopolists sit up and think. To speak vulgarly it is merely a question in the minds of such men of 'dog eat dog.'"

"I have no more blame for the McNamaras than for any other victim of our present kind of civilization. Nor have I any more sympathy with such alleged men as General Otis than with the most rampant anarchistic laboring man. Otis is simply an anarchist of special privilege. The other is simply an anarchist of labor—and I take my choice. I do not believe the McNamaras think they have committed any crimes. They regard themselves defenders of their brothers, and in summing up their acts I would simply say, 'Judge not that ye be not judged.'"

Graniteville, Vt.—"I was passing through the Change of Life and suffered from nervousness and other annoying symptoms, and I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proved worth mountains of gold to me, as it restored my health and strength. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me during this trying period. Complete restoration to health means so much to me that for the sake of other suffering women I am willing to make my trouble public so you may publish this letter."—Mrs. Chas. Barclay, R.F.D., Graniteville, Vt.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine we know of has such a record of cures as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than 30 years it has been curing woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and it is unequalled for carrying women safely through the period of change of life.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

LABOR COUNCIL MAY BRING MR. FELS. HERE

Peterborough people will in all probability have the opportunity of hearing Mr. Joseph Fels speak on the question of Single Tax.

President Moore, of the Trades and Labor Council, stated to-day that he would call a meeting of the executive of the Council for to-night to consider the matter of arranging for the appearnace of Mr. Fells in thic ctiy.

Single Tax is one of the platforms of the Trades and Labor Council, and the audience at St. Paul's church last night which heard not Mr. Fels, included many members of the local trades and labor unions of the city.

Some Suggestions as to How it May be Done—Co-operation Essential

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—One of the plans developed in other places for encouraging small industries was one promoted in Moose Jaw. It was to have the city erect a large factory building and subdivide it into separate premises and to rent it furnished with light, power and water at lowest prices. I did not notice whether this plan was carried out, although it was reported in a despatch in the papers.

In an Ontario city a gentleman purchased a block of vacant land, and he gives free sites to factories. To one at least he gave, in addition to a site for the factory, several building lots as a bonus. He is paid a small salary by the city to promote the location of industries. Of course this gentleman expects to make money out of his land by inducing factories to locate there, but it looks like good business for the city as well as for himself. In this place, when he needs a special fund to promote the location of a factory it is readily furnished by citizens, and a number of manufacturers and business men stand ready to back him up.

In Hamilton some years ago a by-law to aid an industry did not receive the necessary number of votes in its favor. Then another plan was put into operation. A large section of a township was annexed to the city and by the terms of annexation the assessment and rate of taxation in the annexed territory were fixed for a term of years. Since then a factory locating there is given nominal taxation without a by-law, a vote or any further action, and this has assisted Hamilton greatly. Hamilton has since advocated abolishing the power to pass by-laws to give any assistance to factories—which would prohibit other cities from giving assistance and leave Hamilton automatic system in full working order. A proposal has recently been made in Hamilton to raise a fund of $50,000 by subscriptions to purchase sites for factories.

The City Council cannot work miracles in securing industries. To accomplish results it must have means to do so—and must be able to offset efforts of other places. It cannot do that without the sympathy, cordial approval and active support of the citizens. When the Council asks for support and endorsement of a by-law it should not be withheld without serious reason. Hesitation here will mean Peterborough's loss and some other city's gain. Illustrations of this could be given itwill no doubt be recalled.

The Board of Trade should be thoroughly organized to assist the Council. Its committee should be formedand should not merely wait for something to do, but should be active in their own spheres in looking for and taking advantage of opportunities to promote the business welfare of the city.

We have seen that Peterborough has made not only creditable, but rapid progress. The conditions are all present for continued or more rapid advancement. It is a city of great natural advantages and of excellent acquired facilities. It is healthy; it has all the essentials and accessories for manufacturing in a superior degree; it has excellent facilities for carrying on business of all kinds; it is a beautiful city in which to live, with all the advantages for health education, comfort and pleasure, including the convenient and attractive summer resorts.

In brief, Peterborough is progressive and prosperous; a city of natural advantages, acquired facilities and rapid growth; a centre of business and beauty, of utility and pleasure.

Hearty co-operation on the part of the citizens with an energetic Council and active Board of Trade will send Peterborough forward and bring greater things in the future, and all should be ready to act together, to push Peterborough forward to greater progress and prosperity.

Yours truly,
CIVIS SUM.

BELMONT CLUB DANCE

The most brilliant social event of the season was held last evening in the Conservatory of Music Hall, the occasion being the fourth annual "At Home" and dance by the Belmont Club. It was estimated that the patronage exceeded any previous similar event and the popularity and success of the affair was unmistakably demonstrated. About two hundred people were in attendance.

The beautiful and artistic arrangement of the decorations was very attractive and tasty. Palms, club colors and flags combined were blended with pleasing effect. The moon effect in which a brilliant 120 c.p. Tungsten lamp and the footlight on the stage, shed the only light for a couple of dances was a decided novelty.

The catering was ably carried out by Mr. T. Hooper, the refreshments being dainty and acceptable. The quality of the music so delightfully dispensed by Frealick's orchestra came in for great applause and much favorable notice. The committee in charge neglected not the slightest detail to ensure a pleasurable evening for all present. Many out of town guests were present at the event.

The next undertaking of the Belmont Club will be the minstrel performance about the third week in February, Mr. and Mrs. Holly Shepard, of Bay City, Mich., having again undertaken to train the boys for the performance.

CAPTAIN PARK AND HALL HAVE NOTCHED THIRTY GOALS

The two Peterborough O.H.A. teams have done remarkably well in the scoring department of the game this season, and in both cases the captains lead in the goal getting. Captain Hall, of the juniors, has ten to his credit. The division is something like this:

Intermediates—Park, 20; Kelly, 12; Coughlin, 8; Bearss, 4; Giroux, 3.

Belleville intermediates have defaulted both their games to Lindsay O you Dickie Butler.

The Trenton Courier has the following to say of the Trenton-Lindsay game—

"The fasted game of Intermediate hockey played here for a long time took place at the Colosseum Tuesday night, when our boys went down to defeat by those awful Lindsay midgets. It was terrible luck; we counted 18 shots in the first half which Gamble stopped with his chest, legs and stick. This boy Gamble is some goaltender, one of the best in the province, he sure saved their bacon. Spratt, the point, was the star player of the Lindsay team. The first half ended 4 to 1 in Lindsay's favor.

The hockey club executive at a meeting this afternoon, decided that the team to play at Cobourg on Monday night line up as follows:

Goal—Dwyer.
Point—Milloy.
Cover—Denison.
Rover—Weir.
Centre—Hall.
Right—Kennealley.
Left—Clancy.
Spares—Coughlin and Cook.

Denison will not play in the intermediate game against Trenton on Tuesday night. He will be used in the Lindsay game on Tuesday, Jan. 30th.

Both Peterborough teams are getting the rough end of the deal. The Lindsay juniors handed over two games to Cobourg, while the latest is the presentation of both games by Belleville to Lindsay intermediates.

All Saints' hockey team will practice Monday night from 8 to 9 o'clock. On Wednesday night the hockey club with the assistance of the Girls Guild, is holding a concert in the parish hall, when a good program will be given.

Those who followed the Port Hope Peterboro Juniro game are wondering which of the two scores to take. The answer is in the despatch on the game, which appeared in the Toronto Star of yesterday, the figures being 8-4, the same result as given in the local papers. Lou Marsh refereed and reported the game, so he ought to know.

BELLEVILLE BY THREE COUNTERS

Trenton with Patched up Team Lost again

Belleville, Jan. 19.—A splendid brand of hockey was handed out here tonight when Trenton intermediates came down and gave Belleville the best game of the season. Trenton produced a patched up team, one being a junior, and the goalkeeper playing his first league game. The ice was keen and play was fast and clean, and in the first half much in favor of the local team, who scored 9 goals to Trenton's 4. In the second half Trenton came strong, and for a while had Belleville playing defensive only the fine stopping of the Belleville goalkeeper saving the game. Four goals came as their share of the second half, and but two for Belleville. Both teams showed sad lack of condition, but played clean hockey, only two penalties being handed out for minor offences. A. Burgoyne, of Toronto, was referee, and was strict but impartial, very little escaping him. Final score was 11 to 8 in favor of Belleville. The line up—

Mr. R. M. Waddell and a member of the Victoria Curling Club, of Toronto, have presented a trophy for competition in home and home games between the two clubs.

Toronto comes here on February 2, and Peterborough plays the return game on about February 13 or 14.

REGARDING LIGHT AND GAS METERS

To The Editor of The Review,

Sir—May I ask through your columns if electric light and gas meters in use in residences in this city are subject to government inspection? If so, how often are they inspected? I have both electric light and gas meters and while they bear the government stamp of having been tested when installed, they have never been inspected by any government official since that time—several years ago. This is a matter that needs some attention as we are at the mercy of the Light and Power Co., and in many cases are paying for far more than we use. Bills out of all proportion are rendered to householders, when only three or four lights are burned or very little gas is being used.

Yours etc.,
"CITIZEN."

Peterboro, Jan. 20. 1912.

Government Inspector Fraser, of Brockville, inspects the Light meters while Mr. Thos. Rock of this city is gas inspector. Mr. Rock reports to the Peterboro Light and Power Company, once a month, but the Review is not in a position to state how often Inspector Fraser makes his inspections. It would appear that customers, having complaint, should communicate with the local company.

The game starts at 7.30 o'clock on Wednesday night and all officers and non-commissioned officers not taking part are supposed to be in attendance.

NEW SEWAGE SYSTEM IN SOUTH END

The 18 inch sanitary sewer on George street meets the 12 inch Romaine street sewer after passing under the G.T.R. tracks at a man-hole in front of pumping station, and both are then led into the well in the building through a 15 inch pipe.

From the well it passes into ejectors situated on the lower floor of the station, and these, by air pressure, force the sewage through a 12 inch cast iron main to the 15 in. sanitary sewer on Romaine street, east of G.T.R. track, and is then carried by trunk sewer to the river.

To provide against flooding of residences connected to the sewer through failure of power to run air compressors, the old 9 inch pipe under G.T.R. track is used as an overflow to connect the eastern section with the western section of the Romaine street sewer.

To take care of the storm water and surface drainage, a 20 inch concrete storm drain is constructed on the south side of Romaine street running from Park street to the Little Lake, where an outlet is provided at the corner of Romaine and Crescent streets.

The pumping station is equipped with two 7 h.p. motor-driven air compressors direct connected, furnished by the Lancashire Dynamo and Motor Company of Manchester, England, each unit having a capacity of 50 cub. ft. of air per minute; also an auxiliary gasoline air compressor,—(110 cub. ft. per minute)—supplied by the Canadian Fairbanks Company of Toronto.

All these units are connected to two large air receivers, and from there the compressed air is led to the ejectors.

Each air unit is supplied with relief valves which automatically shut off the compressor when 15 lbs. or more pressure is registered on the gauge, and turns it on again when pressure falls below this point.

For present needs one ejector and one air compressor unit is required to be in continuous operation. The gasoline unit is to be used only as an auxiliary in case the electric power fails. As a precautionary measure, a private alarm system is installed running from the pumping station to the City Engineer's Office and to the fire halls (at which place the attendant, George Jamieson, engineer, is on duty). This sends in an alarm when the air pressure fails, due to the stoppage of air compressors from lack of power.

Dodd's Kidney Pills Emerge Triumphant From Every Test

The Petit Bois Franc, Temiscouta Co., Que., Jan. 19. (Special)—Ernest St. Pierre, a well known farmer of this place is telling his neighbors of his almost miraculous cure from Bright's Disease, and he always winds up with—

"I advise all persons suffering from Backache or Bright's Disease to use Dodd's Kidney Pills." For like thousands of others sufferers in Canada Mr. St. Pierre found his cure in the good old Canadian Kidney remedy.

And his indeed was a particularly bad case. His eyes were puffed and swollen, his appetite was fitful and he was always tired and nervous, while the pains in the back made any form of work something to be avoided. To-day he is strong and well. Six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills worked the transformation.

More and more in this neighborhood is it becoming a motto. "If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it." They have been tried in many cases of backache, rheumatism, lumbago and Bright's Disease, and in no case where they have given a fair trial have they failed the cure.

GUARD THEIR HEALTH!

Children Who Grow Very Fast Need Careful Watching.

Next to infancy, the years between ten or twelve and eighteen are the most critical in life, especially for the boys and girls who grow too fast. Rapid growth and the physical changes that are taking place render them particularly liable to weakness and disorders of the digestive system, kidneys or lungs that very frequently, when allowed to run on, condemn them to a lifetime of suffering.

It is most important that at this period of life those organs which carry off the body's waste and impurities—the bowels, the kidneys and the skin—should be kept active and vigorous.

Nothing will do this more effectively than that good old-fashioned remedy, Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. It acts directly on each of these organs, enabling them to do their work properly, and thus keeps the whole system pure and healthy.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills are still made from precisely the same formula as when our grandparents used them, for nothing better has ever been devised.

"PILLS LIKE A FYLE"

So Harsh and Drastic are Many Pills as to Seriously Injure Health.

In a letter written from his home in Valencia, Mr. Marsh Selwyn does service to thousands by drawing attention to the injuries inflicted upon delicate people by drastic purgative pills.

"For a long time I suffered from constipation. This condition compelled the use of pills. Like many another, I made the unwise choice of using pills that were like lightning in their activity. I began to be filled with intestinal disturbances, constant rumblings, gas in the bowels and diarrhoea. I grew pale and emaciated. Then the doctor told me drastic irritating pills had caused catarrh of the bowels, an almost incurable disease. Explaining my situation to a friend he advised a trial of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I speedily experienced the healing and curative effect they exert on the stomach, liver and bowels. The intestines, freed from irritating drugs, rapidly regained natural tone, the bowels acted as if nature and not Dr. Hamilton's Pills were at work. I know it will be of value to thousands to know that a pill as mild and curative as Dr. Hamilton's is available to the ailing."

For bowel disorders, sick headache, constipation, liver and stomach derangement, there is no pill so invariably sure to cure as Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse a substitute. Sold in 25c boxes, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

G.T.R. BRAKEMAN WILL LOSE ARM

A serious and painful accident happened at Whitby yesterday afternoon to James O'Neill, brakeman on the Whitby and Klondyke mixed. Mr. O'Neil was in the act of making a coupling between two cars when his arm was accidently caught in the coupling, smashing the member above the elbow.

He was brought to Lindsay, where he was placed in the Ross Memorial hospital, under the care of Dr. Jeffers, the G.T.R. surgeon. The physician on making an examination of the injured right arm concluded amputation was necessary, but owing to the patient being weak from loss of blood he put off the operation until this morning at 10 o'clock. The patient suffered much from the shock occasioned by the accident as well as the operation, and is reported to be in a weak condition.

Mr. O'Neil has only been on the road four years, having come to Lindsay from Emily, where he embarked in railroading. He resides in the south ward, on the corner of Glenelg and Georgina sts., and has a wife and four children — Lindsay Warder.

Publish My Letter The World Over

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere, straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

"One attack came after another, and lumbago got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing, cruel pain would attack my back. I used a gallon of liniments; not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in the Montreal Witness about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel its soothing pain-relieving action every time it was applied. When I got the disease under control with Nerviline, I built up my strength and fortified my blood by taking Ferrozone at meals. This treatment cured me permanently, and I urge everyone to give up the thick, white, oily liniments they are using, and try an up-to-date, penetrating, pain-destroyer like Nerviline.

"Please publish my letter the world over. I want all to hear of Nerviline."

WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mothers who have once used Baby's Own Tablets for their little ones always keep them in the house. They realize the value of the Tablets in banishing baby's illness when it comes, or better still, in warding off illness by giving him an occasional dose of the Tablets to keep his stomach and bowels regular. Concerning them Mrs. Isaac McDonald, Nappan Station, writes—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets and would not now be without them as they are the very best medicine I know of for little ones." The Tablets are sold at 25 cents a box by medicine dealers or by mail from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Miss Brock, who is the daughter of Mr. Ivor Brock, manager of the Brinton Carpet Works, will be welcomed by musical and social circles in Peterboro.

AVOID BLOOD POISON!

The best and simplest way of insuring against blood-poisoning is to apply Zam-Buk to a cut, burn, cold sore or any open wound or diseased part as soos as sustained.

Of all the myriad forms of germs which set up blood-poisoning, not one has yet been found that Zam-Buk does not kill! A thin layer of Zam-Buk over a wound or sore acts in two ways. It prevents all harm coming into the wound or sore from the outside, and on the underside it stimulates the cells to renewed activity provides just the healing, tissue-building material needed, by causing the blood to deposit this more rapidly and thus brings about rapid healing. Apply it to that cold sore, those chapped hands, that frost bite or eczema.

Sold at 50c. box, all stores or druggists or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes.

CLOTHING OF CHILD CAUGHT ON FIRE

The little four year old daughter of Mr. W. J. Gilders, Queen street, was severely injured on Friday morning last. It appears that Mrs. Gilders was upstairs attending to her domestic duties when the little one in some way set fire to its clothing. The screams of the child brought the mother hurriedly to its rescue, and the fire was extinguished, but not before the child was severely burned about the face, arms and body. Its recovery is somewhat doubtful.—Norwood Register.

MEETING FOR MEN AT SPRINGVILLE

An interesting service for men only will be held in the Presbyterian church at Springville, to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock, when Mr. H. B. Cowan, of this city, will speak. Special music will be given with a male quartet and Mr. R. F. Downey taking part. All men are cordially invited.

Acme of Service

Taking into consideration the magnificent equipment supplied by the Canadian Pacific, even at full tariff rates, every day is a bargain day for the traveling public.

The new compartment cars recently put into service between Toronto and Ottawa, and Toronto and Montreal, on trains leaving North Toronto at 10 p.m. daily, in addition to the electric lighted sleeping cars, also operated on this train, make it second to none on the continent.

The compartment cars have a style all their own, being the latest in construction and appointment. They are electric lighted throughout; absolute privacy is assured; individual toilet requisites, etc.

Fuel of the Future

(Stratford Beacon.)

The late cold snap is suggestive of two things. One is that our fuel supply in the way of coal, which comes in Ontario from the United States, and will in time be exhausted, might find a good substitute in peat, of which there are large areas in this province. Another is that there are large areas of land in Ontario, now destitute of trees, which are practically of no value for anything else. If these were planted they could in time be made to produce quantities of fuel as well as timber for lumber.

Land Tax Principle

(Ottawa Journal.)

Mr. Joseph Fels, who addresses the Board of Trade on Monday next on the land tax principle, is one of the chief advocates of this idea in the United States. A few weeks ago the Journal editorially described what he has already accomplished, and how he had personally offered a sum of up to $25,000, he to give dollar for dollar with all other contributions, in order to see the land tax tried in places where it was yet unknown. Mr. Fels' offer probably applies only to the United States, yet the offer shows his earnestness and confidence in the principle of which he is a leading economic apostle. Mr. Fels' lecture should be worth hearing.

SOWING HIS WILD OATS

REAPING A HARVEST OF SORROW

How many young men can look back on their early life and regret their misdeeds. "Sowing their wild oats" in various ways. Excesses, violation of nature's laws, "wine, women and song"—all have their victims. You have reformed but what about the seed you have sown—what about the harvest? Don't trust to luck. If you are at present within the clutches of any secret habit which is sapping your life by degrees; if you are suffering from the results of past indiscretions; if your blood has been tainted from any private disease and you dare not marry; if you are married and live in dread of symptoms breaking out and exposing your past; if you are suffering as the result of a misspent life—DRS. "AN INCH IN AN HOUR IS A FOOT MADE IN THE DAY'S WORK.

Yet how we waste time in our household and other duties for lack of a system.

To economize in time is of just as great importance as to economize in money. Time is money, or work, or development, of good done to others through well planner undertakings.

Few of us ever think that we will have to give a strict account of our time, and scarcely one day goes over our heads without hearing that phrase, "It helps to pass the time."

I know a little woman with three small children who does her own work and the sewing for her children, who is always neatly dressed, and whose home is immaculate, and she takes one half hour out of every forenoon for reading. I was amazed to hear of all her duties, yet she planned them so well that her household runs like clockwork.

Bussiness men have to do everything almost on a schedule of time, and why should not we women, whose lives are made up of detail work, so arrange our duties on a time schedule that one task would not be crowding hard on the heels of the other?

That inch of reading every morning kept my friend well informed in the affairs of the world and left her evening for social intercourse with her family.

CAME OUT OF BUSH TO FIND COFFINS WAITING FOR THEIR BODIES

Prospectors Reported Frozen to Death are Safe and Unhurt.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 20—To have the story of his tragic death by freezing spread about and currently believed and to come out of the bush and find coffins waiting for the bodies of himself and his companion, was the somewhat uniqu experience of William A. Muir, formerly of this city who was reportd last week as having lost his life with a companion, named Joseph Legault, has joined his wife and children at their home in Haileybury, and his relativs in Ottawa yesterday received a letter from him in which he describes his experience and tell show the story originated.

Muir says he and Legault were on their way into Thomas Township with a toboggan loaded with provisions. The barometer stood at 51 degrees below zero. They met another prospector, Dick McGregor, who was coming out with his face badly frozen. McGregor advised the two men of the danger of making the journey, but being experienced prospectors they decided to go on to their camp.

Next day, an Indian crossing the lake came upon the bodies of two sleigh dogs which had died of the cold. They were partly covered with snow, and the Indian, assuming that they were human bodies, made no further investigation. He met McGregor and related his story of the finding of the frozen bodies of two men. McGregor naturally concluded that the bodies were those of Muir and Legaults, and the report rapidly spread through the mining country. Search parties were organized, but found nothing until they reached the Muir camp in Thomas and found the two men alive and well.

As Muir's family was prostrated by the story of his death, the party immediately started out for Haileybury.

"When I arrived at Porcupine," says Muir, "I found my coffin and that of Legault waiting for us on the station platform. I have been doing nothing but shaking hands, reading flattering obituaries in the newspapers and answering letters ever since."

Legault's father resides in Montreal.

MISSIONARIES

Laboring at Home and Abroad for Methodist Church

A very interesting display of steropotican views, depicting the achievements of the Methodist missionaries, in foreign and home work, was given in the George street Methodist lecture hall last night, under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society. The pictures dealt with the progress of the Methodist missionary work in China, in the Canadian Northwest, particularly in Winnipeg, and in the slum districts of Toronto. There was a good attendance, and all were greatly pleased at the graphic exposition of what the missionary department of the Methodist church is accomplishing.

RETURN BOOKS ALWAYS TO THEIR RIGHTFUL PLACES

The patrons of the Public Library will confer a greatly appreciated favor upon the staff of the institution if they will be thoughtful enough after taking a book off the shelves to return to its proper place instead of leaving it on the ledge, or in its wrong place. The books are all catalogued, including the works on the fiction shelves, and in their proper order, according to number. The practice is becoming annoyingly common for users of books, after taking them from the shelf to glance through the contents, to drop the volume either on the ledge or place it back on the shelf in its wrong position.

If members will only exercise a little care in the matter they will greatly oblige and facilitate the duties of the staff.

TRAINS COLLIDE; FIREMAN KILLED

Repair Train Meets Passenger Head-on at Lake Joseph — Both Engineers Seriously Injured — Passengers all Safe.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—A head-on collision between a passenger and a freight train on the C. N. O., two miles south of Lake Joseph, at mileage 128 1-2, on Saturday afternoon, caused the death of one trainman and the serious injury of three others.

A repair train southbound to clear the track of a freight wreck, disregarded orders and collided with passenger train No. 1 from Toronto. W. Hudson, fireman on the passenger train, was killed, and Engineer Johnstone of the auxiliary, Engineer John Napier of the passenger, and Fireman Awde of the auxiliary were injured. The injured trainmen, who are suffering chiefly from scalp wounds, are reported to be resting easily.

A. J. Hills, superintendent of the C.N.O., stated yesterday that although it is customary to give an auxiliary train right of way in the case of a very bad blockade, in this particular instance the blockade was not of sufficient importance to warrant a step of this kind. The auxiliary, stated the superintendent, should have sidetracked when it received orders to do so, in order to let the passenger train by, but had evidently not done so, thereby causing the collision.

The superintendent yesterday issued the following statement:

"Extra 279, southbound, collided head-on with train No. 1, at mileage 128 1-2, at 4.12 p.m., 20th, due to the crew of the extra train disregarding running order of train No. 1. Fireman W. Hudson was caught between the engine and tender of the northbound train and died within ten minutes; the engineer escaped unhurt The men riding in the southbound engine escaped with scalp wounds and bruises. No passengers were injured. A relief train was rushed to the scene from Parry Sound and the injured transferred to that point. The steam crane is working clearing the line, and has made good progress."

It is further stated that the passenger train was late, but had made up some of the time lost. The auxiliary train crew, not knowing this, had continued on their way, and had expected to make the next siding before its arrival.

"Notwithstanding the fact that the passenger train was traveling at 35 miles an hour, and the auxiliary train at 20 miles an hour, none of the passengers were injured, and none of the coaches left the track. This was a very extraordinary, but fortunate, occurrence. Fireman Hudson, the man killed, was caught between the engine and the tender, and badly crushed. He died within ten minutes of being released.

A relief train was rushed to the scene from Parry Sound, which is 20 miles north of the scene of the accident, and the injured removed to that point. They are reported to be doing very well. The steam crane of the auxiliary, which was not damaged, was immediately got to work and the track cleared. Both engines are very badly damaged and will require considerable repairs, but none of the coaches were damaged to any extant.

JUSTICE FOR CANADIAN

Britain Takes a Hand to Have Prisoner Released From Mexican Prison.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—After languishing in prison in Mexico City for over two years without being able to force an issue in the Mexican courts as to his guilt or innocence, George I. Hamm, a Canadian citizen, and president of the defunct Mexico City Banking Co., will now either have to be promptly released and given a fair trial in the civil courts or else the Canadian and British State Departments will know the reason why. Final action has been taken by the State Department to prevent any further subterfuges and delays on the part of the Mexican authorities, and if Mr. Hamm, as a British subject, does not forthwith get justice in the Mexican courts the Government of the Republic will be called to task by Great Britain in an unmistakable manner. That is the ultimatum delivered through the British ambassador at Washington.

EXPLOSION IN COAL MINE

Kemmered, Wyo., Jan. 22.—The cause of the dust explosion in mine No. 4 of the Kemmered Coal Co. on Saturday, which caused the death of five men and the injury of 18 others, has not yet been determined.

The dead are: James Smith, James Hansen, James Ward, Peter London and Thomas Dixon, all Americans. Nine of the more seriously injured were removed to a hospital at Rock Springs, Wyo.

The explosion occurred in what is known as the "second north" entry, 100 feet from the main slope and 1,000 feet from the surface. The force of the explosion was confined closely and those working in the immediate vicinity were the only ones injured. Miners working in other portions of the mine made their way to the surface uninjured.

FAMINE IN CHINA CAUSES SUFFERING

Bad Crops and Unrest Has Caused Widespread Destitution and Looting Goes on in Many Districts.

Shanghai, Jan. 22.—The exciting news of war and diplomacy has caused the world to forget the terrible destitution which now prevails in China. It is a side issue, but one which may have a vital effect on the settlement of the revolution. In July and August last the Yangtse rose to an almost unprecedented height and the resulting destruction has caused famine areas now accurately defined. There is the great Hwai Valley region, measuring about 100 by 300 miles where the farmers have had only one good crop since 1906. Not only is there no reserve to meet present conditions, but the people have lost heart and will not try to help themselves.

The second area is about Wuhu, where for some weeks the Yangtse formed an inland sea from 80 to 100 miles long and varying in width from 35 to 40 miles.

The last district is Hunan, where the floods are local. One section 30 miles square and containing at least 10,000 people was completely submerged. An estimate of 100,000 people facing absolute starvation in Hunan alone is considered conservative, while in the three areas the lowest estimate of the destitute is 3,750,000. Destitution such as is experienced in China is undreamed of in more progressive countries. There are almost no charitable institutions and many families are left shelterless and nearly unclothed to endure the pains. Pillage and destruction have commenced in the country where the revolutionists are unable to keep order. In the towns which they have taken the rebels keep fair order, but their organization of government does not extend to the country districts.

The Central China relief committee with headquarters in Shanghai is making an appeal in all countries for funds to carry on relief work. The committee is thoroughly representative of the best foreign and Chinese communities here and it is working in a businesslike manner. In return for relief the committee is exacting work from the recipients, who are required to deepen the water courses and strengthen dykes and guard against a recurrence of the floods. Every effort is being made to avoid pauperizing the people and much of the work is planned to tide the farmers over until they can get in a crop.

China Is Insolvent.

London, Jan. 22.—The Daily Telegraph's Pekin correspondent says he is officially informed that the Pekin Government will be obliged openly to declare China's bankruptcy at the Chinese New Year, Feb. 18.

He understands further that Wi Ting Fang, Minister of Justice in the Republican Cabinet, has telegraphed demanding the immediate resumption of hostilities in consequence of accusations of trickery leveled at the Republicans.

Ready to Flee.

Pekin, Jan. 22.—A special train has been held in readiness since Friday to take Yuan Shi Kai to Tientsin. It was evidently the Premier's plan to transfer the provisional capital to that city, where the danger from the Manchus was slight. Apparently Yuan Shi Kai intended to escape from Pekin as soon as the edict of abdication was signed, but the reactionary princes gained the upper hand temporarily and prevented the issuance of the edict.

Statesmen Confer.

Rome, Jan. 22.—Herr von Kiderlin-Waechter, the German Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, arrived here Saturday and immediately paid a visit to Marquis Antino di San Guiliano, the Italian Foreign Minister. The two statemen held a long and cordial conference, during which the relations of Italy and Germany as well as those with Austria-Hungary were discussed with reciprocal satisfaction.

Building Trades Held Up.

This is according to an estimate made Friday night by six heads of the leading crafts.

The cause for the great slump in building is the extreme cold weather which has prevailed since the first of the year. Plumbers are the only men not affected. The 1,800 members of this craft are all busy and there is work for many more, but they are not available.

Of the painters 90 per cent. are idle and only 7,200 carpenters out of 18,000 are working.

MILK MERGER ABANDONED

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 22.—Contrary to the partially completed plans of a number of dairymen, there will be no local milk combine, the local Board of Health members having refused to co-operate with the promoters when other dealers strenuously objected.

The local Board of Trade will shortly begin a campaign to double its membership. A similar campaign was successful several years ago.

BELIEVE SCOTT REACHED POLE

Officials of Geographical Society Eagerly Awaiting News of British Antarctic Expedition.

New York, Jan. 22.—Officials of the Geographical Society and various similar organizations interested in polar explorations are eagerly awaiting word from Capt. Robert Falcon Scott, who expected to reach the South Pole on Christmas Day, and they believe that when he announces the result of his British Antarctic expedition, it will be to say that his quest was successful.

Lieut. Shackleton of the British navy, reached the farthest south on Jan. 9, 1909, ninety-seven geographical miles away from his objective point, and then turned back only because he ran short of provisions.

Capt. Scott had 750 miles to cover from his winter quarters to reach the South Pole. His journey consisted of a dash across the comparatively level ice to the ice barrier, then up the glacier side to the plateau, some ten thousand feet above sea level, and then to the pole.

The Scott expedition was outfitted as no other exploration party was equipped before. The British Government subscribed $100,000 to the fund, and the British public contributed an equal sum. Accompanying him, in addition to a picked crew, were five lieutenants of the royal navy, two surgeons and three biologists.

Three motor sledges were carried in the hold of his vessel, seventy tons of provisions, 130 dogs and 30 Siberian ponies.

Special to the Review.

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 22.—Four railroad officials were killed at one o'clock this morning when a rear-end collission occurred at Kennudy, Illinois, station. The party was in a private coach in the rear-end train and their car was telescoped. The dead are James T. Harahan, former president of the Illinois Central; E. B. Pierce and F. E. Wright, attorney for the railway, and F. O. Melcher, second vice-president of the Rock Island Railroad Company.

BROUGHT LAMBS FOR THE POPE

Rome, Jan. 22.—The Pope, who appeared to be in excellent health, yesterday received a large delegation, which brought to him a number of lambs, following the custom of years. This being the feast of St. Agnes, the church bearing her name pays a tribute of lambs to St. John Lateran. They are first brought to the Pope for his benediction.

The Pope caressed the lambs, which were bedecked with ribbons. They will be kept alive until Easter, their wool being used for the pallis conferred upon archbishops.

ATLANTIC IN ANGRY MOOD

New York, Jan. 22.—Considerable damage was done about the decks of the liner Cedric, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool in the severe storms through which she plowed on her passage. On the boat deck big seas smashed the lashings of the lifeboat, which eventually turned turtle and was cracked and split from end to end.

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 22.—Wireless messages received yesterday from the steamer Mount Temple, which was towing the disabled steamer Dart to this port, state that the Mount Temple had been obliged to abandon the Dart and has proceeded on her way to London. Arrangements have been made to despatch the steamer Bonaventure to the aid of the disabled steamer. The Dart is en route from New Orleans for Copenhagen.

CAPTAIN OF FRENCH STEAMER BLUFFED BY THE ITALIANS

Death of Earl Carlisle.

London, Jan. 22.—George James Howard, ninth Earl of Carlisle, died Saturday. He was born on August 12, 1843, and succeeded to the title in 1889. He represented East Cumberland in Parliament as a Liberal during 1879-80 and 1881-85.

The title now falls to Viscount Morpeth, M.P., son of the deceased earl. Viscount Morpeth has represented South Birmingham in Parliament since 1904. The elevation of Viscount Morpeth to the Lords will necessitate a bye-election.

New York, Jan. 22.—In spite of all efforts to keep the matter a secret, it is learned that the Duke of Connaught plans to go to Washington on Thursday night to visit President Taft.

Disembarked the Members of Turkish Red Crescent Society -- France Takes Action.

Paris, Jan. 22.—The captain of the French steamer Manouba, which was seized by Italian destroyers Friday, on her voyage from Marseilles to Tunis, with 99 passengers, including 29 Turkish nurses of the Red Crescent Society, on board, disembarked the Turks on his own initiative at Cagliari, in Sardinia, and was then permitted to leave the port. This action of the captain is not in accordance with the wishes of the French Government, as the Turkish nurses must be considered as belonging to the Red Crescent Society until the contrary has been proved by the Italians, who assert that among them were some Turkish officers disguised as nurses.

Members of the Red Crescent are it is argued by the French authorities, entitled to the protection of the flag under which they are sailing. France will insist on a settlement of the question through the French ambassador at Rome.

NOT GAINING AS EXPECTED

Socialists Not Doing as Well in Reballots in Germany.

Out of 46 Pollings Saturday Only Eight Went in Their Favor.

Berlin, Jan. 22.—Seventy-eight reballots in the Reichstag elections were held Saturday. The returns indicate that the Socialists are not gaining as expected. The Socialists participated in forty-six reballots, of which they carried only eight. At this rate they will hardly reach ninety seats in the Reichstag. They were ousted from five constituencies, losing among others Bielefield to Count von Posadowsky-Wehner, the formere Secretary of State for the Interior, who was the candidate of all the other parties. The Radicals put up a stout defence and elected 17 members, winning eight districts, chiefly from the Conservatives, and losing one.

The various Conservative groups elected 21 in the reballots, the Clericals seven, the National Liberals 21, Socialists eight, Radicals 17, and Irregulars 4.

The Conservatives had a net loss of 3, and the Clericals a net loss of 3, the National Liberals a net gain of 5, Radicals 7, and Socialists 3. The result of Saturday's voting renders it improbable that the opposition parties will have a majority. The Government now has a total of 160 seats, including the Poles. The National Liberals, Radicals and Socialists membership numbers 114, minor parties and Irregulars 11.

It is hardly possible that the opposition will overcome the Government's majority in the remaining 112 contests. The next three ballots will be held on Monday.

Among the best known candidates returned Saturday are Herr Basserman, Dr. Mueller (Meiningen), Dr. Otta Arendt, Lieut.-Gen. von Liebert and Count von Posadoksky-Wehner. The Radical candidate defeated Frederick von Moltke, ex-Prussian Minister of the Interior, in East Prussia.

The Radicals captured the Karlsrube district, which is an old Socialist stronghold, and also Freiburg, electing Prof. Gerhart von Schulze-Gaevernitz over the Clerical candidate.

The chief cause of the failure of the Socialists to make a better showing was the refusal of the Liberal voters to support them. Many of the Liberals cast their votes for the Conservative candidates in the North German districts.

HOPES ACTION WILL BE TAKEN AGAINST HIM

Toronto Minister Says its Time for an Investigation

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—E. V. O'Sullivan, the lawyer who is acting for the Jesuite Order, which it is said will take action against Rev. C. O. Johnsston, for his statement regarding the oath taken by the Jesuites, has received a letter from the minister, who says that he hopes the lawyer will enter an action.

"It is time an investigation of Jesuiteism in Canada took place," says Rev. Mr. Johnston in his letter.

CRUSHED IN GRAVEL PIT

Mount Brydges, Dec. 22.—Saturday afternoon while working in a gravel pit at Deleware Village, William Adair, a Caradoc farmer, was instantly killed. It appears that several farmers were drawing gravel from the pit. Adair and another man were down in the pit under a large piece of frozen earth when it suddenly gave way, falling on Adair and crushing his head to a pulp.

He was about 45 years of age and leaves several small children. His wife died about a year ago.

DUKE AND DUCHESS LEAVE ON VISIT TO NEW YORK CITY

Gothamities Are Excited Over the Coming of a Real Live Duke—Not Going to Washington.

New York, Jan. 22.—The arrival here to-day of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught will mark the first visit of British royalty to New York city since fifty-two years ago, when the then Prince of Wales, who was the late King Edward VII., came here and traveled from New York to the far west, where he hunted buffalo. The leaders of society here have prepared to extend a welcome befitting such royal guests.

Whitelaw Reid, ambassador to the Court of St. James, who, with Mrs. Reid, will act as host and hostess of the royal visitors, will be at the Grand Central station to meet the party, which will arrive aboard the duke's private car, attached to the regular train. The party will be driven directly to Ambassador Reid's home at No. 451 Madison avenue, and remain there until Thursday afternoon.

The program is altogether a social one, as the royal visitors desire to avoid the round of public functions which would be necessary on an official visit to the United States.

Ambassador Reid made it known that both he and Mrs. Reid felt keenly the public reports that they are intended to "weed out" certain elements in society in the matter of invitations. It was said there was no attempt to discriminate. It has been decided that no general list of those invited will be made public.

In none of the arrangements has any particular reference been made to the entertainment of Princess Patricia. She is the first princess of the blood royal of England ever to set foot on the soil of the United States. She has a number of close friends in New York, and it is expected that during her stay here she will visit a number of them.

Washington, Jan. 22.—In confining his visit to the United States to a short stay in New York, the Duke of Connaught has not offended President Taft, nor has the fact that he would not come to Washington, caused any great surprise in official circles here. The White House knew several weeks ago that the duke would not come to Washington.

Whitelaw Reid, U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain, when he was a luncheon guest at the White House early in the month, explained to officials that the duke wished to pay only an unofficial visit to the United States, and that he desired to avoid all the official "pomp and circumstance" that would necessarily accompany a trip to the capital.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—Canada's Governor-General, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, accompanied by the Duchess and Princess Patricia, left yesterday afternoon for New York, to be the guests for five days of Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and Mrs. Reid. Their Royal Highnesses traveled in the Governor-General's private car "Canada," and were attended by Lieut.-Col. Lowther, military secretary; Capt. Rivers-Bulkeley, A.D.C., comptroller of the household; Miss Pelly, lady-in-waiting, and several servants.

Failed to Cure Rheumatism

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure With "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know many families where no other medicine but Nerviline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago, and sciatica. I call Nerviline my "Life Guard," and urge all to try its merit."

MARINE TONNAGE

The tonnage of the ships of the world have doubled in the past twenty-five years, according to the new edition of Lloyd's Register, London. The world's total tonnage in 1886 (taking into account all vessels of one hundred tons or over) was 21,500,000; while to-day it is over 42,000,000. While the increase in the world's tonnage has been one hundred per cent. in the last twenty-five years, the tonnage of Great Britain has increased 172 per cent. The sailing tonnage of the world has naturally been on the decrease for many years, the old vessels being replaced by steam, which is now the ruling factor in the world's shipping. This is clearly shown in the fact that of Britain's present tonnage of 15,850,000 tons, 90 per cent of it is steam controlled. She has 625 mercantile ocean steamers of over 500 tons, while the remaining countries of the world, including the British colonies, have but 529 vessels, of that size or over. A list of the steam tonnage of the twelve principal marine nations of the world is given by Lloyds, and the British tonnage, including the colonies is greater than those of the other eleven nations combined.

Comparative figures are herewith given of these twelve nations. The statistics are for the period between 1900 and 1910, the last year of which the register is complete. The table as presented by Lloyd's is as follows:

These figures do not fully indicate British supremacy in mercantile marine affairs. An analysis of British ships shows that a greater percentage of the British tonnage is modern than of any other country, both as to material of construction and to motive power, etc. In the past 20 years British mercantile marine has been practically reconstructed, as the following table from Lloyd's (dealing with British ships entirely) shows:

Material—	1866.	1910.
STEAM SHIPS.
Wooden ships...	3.77	1.39
Iron ships...	86.55	9.85
Steel ships...	9.67	88.72
SAILING SHIPS.
Wooden ships...	77.89	45.76
Iron ships...	21.36	18.87
Steel ships...	0.73	35.35

Half of the ships of the world are under the British flag and owned by Britishers, and people must readily see the necessity of a powerful navy to protect this great carrying trade such as Britain has won. Much of the wealth of the British Isles is invested in her ships. If a foreign country should overcome the British navy it would mean the loss these ships represent not only from a commercial standpoint, but from the point of the people whose food they bring. Many people clamor against the large naval expenditure by Britain, but do they realize that in the strength of the British navy lies the only safeguard, not only to the commerce of the Empire, but to their very food supply, which means life itself.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Hearty welcome to the visiting curlerss from "Auld Scotia." Let the skirl of the bagpipes be heard throughout the city.

The weather man can now send along that January thaw. He has kept the cold snap up just to give the visiting curlers keen ice.

Reports say that lobsters are scarcer than for months, but neglect to state which variety, human or otherwise.

Sunday tobogganing is likely to be prohibited in Toronto. Gum chewing will be next. None of these strenuous pastimes must be tolerated on the Sabbath.

Between looking into protests from over the seizure of vessels and looking after the war game with the Turks in Tripoli, Italy is having a decidedly busy time of it.

The death of nonagenarians in Great Britain in the past year numbered 230. Of these 83 were men and 118 women. The clergy as a class hold the record, which shows that regular living and a contented mind have much to do with longevity.

Magistrate Jeffs, of Hamilton, fined a man $10 for taking another man's umbrella "by mistake." Wonder the prisoner did not cloud up and rain all over the magistrate as the "rain protector" was said to be one of those 49c. bargain day specials.

Turkey has been trying to put one over on other countries. She has had a few hundred battleships concealed somewhere—that is if all the ships the Italians claim to have blown up ever existed. Those Italian admirals should switch their drinks.

German military officers are wrathy at Russia. A German spy caught in Russia has been sentenced to five years in Siberia with a convict gang. The Germans claim that he should be treated with respect, just like a prisoner of war, but Russia thinks differently apparently. The press correspondents will probably present us with a war scare in a day or two.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Office and Spoils

Toronto News.

All sound Conservatives and all other friends of good administration in Canada should encourage the Borden Government to resist the spoils system. No valid excuse could be offered for the dismissal of capable officials who have done their work well and abstained from politics. It would be inhuman to turn men out because their presence is objectionable to those who want their jobs. In refusing to yield to the importunities of the place-seeking element, Mr. Borden's hands will be upheld by the great mass of his supporters and by the public at large.

Warning for Chauffeurs

Montreal Gazette.

A chauffeur found guilty of furious driving while under the influence of liquor was fined $100 by Magistrate De Grey in a London police court. The culprit also has to pay the costs of the case, $15. He will probably offend no more. Punishment such as this makes for observation of the law and helps the policeman.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 20.—The market for Manitoba spring wheat continues good, there being a number of orders in the market for round lots at a further advance in prices of 3d to 4½d per quarter; consequently a fair amount of business was done for May-June shipment. Bids from Glasgow have been advanced sharply. A fairly good trade continues to be done in all lines of coarse grains on spot, and especially so in American corn. Cables on spring wheat flour were firm for round lots for prompt shipment, but ocean freight space is scarce. Local prices are firm, with a fair trade in flour. Demand for millfeed is good. Butter is strong under a good demand and small supplies. Receipts for the week were 1870 packages, against 1830 a year ago. Cheese quiet, but firm. The REVIEW
177 Hunter-st

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

Alas, though, for the fiery Felix: she was not of a very resolute character, being easily influenced by her sterner parents, whose patrican eyes looked askance upon the presumptuous lover's claims. Besides, Felix was absent—supposedly engaged in his laudable enterprise of wresting a fortune from the world—while Alfred, handsome, polished of manner, patient and persistently attentive, was ever at her elbow.

Then, too, there was Miss Clara's family, to the last one of them espousing Alfred's cause. In the end the girl allowed herself to drift with the current. Felix would have accomplished more to his purpose had he remained at home and married Clara, and then gone after the fortune. At any rate, after one or two letters from Felix, which glowed with hope and boundless zeal, she ceased to hear from him. Doubtless he had come to realize that the wresting operation demanded all his powers; but his silence was easily made to appear of more significance than it deserved. It was canstrued—for Miss Clara, not by her—as indiputable evidence of forgetfulness. Within the year she married Alfred Fluette.

Six years passed. Alfred Fluette had migrated with his bride to the city. Then Felix Page returned triumphant to Merton. His triumph, however, was short-lived. He was well on the road, even then, to his subsequent commercial success; a good deal of the wresting had been accomplished; but the girl he had steadfastly loved, whom he had never for an instant put out of his thoughts, had married his rival.

To get together most of her report Genevieve had been obliged to labor patiently and painstakingly; when it came to the events associated with Felix Page's return to his birth-place, her task was suddenly transformed from one of gleaning to another equally arduous, of selecting from the plethora of material at her disposal.

One gathers the idea, after reading it all, that his rage was that of a cave-man who returns from the day's hunt to find that his home in the hillside cliff has been despoiled. One thing stands out clear and unmistakable: from that hour his life was embittered, his character warped with the shattering of his ideals. He registered a solemn vow of vengeance against Alfred Fluette, then disappeared.

So much for this portion of the report. Nothing in the subsequent relations of the two men was now obscure.

And here, too, we are given a new light upon Alexander Burke, oiling door-hinges that he might the better spy upon his employer, patiently working out the combination of the hidden safe and running to Alfred Fluette with the old love-letters and mementos—for a price, of course—playing the vindictiveness of the one against the hatred and fear of the other, and scrupling not to gain profit for himself whenever and wherever he might.

But it is proverbial that woman invariably reserves the most interesting and important item for the postscript. And it was so with Genevieve's report I quote the concluding paragraphs in toto.

On the very first day of my arrival, and from the very first person to whom I confided the nature of my errand, I received the surprising intelligence that I was not the first to pursue similar inquiries in Merton. Said my informant: "Why, there was a man here two or three weeks ago, trying to find out all he could about the Pages and the Coopers and the Fluettes. Has some one of them died and left a lot of money?"

I did not think so much of it the first time, but when my second victim told me the same thing, I sat up and began to take notice. Then I extended my inquiries so as to cover my in just about a minute. I promise not to interrupt—as long as you tell a straightforward story.

"As I said," I went on, "I'm prepared to put you through as one of the principals; the bare fact of your arrest should be enough to convince you of my readiness.

"However, while I haven't any desire to spare you, we are in the habit of trading leniency to a rascal who is willing to turn State's evidence. It's a plain business proposition."

I imagined that he perked up a bit at this.

"Ah, then you are not so sure," he seemed to muse; "you would have me convict myself for your precious benefit."

"Maybe you can judge better before I have finished," returned I, unmoved. "You need not tell me anything about yourself, but I do need a few facts to complete my case against the others who were involved in this crime. It's up to you."

I retreated a step, folded my arms, and stood watching him—and waiting. I knew that he couldn't tell the truth without filling in the gaps in his own case. I never am deterred by any compunction over the methods I am sometimes obliged to use to make an individual, whom I know deserves no consideration, speak. With a knave like Burke I would as lief resort to thumb-screws, the boot, the rack, or even to choking the words from him, as to trust to persuasion alone. To tell the truth, my preference lies with the means first enumerated: they are much more prompt and direct. The worst indictment that one may bring against the old-time torture is that it was not applied with judgment and discrimination, nor always confined to legitimate ends. I fear that I shock you. But I am not by any means a cruel, blood-thirsty person. I merely speak from long years of experience. Whenever I hear a misguided soul deploring the so-called "third degree"—why, I have something in pickle for him.

This, however, is not the place to open the pickle-jar.

Perhaps, though, Burke's suffering was as poignant as if his ordeal were physical. How restlessly the man's slender, bloodless fingers curled and uncurled! Still, his self-control was wonderful; his white face remained indecipherable, the pale eyes stared at me unblinkingly and without mirroring a single emotion that I could discern. Then the change came so quickly that it almost caught me off my guard.

One hand shot to his bosom. When it reappeared something flashed dully in the dim light. At the same time, with a cat-like spring he was out of his chair and upon me.

I concentrated all my attention upon the hand that held the murderous knife. I caught it as it lunged at me; then, with a quick twist, I bent it backward and behind him, until he groaned with pain. The long-bladed knife clattered to the floor, and I shoved him roughly away from me. Then I picked up the weapon.

The fellow acted for all the world like a whipped and cowed panther. He brought up violently against the wall, where, in a stooping posture, he commenced running to and fro the width of the room, spitting and snarling venomously. The pale eyes were no longer blank. The pupils had widened, and the look of them was deadly.

I smiled with quiet satisfaction, for I knew that Burke was—as we specify it in police parlance—"coming through."

After a while he quieted, and at last stood panting in the corner farthest away from me. I pointed to the chair.

"Sit down," I said, precisely as if he hadn't tried his best to murder me but a minute before.

He moved slowly—fearfully—toward the chair, and sank into it. His head was dropped forward, his shoulders were bowed, and the fingers were no longer restless. All the man's defences were at last down.

"Now, then,' Burke," I went on calmly, "I suppose we are ready to get down to business?"

He muttered inaudibly, without raising his head.

"What's that?"—sharply.

"You devil!" he whispered.

"Yes, yes, I know. I've heard that from you before. I don't care to hear it again." I advanced and stood threateningly over him.

"Look at me," I sternly commanded.

Slowly he raised his head until his eyes met mine. The pallid mask was pinched, and it wore a look of torment.

"Once for all, Burke, are you going to speak?" I suppose the quietness with which I uttered it was ominous to the wretch. "Or will I be obliged to drag you to that cell of which I spoke?"

With a quick gesture, he outspread his arms.

"Enough, Swift, enough!" he cried, in a hoarse, distressed voice. "I know when I'm beaten; I'll give up. What do you want?"

"Good," without alteration of tone or manner. "Let's go to a pleasanter place." And we went into the Captain's private room, where a stenographer sat concealed by a screen.

Burke dropped into a chair. I thrust my hands into my coat pockets, and as I slowly paced to and fro, addressed him.

"I'll tell my story. When I'm wrong you may correct me. See that you do it, too, because you won't know when I'm testing you or when I am really ignorant of the facts. You see how much I trust you, Mr. Burke.

"To begin at the beginning, your first treacherous act toward your employer was when you determined to steal the Paternoster ruby, and started in to hunt for it. You had your work all cut out for you, too, Burke; Felix Page was no fool; he wouldn't trust the safekeeping of so valuable an object even to his confidential clerk, nor could that clerk search for it with impunity.

"You've been gifted with the same brand of patience, though, Burke, that keeps a cat glued to a rat-hole for hours upon end; you bided your time. And you never let an opportunity slip by you, either.

"Felix Page was in the habit of talking to himself—a trait not uncommon to people who live much to themselves—so you oiled the door-hinges in order that you might steal upon him undetected, from any part of the house, and listen to his self-communings. No wonder, when you talked with me, that mysterious predecessor.

I soon found out that he had ingratiated himself with everybody in Merton who could give him a scrap of information, and that his inquiries were all directed to one end; namely, the family histories of the Pages, the Coopers, and the Fluettes.

Then, from all the people I could find who had seen and talked to this man, I obtained a decription of his appearance and (where they were remembered his personal peculiarities. One description photographed him for me:

"A tall, lean, lanky feller—real sandy—hair, eyes, eyelashes, eyebrows—no, he didn't have no eyebrows; but all the rest was the same light yaller color. He was pale and sickly lookin'—poor, man!—and you couldn't tell what he was a-lookin' at when he talked to a body. Any kin o' yourn?"

Who was my systerious predecessor in the field, if he were not Alexander Burke?

Who, indeed!

More Dynamiters Involved.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 20.—That at least five men other than those who already have been indicted or convicted in the dynamite conspiracy participated in a plot to blow up an iron-works at Akron, Ohio, on July 4, 1910, was part of the testimony which it is believed was presented to the federal grand jury yesterday through witnesses called from Ohio.

The names of three of the alleged participants were given by Ortie E. McManigal, who says he met them at Cleveland. Two days before the explosion, according to McManigal, he left Indianapolis with one of the men, who had received instructions from J. J. McNamara, in the office of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, and went to Rochester, Pa., where they secured twelve quarts of nitro-glycerine which they packed in a suitcase. Fifty-eight quarters of the explosive, he said, was left at Rochester for future use.

At Cleveland, the next day, they met two other men, and all discussed the Akron job, which was to be directed against an employer who maintained an "open shop."

Maloney Is Nominated.

Renfrew, Jan. 20.—Dr. Maloney of Eganville, was the unanimaus choice of the South Renfrew Conservatives yesterday to oppose Hon. George P. Graham for the seat in the Commons vacated by T. A. Low to make way for the return of the ex-Minister of Railways to Parliament. Mr. Low will, however, be allowed to resume the seat without opposition if he will accept. This is not likely, although whether Hon. Mr. Graham will consent to make a campaign is uncertain. Mr. Low had 600 majority.

The convention was held behind closed doors, and it was decided that the agreement, signed by 27 members of the party, to allow the return of the Liberal candidate unopposed if T. W. McGarry (Conservative) was given his seat in the Legislature without Opposition, was entered into without authority of the executive.

To Talk Peace.

Rome, Jan. 20.—Although it is announced officially that the object of the visit of Herr Von Kiderlin-Waechter, the German Foreign Secretary, is to meet Foreign Minister San Giuliano, the real reason for his coming is to discuss possible conditions of peace between Italy and Turkey and the amount Italy is ready to pay as indemnity to Turkey for the loss of Tripoli.

During the visit of Herr Von Kiderlin-Waechter, the basis for a renewal of the triple alliance between Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy will be discussed.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystal line lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY. CONSULTATION FREE.

EDUCATIONAL SERMONS HEARD AT CHARLOTTE ST.

Pulpit Was Ably Filled by Montreal Divine

At Charlotte street Methodist church yesterday, Rev. George J. Campbell, B.D., of Montreal, delivered strong educational sermons, making special appeals for generous subscriptions for educational purposes. The response was very liberal.

Rev. Mr. Campbell is a very fluent speaker, and he gave some very interesting figures concerning the number of Methodist colleges and the number of students in these universities.

The singing at both services was extremely pleasing and effective. In the morning, the beautiful duet "Forever with the Lord," was rendered by the Misses Pringle and Brock.

In the evening anthem the two solos "Hark, Hark My Soul," were taken in good voice by Miss Brock, whose rich, contralto voice was heard to good advantage. Miss Pringle also gave a solo.

MR. R. M. ROY WAS CALLED AWAY VERY SUDDENLY

Founded the Roy Studio and Was Widely a Known Yachtsman — Funeral to Belleville.

Expressions of genuine regret were heard yesterday when it was learned that death had taken away one of the best known citizens of Peterborough, in the person of Mr. R. M. Roy, at his home, 406 Sheridan street.

Mr. Roy passed away about ten o'clock Saturday night, after an illness of about one week. It was expected and hoped by his family and many friends that he would recover, but it was not to be, and the summons came.

He will be greatly missed. He had a word of cheer for everyone, and during his long residence in Peterborough made friends on every hand. He was born in Belleville seventy years ago, and spent the early years of his life as stores inspector on the Midland division of the G.T.R. Twenty-five years ago he came to Peterborough, and having always been an enthusiastic amateur photographer, he began business on Hunter street which flourished so that at the present time the Roy studio and its high class work is known far and wide.

Besides being an enthusiast in his business of photography, the late R. M. Roy took a keen interest in sports, particularly yachting. He owned the Gracie, a racing sloop, which won many prizes for the Commodore on the American circuit some thirty years ago. He was widely known for his achievements on the water and as member of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, of Toronto.

During his life in Peterborough he spent much of his time with his steam yacht, the Rob Roy, which was known on all the waters of this district, and was a familiar figure at all regattas and water sports.

Fraternally Mr. Roy was a Mason and an Oddfellow, and in religion an Anglican, attending St. John's church.

Surviving besides his widow are three sons and three daughters, Messrs. R. M. Roy, of Hamilton; E. J. Roy, of Napanee; F. L. Roy, of this city, and Mrs. A. M. Simons, Montreal; Mrs. Roland Denne, of this city, and Miss Gladys, at home.

Two sisters are Mrs. E. P. Hannaford, Montreal, and Mrs. M. A. May, of Peterborough.

The remains of the late Mr. Roy will be taken to Belleville to-morrow morning on the 8.30 train, for interment.

Funeral services will be held at the late residence, corner Sheridan and Hunter streets, this evening, the Rev. Canon Davidson officiating.

THEATRICAL

"THE ROSARY"

The presentation of the Rosary at the Grand on Saturday, was witnessed by a large audience, both at the matinee and evening performance. Unusual interest was added because of the appearance here of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Simmons. Both were given a cordial reception, as they were heard in their respective roles of Skeeters, and Kathleen. Altogether the performance was very pleasing.

STOCK JUDGING COURSE OPENED

Much Interest is Being Displayed in the Proceedings

The stock judging course, being conducted by the Department of Agriculture assisted by the West Peterboro Farmers' Institute and the Industrial Exhibition, opened this morning with a good attendance. Mallory of Frankford, who gave a short discourse on the qualities and faults of the animals. Mr. Redmond and Mr. Garbutt are supplying the beef cattle, which will be classed and judged by Mr. J. Campbell of Woodville. To-morrow morning heavy horses will be judged and in the afternoon light horses will be exhibited. The afternoon program will include a display of harness horses on the market square.

The stock judging will be held in Norwood, on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, and in connection with this there will be a sale of fifty Holstein cattle, under the auspices of the Norwood Farmers' Club, it being their first annual sale.

LOCAL CURLERS MEET THEIR BRITHERS OF THE STANE FROM BONNIE SCOTLAND

Reception Committee Welcomed the Visitors and Escorted Them to Knox Church for Morning Service—Games This Afternoon to be Followed by Banquet.

The famous touring team of Scotch curlers arrived in Peterborough via C.P.R. at 5.15 Sunday morning, and it is safe to remark that a jollier, healthier or finer looking body of sportsmen would be difficult to find. All the typical Scottish characters are reflected in the persons of the visitors and "if they would only wear kilts," as one citizen was heard to remark, the effect would be complete; the curious one, however, probably overlooking the fact that zero weather and bare knees do not agree harmoniously.

Owing to the early hour of the visitors' in-coming, there were comparatively few hailed them on their arrival. At eight o'clock a number of the local curling officials and members forming a reception committee in charge of J. H. Connal, president of the club, extended to the visitors the hearty hand of welcome, in no uncertain manner. The Scottish brethren were immediately made to feel that the freedom of the city was transferred to them, and that their sojourn in Peterborough was to be of an extremely pleasant character.

MARCHED TO CHURCH.

At ten-thirty a large number of the local curling club members, assembled and the Scottish visitors also gathered. The procession then marched in a body to Knox church, arriving at the church in good time, where the centre row of seats had been reserved for them. About sixty to seventy curlers in all were present.

The devotional services and sermon were particularly appropriate for the occasion. Rev. H. J. Keith welcomed the visitors in a few brief but very appropriate words, previous to his address. He gave a short sketch of the rapid growth experienced by Knox church, and stated that while the visitors might not have the pleasure of listening to such a vigorous sermon as they were accustomed to hear in their home land, still there was just as much energy in the cause of Christ in Canada as in Scotland.

HIS KEEPING POWER.

Rev. Mr. Keith chose as his theme the fact of the wonderful keeping power of Jesus Christ, no matter under what conditions or circumstances our lot happens to be cast.

"God is our sufficient need in everyday life," said the speaker.

"Our Scottish friends will return home, and on their return, individual hearts in the homeland will yield up thanks to God for His keeping power. God's keeping power is of the loftier kind; it is with us in every circumstance, in sorrows, trials and tribulations. A man's home is better because of the consciousness of the keeping power of God, and yet too many of our homes show an absence of confidence in this truth. A man's business is stronger because of his knowledge of the power of God to sustain."

During the services two solos were given by Mrs. G. Bruce Hughes, and Mr. Wm. McIlroy. Both were splendidly rendered and very effective.

After the service the visitors enjoyed luncheon at the Oriental, after which the afternoon was spent by most of the party in driving around the city. couple of sleigh loads visited Lakefield.

Through the kindness of the officers of the 57th regiment the curling fraternity were enabled to meet the visiting Scotchmen at the officers' quarters at the armories. The local curlers are indebted to the regiment and many citizens took advantage to gather and greet the visitors.

VISITED THE INDUSTRIES.

This morning the new-comers were privileged to go through some of the local manufacturing establishments. Nothing is being neglected to ensure for the visitors a pleasure sojourn here, and some keen competition is anticipated in the games which commenced at the Charlotte street rink this afternoon.

RIGHT SPIRIT OF REVIVAL

Realization of God, Need Says Rev. Mr. Couch

The congregation of George street Methodist church heard two good sermons and some good singing yesterday. It was the church anniversary; much was expected and both pastor and choir were equal to the occasion.

At the morning service, Rev. Mr. Couch, took his text from verse 6, of Psalm 85, "Wilt Thou not revive us again?" As he spoke on the question of revival, the preacher emphasized the necessity for the realization of God. Emotion and enthusiasm was not sufficient.

He said that the world to-day was suffering from a dominance of the commercial spirit. There was need for a spiritual awakening.

A revival had been associated with insane manifestations of enthusiasm or emotion, but any revival that had no passion for the reality of things, would not be lasting. A spiritual revival could be tested by its ethical fruits. The spiritual man was always a moral man, but the immoral man never a spiritual man. The spiritual revival was one that caused the people to respond to spiritual motives and ideas; it didn't necessarily mean that the revival should be one that would fill the church from end to end. "The old ship sails better if some of the Jonahs, are out," remarked the preacher. What was needed was a new realization of God; not a belief in God for there was a difference between the two.

Many believed in God but at the same time were as foul as Satan. When realized God, He, dominated his acts and thoughts. It was one thing to believe in God, and another thing to realize Him.

PRINCESS STREET FAMILY RESCUED FROM BURNING HOME

Had to Leave the House in Sleeping Attire in Early Morning.

The wife and four children of Mr. Alex Chouinard, whose home is on the south side of Princess street, in the south end of the city had a very narrow escape from losing their lives in a fire which damaged the house, about five o'clock Sunday morning and it is to Mr. Bert Cripps, a neighbor, that they return grateful thanks for the assistance he rendered.

Mr. Cripp arose about five o'clock in answer to his wife, who is ailing, and he noticed that the Chouinard house was ablaze.

He acted promptly and awakening another neighbor, sent in the alarm to the station. Then running to the blazing house he broke open the door, and discovered the mother and her three children, almost overcome by the smoke.

He affected their rescue, they having to leave the house in their sleeping attire. All were taken to the home of Mr. Cripp.

On the arrival of the firemen it was found that the nearest hydrant was about 1400 feet from the house and this proved somewhat of a handicap. The building was a mass of flames when the firemen arrived, after a quick response, the rear portion being entirely destroyed.

The loss to the house will be about $700 and to the contents $500, very little being saved, and that was somewhat damaged.

The husband is an employe of the G.N.W. Telegraph Company, and was out of the city at the time. He is now with his family, the oldest of the children being about five years.

DISTRICT HONORS IN THE BALANCE

Large Following of Supporters Will go to Cobourg To-night—Trenton Intermediates Here To-morrow

The G.T.R. special, which leaves the station at seven o'clock this evening, will carry the juniors and a large crowd of supporters to Cobourg for what promises to be the scene of a grand struggle for the premier honors of the district. If Cobourg loses to-night the team can discard their uniforms for the remainder of the season, and with this outlook in view, both sevens can be depended upon to put up their best calibre of hockey.

Fred Denison will strengthen the local end of the argument, and with any kind of luck the Colts should win out. They have a large following of admirers, who will be on hand to do their share of the battle.

Peterborough intermediates will have the Trenton team to meet at Brock street rink to-morrow night. The locals need to win here and at Trenton Friday night, as a result of the presentations to the Lindsay team by Belleville.

TELEPHONE TEAM BEAT MACHINISTS

Winners Scored the Only Goal of the Second Half

In a Mercantile League fixture Saturday night the Bell Telephone seven defeated the Machine Shop team by the score of 2—1. The half time score was 1—1. In the first half Nattress and Patterson broke through the Machine Shop defence and opened up the game by scoring the first counter. Then Long found the nets for the C.G.E. boys from a scrummage in front of the goal. In the second half the play was around the Machine Shop nets. But Wetlaufer was the only one of the hello boys to beat Dwyer for a counter. Fred Kelly refereed satisfactorily.

BANK LEAGUE.

THE RING

Chicago, Jan. 22.—That Jim Jeffries refused to take punishment and quit cold in his battle at Reno, is the latest assertion of Jack Johnson, who was the other fellow in the ring at the time. Further, Johnson says that he will give Jim Jeffries $10,000 and one year to train if he will sign for one more bout. And to prove that he means business Johnson will give Jeffries $500 a week, providing Jim cares not for the fight offer, to spar with him in exhibition. The occasion of "Lil Artha's" latest turn is a remark credited to Jeffries that Johnson put over a frame-up in the Stanley Ketchel Ketchel bout in San Francisco.

Referring to that bout, which has been questioned, Johnson says Ketchel hit him on the point of the chin with a blow which would have put Jeffries to sleep for an hour, and that it was not his fault that he hit the canvas. Johnson asserts that Ketchel could have beaten Jeffries.

A steamship burning flare signals of distress was seen off Flamborough, in the North Sea, on Wednesday morning. It is feared she went down.

The scouts have decided to put forward a hockey team from these troops, and all scouts from the 1st and 3rd. troops, who can play hockey, are requested to be on hand at a practice Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, at the Brock street rink when the team will be chosen.

SAWDUST BREAD.

Queer Product of German Bakery Is Equaled Elsewhere.

Bread made out of sawdust. Sounds queer, but it is a fact. That ancient anecdote about the Frenchman losing his horse just as he had succeeded through the aid of green goggles in teaching the animal to eat sawdust instead of grain should now be revived and sent out to make the rounds of the press. But to return to the bread. It is a fact that there is a large bakery in Berlin where they are turning out 20,000 loaves of sawdust bread each day. Interesting, if not attractive, surely.

In making this peculiar bread the sawdust is first subjected to a process of fermentation and various chemical manipulations. Then it is mixed with one-third part of rye flour, formed into loaves and baked in ovens like any other bread. Although it is meant for consumption by horses only, the manufacturers claim that in case of famine it would furnish a nutritious and highly satisfactory food for human beings.

Sawdust bread may not taste so bad as it sounds. In various parts of the world bread is obtained from trees. For example, in the Molucca Islands the starchy pith of the sago palm furnishes a white, floury meal, which is made into flat, oblong loaves and baked in curious little ovens divided into small oblong cells just big enough to receive the loaves.

In Lapland the inner bark of pine trees, well ground and mixed with oat flour, is made into cakes, which are cooked in a pan over the fire. In Kamschatka pine bark and birch bark are used for bread without the addition of any other substance, being reduced to powder by pounding, made into loaves and baked.

Along the Columbia River bread is made from a kind of moss that grows on a species of fir trees. After being dried it is sprinkled with water, allowed to ferment, rolled into balls as big as a man's head and baked in pits, with the help of hot stones. Travelers who have tasted it say that it is by no means unpalatable. The Californian Indians collect the pollen of cat-tails in large quantities by beating it off the plants and catching it on blankets. They make bread of it. But as a delicacy they prefer bread of grasshopper flour.

Fruit as Food.

In these days of impure drinking water, water famines and filtered water it is well to know that one of the great advantages of fruit is that it offers us pure water, for which we do not need a filter, to the amount of nearly 50 per cent. in berries and 92 per cent. in watermelons.

Oranges and lemons are not only valuable by reason of their potash salts, but especially for their citric acid. A case of paralysis of the entire right side is reported, where the juice of oranges, adopted as a regular diet, with chicken broth, appeared to do much good.

As an aid to digestion—a really material aid—the pineapple stands alone among the fruit. Its vegetable pepsin neutralizes—or, perhaps, rather digests—albuminous substances in the stomach. Fresh pineapple—or, better till, the fresh juice of one—placed in direct contact with eggs or gelatine or milk, will prove the fact conclusively by producing a better tasting dish. In cases of catarrhal ailments of the throat and in its downward connection the alimentary canal or tract the use of pineapple cannot be over-estimated, and it acts with equal force in malarial affections.

As for the date and the banana, they contain sufficient nutriment to sustain life. The salts and organic acids of the apple tend to improve the quality of the blood.

Secret of Success.

"Push," said the Button.
"Take pains," said the Window.
"Never be led," said the Pencil.
"Be up-to-date," said the Calendar.
"Always be cool," said the Ice.
"Do business on tick," said the Clock.
"Never lose your head," said the Barrel.
"Do a driving business," said the Hammer.
"Aspire to greater thing," said the Nutmeg.
"Make light of everything," said the Fire.
"Make much of small things," said the Microscope.
"Never do anything off-hand," said the Glove.
"Spend much time on reflection," said the Mirror.

One Thing She Couldn't Do.

The young girl friend of the art student stood in the art gallery gazing at the famous classic statues.

"It is all very well to talk about the Venus of Milo's being a model of womanly perfection," she said, eyeing the armless goddess critically, but she never could button a one-piece dress down the back."

Realism.

Friend—What on earth are you doing to that picture?

Great Artist—I am rubbing a piece of raw meat over this rabbit in the foreground. Mrs. de Shoddie will be here this afternoon, and when she sees her pet dog smell of that rabbit she'll buy it.

Well, Rather.

Uncle Jackson (showing city boy the farm)—With all your city eddication, sonny, I'll warrant you don't know which side you milk the cow from? The Boy—Sure, I do! It's the under side!

Evidently.

"Mary, I've just been reading about a New York family that had the same nursemaid for sixty-two years."

"Goodness! She must be acting as nursemaid to that family in its second childhood."

Satisfactory Excuse.

"I am a self-made man," said the pompous individual, with his chest expanded.

The other looked at him critically.

"Your excuse is satisfactory," he said.

The German Foreign Secretary will visit the King of Italy in Rome on Sunday.

IN THE WORLD OF SCIENCE

TESTING SUBMARINES

A New Invention by an Italian, Said to Solve the Problem of Testing Submersibles.

Through the inventive genius of an Italian marine engineer, a long forward stride seems to have been made recently in the construction of submarine boats. He has made it possible to do away with a large part of the hazard incident to the submergence of these under-water war vessels, hitherto one of the greatest stumbling blocks to submarine constructors. This inventor is Maj. C. Laurenti, formerly of the Royal Navy, and designer of the famous Laurenti submersibles. His latest invention is a type of testing dock for submarine boats which will overcome most of the perils and vexations attendant upon the deep-sea submergence trials necessary for all such craft. Maj. Laurenti's testing dock is a modified floating device of steel, which can be hermetically sealed after a submarine has entered it at one end. The dock is brought to the right floating condition, the end gate or door is swung out of the way, and the submarine under trial placed within in the proper way. The gate is then closed, and the entire space in the dock and around the vessel flooded.

Telephone Communication.

Before this submergence, however, the examining officers enter the submarine and remain until the test is completed and the proper observations taken. By means of a telephonic arrangement they are kept in constant communication with the engineer in charge of the dock. Gauges are placed at fixed points inside of the craft which record pressures and the slightest change of form due to external stresses. When all is ready the water in the testing dock is subjected to pressure generally until the hydrostatic force acting upon the hull of the submarine at every external point is an exact equivalent of the pressure that would be exerted by the sea if the boat were down 200 ft., or more, as the case may be. The beauty of this whole arrangement is that the submarine does not have to be taken off shore to be tested and does not have to depend upon favourable weather conditions. There is no risk involved, and those inside the vessel can observe the conditions at every stage of pressure, the exact counterpart of submergence in the open sea.

Watching the Pressure

By being in vocal communication with those in charge of the pressure pumps of the dock, the inspectors within the submarine can work with certainty and security. They can also see leaks, and trace them to their proper sources while incidentally watching the guages marking the elastic yielding of the hull structure, if any take place, and the degree thereof. Up to the present the strength of these boats had been calculated by mathematical formulae, which are largely theoretical. The Laurenti testing-dock will show how far these formulae may be correct, and will, undoubtedly, indicate directions in which structural charges can be made to advantage.

Mechanical Equivalent of Heat.

The mechanical theory of heat regards heat as a mode of motion, and investigation has shown that there exists a definite relation between those two forms of energy, which is known as the mechanical equivalent of heat, or Joule's equivalent. That is, if, as in the experiments of Joule, a certain known amount of mechanical energy be expended, as, for instance, by the falling of a weight to operate paddles in a vessel of water, the increase in temperature of the water, due to agitation by the paddles will always be found proportional to the work done. This relation or proportion is expressed by the amount of work necessary to raise the temperature of one pound of water at 62 degrees Fahrenheit through one degree at atmospheric pressure, or, in other words, impart one British Thermal Unit to the water. The heat necessary to raise the temperature of one pound of water from 62 degrees to 63 degrees temperature was found by Joule to be able to perform work equal to the raising of 772 pounds one foot in height. The latest experimental determination of Rowland shows that the exact value is somewhat higher than 772, and 778 is the value now usually accepted as the correct mechanical equivalent.

Scientific Bottle Breaking.

The method of breaking small bottles or vessels at the place wanted with a kerosene-soaked string is well known, but this method does not work so well with the larger vessels. Following is a method given by a writer, by which any sized glass vessels can be broken — as, for example, a glass tub to be made out of a carboy. Fill the vessel with cold water up to the place at which it is to be broken. Pour enough boiling oil over the water to make a good coat on the surface, and before the oil has time to cool dash cold water on the outside of the vessel. A clean break at the contact-point of oil and water will be the result.

What Radium Will Do.

Sir William Ramsay pointed out at the recent Parliament of Science in Portsmouth, England, that if radium could be turned to mechanical use a ton of the marvellous substance would suffice to propel a ship of 15,000 tons, with engines of 15,000 horse-power, at the rate of fifteen knots for thirty years. He added by comparison that such a ship would require 1,500,000 tons of coal to get the same results. The Mauretania and the Lusitania consume about 7,000 tons of coal each for every voyage of five and one-half days.

That alcohol is the greatest source of insanity is the declaration of Dr. Albert Barrett, superintendent of the Michigan State Psycopathic Hospital.

LONDON AND PARIS

The British Capital Wears a Sombre Face but the Laugh is Ever in "Gay Paree."

London is the world's male-city. It ever remains a city, or if it take on a soul it is that of some terrific, almost inhuman, force. You never turn smiling on it when you arrive, or smile to yourself when you think of it, as one thought of a loved one. London receives you with a preoccupied air, is sombre, heavy browed. It has serious affairs to think of, and cannot relax to smile on you and make you welcome. You cannot take it by the arm and make free with it. You feel there would be wondering, accusing eyes on you if you did anything which would break the sober monotony of the usual, the ordered. You must walk sedately, be of the crowd, keep on the pavement.

In Paris one who does anything, however foolish, however odd, to bring some colour, some variety into life is welcomed. Parisians love the unusual, the improvised, the daring. You know approving, sympathetic eyes on you as you parade your emotions, air your eccentricities, or defy convention in any form. The French do not see why shows should be kept for theatres only; they would have their streets a stage, with a thrill at every corner. That is why the flamboyant Bohemian, the poet, the dreamer, the lover, all half-mad souls those who scorn conventions because their minds are on bigger things are at home there.

The soul that looks out of the eyes of Paris is that of one who has lived, and loved, and tasted life's many goblets, and remained young, and gay, and above all tolerant in spite of all her experiences. She will look with an indulgent eye on your follies, for she has known them, and will know them again; she will laugh on a sigh at your extravagances, knowing how fleeting is the season when one dare be exuberant; she will take you to her heart, and with strange lures make you forget she has had other lovers; she will let you go, the old half-mocking, half-tender smile still on her lips. Gone with her may be your illusions and your faith, but forget her you cannot, ever.

CHLOROFORMING PLANTS

Latest Idea to Promote Raped Growth of Plants is to Compel Sleep.

One would think, at first sight, that an anesthetic would retard the blossoming of a plant, instead of hastening it. The action would seem, however, to resemble that of a man who takes a sleeping-draught in the afternoon so that he might get to sleep earlier and wake at 2 a.m. to take a train.

It was found by experiment that in plants, as in animals, ether and chloroform cause every indication of sleep, and during the past few years the system of treating plants in this way, to hasten them through the resting periods, has been adopted comcially with extraordinary success. Thus, "a lilac-bush may be lifted from the ground at the end of the summer, while the leaves are still on it, and kept for several hours under the influence of ether. By this means such an effect is produced on the tissues as it would have taken Nature months to accomplish. It is now easily possible to flower lilac twice in the same year by etherising the plant and subsequently forcing it in the hot-house. Plants to be etherised are brought first into a dry condition at top and root, and then placed in an airtight structure. The door is sealed, and the ether applied through a small hole in the roof into a vessel is the house, and the fumes, being heavier than the atmosphere, hang about near the floor, where the plants are arranged. The ether has the effect of drying up the moisture in the tissues, and it is thought that in the natural rest of plants there is a gradual drying process at work, which, for want of better knowledge, the cultivator describes as the ripening of the tissues."

Bad Times for Nobles!

One sign of the prevailing hard times in Germany is the appearance in the newspapers of advertisements of noblemen seeking ready-made fortunes with wives attached. The demand for heiresses, American and otherwise, was never so great as now. Titles in the market range from Princes downward, and even the staid old "Vossische Zeitung" contains the following advertisement:—

Prince, 28 years old, of noble appearance, wishes immediate marriage condition, $125,000.

This is typical of many other advertisements. It would seem also that there are almost as many heiresses looking out for titled husbands, as witness the following tempting announcements:—

Lest Her Vivacity

A few days ago two young ladies hailed a tramcar, entered it, and found only standing room. One of them whispered to her companion:—

"I'm going to get a seat from one of these men. You take notice."

She looked down the row of men and selected a sedate gentleman who bore the general settled appearance of a married man. She sailed up to him, and opened fire:—

"My dear Mr. Green! How delight- a stranger. Will I accept your seat? Well, I do feel tired. I heartily admit. Thank you so much."

The sedate gentleman — a total stranger, of course — looked, listened, then quietly rose and gave her his seat, saying:—

"Sit down, Jane, my girl. Don't often see you out on a washing day. You must feel tired, I'm sure. How's your mistress?"

MOVING PICTURE PROPRIETOR FINED

Montreal, Jan. 22.—The first case against the proprietor of a moving picture theatre, under the new law, which prohibits the admission of children under 16 years of age without an escort, was heard this morning, before Mr. Recorder Weir, as a result of which George Thomas and Elie Thomas, proprietors of Wonderland Moving Picture Theatre, were sentenced to a fine of $40 and costs or two months.

The evidence of constables Dagenals and Desjardins, was that, on the morning of January tenth, they saw Emma Boucher, 9 years of age, and Arthur Bergeron, 13 years, enter the theatre after purchasing tickets at the window. The constables followed the children into the theatre, and after bringing them out, took them to their respective homes, where the constables were informed by the parents, that they thought the children were in school. Further investigation brought out the fact that the children had used the money given to them to buy a lunch at noon hour, to go to the moving pictures and that they had played truant in order that they might take advantage of the picture show.

Send in an Alarm First

New York Evening Sun.

One very practical moral for every man, woman and child is written in the ice-coated ruins of the Equitable building. It is the first and chief rule for fighting fire. "Send in an alarm first!" Every fire chief has preached that doctrine and it is the primary direction given out by every fire department everywhere for action in the event of fire.

YYet the night watchmen of the Equitable building were so confident of their ability to cope with the small blaze in the basement that they refused to send in an alarm. They even urged the first policeman who arrived not to send in an alarm. The result was that the blaze went beyond their control and, leaping up an elevator shaft, mushroomed throughout the top floors. By the time the delayed alarm was turned in and the firemen came the harmless blaze in some cellar rubbish had gained its start. From a petty "no damage" fire it had become a great conflagration threatening a whole community.

Between Mrs. O'Leary's cow that burned up Chicago and watchmen who refuse to send in an alarm, firemen will find little to choose in point of stupidity.

ARAB POET TAUGHT HIM

ROBERT HICHENS FOUND HIMSELF IN THE DESERT.

Author of the Garden of Allah Is an Englishman Who Left Oxford to Become a Musician — Went Into Journalism Then Into Literature—Wrote His First Novel at Seventeen and Made His Name at 41.

Lke many other famous authors, the originally intended career of Robert Smythe Hichens was not that of a writer. Hichens was born at Spendhurst, Kent, England, on Nov. 14, 1864. After leaving Clifton College, Bristol, he abandoned an Oxford career in order to study music, but he soon decided that he would never be famous as a musician, so he abandoned music for journalism and studied press work in London.

His musical training stood him in good stead, for he succeeded George Bernard Shaw as musical critic on the London World, which place he held for several years. Finally he abandoned newpsaper work for literature.

Hichens' first published novel was written when he was only seventeen. The reviewers were kindly, and the prediction was made that the boy writer would make a name for himself. His subsequent novels were well received, but it was not until 1905, when "The Garden of Allah" appeared, that his success was finally assured.

There is an interesting story attached to "The Garden of Allah." On an occasion when the author went to the north of Africa he visited a Trappist monastery in Algeria. Hichens lived for three weeks with the monks.

From the monastery he went into the desert with an Arab poet for a guide. One evening as they stood gazing across the wonderful waste of sand toward the sunset a chance phrase of the poet's supplied Hichens with the first thought of the story.

"This is the garden of oblivion," the poet said. "In the desert one forgets everything, even the desire of one's soul."

Hichens thought of the monastery and its devotees to prayers, and with the thought came the fancy to bring one of its silent tenants out into the desert and in this garden of oblivion, let him forget his vows, his hopes and be willing to lose his soul for the love of a woman.

Five years later he began the story, and it took him two years to complete it.

Financing a Show.

Probably no calling is so easy to enter for the totally unfitted as the stage. By the aid of a few pounds an engagement can be obtained. Week after week, in the columns of an English theatrical paper, can be seen advertisements similar to the following: "Wanted: Ladies and Gentlemen for the Stage. Experience not necessary, but good appearance essential. Small premium, to be returned in salary. In nine cases out of ten the advertiser has little or no capital until the aspirant for histrionic honors joyfully parts with his or her premium.

With the money extracted from these deluded stage-struck individuals, the enterprising manager books a few halls in fit-up towns, hires a little weather-beaten scenery, engages one or two experienced actors, secures a piece for which there are no copyright fees, and commences his tour. The crash is not long in coming—the scenery and "properties" being seized by the hall-keeper for rent, whilst the manager promptly absconds with as much as he can lay his hands on. Warned by parents and friends at the outset to have nothing to do with the stage, the disillusioned debutantes are ashamed to write home, and now begins the drifting process—drifting God knows where. In the case of young girls, the end does not bear thinking of.

Free as Air?

One of the everyday expressions we shall have to drop in a short time is "Free as air." For with the coming of aviation the question of the ownership of the air arises.

You can buy land with all mineral rights, which means you own the earth to any depth below your particular plot. But how much of the air above that land is yours? And, more particularly, how far up is the air above Britain purely British air?

A thousand knotty points will arise on this question in the future, and legal minds are already discussing the pros and cons of the matter. Some assert that 1,000 feet is as much as the owner can claim; above that is a kind of No Man's Land, where the aviator can play as he likes. Others suggest 5,000 feet as the safer figure, while those who talk internationally assert that 38,000 feet above the ground should be fixed, as that is the range of the new type of gun to be used against hostile air-craft.

Sir W. E. Smith's Career.

Sir William E. Smith, who succeeds Sir Philip Watts as British Director of Naval Construction, lived in his youth among seamen. He joined the Portsmouth Dockyard when 11 years of age. His first work was as rope-house boy, when as such he came in contact with all the mysteries of the old sailing ship era. In 1865 he was apprenticed as a shipwright at Woolwich. In the following year he was transferred to the Portsmouth Dockyard. Having spent four years' apprenticeship, he joined the South Kensington School of Naval Architecture in 1869, and the Royal Corps of Naval Constructors in 1873.

Not Tied to Them.

The Archbishop of York was a great favorite with the royal family, and a princess upon one occasion told him he ought to marry, as a wife would be of more use to him than a dozen curates.

"But supposing we didn't agree?" he asked.

"Well, you don't always agree with your curates, do you?"

"No; but then I can always send them away! I can't do that with a wife."

LIVER LAZINESS

Those Who Lack Energy and are Unsuccessful Should Read This Closely.

"I am only thirty years old, yet for almost two years I have felt more like seventy-five. I have found it difficult to sleep at night and in the morning feel so depressed and heavy that effort was difficult. My hands were always clammy and perspiration on slight effort would break out all over me. It was not unnatural that I should begin to brood over the chance that I should soon be unfit to do my work, and this dread made my sleepless nights perfect misery. After repeated trials of medicine and mixtures Dr. Hamilton's Pills gave me the first gleam of hope. From the very first I could see they were different in action from other pills. They didn't gripe and acted as naturally as if nature and not the pills were cleansing my clogged up system. My spirits rose, I felt much better, the sluggish action of the system gave way to normal activity. Dizziness and headaches ceased, appetite, good color, and ambition to work returned and have remained. I am like a new man and I thank Dr. Hamilton's Pills for it all."

This was the experience of J. E. Parkhurst, a well-known grocery dealer in Jefferson. Follow his advice, use Dr. Hamilton's Pills for your stomach, kidneys, and liver, and you'll enjoy long life and robust good health. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, in yellow boxes, 25c. per box, from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

DAMPNESS AND DISEASE

Three Good and Sufficient Reasons Why Humanity Should Keep Away from a Moist Environment.

Dampness is injurious because of the favourable environment it provides for bacterial growth; it affects the health by reducing the supply of life-giving oxygen, and it prevents the body from performing its normal function of elimination.

A damp atmosphere makes us feel cold. This in turn affects the sweat ducts, which close to keep in the animal warmth of the body, and the sweat glands cease filtering out of the blood the impurities they are intended to eliminate. These impurities are then thrown back on the kidneys and lungs for removal, or are retained within the system to crystallize in the form of uric acid, and cause rheumatism or gout.

In the second place, the average person, when engaged in ordinary pursuits, inhales from 3 to 6 cubic feet of air per minute. Naturally, if this air is taken from a place where the air is pure and of normal quality, the amount of oxygen available for the blood will be appreciably more than if taken from a damp place where the humidity in the air has reduced the amount of oxygen and the air is tainted with musty odors and gases of putrefaction and decay.

Lastly, a moist, warm environment is the most suitable for low forms of vegetable life, like yeasts, bacteria and molds.

Best Position in Bed

There can be no particular rule in such a matter, says a medical expert on sleep, since everyone must take the position which is most comfortable to him, the great thing being to have the body thoroughly relaxed. Few people, however, realise that the mind is an important factor in this matter. If on waking you find you have been clenching your hand tightly, shutting your jaw rigidly or keeping the legs tense, this is a positive proof that both mind and body are tense during the day. Some effects of such unfortunate daily habits may be counteracted by thoroughly stretching the body on getting into bed. Raise first one arm then the other above the head, and while pushing and stretching them up, push downwards with the legs. Do this vigorously, for a few moments and follow it by a complete letting go or relaxation of all the muscles of the body. Turn your mind to pleasant, unexciting thoughts, repeat a few lines of verse or the like, and the effect of this will be felt on the body which will naturally assume a restful attitude. Very few people lie perfectly still all night, and it is no use trying to compel oneself to lie in a certain position. That would at once produce the tension one desires to avoid, and would be like staying awake to find out how to sleep.

Early School Text-Books

The earliest text-book for the instruction of children was the horn-book, invented in 1450 and used up to the close of the eighteenth century. A thin slab of hardwood was covered with parchment, on which were printed the capital and small letters, numerals, and some elementary syllables and words. Over this a thin sheet of transparent cow's horn was placed and firmly bound. This, the Bible, and the sampler on which little girls painfully stitched the letters of the alphabet, and a border of "herring-bone stitch," or some conventional pattern of impossible flowers and foliage, comprised the bulk of the education given until the commencement of the eighteenth century.

Some folk are under the erroneous impression that ivy on the outside walls of a house tends to make it damp. A thought on this subject is enough to convince one of its fallacy, since the ivy must perforce extract the damp from brick or stone work in order to live, for this moisture is essential to the plant.

THE FOUR HENRYS

One of the Most Dramatic of the Legends of France.

A MEETING AND A WARNING.

The Dire Prediction That Was Hurled at Them After a Duel In the Dark and the Way the Fateful Prophecy Became a Matter of History.

Of all the French historical legends there is none more dramatic than that pertaining to "the four Henrys." The tradition is that on a wintry night as the rain fell in torrents an old woman who passed in the country for a witch and who inhabited a miserable cabin in the forest of St. Germain was aroused by a loud knocking at her door. She opened it and saw a cavalier, who requested hospitality. A scrap of cheese and a morsel of black bread were all she set before him.

"I have nothing more," said she. "See, here is all that tithes, taxes, subsidies and other extortions have left me to offer distressed travelers, besides which my neighbors call me a witch and rob me of the produce of my little farm."

"'Tis a cruel situation," said the young man, "and were I king of France I would suppress the taxes."

"God hears you," answered the old woman.

The cavalier was about to commence his repast when a fresh knock at the door restrained him. Again a gentleman, drenched with rain, demanded shelter.

"Is that you, Henry?" said the one.

"It is, Henry," replied the other.

The old woman discovered from their conversation that they belonged to a numerous hunting party led by King Charles IX. and that they had been dispersed by a storm.

"My good woman," said the second comer, "have you naught else to offer us?"

"Nothing," was the reply.

"Well, then," said the other, "we must divide it."

The first Henry gave signs of refusal; but, observing the resolute eye and haughty bearing of the second, he replied in a tone of chagrin:

"Let us divide it, then."

They sat down opposite each other, and one had already commenced cutting the bread with his dagger when a third blow was struck at the door. Again a young nobleman entered—again a Henry. The meeting was most singular.

The first Henry endeavored to hide the bread and cheese. The second replaced it on the table and set his sword by his side. The third Henry smiled.

"What! Will you spare me none of your supper, then?" said he.

"The supper," said the first Henry, "rightly belongs to the first comer."

"The supper," said the second Henry, "belongs of right to him who knows best how to defend it."

The third Henry colored and said haughtily, "Perhaps it rather belongs to him who knows best how to win it."

At these words the first Henry drew his dagger, the two others their swords. They had scarce made a few passes when a fourth blow was heard at the door. The portal opened. A fourth Henry appeared.

The old woman, frightened, hid herself, and it was well that she did, for the swords dashed to pieces everything that came in their way. The lamp fell, was extinguished, and all four fought in the dark. The noise of the swords lasted for some time, but gradually died away. Then the old woman crept out of her hiding place, relit the lamp and beheld the four combatants stretched on the floor. She examined them. Fatigue had overpowered them more than loss of blood.

They rose up one after another, ashamed of what they had done. "Come," said one: "let us now sup with good humor and without quarreling."

But on looking for the supper they perceived it lying on the floor, soiled with their feet and stained with blood.

"Why do you look at us in that manner" demanded the first Henry.

With outstretched arms the old woman replied: "As you all four have been united in this cabin, you will all be reunited in one and the same destiny. As you have trodden underfoot and soiled with blood the bread of hospitality, you will trample underfoot and soil with blood the power of which you will partake. As you have impoverished and devastated this dwelling, you will devastate and impoverish France. As you have all four been wounded in the dark, you will all perish by treason and a violent death."

These four Henrys were the four heroes of the league—two as its chiefs and two as its enemies—Henry of Conde, poisoned at St. Jean d'Angely by his wife; Henry of Guise, assassinated at Blois by the Forty-five; Henry of Valois (Henry III.), assassinated by Jacques Clement at St. Cloud; Henry of Bourbon (Henry IV.), assassinated at Paris by Ravaillac.—New York Press.

CASE LEAVES NO UNCERTAINITY

Irish Case in Which Ne Temere Was Under Fire

The Civil Law is Supreme in all Marriages

London, Jan. 22.—A careful reading of the complete judgment given by Mr. Justice Kenney in the Dublin Court, upholding the civil validity of a marriage celebrated by a Catholic priest, although it did not complay with all the requirements of the Church law, shows it to have been somewhat more sweeping in its condemnation of the so-called Ne Temere decree that first accounts of the judgment disclosed.

The Ussher marriage was, it will be recalled, celebrated by the Rev. Jos. Fahy, parish priest of Eastwell, County Galway, who, it is said, crept to the house of the petitioner's mother at ten o'clock at night over the fields to avoid detection, and was secretly admitted by a side door.

Ussher, who was a Protestant gentleman farmer, a member of an influential local family, and heir to an estate, was there and then received into the Roman Catholic Church and baptised in a disused bedroom. Then the cook was called in as a witness, and Ussher was married by Father Fahhy to a housemaid in the family.

Ussher claimed that the marriage should be annulled because there was only one witness, but the judge amid some applause in court, decided that Ussher could not escape from the marriage, even though his Church had declared it contrary to the law of the church, as expressed by the Council of Trent and in the Ne Temere decree.

The judge said that in the eyes of the Church of Rome, this mother was degraded and her child illegitimate, but the decree of the Council of Trent and the Ne Temere decree had no legal effect in Ireland.

There were three arguments for the annulment of the marriage, he said, and continued;

"It is contended that the marriage is void, not being in accordance with the Roman Catholic Church, and there being no statutory provision regulating the religious ceremony of marriage; that it is void, as not being what was contracted for, namely, a valid Roman Catholic ceremony; and thirdly, that being a marriage between a Roman Catholic and a person who, within the previous twelve months had been a Protestant, it is void, under Act 19, George II.

"I am satisfied that according to the canon law of England and Ireland before the Reformation, the presence of a witness at a marriage solemnized by a clergyman is not necessary to its validity. In England in 1752, Lord Hardwicke's Act annulled a marriage solemnized by a clergyman is not necessary to its validity. In England in 1752, Lord Hardwicke's Act annulled a marriage performed without two witnesses. That was the first step taken in England to prevent secret mrariages, but that had been done before in drastic fashion by the Council of Trent. This decree, however, received no recognition from the State.

"If there are marriages between Roman Catholics in Ireland that are contrary to the law and discipline of their own church, they are still legally valid. The argument founded on the question of this being a conditional contract cannot prevail to invalidate the marriage. Such a doctrine would open the door to fraud and be contrary to public policy.

"Another reason against it which I regard as insuperable, is that after the ceremony the parties lived together as husband and wife. Coming from a man who has absolutely declined to validate the marriage in the eyes of the church, the point is not one that commends itself to one's sympathy.

"As for that Act of George II., annulling marriages between a Catholic and a person, who, within the previous twelve months, had professed Protestantism—that was repealed by the Act of 1870.

"My judgment is that this marriage was valid and legal. Ussher's petition to have it annulled is dismissed, he paying the costs of the suit."

SOCIAL CLASS FOR DANCING

Miss Ivy Coventry, dancing instructress of the Conservatory of Music staff, intends to conduct during the winter for a period of ten weeks, what will be known as a social evening class. The class, if formed, will hold an informal dance Friday evening of each week, and is intended chiefly for those who have a knowledge of dancing, and who wish to improve themselves in the art. If fifty of the young people of the city signify their intention of associating themselves with the class, there will be no difficulty in its organization. The idea is expected to meet with general approval, and it is expected that no difficulty will be experienced in successfully organizing a class. As many of the lovers of dancing as possible are asked to be present at the Conservatory hall on Friday evening of this week.

QUESTION LEFT TO PRIVY COUNCIL

Mr. Lancaster's Bill Regarding Marriage Voted Down in the Commons.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—"One law for Canada we must have on these questions, and we're going to disrupt confederation if we don't have the law," declared E. A. Lancaster (Lincoln), who yesterday moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Marriage Act by declaring that persons married by legally authorized authority shall be validly married, notwithstanding difference of religion.

The doubt that was cast upon the validity of marriage would, unless set at rest, sap the national life as no trade or other agreement ever could. Unless prompt action were taken, Canada might have to come to the Italian law and prohibit priests discussing the marital relations of families. He pointed out that no one had ever doubted the competency of Parliament to pass the deceased wife's sister legislation which was against the law in Quebec and against the Anglican rule.

Hon. R. L. Borden stated that the question involved would be sent to the Supreme Court and on to the Privy Council, and moved the adjournment of the debate.

W. F. Maclean (S. York) pointed out that the confusion into which the question was drifting might force the adoption of civil marriage.

W. H. Northrupt (E. Hastings) made it clear that the question was whether the church or the state should rule.

Hon. C. J. Doherty delivered a long dry as dust lecture on the legal technicalities of the case. "Let us be sure we're right before we go ahead," was his conclusion.

"This is an evil which requires a remedy at the hands of Parliament," said Mr. Lancaster in introducing the bill, which was seconded by Richard Blain (Peel).

The evil did not arise because of the decision of one of the courts of Quebec. All the Quebec judges did not agree in the matter.

"What I do say," he declared, emphatically, "is that there is a doubt cast upon the marriage of persons who are otherwise lawfully married and upon the legitimacy of their children, simply because they are of different religion.

"The evil in my mind is the doubt. We cannot afford to have Canada looked upon with doubt by any country in any part of the world that may be looking to Canada in this regard. If you do, then you are sapping the national life of this country in a way in which it could not be sapped by any trade by any other agreement.

"I don't want to go any further than will remedy this evil," he continued.

"This question must be dealt with by us entirely in the interests of the nation, regardless of what may be the law of any particular creed or religion. I contend that this bill is absolutely in the interests of everybody of every Christian creed in this country. There is a necessity for prompt action."

Mr. Lancaster then quoted the celebrated interview of Rev. Father Comeau with a Winnipeg paper, in which he arrogated to a priest the moral right, in case a man who had married a Protestant, and left his wife and was living with another woman, to evade the civil law by secretly marrying him to the other woman, a marriage "valid in the eyes of God and of the Church, though not legally valid."

He could not believe this to be a good Roman Catholic doctrine, or that the Roman Catholics of the country would countenance the commission of polygamy or bigamy, or a conspiracy to commit the same.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden agreed with Mr. Lancaster that the meaning of the law should be made absolutely certain. With the institution of marriage were bound up not only the sanctity of the home, but also questions relating to the transmission of Cement Inquiry Possible.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—It is very possible that the Government may hold an investigation into the prices which are being charged by the cement trust. Recently the Winnipeg Board of Trade sent a memorial to the Government making certain charges against the merger, and asking for an investigation. The trust replied with a memorial in which they claimed that the prices charged at the mills have actually lowered since the amalgamation was effected. A schedule of prices was submitted to the Cabinet. The trust claimed that the freight rates which are charged were responsible for the high cement prices.

The reply of the merger has been sent to the Winnipeg Board of Trade, and as soon as they get an answer the Cabinet will settle what is the best way to deal with the matter.

SMALLPOX IN QUEBEC

Montreal, Jan. 23.—As the result of an investigation that has been quietly carried on by officers of the Provincial Board of Health under the direction of Dr. Elzear Pelletier, secretary, and Dr. Beaudry, chief inspector, startling revelations have been brought to light showing the careless disregard with which the municipalities in various parts of the province treat smallpox outbreak. Often no precautions are taken to isolate the sufferer and disinfection of patients and belongings is practically unknown.

As a consequence the disease spreads rapidly and scores of cases have been located by the provincial inspectors.

WORK RESUMED IN COTTON MILLS

Manchester, Eng., Jan. 23.—Work has been resumed everywhere in the cotton trade with the exception of a few spinning mills which will be run on short time for a week or so.

The woman, Margaret Bury, who owing to her refusal to join the trades union, caused the dispute between the employers and the workers, is doing her customary work at the York Mills.

The operatives and employers are to observe a truce for a year, during which the question of the employment of non-unionist labor is to remain in abeyance.

Publicity Would Ruin Them.

Washington, Jan. 23.—"Is it your purpose to publish to the world all the details of our mill costs of production?" demanded President J. J. Farrell yesterday when put on the stand before the Stanley Steel Trust Investigating Committee.

"If it is," said Mr. Farrell, "I think it a gross injustice to an industry built up in competition with Belgium, Germany, Russia and other nations. If it is proposed to put these secrets in the hands of our foreign competitors, our foreign business won't be worth anything within twelve months."

Chairman Stanley said he did not intend to expose secrets unnecessarily, but that he would insist upon the corporation complying with subpoenas duces tecum for records not yet produced.

It was tentatively agreed that expert McRae should examine the cost sheets of the corporation to verify figures to be submitted by the corporation regarding composite cost of production.

ROCKEFELLER'S NEW VENTURE

New York, Jan. 23.—John D. Rockefeller, jr., who announced a few days ago that he had completed his two years' campaign to abolish "white slavery," will now turn to criminalistic research."

The bureau will aim at the improvement and ultimate reformation of the conditions under which women convicted in the criminal courts are compelled to serve the sentences imposed upon them.

DEMOCRATIC TARIFF BILL IS AIMED AT STEEL MEN

Washington, Jan. 23.—Reductions of from thirty to fifty per cent. on all items in the Iron and Steel tariff, and the placing on the tariff free list of iron ore, sewing machines, printing machinery, cash registers, nails and many other articles against which the tariff is now levied, are proposed in the Democratic steel revision tariff bill, made public yesterday.

Democratic leader Underwood estimated that the bill would reduce the average tariff on steel imports from 34-51 per cent. to 22-42 ad valorem; would reduce the Government tariff revenue from steel products by $823,-597 from 1911, and by $4,000,000 from 1910. Imports of steel products, he said, would be increased by nearly $20,000,000.

The bill was completed by the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee on Saturday. After being submitted to the full committee, the bill will be laid before the Democratic caucus this afternoon. If approved by the caucus it will be formally introduced in the House to-morrow.

Sweeping reductions are made in all of the important items of the iron and steel tariff.

Among articles now dutiable under the Payne-Aldrich bill, which would be placed on the free list are:

Iron ore, testing duty 5.29 per cent.; hoop and band iron and steel, 16 per cent.; barbed wire and wire fencing, 7.77 per cent.; nails, 17.67 per cent.; horse shoes, 21 per cent.; Tungsten ore, 18 per cent.; zinc ore, 36.57 per cent.; cash registers, linotype machines, machine tools, printing presses, sewing machines and typewriters, 30 per cent.

The reductions made on finished steel and iron products range in many classes as great as fifty per cent. The figures given out by the committee on ways and means, to accompany the bill, show that this will make a corresponding reduction in tariff revenues from the sources.

ROYAL PARTY IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 23.—The one surprise of the first day's visit of the Duke of Connaught was the unexpected revision of his original plan not to go to Washington, and the announcement that he had decided to do so to pay his respects to President Taft. According to the altered plan, the Governor-General of Canada will leave New York early Thursday morning for the capital city, accompanied only by Col. Lowther, his military secretary. Unless there is a further change in the plans, the duchess and her daughter, the Princess Patricia, will not go to Washington, but will remain in this city Thursday, and in the evening join the duke here for departure for Ottawa.

The vice-regal party spent the day rather quietly at the Reid home, although the duke received a large number of callers, including the British and Russian consuls and former Mayor Seth Low.

Ambassador Reid and Mrs. Reid gave a dinner of about fifty covers last night in honor of the vice-regal party. No official list of guests was given out, but it included Cardinal Farley and Governor and Mrs. Dix.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Final arrangements for the reception of the Duke of Connaught will be made by the State Department to-day, following the meeting of the Cabinet and a conference between President Taft and Secretary Knox. At this time it will be decided whether or not Mr. Taft shall return the duke's visit, and just how the royal visitor shall be received at the White House.

REVOLUTION IN ECUADOR ENDS

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 23.—The revolutionary troops under Gen. Pedro Montero, who have had control of Guayaquil for some time past, have capitulated to the Quito Government troops under Gen. Leonidas Plaza. Previous to the occupation of the city by Gen. Plaza, the citizens yesterday attacked and captured the barracks, which were guarded by a comparatively small detachment of the revolutionists. In the encounter eighty men were killed or wounded, but the citizens were victorious and cheered enthusiastically for Plaza.

REPUBLICANS ARE GAINING GROUND

All China Now Favor of New Rule Says First President.

Claims Manchus Have Broken Faith—Recognition by Powers.

Nanking, China, Jan. 23.—"I am absolutely convinced now as I have always been of the success and the righteousness of this movement. Every moral, physical and financial sinew of the provinces of China proper supports it."

This statement by President Sun Yet Sen was made yesterday to the Canadian Press. The President explained recent negotiations between the Republicans and the Imperialists and discussed earnestly the situation in China. He spoke with the utmost confidence and appeared genuinely solicitous lest ignorance of the true situation in the south of China had misled the foreign legations in Pekin into encouraging the Imperialist Government to resist what he (Sun Yet Sen) firmly believed to be the inevitable outcome of the present state of affairs. The President continued:

"If we fail to secure peace and a stable government now, the responsibility must rest on Pekin. The Manchus recently accepted our terms. So Premier Yuan Shi Kai assured us. Consequently the armistice between the two forces was renewed. With the view of securing peace I persuaded the governors of the Republican provinces to agree to elect Yuan Shi Kai President of the republic when the abdication of the throne should be announced. After much hesitation they consented. Yuan Shi Kai fully understood the program.

"I agreed to go to Pekin to discuss final arrangements with Yuan Shi Kai. Later on we received a telegram from Pekin demanding that the Republican Government should be dissolved within two days after the abdication of the throne.

"Evidently as Yuan Shi Kai was determined to establish his own Government at Pekin and was being assured of the support of outside influence he intended to ignore the Republican Government and break the agreement to which he had assented.

"We will never submit to the dictation of the Manchus or of Yuan Shi Kai. The republican movement is now represented by fifteen provinces. Three hundred and fifty million people in China are heart and soul with the republic. The three remaining provinces, Ho Nan, Shan Tung and Chi Li, are certainly our adherents. The Chinese troops in the Imperial army who are now supposed to be loyal to Yuan Shi Kai are really republicans and will join us at the proper time.

"We control all the treaty ports except Tientsin and Nuchwang, which are icebound. The republic, in fact, is protecting the vast majority of foreigners and foreign property. Why, then, should not the foreign powers promptly recognize the republic? This question is already being asked by the people of China while the dread of foreign intervention, which is invited by certain persons in Pekin, hangs like a pall over the country and over natives and foreigners alike.

"The foreign powers, especially the United States, have always spoken of their friendship for China. We pledge good will and the observance of all treaties made by and with the Manchus. We will discharge every obligation of the open door in China.

"There is great danger now that the conviction may be forced upon the people of China that the foreigners are merely friends and supporters of the Manchus. The atmosphere of Pekin is not the atmosphere of China, but we feel that the former is now pervading the chanceries of Europe and America."

President Sun Yet Sen evidently expects early recognition from one of the leading powers. Meanwhile the massing of troops to the north of the Yangtse river continues. It is estimated that the republican force of all arms now numbers over 100,000.

Elaborate plans are on foot for the improvement of Nanking. The educational department has concluded the drafting of the program of the Government and the provisional constitution has been nearly completed.

Reactionaries Stronger.

Pekin, Jan. 23.—Premier Yuan Shi Kai's efforts to bring about the abdication of the throne have failed, and the situation in China had entered a new and perplexing phase. Prince Ching, the ex-Premier; Prince Pu Lun, ex-president of the National Assembly, and Prince Tsai Suun, brother of the ex-regent, absented themselves from the conference of the princes of the Imperial clan yesterday, which left the decision as to abdication to the reactionaries, who have been strengthening their hand steadily since the Premier permitted the probability of abdication to become known.

The Empress Dowager, being reluctant to abdicate, has accepted the advice of the reactionary princes. The matter of appointing Yin Tchang, the ex-War Minister, of Tieh Liang, the former Tartar general at Nanking, to replace Yuan Shi Kai was discussed, but the argument prevailed that the 18 articles of the constitution promulgated by the National Assembly last November should be observed.

Yuan Shi Kai's bluffing is becoming obvious. He has held special trains ready for several days for his departure, but now that the Manchus have accepted his challenge, he remains in Pekin. He has asked for a further so-called sick leave, indicating that he has no intention of relinquishing the Premiership. He is now recognized as anti-Manchu; therefore this distrustful country accuses him of personal designs.

ORANGEMEN TO FIGHT CHURCHILL

To Prevent His Home Rule Meeting Next Month

Special to the Review.

Belfast, Jan. 23.—Orangemen to-day obtained a lease of Ulster hall for the evening of February 7, hoping to hold it all night and the next day and thus prevent Churchill from holding his Home Rule meeting.

To Close Border Saloons.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 23.—A campaign was launched yesterday to close the saloons on the American side on Sundays. The local police have recently had much trouble with St. Catharines men who get drunk on the American side. Scores from there have been fined on both sides of the river recently.

Strike In Steel Co. Mills.

Montreal, Jan. 23.—The proposal of the Steel Company of Canada to reduce wages for certain employes in the Montreal Rolling Mills led to two mills on Notre Dame street and St. Patrick street being out on Saturday and in consequence of their strike, 170 workmen were without work yesterday.

PLANT FOR PORT ARTHUR

Port Arthur, Jan. 23.—Acting for Mackenzie & Mann and an English syndicate, J. M. Fraser, manager of the Atikokan Iron Co., a Mackenzie & Mann concern, submitted to the city yesterday application for the establishment here of a five-million-dollar plant. The city will give a site of 400 acres at Barepoint and a fixed assessment for twenty years of $50,-000, except for school and local improvement taxes.

SOCIALISTS MADE BIG GAINS IN MONDAY'S REBALLOTTING

Elected 27 Men in Eighty Contests—Now Have Total of 99 Seats.

Berlin, Jan. 23.—The Socialists, as a result of yesterday's reballotting for members of the Reichstag, lack only one of an even one hundred seats. This was the outcome of another remarkable change in the political atmosphere, coupled with 33 victories by other left parties, which makes the chances of the "blue-black bloc," or Government, of retaining its former majority more than doubtful.

The Socialists elected 27 men in eighty contests, and now have a total of 95 seats. The allied Conservatives elected 11 with a total of 69; allied Centre 5, total 107; Radicals 17, total 34; National Liberals 16, total 41.

The most sensational event of the reballotting was the winning by the Socialists of Cologne, "the German Rome," which has been in the uninterrupted possession of the Clericals since the founding of the empire. The Socialists lacked only nine votes of carrying the First Berlin District, where the ministers' votes re-elected the Radical candidate.

Bigamist Sentenced.

Chatham, Jan. 23.—Fred. James, bigamist, was yesterday morning sentenced to three months in Central Prison by Magistrate Ward Stanworth. Wife No. 1, Mrs. Katie "Ames" James, was present and heard sentence pronounced upon him.

Senator Miller Very Ill.

Ottawa, Jan. 23.—Senator Miller is lying in a serious condition at his boarding house on Gloucester street. He has been ill for some time and is now, in addition, suffering from a stroke of paralysis.

FREEDOM OF LONDON TO GREY

Canada's Former Governor-General Accorded High Honor

Special to the Review.

London, Jan. 23.—Earl Grey was to-day presented with the freedom of the city of London. He is the third of his family to be honored in such a way.

Coughs, Colds Bronchitis

If there is an ailment in the throat or chest, it is surely essential that the remedy be conveyed direct to the affected part. It's because the healing vapor of Catarrhozone is breathed into the sore, irritated throat and bronchial tubes, because its balsamic fumes kill the germs and destroy the cause of the trouble. These are the reasons why Catarrhozone never yet failed to cure a genuine case of Catarrh, Asthma, Bronchitis, or Throat Trouble.

The wonderfully soothing vapor of Catarrhozone instantly reaches the furthest recesses of the lungs, produces a healing, curative effect that is impossible with a tablet or liquid, which goes merely to the stomach, and fails entirely to help the throat or lungs.

To permanently cure your winter ills, your coughs, sneezing and Catarrh, by all means use a tried and proven remedy like Catarrhozone. But beware of the substitutor and imitator. Look for Catarrhozone only. 50c and $1, at all dealers. 10

UNION LABEL

RUSSIA AND PERSIA

Is Britain playing into the hands of Russia in Persia. Shuster, the American, who was in charge of Persia's financial affairs says that Russia is trying to establish a weak government in Persia, so that she can better work out Russian aggressive designs. There is an uneasy feeling in may parts, that perhaps Shuster is right about the damage to British interests. Russia is reaching out and has practically assumed control of parts of Persia, and is no doubt going to work the protectorate bluff again, on the ground that the Persian's cannot govern themselves properly. The British government does not seem worried over the state of affairs in Persia, however, in fact it seems as if there must be some understanding between Britain and Russia regarding the question.

BETTER POLICE PROTECTION

Peterboro should have better police protection. The chief has been advocating the appointment of more men for some time, and points out the necessity of action in the matter in his annual report.

For a city, the size of Peterboro, and with such an extensive area, to only have seven guardians of the law is not in keeping with other progressive branches of civic administration. The city cannot be properly policed under existing conditions and the civic fathers should act on the advice of the chief and secure more constables. One of the first questions a manufacturer looking for a town to locate in, asks, is regarding police protection, and it is only right too. If a serious fire occurred here to-morrow it would require the efforts of all the police to handle the crowds and assist the firemen, while the rest of the city would be left unprotected and this is the time that crooks usually get in their fine work

Mr. Joseph Fels, the apostle of single tax, occupied the pulpit of the Church of Our Father Unitarian in Ottawa Sunday night, and the question again arises, should his engagement have been cancelled here.

Winston Churchill says he will speak at Belfast in favor of Home Rule on Feb. 8th, no matter what opposition is offered. He will need a regiment of soldiers with him to do it, if the threats of the anti-Home Rule faction are carried out.

The Scottish curlers left for Toronto this morning taking with them the hearty good wishes of the citizens generally. They were a splendid lot of fellows and local Scotchmen did in their power to see that they enjoyed their visit to Peterborough. The Review wishes the curlers a good time, keen ice and all the rigor of the roarin' game, wherever they visit.

Lee J. Spangler, known as the prophet of Pennsylvania, says the world is doomed to destruction in 1915. He predicts that the earth will drop from its orbit and be annihilated by its plunge through space to destruction. But as Spangler has predicted such a disaster on six previous occasions, no one will worry. He is the individual who two years ago persuaded his followers in Nyack, N.Y., that the time for the end of the world had arrived. He lead them out to the outlying hills to wait for the pyrotechnics, that were to accompany the dissolution of the world, but as nothing happened he was chased out of town. He is a fakir pure and simple.

Mere Form

Montreal Gazette.

It is proposed in order to meet the views of the suffragettes to have the bridegroom make a vow to obey in the wedding ceremony the same as the bride. Thus would they be placed on an equality and the advanced women be satisfied. The result, however, would be the same as at present, when most husbands have to obey their wives anyway.

Ulster Intolerance

London Advertiser

John Redmond and Winston Churchill, are announced to speak in Belfast for home rule on February 8, and are threatened with bloodshed. The spilling of blood would greatly help the home rule cause in England by proving the charge of Ulster intolerance. It is not likely, therefore that Messrs. Redmond and Churchill as practical politicians, not deficient in courage, will willingly stay away from Belfast.

FOR BURNS — ZAM-BUK

Stops Pain at Once!

This is the verdict of all who have tried Zam-Buk. The woman in the home knows best its value. A burn from the stove, from a flat-iron, or a hot pan, is instantly soothed by Zam-Buk. When the little ones fall and cut or scratch themselves, Zam-Buk stops the pain and, incidentally, their crying. The best proof of this is the fact that children who have once had Zam-Buk applied come for it again. For more serious burns, too, it is unequalled. Mr. John Johnston of 734 South Marks Street, Fort William, a moulder in Copp's Foundry says—

"Some time ago I burned the top of my foot severely by dropping some molten iron from a ladle I was carrying. A large hole was burned through my shoe and into the top of my foot. I was taken home, and Zam-Buk was applied to the burn directly. It was surprising what relief this balm afforded. The burn was so deep and so serious that it required careful attention, but Zam-Buk prevented other complications arising, and as it was daily applied, soothed the pains and allayed the inflammation. In the course of two weeks the hole burned in my foot had been quite healed."

Mr. W. B. Gibson, of Belleville, writes—"We have tried Zam-Buk often on cuts and sores, and I think there is nothing that can equal it."

Zam-Buk will also be found a sure cure for cold sores, chapped hands, frost bite, ulcers, blood-poison, varicose sores, piles, scalp sores, ringworm, inflamed patches, babies' eruptions and chapped places, and skin injuries generally. All druggists and stores sell at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—It was nip and tuck to-day in wheat. Cables were on the side of buyers, but the U. S. visible supply statement showed a big decrease in the total. As a result, there was a nervous, irregular finish, varying from ⅛c to ¼c net lower, to ⅛c advance. Corn closed ⅜c to ⅝c under Saturday, oats unchanged to ⅜c down, and hog products the same as 48 hours before, to a decline of 5c.

The Liverpool market closed to-day on wheat unchanged to ¼d lower than Saturday, and ½d higher; Paris wheat closed ¼c to ⅜c higher; Antwerp unchanged; Berlin ⅜c lower, and Buda Pest ⅞c higher.

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 152 carloads, comprising 2681 cattle, 1360 hogs, 833 sheep and lambs, 33 calves and 122 horses.

Exporters.

E. L. Woodward bought for Swift & Co. 76 export steers for Liverpool, 1200 lbs. each, at $6.90, average price, the top price being $6.95; 11 export heifers, 1150 lbs., at $6.50; 3 bulls for export, 1860 lbs., at $5.75.

Butchers.

Best butchers, $6.75 to $6.85; loads of good, $6.25 to $6.70; medium, $5.80 to $6.15; common, $5.25 to $5.75; inferior, $4.75 to $5; choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; good cows, $4.75 to $5.10; medium, $4 to $4.50; common, $3 to $3.75; canners, $2.50 to $3; bulls, $4 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Fred Rowntree bought 14 milkers and springers at $50 to $80, but only one, it will be seen, brought the latter price.

Calves.

Prices for calves were unchanged, at $4 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

There was little change in sheep and lambs from our last quotations. Sheep, ewes, sold at from $4.25 to $4.75, and a few choice at $5; rams, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $6.50 to $6.75, and a few select lots at $7 to $7.15, and one lot at $7.25.

Hogs.

W. J. Johnston reported hogs as being lower, at $6.50 for selects, fed and watered, and $7.15 f.o.b. cars to drovers at country points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, West End Market, the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 20 were 1925 cattle, 1875 sheep and lambs, 2025 hogs and 215 calves, while the offerings on the market this morning for sale were 950 cattle, 525 sheep and lambs, 950 hogs and 150 calves.

Owing to the smaller supply of cattle and the continued scarcity of good to choice steers, a firmer feeling prevailed in the market, but there were no actual changes in prices. There was considerable enquiry for top quality steers and sales of full car loads were made at $6.75 per cwt., but even at this figure buyers in some cases found it difficult to fill their wants. Among the buyers present there were some from Quebec who bought a number of bulls at $5 to $5.50, and steers and heifers mixed, at $6 to $6.25 per cwt. The trade on the whole was fairly active and a good clearance was made. Cable advices from Liverpool were weaker and noted a decline in prices of ¼c per lb., as compared with a week ago, the top prices realized for steers being 14½c per lb.

The only change in the market for small meats was the stronger feeling for lambs, and prices advanced 25c per cwt., on account of the smaller run and the good demand for the same, sales being made as high as $7 per cwt. Sheep were firm under a fair demand. The supply of calves was very limited and good to choice stock was scarce, for which there was considerable enquiry and sales of such were made as high as $15 to $20 each. There was a strong undertone to the market for hogs, but prices did not show much change, sales of selected lots being made at $7.10 to $7.25 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7; medium, $4.25 to $6.25; common, $3 to $4; canners, $2.50 to $3; choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $4.75 to $5; bulls, $5.25 to $5.50; feeding steers, $3.50 to $3.75; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $75; common and medium, each, $45 to $55; springers, $30 to $40; sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $4.75; bucks and culls, $3.75 to $4.25; lambs, $6.75 to $7.

Hogs, fed and watered, f.o.b., $7.10 to $7.25; calves, $5 to $20.

CHAPTER XXIII
Burke Unbosoms.

Eight o'clock Thursday morning: an hour before, Fanshawe had heard with a sigh of relief that I would take his place that morning. I had since been kicking my heels opposite the rooming house where Alexander Burke had his lodgings.

At the hour mentioned Burke appeared. I retreated into a sheltering doorway, and watched him.

He stood for a moment upon the top step, darting quick glances up and down the street, and intently scanning the few pedestrians who were abroad at the time. Then he came rapidly down the steps, and turned toward the city.

The snow muffled my tread, and he didn't hear my approach—didn't know of my presence until I tapped him upon the shoulder.

"Mr. Burke," said I, "I want you."

With a quick intake of breath, which sounded like the hiss of a snake, he slewed round and fixed me with his expressionless eyes. Also—to complete the simile—his head reared back, like a snake's when it is about to strike. I don't believe that I ever before found such a keen pleasure in arresting a man.

"Want me!" he gasped. "What for?"

"Yes, you." I could not entirely hide my satisfaction. "And because you have reached the end of your rope. I don't intend to stand here and argue about it, either.

In a moment the man was calm—all except his gloved hand. A man's hands will, nine times out of ten, betray him in spite of himself. Burke's fingers were twitching, folding and unfolding without cessation.

"Swift," he whispered vindictively, you'll regret this—so help me God, you will. Curse you! Why do you persecute me? I'll go with you—of course I shall; how can I help myself when I'm at the mercy of a brute of a giant, like you?"

"Then shut up, and come along. I'll just keep a hand under your arm until we get to headquarters. . . . Never mind!" as he made a move to unbutton his overcoat. "It's cold enough to keep covered." I had struck down the stealthy hand with considerable vigor, and he winced with pain. The pale eyes flashed a malignant look at me, and straightway became inscrutable again.

Not another word was said until we stood before the clerk at the Central Office. The matter-of-fact way in which he picked up a pen and poised it over the police docket, the callous indifference with which he inquired the prisoner's name and the nature of the charge, made Burke flinch for the first time.

"Wait, Johnson!" I said suddenly to the clerk, as if on second thought. "I don't believe I'll docket this man yet; I want to keep the pinch quiet for a while."

The game was familiar to Johnson; he laid aside the pen as indifferently as he had taken it up, and returned to his interrupted perusal of the morning paper.

"You come with me," I said to Burke.

I conducted him to the little room behind the Captain's private office—scene of many a heart-to-heart conference—and pushed him toward one of the two chairs which constituted the room's sole furnishing. It was a dim, silent, disheartening place, and I was resolved to have no mercy upon the man whom at last I had succeeded in getting into a position where I could handle him.

"Burke," I began, "I'm not going to mince matters or stand for any quibbling or lying. I have you right where I want you, and whatever leniency you may receive will depend entirely upon your frankness. This is your chance—the last one."

No doubt my expression and manner were grim; I meant them to be and there was no doubt that my obvious confidence in my position impressed the ex-secretary; for the fingers grew more agile, and he licked his dry lips again and again.

"What am I charged with?" he demanded, in a shaking voice.

"Nothing as yet," I returned cheerfully. "You doubtless noticed that I dispensed with that little formality. Do you know what that means? Just this: no one knows you are here; there is a certain small cell below stairs, dark as Egypt, provided expressly for recalcitrant individuals . You could lie there for a year, and nobody be a whit the wiser. I, for one, wouldn't care how long you stayed."

"Perhaps," agreed I, carelessly, surveying him with a narrowed look. "I'm not here to excuse police methods; they're not very gentle, I'll admit; but when we deal with crooks we're obliged to hand them the only treatment they're amenable to.

"Burke, you can't excite one bit of pity or sympathy in me for you, for I know you to be a cold-blooded, treacherous scoundrel, and whatever you have coming to you is only what you deserve. I'm fixed to put you through as a principal in the murder of Page—sit down!" I thundered at him, for he had started to rise from his seat. He dropped back limply. "You wait till I'm through. Your chance is coming in just about a minute. I promise not to interrupt—as long as you tell a straightforward story.

"As I said," I went on, "I'm prepared to put you through as one of the principals; the bare fact of your arrest should be enough to convince you of my readiness.

"However, while I haven't any desire to spare you, we are in the habit of trading leniency to a rascal who is willing to turn State's evidence. It's a plain business proposition."

I imagined that he perked up a bit at this.

"Ah, then you are not so sure," he seemed to muse; "you would have me convict myself for your precious benefit."

"Maybe you can judge better before I have finished," returned I, unmoved. "You need not tell me anything about yourself, but I do need a few facts to complete my case against the others who were involved in this crime. It's up to you."

I retreated a step, folded my arms, and stood watching him—and waiting. I knew that he couldn't tell the truth without filling in the gaps in his own case. I never am deterred by any compunction over the methods I am sometimes obliged to use to make an individual, whom I know deserves no consideration, speak. With a knave like Burke I would as lief resort to thumb-screws, the boot, the rack, or even to choking the words from him, as to trust to persuasion alone. To tell the truth, my preference lies with the means first enumerated: they are much more prompt and direct. The worst indictment that one may bring against the old-time torture is that it was not applied with judgment and discrimination, nor always confined to legitimate ends. I fear that I shock you. But I am not by any means a cruel, blood-thirsty person. I merely speak from long years of experience. Whenever I hear a misguided soul deploring the so-called "third degree"—why, I have something in pickle for him.

This, however, is not the place to open the pickle-jar.

Perhaps, though, Burke's suffering was as poignant as if his ordeal were physical. How restlessly the man's slender, bloodless fingers curled and uncurled! Still, his self-control was wonderful; his white face remained indecipherable, the pale eyes stared at me unblinkingly and without mirroring a single emotion that I could discern. Then the change came so quickly that it almost caught me off my guard.

One hand shot to his bosom. When it reappeared something flashed dully in the dim light. At the same time, with a cat-like spring he was out of his chair and upon me.

I concentrated all my attention upon the hand that held the murderous knife. I caught it as it lunged at me; then, with a quick twist, I bent it backward and behind him, until he groaned with pain. The long-bladed knife clattered to the floor, and I shoved him roughly away from me. Then I picked up the weapon.

The fellow acted for all the world like a whipped and cowed panther. He brought up violently against the wall ,where, in a stooping posture, he commenced running to and fro the width of the room, spitting and snarling venomously. The pale eyes were no longer blank. The pupils had widened, and the look of them was deadly.

I smiled with quiet satisfaction, for I knew that Burke was—as we specify it in police parlance—"coming through."

After a while he quieted, and at last stood panting in the corner farthest away from me. I pointed to the chair.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

"CHAOS AND ANARCHY."

Vienna, Jan. 22.—"The net result of the British and Russian action in Persia renders a nation, which was making progress towards peace and order and was building up its finances for the establishment of a constitutional government, a land of chaos and anarchy, without prestige among its own people, and, in addition, has meant the sacrifice of hundreds of innocent lives."

This statement was made yesterday by W. Morgan Shuster, the American who was dismissed from the office of treasurer-general of Persia recently and has just arrived here.

"The Mohammedan people," continued Mr. Shuster, "are further aroused against the Christian nations. Great Britain and Russia, far from being on a more solid basis of friendship, are now face to face on opposite sides of a disorganized territory.

"The Russian and British legations are the real governing forces in Persia. They are acting through a directory of seven Persians, in order to avoid international responsibility, but morally they are responsible for the destruction of Persian nationality, when it gave promise of establishing a stable constitutional government. The seven men who are nominally governing Persia are without character or reputation. They do not command the slightest respect of their countrymen and would not exist a day without the protection of the Russian and British legations.

"The Russian forces and influences are steadily advancing southwards and unless there is a break in the present trend of events, the realization of Russia's dream of a warm water port is a matter of only a few years. Great Britain will then be confronted with a living Russo-Indian frontier problem.

"The past year's action of the Europeans in Morocco, Tripoli and Persia does not encourage the hope of international peace. The fact that the Mohammedans have been driven to the wall renders future retaliation inevitable. The most regrettable feature of Persia's dismemberment is the fact that it might have been entirely prevented had Great Britain frankly objected at the beginning to Russia's flagrant violation of the Anglo-Russian agreement, commencing with her claim last summer of the rights to veto appointments of Persian officials, and culminating in the despatch of her army into Persia on the false pretext that a Persian official had printed a pamphlet criticising Russia's previous action in Persia."

Niagara Falls, N.Y., Wants Power.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 22.—Deeply impressed with the success of the municipal electric lighting plants here and in Merritton, the City Council on the American side will appeal to Congress for permission to divert sufficient water from the river for a similar purpose. Under the present treaty, 4,400 additional horsepower may be developed by Americans.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY. CONSULTATION FREE.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—Mrs. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

ALD. BULLER WOULD GIVE FIRE CHIEF CONTROL

People's Candidate Would Amend by-law Passed Last Year

At the Fire, Water and Light Committee meeting last evening, Ald. Buller suggested that the by-law be amended, to replace the full control of the fire hall in the hands of Chief Howard, allowing members of the brigade the privilege of appealing to the committee in case of any alleged grievance. By this plan the chief would be held responsible for any happenings at the fire hall such as the hiring or discharging of men and the general welfare of the brigade

The advisability of the proposal was argued and talked of at some length, but nothing was done in the matter in respect to the wishes of the chairman.

The by-law was passed last year, while Ald. Morgan was chairman of the committee. One of the provisions is that all appointments and dismissals are subject to the sanction of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

"MARKS BROS."

Marks Bros. opened a three-night performance at the Grand last evening, playing to a packed house, when they presented the refined southern drama "Little Alabama." The company was noticeably well balanced and all the members acquitted themselves very creditably. Marks Bros. have just come east from a successful tour in western cities where the reputation and cleverness of the company drew splendid houses.

Gracie Marks' acting is just as bright and engaging as ever and she was a popular favorite with the house last evening.

The company has with them one of the best high-class vaudeville specialties that has ever been seen here before the footlights. It is a clever and skilful contortionist act, by Jessie and Beatrice Sours, and their turn is easily worth the price of admission. Their acrobatic and trapeze work is also of a high order.

To-night the company will present the fascinating and sensational society drama, entitled "Sylvia's Romance," a sketch which the management state has never before been played in Canada.

ALD. GORDON SUGGESTS MUNICIPAL STREET RAILWAY; COMPANY WOULD GIVE FIGURES

Before Mr. Munro left the Fire, Water and Light Committee meeting last night, Ald. Gordon remarked that "it might be well to consider the taking over of the street railway, and making it a municipal enterprise. In consultation with Mr. Larmonth, the latter intimated that he would furnish figures at which the company would sell out.

"It will start an agitation," said Ald. Gordon, "although the idea might not develop."

Ald. Buller—"An option might be asked upon the gas plant, at the same time."

No definite action was taken in the matter, it being felt that the question was one for the City Council.

CAP FOR CHIEF.

Chief Howard is to have a good $12 to $15 Persian lamb cap, the chairman being granted authority to make the purchase. The chief will not be given the sleigh asked for this year, but a cutter for his use will be rented from R. Gibbs at $5 per month.

On motion of Ald. Buller and Anderson, 350 feet of fire hose, that will not stand fire pressure will be transferred to the Board of Health at 50c. per foot. A lot of about 350 feet of junk hose will be sold to R. Gibbs.

For thawing out hose after a fire a Salamand heater will be purchased for the fire hall.

AN IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICE

The remains of the late R. M. Roy were taken to Belleville this morning for interment. Last night, a most impressive ceremony was held at the late residence, Sheridan street conducted by Canon Davidson of St. John's church, of which the deceased was a valued and regular attendant

Hamilton Herald—R. M. Roy (father of R. M. Roy, jr., of the Hamilton Bridge Company), whose death at Peterborough is announced today, was in his youth one of the finest amateur athletes in Canada. He was born and brought up in Belleville. There were no Marathon races when he was in his youthful prime, but if there had been he would no doubt have won many trophies On one occasion he undertook to beat the stage coach that ran between Madoc and Belleville, a distance of about twenty miles—and he did it handily, although the coach changed horses twice on the road.

FIREMEN GRANTED INCREASE IN SALARY

New Schedule is $550, $600 and $650---Removal of Lamps to Centre of Streets.

The salaries of the firemen were increased on the scale of $550, $600 and $650 for first, second and third year men respectively, on motion of Aldermen Anderson and Buller, at a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light committee, last evening. The increase resulted in a petition from the firemen for higher wages. The old rate was $525, $575, $600.

It was the general feeling of the committee that the firemen were not paid a living wage to enable them to meet the cost of living in Pterboro. Chief Howard remarked that if the firemen were receiving more money, they would be more efficient men, and do better work.

Ald. Gordon was of the opinion that the increase advocated by Ald. Anderson was a little high, and recommended $575 for second ear men at least.

Ald. Brown moved an amendment seconded by Ald. Morgan that the scale in wages be $575, $600 and $625 for first, second and third year. A vote was held and the amendment was only supported by its mover and seconder.

At present there are no third year men on the force. Several, however are about to enter into their second year.

Those present at the meeting were chairman Ald. W. Johnston, Mayor Bradburn, Ald. Gordon, Buller, Anderson, Brown, Morgan and Fire Chief Howard.

MOVING THE LIGHTS

Mr. J. H. Munro waited upon the committee last evening, in reference to the moving of the arc lamps to centre of the streets. The manager explained that in regard to this proposal, it is almost the close of the contract lighting period, and the removal of these lamps is not in the provisions of the contract.

"We feel that the city should pay for the work, if they desire them removed" said Mr. Munro.

The Company will at the end of the contract period, if it is not renewed, refund what ever sum has been expended by the city for removing the lamps. The average cost of changing a lamp would be $21 on a cost basis of 5 incandescent lights for one acre.

Finally Ald. Brown and Buller moved that the chairman and Mr. Munro inspect all the lamps proposed to be changed, and report back to the committee.

SCOTTISH CURLERS BANQUETED AT MASONIC HALL BY THE PETERBORO CURLING CLUB

The Visitors Express Their Pleasure at the Enthusiastic and Cordial Welcome Accorded to Them.

Mirth and good fellowship reigned supreme at the Masonic Hall last evening, when the laddies from Bonnie Scotland were banquetted by their brother stanesmen of the Peterboro Curling Club.

The evening was a big success and the affair will leave delightful memories for a long time to come. It is safe to say, that the Electric City of Peterboro, her curlers and citizens in general will often come before the minds and occupy the thoughts of the Scottish team of 1912 long after they return to their homes and events of lesser significance have passed.

The banquet hall was arraigned in gay attire. It was appropriate that the scene of the gathering should be in the Masonic Hall, some of the visitors being high in that order. Along the walls hung, enlarged photographs of Masons, some past and others still in service; streams of red, white and blue predominated in the decorations. Cut flowers adorned the tables, and around the festive board sat a jolly gathering of curlers to the number of one hundred and twenty-five. While the younger men of the Peterboro Curling Club waited on the revellers, serving a choice bill of fare with T. Hooper and staff catering, popular choruses broke out at intervals, lead by Mr. W. McIlroy at the piano. One time it was "Alexander's Ragtime Band," again it was "I love a lassie," and before the "score" had been concluded, several well known members of the gathering had been intrcduced in parodies, that made a big hit. Just to vary the program a wee bit, Mr. McIlroy, with Mr. J. H. Renwick as accompanist, gave those old favorites, which sent the thoughts of the visitors back to the land of the heather, "Annie Laurie" and "Loch Lomond."

It was certainly a happy and contested gathering. Afterwards the speakers for the visitors were loud in their praise for the reception and to the enthusiastic welcome accorded them.

The curlers had met in the Masonic lodge room, and, headed by Wm. Ross pipe major of the Highland Light Infantry, in full regalia, marched to the music of the bagpipes to the banquet hall below. Grace was said by the Rev. James Rollins, B.A., pastor of St. Andrews Presbyterian church. Seated at the right hand of the president of the Peterboro Curling Club, Mr. Jas. Connal, were Col. Robertson Aikman, captain of the visiting team and His Worship, Mayor Bradburn.

Song—Mr. Gordon Wright.

"AULD LANG SYNE"

The toast of the King was proposed by the chairman, received enthusiastic response. The welcome to the Scotchmen by the president of the local club followed. It was a very cordial one and it pleased the guests immensely. He referred to splendid record they had made, playing as they had done, under conditions foreign to their own country.

They had made a good record in the games of the afternoon. Their opponents had learned some points they had not before been conversant with. He hoepd the present trip would not be the last. Curlers of Canada had to thank those Scotchmen of days gone by who had originated the game of curling. It was spreading everywhere among all nationalities. It was promoting the spirit of good fellowship

HAPPY

The Peterborough Club, he said would always remember the visitors for the honor done in coming to Peterborough. It was a privilege not every city enjoyed. The speaker closed by expressing the wish that their sojourn in the city would be one of the bright sspots in their trip through Canada.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner in an eloquent proposed the toast of the Scottish cuelers and Bonnie Scotland and in response, Col. Robertson Aikman, acknowledged in a neat speech the kindness of the Peterborough curlers. He said that he believed he had all reason to be proud of his team. They had been unfortunate in the test test matches, but they had a majority so far. They would go back to Scotland well pleased. While they had been lead to believe they would be splendidly received, their reception had exceeded their fondest hopes. Not only had they been received by the curlers, but also by the mayors on behalf of the citizens, by the Premier and by the Governor-General. Considering its size, no other cordiality had exceeded that of Peterborough.

SORRY

Col. Robertson Aikman humorously remarked that while he did not know whether or not Peterborough took its name from the fine old town of Peterborough in England, noted among other things for its hounds, he had seen only one hound in Peterborough. It was not quite up to form, but good enough. In concluding his speech the speaker also thanked Mr. McIlroy for his part in the musical entertainment.

The next item was the well sung selection Mary of Argyle, by Mr. McIlroy.

Mr. R. Hicks, vice-president of the local club proposed the toast of the District Clubs. He said it was one in which every curler in Peterborough would heartily join, the three clubs which were represented were Orillia, Keene and Bobcaygeon were always ready for anything in the curling line, and he wished to express the appreciation of his club to them for their support in the past. He knew they would be willing in the future and ready for every undertaking at the rink.

TO PART

Mr. A. E. Bottum of Bobcaygeon, responded, and referred to the visit of the curlers some years ago. Bobcay-geon then was fortunate in winning out, and they went home feeling they wanted to come back. They did but unfortunately lost. There was a "wolf" on his rink, he said. The district had, he held, the best mettle of curlers in Canada, but they were not the best curlers. They, however, could take defeat like men. The next time the Scotchmen came he hoped they would visit Bobcaygeon, the home of the true, the good and the beautiful.

"Pot Pourri" was next served by Mr. W. S. Davidson. It was good eating, so thoroughly was it prepared by that silver tongued orator.

The toast of "Canada" was proposed by Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., in a short and fitting speech, at the conclusion of which "O Canada" was sung by Mr. McIlroy, the gathering joining in the chorus. A song in good voice was next given by Mr. Gordon Wright.

Provost Gordon proposed the toast of "Our Hosts," in which he referred in warm terms to the manner in which the Scotchmen had been received. "We are hear to represent dear old Scotland," he said. Such favor and affection would not soon be forgotten.

"Come back again," said Mr. McIlroy on behalf of the club, "and don't forget the city of Peterborough when you go back to Bonnie Scotland"

A pleasing feature in connection with the visit of the Scotch curlers was the presentation of copies of the Annual of the local curling club.

The book was prepared by Mr. J. H. Ferguson, who gave much time to the printing and compilation, and designed and printed by the Review job room. Fifty copies were given, special covers carrying on the left side in silk, the Scotch tartans of the five clans under which the Scotch curlers are making their tour. In addition the covers were ornamented in gold and showed the arms of the Province of Ontario. Several illustrations were introduced among the forty pages typical of Canadian summer and winter sports, and of hunting and fishing. Copies of the book were most acceptable to the visitors, who declared that they had not been tendered so handsome a souvenir since entering Canada. Local club members also complimented the Review on the very fine work executed, both on the Annual and the banquet programs, which were gathered by the visitors as additional souvenirs of their visit to this city.

Many complimentary remarks were made to the decorations. These were the work of the members of the Peterborough Ladies' Curling Club.

A dust explosion in a Wyoming mine caused 15 deaths.

Successors to McGeachie's Grillers Continue With Clean Sweep — Were Ahead at the Half by 2-0 and Won Out on Form.

By scoring a 6—4 victory in Cobourg last night against the Corktown seven the local junior O.H.A. septet were returned district champions, having won all their games at home and abroad. In spite of the fact that knocked out brigade in sleepy hollow, better known as Mudville, presented the lakeshore club with two games, thus putting it up to Trainer Dillon's youngsters to win the district away from home, Capt. Hall's youngsters came out on top.

For a bunch of Mercantile and Bank League stars, six of whom made their initial bow in O.H.A. company on Jan. 4 of this season, the juniors are making rapid strides, and if they improve with each future game as they have in their district, they are going to be the boys to beat for the championship. Too much credit cannot be given to Trainer Ed. Dillon and his assistant, Gene. Hurtubise, however, as they have not spared pains to put the boys where they are.

Though the juniors had the support of the majority of the fans during the opening games, they are certainly receiving the glad hand today and will undoubtedly have an pecially large following throughout the season.

Though the locals had Fred Denison on their defence, it is felt that the additional strength was not needed. He was well received by the hundred and fifty Peterborough fans who accompanied the team, and the Cobourg fans and fanettes spent most of their time devising warnings for their players when he was seen in action, as with his lightning fast end-to-end rushes he was a dangerous man for the homsters. He only scored one goal, it being the first of the evening, but he figured in a couple of others, though he was checked by two men most of the time. In fact, so much attention was paid to stopping Denison's effectiveness that the remainder of the team was often almost forgotten, and these were the times the local counters began to come.

DWYER WAS GOOD.

"Joe" Dwyer in goal found his way into the hearts of the fans as he weeded out shot after shot which seemed sure to beat him. He is almost up to the Derochen class, the four shots that beat him being from close in, where he did not have a chance to do anything.

"Pete" Milloy, at point, played a heady game, relieving the forwards by timely rushes. Milloy is a promising defence man, and he has improved with every game. His running mate, Kennealley, who was shifted to right wing, was a little at sea during the first half, but checked his man to a standstill during the last period.

Hall, Weir and Clancey were right there as goal getters, and though there was not an overdose of combination rushes, the forwards were always up with the puck and they checked back like fiends. Weir and Clancey are each credited with two goals, while Hall and Denison copped the other pair, dividing the honors. If any one's work is deserving of praise over another, there is a bouquet coming to Clancey, but they all played a close, consistent game, and when the gong rang for the finish there was not any doubt as to who had the better team.

For the losers Cunningham was possibly the best man. Freeman, the rover, who has been tooted as a whirlwind, did not give Weir much trouble. In fact the local youngster was sufficiently his superior to score two goals.

Hornbeck and Penwarden made a husky defence though their rushes were not very effective.

The lineups and summary are appended below:

THE PLAY.

The play was carried from end to end for eighteen minutes of the first half, neither teams seeming to be able to get anything on the other, while Dwyer and Peachy were called upon to pull off some sensational saves. At last Denison beat Peachy from a scrimmage after he had carried the rubber into Cobourg territory. Penwarden, Kennealley and Milloy had served two min. each with the penalty timer for minor offenses and were again in the game. Weir scored three minutes later, making the tally 2—0, as it still stood at half-time.

GRAND FINISH.

Freeman and Co. came hard after the rest, but could not score until Clancey and Weir were banished simultaneously, Hornbeck doing the trick. Kennealley drew two minutes again and Freeman went to keep him company when he broke his stick over Denison's legs.

With 13 min. to go, Hornbeck was injured and Kennealley went off with him and got back after Hinman had tied the score.

It was hammer and tongs to the finish when the locals lead by two goals. At one stage they had a three goal lead.

The penalty list was light on both sides, there being no grave infractions of the playing rules.

NERVOUSNESS AND DYSPEPSIA

CURED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES" THE GREAT FRUIT MEDICINE

In Nervous Dyspepsia, the Dyspepsia does not come from the Nervousness—but the latter trouble does come from the Dyspepsia.

The stomach is a network of nerves. Now if all these nerves are irritated by improper food, hasty eating, or poisoned by gases from the constipated bowels, then they will make one nervous.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures both the Nervousness and the Dyspepsia because "Fruit-a-tives" cures all stomach troubles, keeps the stomach sweet and clean, and enables you to eat and sleep as you did when a child.

The Oil Tree of China.

The tung, or wood oil tree, is worthily named the national tree of China. It is stately in appearance, with smooth green bark and wide-spreading branches, affording a fine shade. It bears a fruit resembling a shellbark hickory nut, but as large as a small orange. Each nut contains three triangular seeds similar to small Brazil nuts. The oil is pressed from these seeds and the refuse is used as a fertilizer. The oil is used principally for polishing woodwork and dressing leather. Considerable quantities are exported.

The wood of the tung tree is used for making musical instruments, fine boxes and the framework of small houses.

On one occasion, after a burglary had been committed in her apartments, she astounded a magistrate by stating that she never counted her money and did not know which of her jewels had been stolen, as she never troubled to find out how many she had.

PETERBORO CURLERS WON OUT WITH TWENTY-FIVE SHOTS

Were Behind in Afternoon Games But Had Good Majority At Night.

Never before was seen such curling and enthusiasm as prevailed at the curling rink yesterday afternoon and evening. The ice was in grand condition, and highly satisfactory to the Scottish curlers, and the result was that the stones went skipping down the ice in a manner warranted to make keen competition.

On the day's doings the Peterborough curlers finished 25 shots to the good, and are proud of their victory over such worthy opponents as their visitors proved themselves to be. Needless to say, they were congratulated by the Scotchmen on the results. While the four Peterborough rinks playing in the morning games were 11 up, only one rink, Dr. Greer's, being behind, and that but by one shot, the three district quartets were 23 behind, leaving the Scotchmen the victors on the round by 12.

In the night rinks Peterborough won on five rinks, tied one and lost one, the majority of 37 shots going to the locals and making the final majority 25. Col. Robertson Aikman lost both his games, falling before the good work of Skip Connal's rink in the afternoon, and being defeated again at night by Skip T. F. Matthews, the latter score being:

Peterborough... ... 210200111021111—15

Take two Peterboro curlers.

Giroux and Telford had a great battle for honors, but the result was a tie. Telford made a strong finish piling up fine in the fourteenth end. The score was—

Scotland — 201011002002051l—16
Peterboro— 030100430220l000—16

Skip Davidson got off well in the early stages of his game and beat at the twelfth end by seven shots—

Score—

Peterboro— 110102010304001O—14

Skip Keenie had the lead of 4 points on skip Brightman at the eighth end, but for the remainder of the game he failed to count the opposing rink scoring at every end.

Score—

Scotland — 100001135000000O— 6
Peterboro— 011110002122312l—18

On the first end in the Dougall-Hicks game, the visitors got 2. These were recorded by Hicks on the second end, and after that it was clear sailing as the score shows—

Scotland — 2001020032100040—15
Peterboro— 0240402100023101—20

PROTEST FROM COBOURG CLUB

But No Notification Has Been Received Here

It is said that the Cobourg Club has protested last night's game, alleging that Denison is over age. The local club has, however, not been notified. There are no grounds for the protest as Denison is eligible from every standpoint.

TRENTON IS ON TO-NIGHT

Return Game to be Played at Trenton, Thursday

The Trenton intermediates will be here to-night for their first local appearance of the season and are bringing the regular team for the engagement. The return game has been arranged for Thursday night instead of Friday, as called for by the schedule. The juniors play away from home on Friday. The local lineup will be unchanged.

Thirty Miles of Soda.

Forty million tons of the best washing material, supplied and manufactured by nature, are waiting to be carried from Central Africa to the European markets, and an extension of the Uganda Railway is to be built from Ulu to Lake Magadi in order to effect this. Lake Magadi is not really a lake, but an area of thirty square miles of soda deposit situated in the heart of Africa.

Two expeditions have gone out into this soda lake region, which though hot in the middle of the day, is declared to be quite healthy. It is in the midst of one of the finest big game shooting areas in the British South African Protectorate. In ordinary times the lake has a perfectly level, hard, and dry surface, like that of a gigantic mass of Fen ice, if a thirty-square-mile area can be imagined.

It appears that in the past it has been left to the Indians to remove soda from the lake. They cut out blocks, and what is called "Mother Liquid" spurts up and re-forms into solid soda, which they cut away next season. This is evidence that the soda in the lake is being continually augmented.

In addition to the many surface-springs discharging considerable quantities of soda into the lake, there are indications of large springs in the lake itself. On the removal of the soda already crystallized the "Mother Liquid," which takes its place at once, starts to re-form the crust.

It looks as if washerwomen can sleep comfortably in their beds for some years to come. So long as washing is provided for them, their soda shall be sure.

Germany is said to be negotiating for the purchase of the Belgian Congo.

Capt. Tom Wallace (E. York) declared himself in complete accord with Mr. Lancaster.

J. H. Burnham (Peterboro) taunted the opposition with their silence on the question.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier deprecated too much passionate discussion. As a Roman Catholic he desired to protest against the statement that the ne temere decree could override the authority of the King and Parliament. It was not intended to be a civil law, but the civil power could give it legal effect. Its object was to prevent clandestine marriages.

He did not think the Government proposal to adjourn the debate a dignified method of disposing of the question.

A. E. Clarke (South Essex) said the tendency in Ontario was to look at the intention of the parties as under the common law and to legalize marriages which had been irregularly celebrated.

Hon. W. T. White did not believe the ne temere decree was part of the civil law of the Province of Quebec.

Dr. Clark (Red Deer) announced his adhesion to Mr. Lancaster's bill. He repeated the accusation that the Conservatives had worked the ne temere decree against the late Government.

Hon. L. P. Pelletier, amid wild Conservative applause, told how all over the Province of Quebec the Liberals had appealed for Laurier's return to power on the ground that he was a Catholic and a Frenchman.

"Though I am Catholic, I didn't ask this question to be settled by priests or Roman Catholic judges. I am content as a British subject to go to the foot of the throne and have it decided there," said the Postmaster-General.

The House divided at 2 a.m. on the motion to adjourn the debate. Col. Hughes was loudly cheered by the Opposition when he voted "yea." So was Capt. Tom Wallace. Conservative members who voted against the motion were: Lancaster, W. F. Maclean, Blain, Kidd and Edwards. The motion was carried by 86 to 61. The House then adjourned.

Hoyle For Speaker?

Toronto, Jan. 22.—That the Speakership of the Ontario Legislature is assured to W. H. Hoyle, M.P.P., is the information received Sunday evening from a reliable source. It is said that T. H. Lennox, M.P.P. for North York, was recently selected as chairman of the standing order committees.

As Mr. Hoyle held the chairmanship during the last term, Mr. Lennox's appointment must mean a higher position of the former chairman.

Strategy.

Finding it impossible to see the stage while the lady in front of him wore her large hat, Jones, in his most insinuating manner, asked her to remove it. "Take off my hat!" she exclaimed. "Why, what impudence! Of course I won't take off my hat!" "Very well, madam," said the man. "I beg your pardon for asking the favor, but I rather think you will."

When the curtain rose on the second act the owner of the beribboned and heavily-trimmed structure heard hoarse cries, such as "Take it off, you chump!" "Remove that hat, there!" "Take it off! Take it off." It is quite needless to say that the hat immediately landed in the lady's lap. The gentleman leaned toward her, thanking her profusely. And the poor, imposed upon woman probably never found out that the man had put on his own silk hat, and that all the horrifying yells were aimed at him.

INCREASE IN SALARY FOR THE OFFICERS OF THE POLICE DEPARTMENT

Chief Thompson Given an Increase of $100—Two More Officers if Sanitary Inspector is Not Appointed—Annual Report and Recommendation of Chief of Police.

The police commissioners gladdened the hearts of the local police force at their annual meeting yesterday afternoon by voting salary increases on recommendation of Chief Constable Thompson. Embodied in the Chief's annual report was such convincing proof and statistics that such a step would be to the best interests of the city, that the commissioners agreed that the city was certainly backward in its police strength and remuneration.

The following table gives an idea of the increases—

Chief Thompson	$1200	$1300
Sergeant Adams	725	775
P. C. McGinty	625	no inc.
P. C. Meharry	650	700
Detective Newhall	750	850
P. C. Meagher	650	700
P. C. Kidd	600	700
P. C. Brown	600	700

MORE POLICEMEN

Chief Thompson in his report advocated two more men being added to the strength of the local police in order to properly patrol the extensive area, which the city covers. The commissioners decided that in case a sanitary inspector is appointed to relieve the police department of the inspection work, one constable would be added, but in case no sanitary inspector was appointed, two men will be engaged.

The discussion of the increases and the strengthening of the force took place while the commissioners were in a committee of the whole.

Some interesting figures were submitted by Magistrate Dumble concerning Peterboro's standing, compared to other cities in criminal lines showing the city averaged fairly well in good conduct with other cities.

In nearly every town or city in the province, the salaries and strength of the police department were larger in proportion to the population of the places than in Peterboro. It was this fact that largely influenced the commissioners in bringing in the increases.

There were in attendance at the meeting Judge Huycke, Magistrate Dumble, Chief Thompson and Mayor Bradburn. The latter, at the commencement of the meeting was welcomed to the ranks of the commissioners by Judge Huycke in a few pleasant remarks, who hoped that his association with the commissioners would be of a useful and agreeable character.

Mayor Bradburn suitably thanked the chairman for his kindly remarks. City Clerk Armstrong was re-appointed as secretary of the commissioners for another year.

Judge Huycke was also unanimously returned to the position of chairman of the body for the year. Some accounts were passed and ordered to be paid, and Chief Thompson was given leave to attend the Chief Constable's convention this year.

CHIEF'S REPORT

The Chief reported that the number of cases summoned or apprehended during the year at 590, against 519 in the previous year. Some of the statistics are:

	1911.	1910.
Assault, common	25	28
Breach of license by-laws	36	53
Breach Liquor Act	65	51
Drunk	140	78
Drunk, disorderly	69	49
Disorderly conduct	36	13
Playing game of chance	12	0
Thefts	45	38
Vagrants	56	39

Of the total number of cases 26 were withdrawn. There were 295 fines. Suspended sentences were 116; 15 were sent to jail and 12 to Central Prison; 2 went to Kingston.

Canadians lead to the number of 486. There were two Germans and seven Italians. Eight were females.

The crimes of the juveniles were mostly of a petty nature. With the exception of the boys who broke into St. James' church and the two south ward schools, the offenders were allowed out on suspended sentence. In these cases good work is being done by Mr. Cochrane and Mr. Goodwill of the Children's Aid Society.

STOLEN PROPERTY.

During the year there was reported to the police property stolen valued at $1,958.20. There was recovered by the police of the above amount property valued at $1,071.01, and returned to the owners.

LOST PROPERTY.

Property valued at $644.34 was reported lost, and of this amount there was found and returned to the owners property valued at $588.74.

SANITARY INSPECTION.

The Sanitary Inspector made 1,000 visits and served 800 notices to citizens, but the officer does not return to see if his instructions have been carried out, if he did it would mean that it would occupy one officer at least six months. I therefore would repeat my recommendation of last year and ask that the police department be relieved of this work, as it is impossible for the police to give the attention to the work that it should have.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

Diphtheria	10
Scarlet fever	32
Smallpox	5
Total	47

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The Chief adds: I would repeat my recommendation of last year regarding increased police protection, and I am sure that the increased population during the past year demands it.

From the time of the speeches made at the Mayor's banquet by the different members of the Council, every effort is going to be made this year to induce manufacturers to come to our city. We should be in a position to assure them that they will receive proper police and fire protection, as these are two of the important points that manufacturers consider when locating.

Peterborough covers an area of 2,807 1-3 acres, being two miles wide and two and three-quarters miles in length. It is nearly half the size of London, Hamilton or Ottawa, and we have only seven policemen.

There are streets in our city with thousands of people living on them, with valuable property unprotected. Life is the most important, property comes next. In the event of fire, particularly by night, there should be police patrolling those districts for the purpose of sending in alarms in the event of fire. This is only one of their numerous duties.

It was only during the last year that we had an instance of this, which no doubt would have caused fatal results. An old couple living in the south end of the city, whose house caught fire of unknown origin and only for a citizen who was passin at an early hour in the morning the old couple would no doubt have been burned to death. This is only one of the unexpected which might happen to any of the citizens in the residential part of the city.

I think that the above reasons are sufficient to warrant the increase that I am about to recommend, without taking into consideration the fact that the number of our police is far below the average, with other cities of our population and under.

I would therefore strongly recommend that two men be added to the strength of the department this year.

It is customary in the majority of cities to reckon police officers' pay, by the day, as you are aware that the men work every day in the year.

The highest paid police officer in our department is receiving $750.00 per annum, which is equal to $2.05 1-2 per day. The lowest paid man is receiving $600.00 per annum which is equal to $1.64 1-2 per day.

I would therefore recommend that the department receive a substantial increase in pay, that we may be able to procure the very best men that we can possibly get and after we get them, be able to retain them, as a good man's service grows more valuable all the time.

I would ask your honorable Board to consider the advisability of making a scale of salaries for the department, namely—first, second and third class pay.

The matter of remodelling the police station and police court room, was taken up by the City Council of 1911 and a recommendation was made and a by-law passed authorizing the City Trust Commissioners to go on with the work. I trust this will be done as soon as possible in the Spring as it is at present in a deplorable condition, most unsanitary and unfit for use.

REMARKS.

P.C. Middleton and P.C. Brown sent in their resignations during the year. The vacancies were very satisfactorily filled by the appointment of Alexander Kidd and John Brown.

I wish to draw your attention to the fact that none of the charges, under the Liquor License Act, were for selling during prohibited hours but the greater part was against persons on the prohibited list and the remainder for selling to minors.

The Chief Constables' Association of Canada, meets this year in the city of Brantford, and I trust, gentlemen, that you will make it convenient for me to attend.

FIRE CHIEF'S REPORT.

The Fire Chief reported 127 alarms of fire in response to which 92 1-2 miles were covered, 26,000 feet of hose laid, 880 feet of ladders raised and 263 gallons of chemicals used. The total damage was $22,743, and of this amount $12,414, was to buildings and to contents $10,320. The damage was $4,166 in excess of the previous year. Less calls were received from the business districts through the co-operation of the merchants and manufacturers in the matter of rubbish and combustible material. There were less incendiary fires. There were 44 chimney fires and at least one family was rendered homeless. The chief urged that householders clean their chimneys and also advised against the practice of starting fires with coal oil.

The chief recommended the purchase of a chemical fire engine, five fire alarm boxes, 1500 feet of hose, the erection of a sub-station for a hose company and an increase of pay for the firemen.

"THE GIRL AND THE TRAMP"

The splendid, rollicking but unshaven and uncouth looking individual depicted so admirably by "Happy Jack," appeals strongly to our nomadic instinct, and, when at the end, he comes out strongly in his real character of the refined gentleman we all feel a thrill of satisfaction engendered by the honest belief that what he has done and is, is just what we would do and be under similar circumstances.

The play possesses wonderful heart from the beginning to the end— is chock full of intensely dramatic situations, and yet, with all theme, with comedy element, hilarious, side-splittin fun. In fact it may well be likened to an April day, a delicious mingling of sunshine and shadows, or tears and laughter.

The play really possesses considerable literary merit, being far above its class in the matter of construction and technique. And the company, too is exceedingly meritorious. It has the essential parts for a good dramatic performance-eveness. Of course, the part so splendidly portrayed by "Happy Jack" the Tramp, is the central figure, but so well are the other characters grouped about him that the ensemble is well nigh perfect.

Nor have the other accessories to a high class performance been neglected. The elaborate scenery carried, is admirable throughout, and the mechanical effects well-nigh marvelous, so that altogether a thoroughly enjoyable entertainment is assured all who see it. Those who have had the good fortune to have seen it before will be surprised and gratified at the many new and interesting things that have been introduced.

"The Girl and The Tramp" will be the attraction at the Grand, one night with a matinee, Saturday next January 27.

LOOKING FOR GOLD.

The whereabouts of that mysterious wanderer, Louis de Rougemont, have been disclosed.

"Yes," said a merchant in London (Eng.) the other day, "De Rougemont is quite well, and I am in close touch with him.

"He is in the Ural Mountains, looking for gold."

"It is quite well for you to laugh," said the merchant, "but a well-known engineer has just been to see me, and tells me that De Rougemont is perfectly right, and has informed me that for gold the Ural Mountains surpass Western Australia and Klondyke.

"Yes," added the merchant, warming up to the subject, "you told me that when you met De Rougemont he was a nervous individual, quite ready to run up the wall, and throw nuts at the public, but in all the things that he wrote there is very little of falsehood. When he told me he had ridden upon turtle, I laughed at him, and remarked that the moment you touch turtle it dives. 'No,' said De Rougemont; 'not if you get hold of its shoulders and hold up its head.'

"He borrowed some turtles from me, and proved his contention at a music hall in the West End, and also by riding a turtle at Southport out to a ship. The humor of it was that he got to the ship, but then lost the turtle, who was quite sick of the job, and also in both cases the insides of his legs were very badly scraped.

"You are quite right in thinking," the merchant continued, "that De Rougemont is quite a remarkable man. He is now eighty years of age, and when I last heard of him one of his acquaintances informed me that in the Ural Mountains he walked forty miles at a stretch, and turned up at the end of the march perfectly fresh.

"I suppose you did not know," he continued, "that De Rougemont is a most confirmed spiritualist? You see this old bureau here?"—pointing to a rather nice piece of Sheraton. "De Rougemont has promised that when he dies—which he expects will be soon—he will give three taps on this particular door, and if I hear it he expects me to be converted to his own ideas on the subject of spiritualism."

Praiseworthy Self-Control.

"What makes you so sure you have a right to consider yourself a good trust?"

"The fact," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "that we have been kind and patient and forebearing. For a while everybody was yelling 'down with the trusts!' But we never retaliated by saying down with anything—not even prices."

(Stratford Beacon.)

The late cold snap is suggestive of two things. One is that our fuel supply in the way of coal, which comes in Ontario from the United States, and will in time be exhausted, might find a good substitute in peat, of which there are large areas in this province. Another is that there are large areas of land in Ontario, now destitute of trees, which are practically of no value for anything else. If these were planted they could in time be made to produce quantities of fuel as well as timber for lumber.

LUMBER COMBINE IS SAID TO EXIST

Member for Assiniboia Declares That the Government at the Behest of B. C. Dealers Has Forced Up the Price of Building Material—Interprovincial Trade Will Pay For Any Increase. Says Mr. Goodeve.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—The tariff on lumber in the west raised a warm discussion in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon and J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) made a smashing attack on the British Columbia lumber dealers whom he described as a trust.

Just as the House was preparing to vote supply Mr. Turriff moved a resolution declaring that the Minister of Customs, in instructing his officers to collect 25 per cent. duty in certain kinds of lumber, was violating the customs laws. The B. C. manufacturers raised the price on the western settler of the plains, to whom lumber was an essential of existence.

A. S. Goodeve (Kootenay) replied to Mr. Turriff declaring that the latter had actually admitted that the free importation of this lumber by the connivance of the Laurier administration was the result of fraud, as his description of it, as planed on one side and edge, with the edge roughened by a fine saw, showed a manifest trick to get around the customs classification.

This loss to the farmer of the sale of his products to 2,000 British Columbia lumbermen, whose camps would be shut down by the foreign competition. would more than offset anything he might save on imported lumber.

The Government were building up home markets and interprovincial trade. At the same time they were prepared to make an investigation into the allegations of Opposition members as to the existence of a lumber combine.

H. N. Stevens (Vancouver) denied the existence of a combine. If the Lumbermen's Association were one it had been in existence for many years and the blame for not checking it rested on the late Government.

The west was prepared to meet fair competition, but it was not prepared to be swamped by the overloaded stocks of United States manufacturers. He hoped the problem of restraining combines, if there were some, would be dealt with scientifically and thoroughly.

W. L. Knowles (Moose Jaw) read from the report of the lumber combine investigation committee several sessions ago, to show that a combine really existed. A member of the association actually had to ask permission before he was able to sell a stock of lumber below the prices "set down in cold blood in their minute book."

J. D. Taylor (New Westminster) said that the course taken by the late Government "put a premium on dishonesty."

It was a sad commentary on their administration that the first circular issued by the Department of Customs under the new regime was to instruct its officers that the law was again the law, and was to be enforced.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier got into a rather amusing controversy with Mr. Borden on the question: "When is a joint not a joint?" (jointed lumber is dutiable). He contended that the Government's reading of the law would allow the rich man's cabinet work to come in free, but taxed the poor settler's lumber.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden said that the Opposition leader's remarks on the subject of jointing were rather disjointed. There was no difference made between the rich and the poor man. Jointing capable of being used could be made by a fine saw such as was used by the American lumberman to evade the customs law.

Hon. Frank Oliver claimed that the British Columbia lumbermen had come down to Ottawa to demand the price of their adhesion to the Conservative cause in the elections, and the Minister of Customs had delivered the goods.

The milling industry in British Columbia, he said, was "atrociously overcapitalized" and the prairie settler was being bled to pay the interest on the watered stock.

Kind to Fire Chief.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 24.—Not only did the police commission increase the salaries of Chief Kimmins and his men at the annual meeting, but they also increased the vacation period from ten days to two weeks. The chief was heartily commended for his excellent force.

David Nolan, aged 40, one of the best known volunteer firemen on the frontier, and father-in-law of Franklin Maddever, managing editor of The Gazette, died at his home here yesterday.

NOBLE PRIZE FOR ENDEAVOR UNION

Boston, Jan. 24.—The World's Christian Endeavor Union has been proposed by Congressman S. W. McCall of the eighth Massachusetts district for the Nobel Peace Prize, in recognition of the services of the organization in the interest of world peace, according to an announcement made at the headquarters here last night.

The proposal has been seconded by prominent persons in many lands, including the president of the Norwegian Parliament, the chief justice of that kingdom, the highest general in the Norwegian army, and the Norwegian Postmaster-General, says the announcement.

Object to Measured 'Phone Rates.

Winnipeg, Jan. 24.—On motion of Ald. Davidson, a joint meeting of the Board of Control and City Council yesterday morning unanimously carried the following resolution:

"That the City Council protests against the proposed new telephone rates and that the mayor be instructed to draw up a petition to be laid on the table for signatures by citizens."

Controller Douglass commented that "Leaving politics out of the plan altogether, there is undoubtedly very strong feeling in the city against the measured rate system, and the council should take action in the matter."

Farmer Ended His Life.

Chatham, Jan. 24.—Patrick Laguile, aged 40 years, suicided in a barn at the rear of his home in Edgar street last night, firing a 23 calibre revolver into his mouth. Worry over a payment on a farm he had bought is supposed to have led to the deed. Laguile was a hard working citizen and a teetotaler. He leaves a widow and a family of five children. He borrowed the revolver from a neighbor, saying his brother wanted the use of it.

FOUR COACHES LEAVE TRACK

Kingston, Jan. 24.—Passengers on the Bay of Quinte Railway train at Yarker, 20 miles from Kingston, had a thrilling experience and a very narrow escape when four coaches ran off the track at a curve. A spreading rail is given as the cause of the accident.

Just where the accident occurred there is a 20 foot embankment, due to excavation work going on for the Canadian Northern Railway. Luckily the coaches stopped when within a few feet of the embankment, thus saving what would have resulted in a terrible catastrophe.

TO EXTEND LONG BRANCH RANGE

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—The Militia Department will expropriate 60 acres of the Cawthra estate near Long Branch.

This property is immediately west of the rifle ranges, and on it it has been suggested to construct butts for forty new targets for the 100, 200 and 300 yard ranges, in which case the 500 and 600 yard ranges will be extended to the end of the present 200-yard range, with twenty additional targets. Twenty targets at 1,000 yards may be placed on the property to the east already held by the Government.

APPROVE THE COURSE TAKEN

Ottawa Ministers Favor Premier Borden's Stand—Sir Wilfrid and the Church

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—Ottawa ministers unanimously approve Premier Borden's course of immediate reference to the courts of the marriage law question. It is the subject of general comment that no member of the Opposition ventured to criticize the Ne Temere, and all the Opposition voted against the only two courses possible, Mr. Lancaster's and Premier Borden's, both of which were adopted, in reference to the courts. Sir Wilfrid's Laurier assertion that the decree has no reference to civil life is taken to mean that he is prepared to do practically what the church wants.

APPOINTMENT OF THE TARIFF BOARD

Important Legislation Is Preceded by a Resolution Declaring That a Committee of Three Men Should Be Named to Inquire Into Duties—Chairman Will Get $7,500, His Colleagues $7,000 and Secretary $3,000.

Ottawa, Jan. 24—Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, has given notice of the Government resolution providing for the appointment of a tariff commission and defining its cope and powers. The resolution is as follows:

"Resolved, that it is expedient to provide for a tariff commission consisting of three members, to be appointed by the governor-in-council, whose duty it shall be

"(1)—To make, under the direction of the Minister of Finance, in respect of any goods produced in or imported into Canada, enquiry as to

"(a)—The price and cost of raw materials in Canada and elsewhere. and the cost of transportation thereof from the place of production to the place of use or consumption;

"(b)—The cost of production in Canada and elsewhere;

"(c)—The cost of transportation from the place of production to the place of use or consumption, whether in Canada or elsewhere;

"(d)—The cost, efficiency and conditions of labor in Canada and elsewhere;

"(e)—The prices received by producers, manufacturers, wholesale dealers, retailers and other distributors in Canada and elsewhere;

"(f)—All conditions and factors which effect or enter into the cost of production and the price to the consumers in Canada;

"(g)—Generally all the conditions affecting production, manufacture, cost and price in Canada as compared with other countries, and to report to the Minister.

"2.—To make enquiry into any other matter upon which the Minister desires information, in relation to any goods which, if brought into Canada or produced in Canada are subject to or exempt from duties of customs, and to report to the Ministers.

"3.—To hold, when empowered by the governor-in-council, an enquiry under section 12 of the Customs Tariff, 1907, in the same manner as the judge of the Exchequer Court, or any other judge therein referred to may hold enquiry when so empowered.

"4—To enquire into any other matter or thing in relation to the trade or commerce of Canada which the governor-in-council sees fit to refer to the commission for enquiry and report."

Telephone Company Next.

New York, Jan. 24.—A petition to dissolve the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., on the ground that it is a monopoly in violation of the provisions of the Sherman law was made public here yesterday, a few hours in advance of its presentation to U. S. Attorney-General Wickersham, in Washington.

According to the petition, the Americon Telephone & Telegraph Co. which controls the Western Union Telegraph Co., and eight subsidiary telephones companies in various parts of the United States, is one of the largest financial concerns in the world, having a capital of nearly $1,000,000,000, and it now dominates the telephone business of the country.

Two other foreign laborers were injured, one seriously.

The men were drilling in a rock cut when the drill struck a charge of dynamite which had missed fire in a previous blast and an explosion resulted. It is expected that the other two men will recover.

Y.M.C.A. MUST RAISE $205,000

London, Jan. 24.—This is the last day of the twelve set apart for raising the sum of $500,000 for the new Young Men's Christian Association building in London. Charles S. Ward of New York. the organizer, who undertook to collect the amount in the whirlwind system used in Canada and the United States, has yet to obtain just over $200,000 in order to make good his endeavor.

Mr. Ward attributes the lack of full success in the campaign to misunderstanding of the purposes of the institution and to prejudices engendered by the narrow-mindedness which surrounded the former headquarters of the Y.M.C.A. at Exeter Hall.

Among yesterday's contributions was one of $7,500 "on condition that billiard tables be installed." This was accepted.

A right of way has been secured to Port Dover and will be considered in detail by the Railway Commission on Saturday next.

PREMIER IS IN DANGER

Yuan Shi Kai Is Liable to Assassination Any Moment.

The Murder of the Manchu Government's Chief Adviser Is Being Urged by Hot-Heads In Reactionary Ranks—Younger Princes Not Pleased With Yuan's Advice to Await Attack of the Rebels.

Pekin, Jan. 24.—The advice of Yuan Shi Kai to await an attack by the rebels is distasteful to the younger princes, whose talk of war is alarming Pekin.

It is persistently reported that Tien-Liang, the former Tartar general at Nanking, who is largely responsible for the reaction, advocates the killing of Yuan Shi Kai, whose influence, he thinks, is so great that he should not be permitted to leave the capital. Yuan Shi Kai evidently forsees the possibility of an attack upon him and is adopting extreme precautions. Another 1,000 Chinese troops of the Imperial army from Paotingfu, in the Province of Chili, arrived here last evening, making Yuan Shi Kai's force of Chinese 4,000. Against these there are 12,000 Manchu troops of the Imperial army, who, it is suspected, are being incited against Yuan Shi Kai.

It is difficult to believe, however, that even the more hot-headed princes will countenance Yuan Shi Kai's assassination, which would assuredly entail the extinction of the claims, as the majority of the northern troops are loyal only to Yuan Shi Kai.

Yuan Shi Kai yesterday authorized The Canadian Press to make the following statement regarding his position:

He is inspired primarily by the desire to serve the best interests of the Chinese people, and not the interests of either the Republicans or Monarchists. That time will prove. He is seeking not selfish ends and hopes to continue in office as Premier long enough to cause a proper election of members of the National Assembly, or otherwise ascertain the correct view of the majority of the people. As, however, a general election seems difficult to accomplish considering the attitude of the Republican leaders, he desires to bring about peace and some form of substantial government as quickly as possible. He would be willing to resign and deliver the control of the Government to any capable man who would, and could, find a solution to the best interests of China. Certain foreign legations had urged him or expressed the hope that he would continue in office. stating that they had confidence in his administration.

TOLL ROAD TOO COSTLY

Brockville, Jan. 24.—The board of arbitration appointed last June to consider the purchase of the Brockville-Prescott toll road of twelve miles, held its final session yesterday. All the members were present, viz.: Judge McDonald, chairman; William Clarke Cardinal, representing the road company, and James White, Lords Mills, representing the counties council.

With Mr. White dissenting, the purchase price has been fixed at $17,321. The costs amounted to $87,530. The matter will now come before the counties council for consideration, but from what can be learned on the outside, it is hardly likely that the council will purchase the road on account of the price being too high.

GERMAN LOANS NOT RENEWED

Berlin, Jan. 24.—Despatches from New York, stating that the German banks had renewed the loans, amounting to $75,000,000, placed in New York, are described by bankers here as being incorrect. The bankers point out that the exchange rate having turned in Germany's favor, they have repaid large amounts borrowed in dollars, because it was profitable to repay at the present rate, and also that large amounts borrowed in marks have been notified for payment January 31. The bankers estimate that the remnant of American loans then remaining to Germany will amount to 75,000,000 marks at the maximum, about $18,000,000.

ABOUT TWO THOUSAND DELEGATES FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

Expected to Attend the International Farming Convention.

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—C. A. Magrath of the International Waterways Commission and W. A. Buchanan, M.P. for Lethbridge, yesterday entertained at luncheon the delegates who are here to secure a grant from the Federal Government towards the expenses of the international farming convention. The secretary, J. T. Burns, gave an interesting talk on the convention, which is proposed. About two thousand delegates are expected from all parts of the world.

Mr. Burns referred to dry farming as a world-wide subject of importance in that 55 per cent. of the earth's surface is operative only by that method. Eighty million acres of good tillable land still lies waiting for the plow in the dry farming districts of the west.

It is believed that the convention will not only be a decided stimulus to the particular movement, but also a large factor in the promotion of immigration to Canada.

Railway Strikebreakers Strike.

Houston, Texas, Jan. 24.—So-called strikebreakers, said to number 150, employed on the Harriman line here, walked out shortly after noon yesterday. They declared they had declined to assent to a charge of fifty cents per day for meals beginning Monday. It is said the company had been giving them free board since the inauguration of the strike here Oct. 19.

LIVE STOCK WAS BURNED

Chatham, Jan. 24.—Early yesterday morning the large barn and frame horse stable on the farm of Dan Gray, between the 7th and 8th concession, Harwich, were set on fire and both burned to the ground. Nine head of cattle were burned to death.

A quantity of tobacco which Mr. Gray had recently baled up, along with hay, grain and farm implements was destroyed. The animals burned were five milch cows and four head of younger cattle.

REPORT ON NE TEMERE DECREE TABLED IN THE COMMONS

Ottawa, Jan. 24.—The Premier tabled in the Commons yesterday afternoon, the opinion of the eminent counsel, which he mentioned the night before as endorsing the proposed action of the Government in regard to the marriage law. It is the opinion of J. F. Hellmuth, K.C., of Toronto, and is as follows:

"The following questions have been submitted to me:

"1. Has the Parliament of Canada legislative competence to enact bill No. 3 (being an act to amend the marriage act)?

"2. Has the Parliament of Canada power to validate a marriage which has not been solemnized in accordance with the formalities or before the person prescribed by the law of the province?

"3. If the law of any province requires that the marriage of two Catholics, in order to be valid, must be celebrated before the parish priest or before a Catholic priest, has the Parliament of Canada power to declare that such marriage, although solemnized before some other clergyman or officer, shall be valid notwithstanding the law of the province?"

"In my opinion the answer to each of the above named questions should be 'No.'"

Skull Fractured In Cave-In.

Arthur, Ont., Jan. 24.—James Jamison, farmer, along with others was removing gravel from a pit in West Luther, when a cave-in happened, burying him beneath about two tons of frozen earth. Although he was removed in about five minutes and still alive, he expired shortly afterwards.

Chest Inflammation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing.

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh racking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

Nerviline CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica, and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large bottles, 50c, trial size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

NATIVES ARE LOYAL

Stories have appeared in the yellow press from time to time that India was full of sedition and that all that was needed was for some little incident to occur to cause widespread rebellion. The visit of the King and Queen and the loyal reception they received everywhere, should put an end to these stories, and should also relieve the British government which has been anxious on more than one occasion, when these canards would appear. There are no doubt, some fanatics in India who would like to see British rule destroyed, but the mass of the natives are intensely loyal and good British subjects. The visit of the King and Queen has won the hearts of the natives.

THE NE TEMERE DECREE

The Borden Government has taken a proper stand in regard to the Lancaster bill dealing with the Ne Temere decree. A stated case will be prepared for the supreme court and the Privy Council, and those bodies will settle forever the question of the relative powers of the Dominion parliament and the provincial legislatures respecting the regulation of marriage. A somewhat awkward situation was created for the government by Mr. Lancaster's bill, but the Premier handled the affair in such a manner that leaves little doubt in the minds of people generally, that the best course has been adopted.

The essence of the bill as prepared by Mr. Lancaster is as follows—"That any marriage contracted anywhere in Canada is legal and valid notwithstanding any ecclesiastical law to the contrary in the province where the marriage is contracted; also that the issue of such a marriage is legitimate."

It is perhaps unnecessary to point out that this legislation is superfluous as applied to any Canadian province, but Quebec.

Mr. Lancaster assumes that the Dominion parliament has, however, to regulate the marriage laws and that the provinces have no authority in the matter. This may be right, but many eminent legal authorities, including Edward Blake, Sir Allen Aylesworth and the present Minister of Justice, Hon. Mr. Doherty, think otherwise. They maintain that the marriage question comes under the jurisdiction of the provincial legislatures. If their view is correct, then Parliament should not be asked to pass the Lancaster Bill, as it would be exceeding its constitutional poewrs. To pass the bill and decide on its constitutionality later, as urged by Mr. Lancaster, would only have led to a troublesome situation later on if it was found to be unconstitutional.

The suggestion of Mr. Northrop that the Vatican be asked to withdraw the Ne Temere decree from operation in Canada is one that the government might act upon, while awaiting the decision of the Privy Council

EDITORIAL NOTES

Citizens generally will approve of the increase in salary to the local police officers. The force has done good work and well deserve the extra remuneration.

The careless smoker is going to get his bumps in New York. Thirty-five thousand placards reading: "Smoking prohibited on these premises, under penalty of the law," are being posted in places of business in New York by the fire commissioners.

The strike of cotton workers in England has been settled. At least a truce has been entered into for a year, and this will no doubt lead to a settlement of the difficulty. Both the workers and the mill owners lost heavily in the strike and were willing to make concessions to bring the affair to an end.

Two great battleships are being built this year by the United States to cost in the neighborhood of $13,000,000, and the fact is pointed out by the New York Post that these vessels may be out of date before they are ever launched, so rapid is the strides in modern naval construction. The career of a battleship in the first class division is not long lived these days.

Italian officers have been convicted of graft in connection with bad food supplied to the army for use of the soldiers fighting in Tripoli. No treatment could be more drastic for these men who hold positions of trust and honor. Then think of the untold suffering and the deaths that are likely to follow the eating of this impure good by the soldiers who are upholding the glory of their native land on the field of battle. Nearly every nation has had a similar experience and the punishment should be made so severe that it would act as a warning to other such miserable specimens of humanity.

NEW BRUNSWICK HEARD FROM AGAIN

Another Splendid Cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr Ben Gauvang had Backache so bad he had to quit work—Dodd's Kidney Pills fixed him up

Puellering Settlement, Kent Co., N. B.—Jan 23.—(Special)—Every corner of New Brunswick tells of cures made by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and this settlement can contribute its share. Mr. Ben. Gauvang is one man who without hesitation states that he owes his good health to the great Canadian Kidney remedy.

"Yes, Dodd's Kidney Pills certainly did me good," Mr. Gauvang says in an interview. "Before I started taking them my back ached so that I had to be careful how I walked and moved about. I took nine boxes, all told, and they fixed me up. They are the best medicine for all diseases of the kidneys."

Against Hypocrisy

Woodstock Sentinel.

Freedom from divorce does not necessarily imply freedom from immorality. We are all shocked by the lists of divorce cases in the American papers; but we calmly accept conditions that would probably be as shocking if they were as publicly exposed. This is not an argument in favor of divorce, but against smug hypocrisy.

Eng'ish and American Justice

Boston Transcript

With a population of 7,000,000, London had but nineteen cases of murder during the past year, according to the report of Hon. Charles A. de Courcy chairman of the committee on criminal law, American Prison association. Five of the murderers committed suicide and four were never apprehended. The others were either convicted and executed or committed to the insane asylum. In Chicago, during the same period, 202 homicides were committed. Only one of the offenders was hanged, fifteen were sent to the penitentiary and the others were exonerated by the grand jury, acquitted, discharged or otherwise set free.

Latest Quotations in Grain Dairy Products, Live Stock Etc.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 23.—There was a decided improvement in the demand for Manitoba spring wheat from the continent, there being orders in the market for round lots for nearby shipment, but owing to the scarcity of ocean freight the volume of business was checked. Cables from London were strong at an advance of 1½d to 3d, while Liverpool advices were easier and 1½c lower. The foreign demand for oats for May-June shipment was good, and further sales of 100,000 bushels were made. The local demand is good for spot supplies, of which the offerings are small and buyers are paying a premium of ¼c to ½c for prompt delivery. The demand for American corn continues good and further sales of fifteen cars were made. The export trade in flour was quiet, but the local demand is fairly good, and the undertone to the market for winter wheat grades is stronger. Supplies of bran and shorts are light, for which the demand is good. The butter situation is stronger and prices have advanced 1c to 1½c per pound under a good demand, and it is reported that sales were made to New York. Cheese is quiet but firm. Demand for eggs good. The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

"Sit down," I said, precisely as if he hadn't tried his best to murder me but a minute before.

He moved slowly—fearfully—toward the chair, and sank into it. His head was dropped forward, his shoulders were bowed, and the fingers were no longer restless. All the man's defences were at last down.

"Now, then,' Burke," I went on calmly, "I suppose we are ready to get down to business?"

He muttered inaudibly ,without raising his head.

"What's that?"—sharply.

"You devil!" he whispered.

"Yes, yes, I know. I've heard that from you before. I don't care to hear it again." I advanced and stood threateningly over him.

"Look at me," I sternly commanded.

Slowly he raised his head until his eyes met mine. The pallid mask was pinched, and it wore a look of torment.

"Once for all, Burke, are you going to speak?" I suppose the quietness with which I uttered it was ominous to the wretch. "Or will I be obliged to drag you to that cell of which I spoke?"

With a quick gesture, he outspread his arms.

"Enough, Swift, enough!" he cried, in a hoarse, distressed voice. "I know when I'm beaten; I'll give up. What do you want?"

"Good," without alteration of tone or manner. "Let's go to a pleasanter place." And we went into the Captain's private room, where a stenographer sat concealed by a screen.

Burke dropped into a chair. I thrust my hands into my coat pockets, and as I slowly paced to and fro, addressed him.

"I'll tell my story. When I'm wrong you may correct me. See that you do it, too, because you won't know when I'm testing you or when I am really ignorant of the facts. You see how much I trust you, Mr. Burke.

"To begin at the beginning, your first treacherous act toward your employer was when you determined to steal the Paternoster ruby, and started in to hunt for it. You had your work all cut out for you, too, Burke; Felix Page was no fool; he wouldn't trust the safekeeping of so valuable an object even to his confidential clerk, nor could that clerk search for it with impunity.

"You've been gifted with the same brand of patience, though, Burke, that keeps a cat glued to a rat-hole for hours upon end; you bided your time. And you never let an opportunity slip by you, either.

"Felix Page was in the habit of talking to himself—a trait not uncommon to people who live much to themselves—so you oiled the door-hinges in order that you might steal upon him undetected, from any part of the house, and listen to his self-communings. No wonder, when you talked with me, that you were fearful of the curtained alcove!

"But I'll be brief. By and by you learned of the hidden safe; then—still with infinite patience—you set about trying to discover its combination. You succeeded."

I halted abruptly in front of him.

"Burke, the opening of that safe door was a revelation; it offered new possibilities which must have overwhelmed you. What did you think when your eyes first fell upon those old love mementos from Clara Cooper to Felix Page? Don't look astonished so soon; wait till I'm done. I'll have no difficulty convincing you that my case against you is pretty complete.

"But your find was extremely aggravating, for you were afraid to make use of it. Without doubt, Alfred Fluette would give a pretty penny to get them from Felix Page. But you lacked sand to brave Page's wrath.

"Then what did you do?" I paused to eye him a moment. "Why, you went down to Merton and dug up all the old family skeletons. Now you were surer of your ground; you were ready to levy tribute—blackmail—not from Page, though, because he would have promptly kicked you out—but again your nerve failed you. That's where you have fallen down, Burke, all the way through. You carried a letter or two to Fluette to prove your claims; then, before their loss was discovered, you brought them back again, and replaced them in the safe. Oh, old man, in his lifetime, inspired a wholesome fear of him in your soul."

Then, circumstantially, I detailed as a statement of the case, my reconstruction of the tragic night, concluding with his hiding the ruby in the bar of soap. At this point I suddenly wheeled upon him, and asked pointblank:

"Tell me what you were doing in Mr. Page's bedroom Friday night, and what it was that surprised you there?"

He stared at me in amazement. He had been, whilst I was talking, slowly regaining his self-possession—crawling into himself, as it were, and pulling down the blinds; and now, when he spoke, it was with something of his old manner.

"Swift, the biggest blunder was in underestimating your intelligence. I thought I could play hob with you; but I was a fool." His face gave me a certain impression of slyness, which I didn't at all like.

"Careful, now," I sharply warned.

He sat silent for a moment, then spoke.

"I'm not taking any more chances, Swift; don't worry. . . . What was I doing Friday night? I was hunting for the ruby."

He raised a protesting hand.

"Let me finish. Friday was the first time since Mr. Page's death that I have managed to shake off the man who has been following me. When I became convinced that I really had succeeded in doing so, I stayed under cover until nightfall; then—well, you yourself have said that I'm an opportunist. I didn't know the cake of soap had been removed from the bath room; when I discovered it was not there I supposed you had found the ruby's hiding place, and that you had concealed it elsewhere. I was trying to find it, when—when somebody came in."

"One of the Japanese," I supplied.

"They're not Japanese," he corrected, with a provoking air of superior knowledge. "They are Burmese."

"Whatever they are, you have been playing them and Fluette against each other. Burke, I suppose you can't help lying; it comes easier for you than telling the truth. You know that those fellows managed to steal the bar of soap—"

"While you were watching it," he interpolated.

"—and," I went on, ignoring the thrust, "they notified you and Fluette of the fact Friday morning."

"Ye[illegible]" he said slowly, after a pause, "th[illegible] us they had secured the bar of s[illegible]"

"If that's so," I fixed him with a level look, "why did the intelligence floor you so?"

"You draw your conclusions so admirably that you ought to be able to supply the answer to that question yourself."

"I'm not here for that purpose,"—curtly. "Come, speak up."

He sat for a long while silent; then,—

"Well," said he, "it would come as a shock to any man to be bluntly told that he had just been deprived of a fortune. Mr. Fluette, confident that he was within a step of securing the stone, blamed me with being the cause of his disappointment."

The fellow's demeanor angered me beyond endurance.

"Burke," I cried heatedly, "do you think you can make me believe that a man of Alfred Fluette's calibre would purchase the Paternoster ruby from you, knowing that it was not yours to sell? Bah!" I was filled with disgust.

"Ah, Swift, Swift," the rogue said, complacently wagging his head at me, "there are some things of which even you are ignorant.

"Here is one of them—listen: the Paternoster ruby was no more Felix Page's than it is yours or mine. It is the property of the King of Burmah; it was stolen from him years ago, and the Burmese nobleman who is at present in this country with his retinue—"

"Tshen-byo-yen," I said quietly, and had the satisfaction of beholding Mr. Burke favor me with a startled glance.

"Yes," he pursued, with considerably less assurance, "that's his name."

"And one of the 'retinue,' as you are pleased to call his gang of thugs, is that hideous, misshapen monster that shrieks like a ghoul. I suppose that he too was hunting for the ruby Friday night—after having stolen it the night before." My sarcasm failed to touch Burke. He shuddered, saying:

"The dwarf? He's a mute—Tshen's slave. Tongue's been torn out. And—truly—believe me; you may easily verify what I say—Tshen is the properly accredited representative of the King of Burma, invested with full power and authority to dispose of the stone. Does the fact that it was stolen from his royal master—that it has for some years been out of the king's possession—in any way lessen or invalidate his right to it? Surely you would not dispute that?"

"I don't propose debating the matter with you." And then I pointed out: "If his claim is good, there are the courts."

Burke's shoulders twitched in a tiny shrug.

"Who can fathom the Oriental mind?" said he, oracularly.

I swung on my heel squarely away from him; I had no more patience for such shuffling with words.

"You come with me," I said curtly; "I'll at least get you straight on the police docket—since you seem to prefer it to frankness."

He was out of his chair like a flash.

"No—no—no, Swift!" he implored. "I swear I'm telling the truth. Not that!—not that!" He hesitated a second.

"It wasn't the ruby that was in the bar of soap"—the words literally dragged themselves from his lips. "I thought it was. But it was only the paste imitation."

CHAPTER XXIV.

Confession

I stared at Burke in speechless amazement. The tremendous possibilities opened up by this revelation left me bewildered. But the wave of joy which suddenly swept over me was unmistakable.

"Then, how—" I began, and stopped.

If I could not understand, it was only too clear that Burke could not tell me what I wanted to know; for it was also plain that he too was utterly at a loss to account for the circumstance. This, then, had been the intelligence imparted by the Burman on Friday morning, which had so upset Fluette and Burke.

But, again, why in the first place should Burke have informed the Burmese of the supposed gem's hiding-place? And how could it have been the replica instead of the real stone? The whole thing was fraught with many perplexities; something here, which I could not seize upon, flaunted itself in obscurity, and if I wanted to learn more from Burke it would not do for him to discover how far I was at sea. Was it possible that he still fostered the hope of getting his fingers upon the real gem?

"Burke," I said, "just how did you come to put the gem—or the paste replica—in the soap?"

SAWMILL AT LAKEFIELD DESTROYED

Indications Lead to Belief That Building Was Fired

Lakefield was aroused in the late hours of last night to find that the large sawmill owned by Leaman & Company, was being quickly consumed by flames. In spite of the efforts made to save it, the wooden building was totally destroyed and the machinery ruined.

The mill, which formerly belonged to Tate and Lillicrap, has not been working for some months, so that the tracks of snowshoes leading up to both entrances of the building are causing some suspicions that this is a case of intentional, perhaps malicious, destruction of property. Also it was observed that the building started to burn in two places, whhich ,of course, adds to the likelihood of such a case. The mill is on the lake shore and well out of the village ,so that it was impossible that any passerby could have ignited it by a carelessly thrown match. Nothing ,however, has as yet been ascertained to be for certain the cause of the conflagration.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

THEATRICAL

"MARKS BROS."

A rather superior attraction to the majority of stock company performances, was presented to another crowded house at the Grand last evening by Marks Bros., when the comedy drama "Sylvia's Romance," was very ably executed, with plenty of snap and life dominating the play throughout. The characters for the somewhat unique sketch were creditably portrayed, and the acting was on a higher scale, and marked by a degree of cleverness, often lacking in one night companies touring the country. The story of the play is a very charming one, and at various stages in replete with lighter veined pathos and humor.

The vaudeville specialties were excellent and the acrobatic work of the Sours was heartily applauded.

To-night they present the famous drama "Master Man," which will conclude their engagement here. The Company visits Kingston next.

ANOTHER CAMPAIGN AND VOTE IN INTERESTS OF LOCAL OPTION HERE

Big Meeting of Temperance People Decide to Make Second Attempt—Public Meeting to be Arranged for.

Peterborough city is to be the battle ground for another campaign and vote in the interests of the local option. This was decided at a meeting of the City Church and Temperance League at the Y.M.C.A. last night, when the meeting was the most enthusiastic and representative in the history of the league.

The decision was a unanimous one and was reached after a lengthy discussion had ensued with every representative taking part. All church organizations were represented.

The following resolution was moved by Messrs. Jos. Ballen and D. D. C. Dawe and passed;—

"That this meeting of the City Church and Temperance League recommend that a local option campaign be inaugurated with the voting to take place next January and in order that the citizens of Peterborough can discuss the matter, a public meeting be held at an early date and that the league arrange for the same."

This meeting is apart from the field day of the Dominion Alliance,throughout the city and county next Sunday and Monday. It will be held at a later date.

Y.W.C.A. ROOMS WELL PATRONIZED

Many Business Girls Take Advantage of the Benefits

The new Y.W.C.A. rooms, opened three weeks ago at 133 Rubidge street, are proving to be as popular as was anticipated by the Association.

During each noon hour the lunch room is filled with business girls, principally from the C.G.E. works, who seem to appreciate the bright, pleasant rooms. There is found time during the hour for a story or game, or it may be a rest on one of the couches.

The reading room tables are filled with new magazines and papers, which are also much used during the hour.

On Saturday afternoon a sleigh-ride party was enjoyed, the girls returning to the house for supper and a social hour. The house is open and free for all employed girls. A cordial invitation is extended for all such girls to use the rooms freely at the noon hour and in the evening.

DISCUSSION ON LANCASTER BILL

Mr. Burnham's Speech on the Ne Temere Decree—Church and State

Ottawa, Jan. 24—The speech of J. H. Burnham, M.P., during the discussion of the Lancaster bill, regarding the Ne Temere decree, in the House of Commons was as follows—

I have listened with a great deal of interest to the remarks of the honorable members of the opposition on this bill. They took great care, in the early stages of this trouble, to avoid knowing anything about it and in a very remarkable manner, until it has become coincident. The most absolute silence. For my part I know that I am too young a member to make any mistake, when I apologize most humbly for venturing any remarks in this debate. but I cannot help pointing out that we have two statements before the House and two courses proposed.

The Hon. member for Lincoln (Mr. Lancaster) has given us a concrete proposition embodied in his bill. I would say let that go, send it to fountain head so that we may see whether it is ultra or infra vires. but must say that I have been most profoundly impressed by the statesman-like and candid utterance of the Right Honorable, the Leader of the Government. He has laid down the broad general principle that underlies the supremacy of the State. He has shown that the Church cannot override the State. To my mind that is broad enough to repel any ecclesiastical decree enactment, or laws of any description about whatever. He has also said, as I understood him that the civil law alone validates marriage and that no church can be recognized as supreme on that question. What could be more explicit, what more likely to quiet the agitation in this country than this doctrine laid down by the great statesman at the head of this Government. There is no uncertain sound about it; why then, should we not fall in with that view, and endorse the proposition to send a case to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council for the determination of the federal authorities. To reject the proposition of the Right Honorable, the Leader of the Government, would be to cast aside the greatest opportunity we have ever had of settling for all time the difference between Church and State. Of that I am convinced. It seems to me that never has there arisen such a magnificent opportunity for the settlement of this great question. How can it be settled except either by an infinite multitude of enactments or by a statement of a general and conclusive character which will finally establish the general principles. It can not be settled in any other way, but in order that we may exhaust all the remedies under our control I would suggest that the bill of the hon. member for Lincoln (Mr. Lancaster) also be sent and submitted to the Privy Council, because you can never tell when lawyer get into what conclusion an duncertainty will result. Therefore, for my part, I am prepared to endorse both positions.

COBOURG INTERMEDIATE CAME BACK STRONG AND BEAT OSHAWA

Cobourg intermediates won at home last night, defeating Oshawa 4—3. The visitors lead at the half by 2—1 and and made it 3—1 after play was resumed. Cobourg, however, made a strong finish. The result ties up the district and the play-off will probably be seen at Port Hope.

Ben Dusty is on the lineup of a Toronto team, which is looking for games with other local professional aggregations.

Collingwood intermediates beat Midland in Collingwood and administered another does last night to Eddie Gould's team on the home rink. The score was 8—6.

Trenton juniors put it over Belleville by 7—3 and look good for the district. With Trenton winning out they will be the next contract for the local youngsters.

Peter Spratt, the rushing cover of the Lindsay intermediates, was in town yesterday and witnessed the game last night.

In the second game of the Y.M.C.A junior hockey league the Canadians defeated the Capitals by 6—2. The half-time score was 2—2. J. J. Thompson was referee.

For the return game with Trenton to-morrow, the locals leave on the 1.40 p.m. G.T.R. train There is no special;

LOCALS PILED UP ANOTHER BIG SCORE AGAINST TRENTON

Petes Had Easy Time in Securing Seventeen Tallies, Although Not at Their Best—Half-time Score Was 6-2.

The team that is bulging the netting, and taking the games without luck, is the team that on home ice or foreign is handling and passing the puck. The boys of the old school of puckdom who've scored goals while bottles they'd duck, will tall you that these were the moments when they were all passing the puck. For in hogging, the player, quite often for a mark from the boards he is stuck, and the rest of his team takes to beefing because he's not passing the puck There are times when a lone rush comes handy as a run on a fake rugby buck. Yet there's nothing so pretty to fandom as the line that is passing the puck.

Captain Park and his team didn't have to work very hard to land first honors in their game with Trenton last night as with frequent let-ups, the visitors were taken into camp with a 17—2 score, the half-way figures reading 6—2. It was Peterborough all the way and the going was rather easy, the Trenton seven just giving enough opposition to make the contest interesting to the big crowd that almost filled the rink. It would appear from the attendances to date that Peterborough fans are affected with a very bad case of puckilitis. The visitors had not been overloaded with glowing advance notices and a Peterborough win was expected by about the same score as the result shows. It is of some assistance to the players to know that their efforts are appreciated and the future looks bright.

There are some features about the game that greatly pleased the fans and one of these was the all round good work of Jerry Coughlin in which was contributed some of the niftiest stick handling and shooting ever seen on a local ice space. His work along the boards was never better. He combined effectively at times with Park and Kelley, and he was always prominent last night.

VISITORS WEAKENED.

Trenton didn't have the team of last season. Croft, whose rushes were always so conspicuous, one of them sending the Peterborough team to join the down and out brigades, when the play-off at Belleville took place, was among the missing, owing it is said, to trouble with Lawson Whitehead, the coach of the club. Another absentee was young Fletcher, who worked the middle ice last season. The holes were filled, but not by players of the same calibre. Art Armstrong roamed about at rover and was the strongest man of the bunch. He tried harder in the second-half, but the proposition was too big.

While Pringle in goal had seventeen counters against him, he stopped double that number, and he would have had to face a larger count had the locals dished up their real brand of team work. There was too much of the individual assortment and also some careless play. It was a great opportunity to get in some combination practice, but for the most part, the line did not respond to the occasion.

The speedy shooting of Kelly was another feature. He took the third score on a side shot about centre ice and which was probably the best tally of the night. Giroux played a clever game and was always pegging away.

Park was always around into mischief, as the scoring summary shows. Percy Bond tried hard to land the puck behind Pringle for his first score of the season, and it looked in the second half as though he had succeeded. It was not to be, however, for while he worked overtime in a scrimmage in front of the Trenton goaltender, the necessary movement was not forthcoming. Both he and Bearrs played the game on the defence and with Derocher again at his best, the task of invading was a hopeless one for the enemy. They had some good chances, but passed them up on wild shooting. Both Derocher and Pringle stopped the puck on the face and as a result have lovely souveniers.

Looking at the work of the two teams, the locals should win in Trenton Thursday night, and then it is on to Lindsay for the following Tuesday.

UNDERTAKER WON ANOTHER RACE

Barrett Fined $50 for Slowing up His Horse

Ottawa, Jan. 24— Excellent heats again characterized the events at the Hull ice races to-day. After six great races, "The Undertaker," owned by Charlie Barrett of Parkhill, won the 2.25 trot and pace, Nataprime, an added starter, being second, and Topaz Wine, third.

In the 2.22 trot stake first money went to New Wilkes, owned by W. Collins of Sunderland, Ont., he winning the third, fourth and fifth heats after Wick Brino and Black Cat had each taken one. In the fourth heat Wick Brino and Lesa Vale collided drivers Dan McEwen and Russ McGirr both having narrow escapes. Wick Brino, passed over McGirr, who got up with a few bruises. McEwen succeeding in holding Wick Brino. but Lesa Vale escaped and trotted a mile before being caught in sensational style by McGirr. The latter, although badly shaken up, threw himself at Lesa Vale, caught the reins and brought her to a standstill uninjured after being drawn 50 yards. Lesa Vale was not hurt but her sulky was wrecked. McEwen said it was one of the worst collisions he had ever been in. The judges ruled that the accident, however, was unavoidable, and both horses were allowed to start again. Driver Barrett was fined $50 for laying up in the fifth heat with the Undertaker. The track was slower than usual, owing to a light fall of snow.

THIRTY RINKS IN BIG BONSPIEL

Great Interest in Competition for Grand Challenge Cup

The annual Peterborough Bonspiel opened this morning at ten o'clock in the curling rink and the games have been in progress throughout the day. The rinks engaged in the Bonspiel are competing for the Grand Challenge Cup, which was won by Mr. G. H. Giroux's rink last year. There are fifteen outside rinks from Norwood, Oshawa, Claremont, Lindsay, Port Hope, Cobourg, Hastings and Keene, and fifteen local rinks. This makes thirty rinks that play off for the cup and various prizes. The Bonspiel games will be continued to-night and until the winners are decided. Much interest is being shown in the Bonspiel matches this year, and there promises to be some keen competition before the cup is carried off.

OMEMEE NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, Jan. 22.—On Thursday the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jamieson was made happy by the advent of a bright baby daughter.

The Farmers' and Woman's Institutes held very successful meetings on Friday. In the afternoon Miss Hotson addressed an assemblage of ladies in the council chamber. At night a joint meeting commenced in the Auditorium of Convocation Hall. Reeve of Emily, Isaac H. Fee, occupied the chair in a very agreeable and able manner. Miss Hotson addressed the large audience on matters of education. Her address was of a high order and much appreciated. Rev. Robert Burns, who was on the platform, made a spicey little speech. Mr. Barber spoke with much authority and a great deal of literary humor on subjects of importance to the Ontario agriculturist. These speeches were punctuated with a couple of high class vocal selections Mrs. A. C. Hodgetts, Rev. H. Earle and Mr. R. Cornwall. The Misses Balfour and Burns were heard in a delightful duet on the piano. Mr. M. Earle made his debut as a pianist. The singing of the National Anthem concluded the meeting.

Mrs. (Rev.) D. H. Currie and Master Gladstone were called suddenly to Stayner, leaving on Saturday. The sad news of her sister's death occasioned the journey. Condolences are extended.

The Public Library Board are arranging for a concert early in February.

NEW TRAIN SERVICE ON GRAND TRUNK

With the new train service that went into effect recently on The Grand Trunk Railway, the announcement is made that 98 of the new stations, out of the 150 contracted for in the Spring, have been opened. 27 are under construction, and the balance will be completed in the Spring.

These stations on the Grand Trunk Pacific are an innovation as far as stations in Western Canada are concerned, for they provide, unlike stations built heretofore, for the looking after the flag stations all the year round. This means that stations called flag stations points where trains only stop when there are passengers to get on or off, are in charge winter and summer by a capable employe and are kept heated day and night.

The arrangement has been made with section men to live in these stations, quarters having been provided for them, and in return for looking after the station and keeping it in shape for receiving passengers at all times, they have heat and rent free. The one stipulation that is put on by the company is that the agent or section man must be married for in this way the company thinks they will receive better service.

NO CIGARETTES FOR BOY SCOUTS ENCAMPMENT

Toronto, Jan. 24.—A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Department of Temperance and Moral Reform of the Methodist Church was held yesterday afternoon, with Rev. Dr. Carman in the chair. The matter of a temperance policy for the immediate future in Ontario was discussed, and the committee advised rigid enforcement of the laws, especially in New Ontario. The idea of the early closing of bars was received favorably and its enforcement was strongly advocated, especially in towns where local option would not carry. The agitation to prohibit the sale of liquor at canteens was taken up, and will be continued.

Information to the effect that no cigarettes nor beer would be allowed at the encampment of the Boy Scouts next summer was received from Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia. It was also announced that ministers of the Gospel would be in attendance at the encampment.

CANALEJAS EXPLAINS.

Spanish Crisis Is Accounted For by Incredible Story.

Madrid, Jan. 24.—The unexpected and mysterious crisis appears to have ended as abruptly and inexplicably as it began. Premier Canalejas, on leaving the birthday reception at the palace yesterday, told the reporters that the King had just questioned him about the reports of his resignation and had asked to be informed upon the exact situation.

The Premier answered that he knew nothing about the matter except that his fall had been announced everywhere, and added that for his part, in view of the persistence of the reports, he was quite disposed to quit.

The King, however, said that he would not hear of such a thing. Premier Canalejas declared to the newspaper men that the reports in question were fabricated in the lobbies of the Chambers and that Parliament would resume its labors normally to-day.

The Premier's statement has been received with incredulity. The general conviction is that something really happened, but an unfavorable impression was created on public opinion by the unexpected news of the fall of the Cabinet, and for some unknown reasons all idea of a Ministerial change has been abandoned.

SOUR RISINGS FROM STOMACH

Those Who Experience Fullness and Pain After Meals, Stomach Disorders, and Indigestion, Should Read Below.

"When I was working around the farm last winter I had an attack of inflammation," writes Mr. E. P. Dawkins, of Port Richmond. "I was weak for a long time, but well enough to work until spring. But something went wrong with my bowels, for I had to use salts or physic all the time. My stomach kept sour, and always after eating there was pain and fulness, and all the symptoms of intestinal indigestion. Nothing helped me until I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Instead of hurting, like other pills, they acted very mildly, and seemed to heal the bowels. I did not require large doses to get results with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and feel so glad that I have found a mild yet certain remedy. To-day I am well—no pain, no sour stomach, a good appetite, able to digest anything. This is a whole lot of good for one medicine to do, and I can say Dr. Hamilton's Pills are the best pills, and my letter, I am sure, proves it."

HONOR TO DOCTORS.

London's Lord Mayor of the Art of Aesculapius.

Sir Thomas Crosby's election to the chief magistracy of the City of London—the first Lord Mayor of London since the institution of that office, more than seven hundred years ago, to hold a degree of Doctor of Medicine or to have been in practice as a physician — serves to call attention to the fact that the present era is the golden age for the members of his profession. Every country appears to be bent upon overwhelming them with honors and dignities of one kind and another, and seems to be taking it for granted that since they are adept in the art of relieving physical ailments they are qualified to cure ills of every other conceivable character.

Universal satisfaction has been manifested that the office of Lord Mayor of London should have fallen to the lot of a physician, and especially one of such professional eminence as Sir Thomas Crosby. The office has often been held by men who, while worthy in other respects, and successful as wholesale and even retail merchants, were lamentably deficient in education, in breeding, and in savoir faire.

The opinion is expressed that the election of a physician — that is to say, of a man of culture — will tend to restore the former prestige of the Lord Mayorship of London, and is hailed with approval in the City, as calculated to invest with new distinction the ancient office of Chief Magistrate of the metropolis.

Sir Thomas Crosby's name is a familiar one in the annals of the City of London. It was Sir John Crosby, the builder of Crosby Hall, who was knighted by Edward IV. for his services as sheriff of London. Then there was Brass Crosby, Lord Mayor of London in 1771, and who won lasting fame, and, incidentally, also imprisonment in the Tower of London, by his vigorous championship of the liberties of the press. Horace Walpole would be compelled to describe him as in every sense of the word "a fine fellow."

Royal Jewels Catalogued.

The royal jewels of priceless value which are kept—under the charge of the King's Librarian, the Hon. John Fortescue—in a strong room at Windsor Castle have just been re-catalogued and photographed.

Many of the jewels date back centuries and belonged to former Kings and Queens of England. They consist of pendants, necklaces, hair ornaments, and rings of great beauty. Several of the greatest treasures are of the time of Henry VIII., and belonged to one or other of that monarch's queens.

The late King took much interest in the jewels. Previously they were in various apartments in the castle, but he had them collected and deposited in the strong room which was built when he came to the throne. King George and Queen Mary have also interested themselves in the jewels, and by His Majesty's directions the photographer on the Lord Chamberlain's staff at the castle has photographed every jewel. The catalogue and the photographs have been bound and are kept in the royal library.

In the gold pantry at Windsor Castle are some magnificent jeweled Communion cups, which have been used by the Kings and Queens of England for centuries and are still used by the King and Queen when they take the Sacrament. A recent addition to the collection of treasures in the royal library is the shirt that Charles I. wore at his execution.

Why the Train Stopped.

Harry Lauder, the well-known Scottish comedian, tells this story of his touring days. Lauder was in an out-of-the-way hamlet in Banffshire. He wanted to get on the main line. The "local express" took the better part of two hours to cover the twelve or fifteen miles.

"At last," he writes, "I asked a fellow-traveler if the train in which we were seated was booked to catch the connection I wanted.

"Oh, aye," he replied, in the broad northern Doric, solemnly removing his clay pipe before speaking, "she's bookit richt eneuch, but she vera seldom does't!'

"By and by the train stopped with a sort of sleepy jerk less than a mile from the junction. I got up and opened the window. The signals were down and there was no sign of any block ahead. I opened the carriage door, jumped on to the line, and walked forward to the engine. The driver and the fireman were seated on the footboard, one enjoying a smoke. They expressed no surprise at my appearance; indeed, the engine driver was polite enough to remark to me that it was 'a braw mornin'.'

" 'Yes,' replied I, 'the morning's all very fine, but what about this express train? What has she stopped for?'

" 'Oh, no much, sir, no much!' responded the driver. 'The fact is,' he added seriously, 'the engine's gane aff the bile!' "

Antelopes and Sleeping.

Some interesting investigations on sleeping sickness are recorded by Messrs. Bruce, Hamerton, and Bateman in the Proceedings of the Royal Society. They find that the following antelopes, the water-buck, the bush-buck, and the reed buck, can be readily infected with the human strain of the sleeping sickness parasite (Trypanosoma Gambiensis) by the bite of the fly Glossina palpalis. But, strange to say, careful and continued examination of the blood of these antelopes failed to reveal any of the parasites. Equally remarkable is the fact that such infected antelopes can transmit the infection to clean laboratory-bred flies.

Even eighty-one days after the last feed of the infected fly on such an animal the clean fly will take up the infection and pass it on. It may then pass off the virus to a susceptible animal. Thus it follows that the above antelopes living in areas also inhabited by the fly are potential reservoirs of the virus of sleeping sickness. And yet hitherto no antelope has been found naturally infected.

Dr. McCreary, chief of the city good inspection department, Montreal, has resigned.

Hon. J. D. Reid defied Mr. Turriff to name the man who had paid duty on lumber such as was mentioned in his amendment. That gentleman was a member of the House in 1907, when the 25 per cent. duty complained of was put on, and voted for it.

The amendment was declared lost in a straight party division at 12.20 a.m., on a vote of 107 to 62. The House adjourned at 12.25 a.m.

Hon. F. D. Monk announced that he had finally been able to get next to the man who had charge of the tower clock. The time piece had a bad cold, contracted on Friday when the public accounts estimates were up in the House. He hoped the Opposition would remember this when the remainder of these estimates were under discussion.

On the motion to go into supply, W. A. Buchanan (Medicine Hat) directed the attention of the House to the serious car shortage in Alberta.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster claimed that the railways had done all they could under the exceptional circumstances of a late harvest, coal shortage and bad weather conditions.

The situation was still serious, however. The railways had nearly reached the limits of their storage capacity. Further outlets or further storage would have to be provided.

The Minister of Agriculture announced, in response to a question, that he had arranged for a conference of fruit growers from all over Canada in three weeks time.

This Coffee Pot FREE

Why Dalton's French Drip Coffee is so Wholesome, Delicious and Economical

When you have once tasted Dalton's delicious French Drip Coffee, made in a Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot, you will never be tempted to drink ordinary boiled Coffee again.

The Coffee berry, or bean, is protected by nature from the insect world by a tough outer shell or husk which contains tannin and other acid, bitter principles which are poisonous to insects and certainly not wholesome to the human system.

Other roasters of Coffee do not remove this bitter husk, and this is why many people find that ordinary Coffee does not agree with them. Not only that, but the usual way of roasting Coffee in cylinders over coke or gas fires, drives off the volatile essences, so essential to aroma and flavor.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

The DALTON way is to throw the Coffee berries against an intensely hot flame. This roasts them in half the time and prevents the volatile essences being driven off. Then the Coffee is cooled by a special process, during which a strong suction air-blast blows off all foreign substances. Next comes the grinding, during which another powerful air-blast removes the poisonous, bitter outer shell. The Coffee contains absolutely no chicory and is packed in sealed tins, which preserve all the delightful flavor.

We make Dalton's French Drip Coffee in two strengths Mild Blend and Strong Blend. You cannot tell however which you will like the best until you try both and that is why we ask you to buy two tins in our special offer.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER

We feel so sure that you will find either Dalton's Mild Blend or Strong Blend French Drip Coffee just the Coffee that you have been looking for that we have authorized your Grocer to give you one of these handsome pots (worth $1.30) absolutely Free with your first purchase of a tin each of Mild and Strong Blend. You buy two tins of our Coffee—one of each blend—at 50c. per tin, to give it a fair trial, and we give you the means of testing it FREE, satisfied that you will use nothing but Dalton's French Drip Coffee thereafter.

SERMONETTES from OLD SAWS

BY TABITHA

"ALL THE WORLD WILL BEAT THE MAN WHOM FORTUNE BUFFETS

It is strange how we remember ill of the man who has failed and who is down in the world.

Yet some men's failures deserve more praise than other men's successes. It all depends upon the effort put forth in an endeavor to succeed in whatever line of work he has taken up.

This saying has been exemplified recently in my own town. A general manager who has made a failure of the bank over which he presided and which in the spirit of this age of speculation he had only carried on as most financial institutions are conducted, that is by investing their capital in speculative enterprises calculated to yield heavy profits, but his jurdgment was at fault and he failed.

No mantle of charity was thrown about him nor account taken of the sleepless nights which he had passed, walking his chamber floor bearing the awful burden of striving to save enough to at least, repay the poor small depositors whose savings were jeopardized.

No, his heinous crime was that he had lost money—that sacred thing—in our materialism, that thing which is guarded more than honor, almost or quite than life itself.

One man may ruin another man's daughter and escape the law, but let him touch that same man's money and he goes to prison.

How the papers grilled this man and tongues flew, giving voice to the stories of his crimes of immorality and of the debauches of this manager, this man whom they had so recently felt proud to know. When he comes out from the prison where his lack of judgment has thrown him, because he did not run away, but tried to untangle the affairs of the bank, to aid the court, he will not only have lost all his money, but every vestige of his character, and his life is ruined. The speculation was not the crime. It was the failure to make money—that was the unpardonable sin.

She was attended by her cousin, Miss Theressa Hurley, of Peterborough, who was also attired in a navy tailored suit, with large black hat and willow plumes. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. J. O'Leary, of St. Michael's College, Toronto.

High mass was sung by Rev. Michael O'Leary, of Bracebridge. Present in the sanctuary were Rev. Father P. J. O'Leary, of Bracebridge, and Rev. Father Kelly, pastor of St. Paul's.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's father, where a sumptuous wedding dejeuner was served to a large number of guests.

A number of young people from Norwood attended a dance in Hastings last week.

The Norwood hockey fans were invited out on Tuesday evening to witness a game of hockey, which proved to be the best exhibition that was seen here this season.

The contest was between the students of the Norwood High School and the senior town team, and ended with a score of 4—3 in favor of the latter.

From start to finish the combat was keenly fought, individual rushing being in the foreground. The forward line for the Norwood High School team played fair combination, and by this feature they apparently played a much better game, but their opponents retaliated with spectacular rushes, which were most effective.

Mr. Alex. Kempt proved a most satisfactory referee, having the game at all times under his control.

There were two penalties dealt out to the town team.

On Thursday next the Norwood High School team will play a junior Hastings septet in hockey.

THE OPTIMISM OF THE CONSUMPTIVE

Perhaps there is no disease, whilst often fatal in its outcome, is yet viewed with so much optimism by the patients themselves. It is well that it is so, for all know to what extent one's own feelings, whether cheery or the opposite, influence both mental and physical conditions. "I was certainly impressed with this thought," remarked a newspaper reporter, "in interviewing a patient of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives. She was a pretty girl of 24, brown hair and dark gray eyes, who had come all the way from Saskatchewan. She said she felt pretty sick when she first arrived at the Hospital, and for two days the nurses had to personally feed her. 'I have been in bed all the time,' she said. 'I have been well cared for while I have been here. I am sure I am going to get well, and feel better now than before I took sick. Everybody seems so happy and bright, and tells me when I get up I am sure to like it. Everything is done to please me and make me happy.'" One may well wish that so bright a patient should soon be restored to health.

LITERARY NIGHT MUCH ENJOYED

Readings From Tennyson's Works by Judge Huycke

The ladies of the Y.W.C.A. held a very enjoyable literary evening last night. Judge Huycke read selections from Tennyson's poems, and was listened to with a great deal of interest by the large number of ladies in attendance. Included in the readings were choice passages from the "Passing of Arthur," "Idylls of the King," "Defence of Lucknow," "Maud," "Little Revenge" and "Crossing the Bar." Besides this very pleasing literary treat, solos were rendered by Mrs. Dickson Hall and Miss Given Smith, the two musical features introducing a charming variation in the evening's entertainment.

THE GIRL AND THE TRAMP SCORED AT HAMILTON

Sale for Local Engagement Opens To-morrow Morning

The Hamilton Herald says—

"There was a good sized audience at the Grand last night to witness Fred A. Byers in the bright comedy entitled The Girl and the Tramp. The company, which is a small one, was well received and with the assistance of Fred. A Byers as "Happy Jack," furnished a very interesting and laughable performance. The comedy is supplied by Fred. A. Byers as "Happy Jack" and Miss Lola Lee as Flo Randall. The play has a very interesting plot and tells the story of how a banker, who has a loving wife and a happy home, is brought to ruin through the manipulation of the stock market by a man who is in love with his wife. The intense scenes are relieved by the comedy supply by Happy Jack, and from the time that he enters the home of Richard Newton, singing 'Any Old Place I Hang My Hat is Home Sweet Home to Me, to his declaration in the last act that he intends to be more than a casual acquaintance to Flo Randall and to the Merton family, there is a continual flow of bright witty sayings and amusing situations and there is not a dull moment in the whole performance. The part of Richard Merton, as the ruined banker, is exceptionally well played by W. R. Coleman, while Floy Mann as Mrs. Merton, the loving wife, was well received.

ESTABLISHMENT OF BOARD OF EDUCATION

Recommended by Inspector Lees in His Annual Report

On his work for the year, County School Inspector Lees reported to the County Council that there were 71 rural schools in operation in the inspectorate, with 75 teachers. He made 239 visits, all schools being open for at least six months. Of the 75 teachers, 30 had normal training, 12 had model and 3 had taken courses at Summer training schools. The remaining 30 had no professional training.

At midsummer, 38 schools changed teachers and only 23 ofu those at the last report remained.

The report pointed out that while the increase made to teachers was encouraging, it is still far short of what will be necessary to secure and retain the services of capable and efficient teachers.

Fine new and modern schools were erected during the year. On the whole the teachers were found to be earnest and industrious. The inspector suggested the establishment of township or county Boards of Education to promote progress and efficiency in the management of the rural schools.

The continuation schools continue to do excellent work and the report recommended the county grant being increased.

CLAIMS ANNUITIES ARE INADEQUATE

Liberal Member Resumes Debate on J. H. Burnham's Resolution Regarding Old Age Pensions.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—E. M. Macdonald, Liberal member for Pictou, N.S., yesterday afternoon resumed the debate on the resolution of J. H. Burnham (Peterboro) for a committee of enquiry into old age pensions, and made out a strong case.

The annuity system, he pointed out, did not reach the class of poor but honest men who were unable to accumulate enough to purchase an annuity. The assistance of children, urged against old age pensions, raised the point that in industrial centres the problem was one which the son or daughter had to solve equally with their parents.

"The Colony of New Zealand," said Mr. Macdonald in introducing the question, "led the way among the different nations that go to make up the Empire in dealing with this question. Their attitude and their legislation was favorably received in the mother country and was a potent factor in inducing public opinion to deal with the situation there. The result of legislation that has taken place in England has been of the most satisfactory character. Even those who at some stage doubted the wisdom of a system of old age pensions are to-day found its most willing advocates."

Canada, he continued, had been somewhat laggard in dealing with this question. We had been too busy with the material phases of our situation to deal with this important social problem.

"It is said by some gentlemen who discuss this question that we have an annuity system in Canada and that consequently we have solved the problem. I do not appreciate that proposition at all. The annuity system does not reach the class of men, honest, but poor men, who are not able to accumulate enough money to buy an annuity."

In the twentieth century, he said, the old men were being shoved to the wall in every employment of life. What was to be the refuge of these men who were told that they were too old to work?

The very least that anyone who had come to the age of 65 or older, and who had done his best, should demand inherently, was personal comfort and that they should have some idea of independence in their actions and thoughts.

How could the conditions be attained without state aid? No matter how thrifty people might be in their years of savings, they might be swept away by illness or misfortune. The old age pension system, he pointed out, would not apply where the man was able to earn his own livelihood.

The assistance of children should not be absolute. That was very fine to theorize about, but, in an industrial centre where the young people had married and had families of their own, the problem formed a successive one, to be solved by the son or daughter, just as it was in the case of the father.

W. F. Carroll (Cape Breton) declared that the trouble about old age annuities was that it was a difficult task to bring it before the public so that they would appreciate its meaning.

The "deserving poor" scheme was one worthy of adoption. No one would benefit by it unless he could show that he had not received poor relief in the days when he was capable of earning a livelihood, and was not in receipt of an income sufficient to keep him in his old age.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux admitted the success of Lloyd-George's system

Ran Train Through Tunnel Under the Hudson River

Hangs on Iron Bounties.

Port Arthur, Jan. 25.—The Atikokan Iron Co. and the City Council yesterday reached a mutually satisfactory basis of agreement whereby the company will locate at this point a five-million dollar steel plant contingent upon the Government renewing the iron bounties, as it is expected they will do.

STANDS BY AGREEMENT

Thomas Low Will Not Accept the Seat in South Renfrew.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—Thomas A. Low, ex-M.P., has given his formal answer to the Liberal-Conservative Association of South Renfrew. He stands by the agreement made when the Liberal party allowed T. W. McGarry to be returned to the Legislature by acclamation.

He states that Hon. George P. Graham is the choice of the Liberal party and that it will be impossible for him to accept the offer of the Liberal-Conservative Association to be re-elected without opposition. He further states that the opposition to Hon. Mr. Graham will be a breach of faith in not carrying out an honest agreement.

The Liberal-Conservatives of South Renfrew on Friday last offered the seat back to Mr. Low by acclamation, but promised Dr. Maloney of Eganville to oppose Hon. George P. Graham in case Mr. Low did not accept the offer. He was given a week to decide, and yesterday sent a definite answer to the Liberal-Conservative Association.

NEITHER SIDE WILL YIELD IN THE HOME RULE DISPUTE

Winston Churchill Insists That He Will Keep His Engagement to Speak With Redmond In Belfast—Unionists Declare That They Will Hold the Hall Beginning on Day Before the Big Meeting.

London, Jan. 25.—The home rule meeting will be held in Ulster Hall, Belfast, on Feb. 8, as arranged, and Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and John E. Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, will speak, if the determination reached yesterday is carried into effect. A conference was held in the chief Government whip's office yesterday afternoon, which was attended by Mr. Churchill, Lord Pirie, for the city of Belfast, and Sir Rufus Isaacs, Attorney-General — the last named to give legal advice—and a final decision was taken to hold the Belfast meeting. Mr. Redmond is sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to ensure his attendance.

In the meanwhile, Sir Edward Carson, member for Dublin University, and former Solicitor-General, who was the leader in the fight against home rule, visited Belfast yesterday and had a conference with the leader of the loyalists. They perfected arrangements to occupy Ulster Hall from Feb. 7 until after Feb. 8, so as to prevent the Churchill-Redmond meeting. Contracts have been entered into with caterers to supply provisions for 1,500 persons in the hall during those two days.

The military officers have held a meeting in Belfast to consider means to preserve the peace.

HON. WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Who says he will address meeting in Belfast, despite the threats of armed resistence.

Waterways Union Meeting.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—An executive meeting of the Great Waterways Union of Canada was held here yesterday afternoon, and was attended by President Detweiler, Mayor Schmalz, and Geo. C. H. Lang, Berlin; Geo. Pattinson, M.P.P.; J. B. Lyon, Guelph; Mayor McLellan and Mr. Dobie, Galt; and Alois Bauer, Waterloo.

President Detweiler reported progress and the ready responses from a number of boards, telling of their hearty co-operation in the project.

The report of the first meeting will be printed in pamphlet form for distribution.

DYNAMITING OPERATIONS

More Light Thrown on the Way the McNamara's Worked.

Indianapolis, Jan. 25.—Through remarks carelessly made by James B. McNamara while he was having a suit of clothes fitted by T. C. Bjorm, a tailor in Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1909, the federal grand jury yesterday obtained evidence which, it is said, brought about important disclosures concerning the identity of men who helped blow up places in the west.

Bjorm, who testified before the grand jury, is said to have heard from McNamara not only about the plan to blow up a hotel in Salt Lake City in December of that year, but also about the details as to how it was to be done and who was to do it. About this time, according to Ortie E. McManigal, J. J. McNamara was directing the dynamiting operations from Indianapolis and the movement was being extended to the Pacific coast with a view of making Salt Lake City "a base of supply."

HIS MAJESTY REACHES MALTA

Malta, Jan. 25.—King George and Queen Mary reached here yesterday aboard the steamship Medina. They were accorded an enthusiastic reception. Their Majesties visited the French battleship Danton in the afternoon.

A slight mishap occurred to the Medina as she was entering port. A buoy rope fouled the propeller, but caused little delay.

The King and Queen were received in state by Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean department; Chief Justice Sir J. Carbone; members of the Legislative Council, and a crowd of nobles. A drive through troop-lined streets to Government House, was followed by a reception at which most of the Maltese officials and noblemen were presented to the King and Queen.

Lanark—Wm. Dunlop.
Halburton—Wm. Taking.
Renfrew—Henry N. Moss.
Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry—M. S. Backstead.

Friend to Public Ownership.

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 25.—The annual conference of the British Labor party opened here yesterday.

Ben Turner, president, stated that the past year had been one of industrial unrest, which had redounded to the benefit of labor. Apart from Parliament, the working men had been able to secure higher wages, fewer hours and better regulations.

"Our business," he continued, "is to make the Labor party the dominant political party in the state. Slowly and surely the public conscience is deepening toward public ownership of the means of life. Scores of thousands of workingmen who have joined trade unions have become socialists."

WILL SIMPLY EXCHANGE CALLS

Yankee Band Will Play "God Save the King" in Honor of Duke's Visit.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Arrangements for the reception to-day of the Duke of Connaught were completed by the White House and State Department last night. The uncle of one king and brother of another will be received as simply as possible, consisting with etiquette. The duke will go through the program arranged for his reception, unsupported except for the British ambassador, James Bryce, the staff of the British embassy and his military secretary, Col. Lowther.

During most of his six or seven hours in Washington, he will be on home territory, within the acre of two covered by the British embassy.

According to the official announcement given out at the White House, the duke arrives in Washington at 4.20 this afternoon. Major A. W. Butt, personal aide of the President, will meet the duke at the Union Station, and with the British Ambassador and the embassy staff, will form his escort to the embassy. White House automobiles will convey the duke from the station to the embassy.

At 5 o'clock the duke is expected to reach the White House. He will be whirled away from the embassy in a White House motor accompanied by a squadron of cavalry. The cavalry will form an escort of honor to the portico of the executive mansion and will deploy on the driveway in front while he enters to be received. Just in front of the porte cochere the fifteenth cavalry band will be stationed and as the royal visitor enters it will play "God Save the King."

The duke will be received by President Taft in much the same way as new ambassadors are received.

Following this Mrs. Taft will serve tea for the duke and the ambassador in the red room. Members of the Cabinet and their wives have been invited to be present. The duke will leave the White House after this informal reception is over and the band outside will play "The Sar Spangled Banner."

The squadron of cavalry will escort him back to the British embassy and shortly after he has stepped on British territory again, the President, accompanied by Major Butt, will return his call.

So far as the Government is concerned, this will conclude the duke's visit to Washington. Afterwards the duke will be the guest at dinner of the British ambassador, and it is understood he will hold a reception for diplomats and Government officials.

JAPS TO CRUSH REVOLUTION

Paris, Jan. 25.—A secret conference was held at Pekin on Wednesday, says a Pekin despatch to the European edition of The New York Herald, at which the ex-regent, Prince Chun, Prince Tsai Suun and Prince Tsai Tao, urged the Empress Dowager to invoke Japanese aid to suppress the revolution. The Dowager favored the suggestion and instructed the princes to ascertain its practicability. The Cabinet is indignant at the suggestion, and it is doubtful whether Japan would entertain it.

Selling Manchu Treasures.

London, Jan. 25.—The sale of the Imperial treasures at Pekin has commenced, says a despatch to The Daily Telegraph, but the princes are withholding the best china and are demanding fabulous prices. An American expert, who has just returned from examining the treasures in the Imperial palace at Mukden, says that 40,000 pieces of porcelain there are worthless, the best specimens having been removed or stolen.

Relationship of Church and State Comes Under Review

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—Bourassa attacks the Borden Government for the action on the Ne Temere decree and strongly endorses Sir Wilfrid's course. Bourassa says that the whole relationship of the Church and State will now come under review, which would not have happened if the bill, which related only to marriage, had passed.

DISMISSALS AT QUEBEC

Quebec, Jan. 25.—Since Saturday last some 65 workmen employed by the local agency of the Marine and Fisheries Department, have been given their discharge.

These dismissals, or, at any rate, some of them, are believed to be the outcome of an enquiry conducted into the local agency by O. L. Beaubien on Saturday last. It is said that further dismissals are likely to take place.

School Issue Not Dead.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—"No, bilingual schools are not a dead issue now that the elections are over, no matter what Dr. Merchant's report will say. The question will have to be settled."

Thus spoke Hon. Dr. Reaume of Windsor, Minister of Public Works in the Ontario Cabinet, interviewed yesterday. Dr. Reaume stated that the Merchant report would be out inside a couple of weeks.

PLEADED GUILTY TO MANSLAUGHTER

Boston, Jan. 25.—Harry H. Butts, a colored prisoner, who for the past month has shared the cell of Rev. C. V. T. Richeson in the Charles street jail, appeared in the Superior Court yesterday and retracted a former plea of not guilty to murder in the second degree and pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

Butts was placed as a guard in Richeson's cell following the minister's act of self-mutilation on Dec. 20, and has apparently been regarded by the Virginian as a sort of body servant.

On the night of June 21, 1911, Butts shot and instantly killed another colored man, Robert Williamson, who he claimed had been too attentive to his wife.

NEW YORK'S HUGE DEBT

New York, Jan. 25.—According to official figures submitted yesterday to Mayor Gaynor by the Finance Department, New York City's total debt at the beginning of 1912 was $1,037,811,718, or approximately $20,000,000 more than the public debt of the United States.

Italian Diplomats Not at all Alarmed Over the Protest From France—Aeroplane Helped Italians.

Rome, Jan. 25.—The subject of the detention of 29 Turks, said to be members of the Red Crescent Society, by the Italian authorities, who captured them on the French steamer Manouba, was fully discussed at conferences yesterday between Premier Giolitti, Foreign Minister Marquis di San Guilano, and the French Ambassador to Italy, Camille Barrere. The conferences are said to have been very cordial, but the Turks are still held under arrest on the island of Sardinia.

Italy maintains her right to capture and search ships of neutral nations suspected of carrying contraband of war. This has been the course followed, not only in the case of French steamers, but also with British, German and Austrian.

Italy does not, however, admit any limitation of that right. It is her intenton to protect her army before the enemy. So far as the Italian authorities will speak, the examination of the Turks in question seems to have proved that both doctors and nurses were included in the group of prisoners, but it is suspected that the object of their present was to distract attention from others, who are believed to be Turkish officers, as they were in possession of arms, maps and a check for a large sum of money.

Italian officials call attention to the fact that another alleged Red Crescent expedition was once halted in Egypt by Gen. Kitchener and sent back as it was composed of belligerents.

Italy admits that France is exercising her duty admirably as a neutral power, but urges that France should not resent the wish on the part of Italy, even if a mistake is made, to exercise what she considers to be her right, as neither France nor any other nation can guarantee that, in applying all possible measures to observe strict neutrality, she may not be deceived.

The result of the conferences has been reported to the French Government, and, so far, the two countries have been animated by such a conciliatory spirit that it is expected a satisfactory solution will be found.

Aeroplane Saved Italians.

Gabes, Tunis, Jan. 25.—Details of the engagement between the Turks and the Arabs and an Italian column near Ghirgarish, a small oasis about ten miles along the coast from Tripoli on Jan. 19, have reached here and show that at the time of the fighting the Italian destroyers had temporarily withdrawn.

Boats laden with contraband approached the shore and opened a heavy fire on the Italian forces. At the same time 1,000 Turkish regulars at Ainzara prepared to attack the Italians from the rear. The Italians would inevitably have been annihilated if by chance an aeroplane, coming out to try its motor, had not been seen by the Turks, who became so alarmed that they were unable to carry out the turning movement. They kept up their firing, however, until nightfall. The Italians lost fifty killed and thirty wounded.

Italians Meet Reverse.

London, Jan. 25.—The Daily Express' correspondent with the Turks, reports an Italian reverse after severe battle, which resulted from an attempt by the Italians to re-occupy Sensur, an oasis about 12 miles west of Tripoli. Both sides suffered heavy losses. Sixty Italian dead were left in the trenches.

The date on which the despatch was sent out is not given.

DEATH BRINGS ABOUT REFORM

Washington, Jan. 25.—The death from yellow fever yesterday at Guayaquil, Ecuador, of Commander L. C. Bertolette, in command of the American gunboat Yorktown, guarding American interests there, will result in the American Government insisting upon the sanitation of that port.

The death of the commander and of an enlisted man, together with the illness of three other enlisted men, has impressed the Government with the necessity for prompt action.

Should Ecuador temporize, it is said that the United States may issue a quarantine against Guayaquil in the interests particularly of the Panama Canal.

UNION LABEL

IMMIGRATION TO CANADA

Immigration to Canada for the fiscal year 1911, increased forty-eight per cent over the previous year, 1910. This is shown by a report issued by the Immmigration Branch of the Interior Department. During the last year 311,084 new citizens came to Canada. Of this number 184,198 were men, 71,038 women, and the remainder children. Farmers and farm laborers are the class of immigrants most sought after by the Dominion, and in 1911 fully forty-three per cent of the total immigration entered came under this classification, which shows what splendid work has been done by the Immigration Department. Of those who entered under this classifcation (133,378 in number) 82,654 were men, 23,629 women and 27,095 children. Forty-eight thousand men entered as general laborers, 26,000 as mechanics, 11,000 as clerks, 6,000 as miners and 16,000 as demale servants.

Immigration from the United States in 1911 was 121,000, a 17 per cent. increase over 1910. The year's total immigration from the British Isles was 123,000, while the previous year it was only 60,000, an increase of 105 per cent. This is the first time in the history of the Dominion that immigration from the British Isles has exceeded that from the United States. Immigrants came to Canada last year from no less than 64 countries and nearly all of these showed a considerable increase in the number of annual arrivals. Over 17,000 immigrants were rejected by Canada at her borders in 1911. Some 15,000 of these were from the United States, of whose total applicants 12 per cent were rejected.

This would appear as if there had been undue discrimination against the United States, but it is not the case. Canada has physicians and examiners at most of the European ports of departure and continental and British undesirables are warned away, so that they never reach the Canadian port of entry to be turned back. Deportations in 1911 were slightly greater than in 1910, but are considerably less than in 1908, and 1909. And this despite the fact that immigration to Canada has practically doubled in the past two or three years. This speaks well for the class of citizens who are seeking entry into the Dominion.

BOTH SIDES DETERMINED

It looks as if Great Britain was to have another great strike on her hands on March 1st next. The coal miners have voted for a general strike and as the operators refuse absolutely to listen to the demands of the men a long, bitter fight will doubtless result. Both sides say they will fight to a finish. The chairman of the Cumberland Combine colliers, speaking at a luncheon given in honor of the Lord Mayor of Cardiff, declared that the coal owners were ready for the fight and would yield nothing to the workers. They had endeavored to bring about a settlement by a compromise, but the miners wouldn't consider this. There could be no intervention for a principle was involved and the coal operators would stick to their rights. The speaker went on to say that the mine owners were quite competent of managing their own affairs and wanted no busy bodies to interfere.

On the other hand the miners are just as determined, and the majority of 330,000 given in favor of a strike left no doubt as to where the men stood on the question. There seems little hope now of the strike being averted and a general cessation of work in the mines is likely on the date stated for the walkout.

The strike will seriously affect many industries, and will be a severe blow to trade if the trouble is a prolonged one. The Admiralty is securing immense quantities of coal to tide the navy over, but many factories are unable to do this and will have to close down if the strike is not quickly terminated. This will mean many more workers thrown out of employment, who will suffer in consequence.

A minimum wage is demanded by the labor leaders, but the mine owners say they will grant no such concession. They claim that an advance would wipe out profits and close 75 per cent of the colliers. Both sides have apparently given up all idea of a settlement and are preparing for the struggle and it is likely to bring about great disorder and bloodshed. It is a losing game for both sides, and it is to be hoped that some plan will be arrived at to avert the disaster.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Carrying mail by airships is the latest and the United States has appropriated $50,000 to give the scheme a trial.

There is going to be a lively political battle in South Renfrew unless the Hon. Geo. P. Graham decides to drop out of the fight, which he is not likely to do.

Liberal papers are making much out of the fact that outside of Ontario the Liberals had a popular majority in the Dominion. Leave Quebec out of some previous elections and see where the Liberals stood.

The Manchus have decided to fight it out in China and the Republicans will now go ahead and give them a good licking—unless the other fellows should put one over, which is not likely.

The Lord's Day Alliance have succeeded in stopping Sunday tobogganing in Toronto, and it is said will now try to stop Sunday skating. Will some kind person please look up a few more things for them to stop, including a cyclone, an express train, or those long-winded speeches in the Commons. They must be kept busy you know.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

Thoughts for Workers.

Be alive all the time, and especially when you work. Enthusiasm creates energy.

The honest worker demands more of himself than his employer ever expects of him.

However poor your work is, it is never hopeless. You are a success if you make it a little better each day.

The best remedy for failure is plenty of hard, conscientious work.

Think success, but that is not enough; think it so hard that it becomes action.

Montreal Grain and Produce.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat to-day, but cables were easier and prices ½d to 3d lower, but notwithstanding this fact sales of about 200,000 bushels were made for nearby and May-June shipment. The demand for oats continues good and a fairly large business is being worked to all ports and especially so to Antwerp for May-June. There was quite a boom in local prices for oats to-day, as they advanced 1½c per bushel owing to the good demand for spot goods and the small offerings. Sales of round lots of extra No. 1 feed were made at 48c ex-store, but the holders at the close asked 49c.

There continues to be a fairly good enquiry for spring wheat flour, but millers state that the bids are 6d to 9d per sack out of line. A good local trade continues to be done at firm prices. CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 24.—At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market the offerings this morning were 850 cattle, 400 sheep and lambs, 1950 hogs and 300 calves. There was no change in the condition of the market for cattle, prices being firm, owing to the continued scarcity of good to choice stock, in fact there was none of the latter obtainable and only a few loads of the former and as buyers generally were short of beef, they were obliged to turn their attention to the lower grades. Consequently the demand was good and a fairly active trade was done. The top price reached for good steers, $6.50, but buyers would have paid $6.75 to $7 for choice if they could have been had. Sales of choice cows and bulls were made at $5.50 per cwt.

The market was also bare of choice sheep, lambs and calves, and in consequence the prices realized were not as high as on Monday, owing to the difference of the quality of the stock offered. The top price paid for lambs was $6.75 and as the sheep were very common only $4 per cwt. was paid for them, while the highest paid for the calves was $12 each.

A weaker feeling prevailed in the market for hogs on account of the increased supplies and prices declined 10c to 25c per cwt., and even at this reduction, drovers found it impossible to make a clearance, but the stock that was left over was of a poor quality.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7; medium, $5 to $6.50; common, $3 to $4; canners, $2.50 to $3; choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; medium, $3 to $5; bulls, $3.50 to $5.50; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $75; common and medium, each, $45 to $55; springers, $30 to $40. Sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $4.75; bucks and culls, $4 to $4.25; lambs, $6.50 to $7. Hogs, f.o.b., $7. Calves, $3 to $12.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

For a long time he sat contemplating his hand, first the back and then the palm, and then closing the fingers and scrutinizing the nails. Finally, with another shrug and a little gesture in which I read resignation, he said:

"I might as well tell it. As you say, I knew the jewel-box—and I honestly thought it contained the ruby—and the Clara Cooper letters were in the safe, and I never had an opportunity to take them till Tuesday night a week ago. The assurance that Page was going to Duluth that night, combined with the backing Tshen would give me, put me in a position where I could take the ruby and defy Page. I was so sure that Page was going to Duluth that night that I arranged a meeting between Fluette and the Burman at Page's house.

"For you surmised correctly when you declared that Fluette would not buy the ruby on the strength of my representations alone. The purpose of that meeting was to convince Fluette of the good faith of Tshen's claim to the stone, whereupon I was to procure it from the safe—the letters, too—and he was to pay over a certain sum of money for them."

"How much?" I bluntly demanded.

"Two hundred thousand dollars."

So this was the reason why Alfred Fluette must needs help himself to Genevieve's patrimony. That rapacious monster, the Wheat Pit, had exhausted all of his legitimate resources, and so mad was his obsession that he scrupled not to steal.

I entertained only hard feelings for him at that moment. He had not bought the ruby, however, and doubtless Genevieve's fortune was still intact.

"Go on," I commanded curtly. "What happened then?"

"Well, Maillot's arrival demoralized everything. Fluette was to come at ten o'clock, and Tshen at ten-thirty. I didn't know what to do. I had no way of getting them word at that time of night, and I soon realized that Page had given over the trip. I contrived, however, to smuggle all of them up to my room, without anybody being the wiser.

"I explained the state of affairs, and assured them that I would fulfil my part of the agreement as soon as Page and Maillot retired and the house grew quiet.

"Some time after eleven I heard Page and Maillot coming up-stairs. The light was out in my room, and, peering through the crack of my door, I watched Page bid Maillot good-night. The old man was holding a lighted candle in one hand and the small leather box in the other. I know it was the ruby he showed Maillot—"

"I suppose you were in the curtained alcove while he and Maillot were talking," I interrupted.

"Not all the time; I didn't dare be. The old man was as sharp as a fox. He didn't trust anybody.

"However, I carried out my part of the programme, all right; but just as I reached the top of the stairs I felt the magnetism of somebody's presence. I looked back and saw Page—he looked positively diabolical—following me. How he enjoyed catching anybody in such a predicament!"

"And then?"

"Well, then—why, I must have lost my head. I started for my room, but the old man commanded me to stop, and I stopped. People generally did when Page told them to. Fluette heard him and came into the hall to learn what was the matter. Page could not see him then because of the angle in the corridor, and the old man paused by the etagere to light the candle in the iron candlestick.

"After that the old man walked right up to me and held out his hand for the box and the bundle of letters; but before I had time to give them to him, Fluette rushed in between us. His appearance startled the old man so that he recoiled a pace or two. This gave Fluette the opportunity he needed to take the things from me. He smiled at Page, and said:

"'By God, Felix Page, you sha'n't thwart me this time; for once I've got the upper hand of you, and I mean to keep it.' Fluette, you see, had put in the time while waiting in my room listening to Tshen's story and examining his credentials.

"That infuriated Page so that he went clear off his head. He set down the iron candlestick upon the floor, and plunged right into Fluette. Quicker than you can think, they were wrestling furiously for the box and the bundle of letters.

"I ran into my room and told Tshen what was going on. Three of his party were with him, and they were all so excited that I could scarcely do anything with them. Next I ran back into the hall, where the two men were still struggling and threshing about. They saved their breath for their exertions, each trying with might and main to wrest the precious package from the other.

"All at once the jewel-box was wrenched open. The ruby—or what I thought was the ruby—flew out a[illegible] fell at my feet. I stooped in a [illegible] and picked it up. As I straightened upright, I saw that Page had succeeded in recovering the jewel-case, although Fluette had the letters. With an oath, Page cast the empty box away from him. 'I'll cut your heart out for that!' he snarled, and started for Fluette. Fluette hastily jabbed the letters into his coat pocket, grabbed up the candlestick and threw it above his head. The light was extinguished, and the candlestick crushed upon Page's head.

"It was an inspiration that made me press the ruby into the soap; I couldn't have found a better hiding-place if I had searched the house over."

I was no longer heeding him. The last doubt had been removed. After all, then, Alfred Fluette was the guilty man.

My heart ached for the three women upon whom the blow would fall the hardest. The tangle was unravelling in accord with my theory. I had warned Genevieve of what she might expect—indeed, she had apprehended the probable outcome herself; it had been hopeless to attempt to prepare Belle. But all this failed to relieve the situation any.

However, the ruby presently rose uppermost in my mind, and with it came a conviction that Burke had not told me everything that he might have respecting the gem. If it had not been in the bar of soap, where was it? Then light flashed upon the enigma.

Burke and the Burmese had been afforded more time than I in which to speculate upon the substitution of the false for the genuine stone, and Burke had not gone inconsiderately to the Page place on Friday night, but, quite the reverse, to prosecute a definite plan of search. How near he came to the goal I didn't appreciate till later.

The discovery by the Burmese that the soap contained merely the paste replica, made them suspect Burke of duplicity. Hence, after Fanshawe and I lost them Friday morning, the Burman had continued to dog the ex-secretary until relieved some time during the day by the misshapen dwarf, who, in turn, had followed him to the Page place after nightfall.

The mute—whose ugly visage Genevieve had seen at the alcove curtains—had attacked him, perhaps in the belief that Burke had found the gem, and that he had been deceiving them respecting it.

It was this struggle in the bedroom which had created such a tumult, frightening Burke within an inch of his life, and driving him pellmell away and to his bed, where he had remained until the following Tuesday. Both had utterly vanished by the time I effected an entrance to the house.

"I can truthfully say, Burke," I confided, "that I never underestimated your intelligence. You did not go blindly to the Page place Friday night. You reasoned that, if Mr. Page displayed the genuine ruby to Maillot, and if the jewel-case contained only the replica when you robbed the safe an hour or so later, why, the substitution must have occurred somewhere between the library table, where Maillot and Page had been sitting, and the safe. Consequently you were encouraged by the assurance that the scope of your search would be restricted.

"I believe you argued correctly. And to keep you out of further mischief, or from setting your precious Burmese upon me again, why, you may stay here a while and think over it."

Despite his protestations, when I left headquarters the last glimpse I had of him was through the bars of a cell door.

I went directly to the Fluette residence to inform Genevieve that her apprehensions and uncertainties had at last crystallized into dread reality. I shall not dwell upon this wretched conference; it is quite enough to say that the poor girl was torn with grief, yet not wholly convinced.

"Knowles,"—she was clinging to my arm, her voice hoarse and distressed,—"it is too terrible—too monstrous for belief. I can not do it—can't believe it—unless I hear the words from Uncle Alfred's own lips. He is here now; he didn't go down-town to-day. The horrible charge has been made—confront him with it. He's up-stairs with Aunt Clara."

"Very well," I quietly returned. "You go and ask him, as calmly as possible, to come down to his study. Don't alarm Miss Belle or her mother; it may not be necessary."

Moving blindly towards the stairs, she paused on the first landing and turned to me a tragic face.

"Courage!" I whispered.

Then she found the strength to carry her on to the end of her revulsive errand. I went direct to the study, and waited.

Fluette came in hastily, his manner wild, his face white and haggard. Genevieve, distressed and heartbroken, followed close behind him. She closed the door. The man began speaking at once, incoherently, in a harsh, strident whisper that signified constricted throat muscles.

"So! It's come at last! You—keep it from—from—my God! keep it from my wife and daughter!"

I answered him roughly, in an attempt to keep him from breaking completely down.

"Pull yourself together, man! What sort of way is this to act?" I surveyed his abject figure an instant, then added with some bitterness: "It is not I that you fear, but your own conscience."

My Lady Moon.

So slowly down the western sky
You sail, my Lady Moon,
The fleecy clouds that after fly
Will surely hide you soon.
I'd like to sail the skies with you
And race the clouds along the blue.
Please take me in your gold canoe,
My pretty Lady Moon.

Around the world and home we'll float,
My pretty Lady Moon.
I'd rather travel in your boat
Than in a silk balloon.
We'll look down on the rivers deep,
The lonely roads, the huddled sheep,
The woods where birds are fast asleep,
My pretty Lady Moon.

Here all the world is green and gay
Beneath the skies of June,
But, oh, what wonders far away
You see, my Lady Moon!
You climb above the mountain's crown;
You view the busy, crowded town,
The restless sea, the lonely down,
My pretty Lady Moon.

Oh, let me sail the skies with you
When you're "The Harvest Moon!"
We'll choose a night when clouds are few
And West Wind sings a tune,
When orchards shine with apples bright
And reapers sing in waning light
And you shine for their dance all night,
My pretty Lady Moon.

For the Children

Pu Yi, the Infant Emperor of China.

Young folks who read the newspapers are aware that the people of China have arisen against their Manchu rulers and demanded more freedom. In response to their demands an imperial edict has been issued granting a constitutional government, which means that the common people will have a part in making the laws for the government of the empire. Heretofore they have been ruled by the nobles.

The imperial edict was ostensibly from the hand of the infant emperor, Pu Yi, or Hsuan Tung, as he is variously called. It says in part:

"I have reigned three years and have always acted conscientiously in the interests of the people. But I have not employed men properly, as I am without political skill. I have employed too many nobles in political positions, which contravenes constitutionalism."

The little emperor was born Feb. 11, 1906, and will therefore be six years old next February—surely a very little boy to rule so vast a country as China. But he is only a nominal ruler, the real one being his father, Prince Chun, who governs under the title of regent. Emperor Pu Yi succeeded to the throne Nov. 14, 1908.

Boys Find Old Treasure.

The largest find of treasure trove that has ever been discovered in Denmark has just come to light at Terslev. Two boys were digging in the garden of a resident named Otto Hansen when they struck a pile of silver, three feet below the surface. Investigation disclosed the presence of a heap of coins, besides necklets, chains and bracelets, some inlaid with gold and mostly dating from the end of the tenth century. Most of the coins are Arabic, but some are Anglo-Saxon, and one bears the name of Athelstane, the early Saxon king of England. Several of the ornaments are finely ornamented, but the gem of them all is a twisted neck chain, from which are suspended two toilet requisites—one a small, dagger-like article and the other an ear spoon. Altogether there are nearly 600 separate pieces, weighing about sixteen pounds.

A Great Many Jacks.

Jack is not only a boy's name. It is applied to a flower—"Jack in the pulpit." "Jack Frost" means the cold, biting winds, and a "jack" is a machine to lift heavy weights. Then there are a "boot jack" for removing boots from the feet; a "smoke jack" to turn a spit; a "jackanapes," applied to a saucy person; "Jack tar," a common sailor, and a "jacket," a small coat. Jackstay is a rail used on a boat to which to fasten the sails, jackstone is a pebble piece used in the game of that name, jackstraw is a scarecrow, and jackwood is wood of the jack used in cabinet work.—Philadelphia Ledger.

PROGRESSIVE AND FLOURISHING STATE OF ST. PAUL'S REVEALED AT ANNUAL MEETING

Reports Presented and Adopted—Board of Managers Appointed—E F. Mason on Protestant Home Board—Discussion on Employing Stenographer to Assist the Pastor.

The congregational gathering in St. Paul's church school room last evening to review the work of the year just closed and the hearing of reports from the various organizations affiliated with St. Paul's, was largely and most gratifyingly attended. From the many encouraging reports presented, it was apparent that St. Paul's church is enjoying a flourishing a prosperous state of affairs, and that each department is developing along most helpful and harmonious lines.

After the usual devotional exercises, conducted by the pastor, Mr. John Crane was appointed chairman for the evening.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were then read by the secretary W. H. Nelson and confirmed.

The reading of the reports was immediately proceeded with, the first being the report of the session and read by H. B. Cowan. Marked progress and success could be noted in the growth and energy of the church from the report and Sheriff Hall in commenting on it, remarked that the congregation and session had reason to felicitate themselves upon its general well-being, and especially along the lines of missionary progress.

He stated that he knew from personal conversation that some objections to the manner the Scripture had been expounded from the pulpit sometimes, and considered that such grumblings indicated a sign of life in the church. In the past four years he felt that the congregation had ample reason to be proud of spirtiual growth of the church, and for that reason considered that an appreciation of the pastor's services should be expressed for this noble work in working so untiringly for St. Paul's. He, therefore experienced much pleasure in proposing the following motion of thanks—

"That the congregation of St. Paul's, at this the fourth annual meeting since the induction of the pastor decide to put on record their hearty appreciation of his services to the church, and especially for his efforts in promoting the Forward Missionary movement in connection with mission work, the church feeling that the progress is largely due to the faithful efforts of the pastor."

T.A.S. Hay heartily endorsed the sentiment scontained in the vote, which was then conveyed to the pastor by the chairman.

The report of the Board of Management followed, read by Mr. John Crane which was chiefly the financial statement of the church's affairs R. E. Wood, moved the adoption of the report, at the same time urging an honest effort being put in practice to wipe out the church debt, next May.

It will be an easy matter to clear it off the slate, if mutual help were forthcoming."

The Sabbath school report given below was the next report, read by Wm Madill, superintendent.

ST. PAUL'S SABBATH SCHOOL REPORT FOR 1911.

In presenting this, our annual report of the Sabbath school work for the year 1911, we do so with a deep sense of gratitude to the Great Head of the church for the many blessings He has bestowed upon us in the performing of our duties as teachers and officers of the school.

There have been comparatively few changes in our teaching staff during the past year; the teachers have been exceedingly faithful in their work, and with a few exceptions, very regular in their attendance. The work of the whole school has been carried on in the most harmonious manner, each teacher and officer in their sphere contributing of time and service for the highest welfare of the school.

Our enrolment is the highest in the history of St. Paul's church, 493, with an average attendance of 295, as follows:—

	On roll	Av At.
Intermediate...	181	134
Adult Bible Class... ...	150	56
Young Men's Bible Class	30	10
Primary Class...	42	31
Kindergarten Class...	52	30
Teachers...	33	30
Officers...	5	4
Cradle roll...	55

During the year 28 members of the school became members of the church. At close of the year the Superintendent of the Primary Department promoted four classes to the Intermediate Department, two of boys and two of girls. Our space upstairs is now pretty fully occupied.

After the summer holidays Mr. H. B. Cowan took hold of our Young Men's Bible Class, and it now promises to be one of the best departments in the school; they have enrolled 30 with an attendance of about 20 each Sunday. We ask that all parents having young men in their homes will do what they can to encourage them to attend this class for the purpose of Bible study.

Early in the year the library was thoroughly revised by a competent committee and some new books added and a new catalogue issued, thereby putting the library in good form.

At the Christmas season the members of the school and Bible classes made their usual Christmas cheer gifts for the poor of the city. These were carefully distributed and did much to cheer the members of many a deserving family.

Our annual picnic to Clear Lake early in July proved to be a most enjoyable outing. The attendance of the members of the school was good, but by far too few of the parents.

Our missionary collections for the year have increased, and we have thereby been able to give more valuable assistance to the various schemes of the church. Amount collected $586.31, an increase of $77.

We have a class of 12 Chinamen in regular attendance, using the Bible as their text book in learning to read, During the year they contributed to missions $21.45.

In conclusion we ask that all parents give more attention and assistance to the home preparation of the lesson with their children. You will in this way greatly increase the efficiency of the teacher.

WM. MADILL,
Superintendent.

The following reports followed: Missionary Adult Bible Class, Ladies' Aid Society, Women's Foreign Missionary Society, Young People's Guild Fraser Mission Band, and Brotherhood of St. Paul.

Messrs. A. P. MacLean and W. H. Hill, were re-appointed auditors for thi syear.

BOARD OF MANAGERS

The appointment of a Board of Managers for the year followed, the following gentlemen being chosen: Robert Innis, Wm. Scott, T. H. Gillespie S. J. Keyes and John Crane.

D. H. Moore retired from the Board of Management this year, owing to pressure of duties.

Some other nominations for membership on the Board were J. C. Anderson, E. L. Goodwill, E. F. Mason, and W. A. Logan.

NO STENOGRAPHER

The proceedings were livened up a little at this stage when H. B. Brown brought up the the question of re-engaging the pastor's stenographer for another year. Mr. Cowan introduced a motion to the effect that she be engaged for the year and that the Board of Management look after the payment for her services. He felt that few people had any idea of the amount of work that devolved upon the pastro, and that, therefore, a stenographer's services were essential to him.

Mr. Ferguson immediately objected to the proposal. He did not see why Mr. Pogue required a stenographer.

"We won't engage one unless we are supplied with funds to pay her" said Mr. Ferguson. The argument became a little warm, when Wm Madill arose and heartily endorsed Mr. Cowan's motion for the engagement of a stenographer.

Mr. Ferguson moved in amendment that she be not engaged, A. P. MacLean seconding his motion.

Words commenced to flow thick and fast on the disputed question. H. B. Cowan urged strongly his point volunteering to double his giving to the church if others would, to enable a stenographer being employed.

Mr Ferguson here interposed with the remark that he thought it was a matter for the session, but Mr. J. C. Shook contradicted him. The latter suggested consolidating the book-keeping of the church, feeling that it would answer for all general purposes.

R. E. Wood took a hand in the question by saying that it might be possible to pay a stenographer by cutting salaries, unless the cost of her salary was added to the deficit of the church.

The dispute became so annoying to the pastor, that at this point he arose and stated he wished to end the controversy immediately.

"The engagement of my stenographer was not intended to thereby give me an easy time, but to enable me to devote more time to the ministry. It is my testimony, if I may call it such that I am liberated one-fifth of my time thereby for the very work that a minister ought to do.

it may surprise you to know, continued the pastor that there is no congregation in the Persbytery that pays per member so small a salary to their pastor as does that of St. Paul's So you see you are not killing yourselves in supporting your pastor. I have never felt that the congregation were burdening themselves by employing a stenographer. Yet I can say this, that at the close of this the 4th year of my ministry here, I am happier than I ever have been. I have made 1151 visits this year and I have accepted the testimony of these as to the helpfulness of my ministry.

"However, I wish this subject to drop and the discussion of such a paltry sum. "Why there are many men in this congregation who could put their hand in their pocket and pay the paltry sum of $2'0 themselves," concluded the pastor.

Mr. Cowan, after hearing the pastor, stated that he would withdraw his motion, but hoped the matter would not be dropped.

"No, please don't put it that way" interrupted the pastor. "I want the matter dropped for ever."

MR E. F. MASON APPOINTED.

When Mr. Richard Hall moved the appointment of Mr. J. B. McWilliams to the Protestant Home Board as the representative of St. Paul's church, another discussion occurred. W. G. Ferguson moved that E. F. Mason be appointed as the representative, as the representative has to be a member of the church. Mr. R. E. Wood remarked that the charter required the representative to be a citizen, not a member.

A legal discussion occurred on the question between W. J. Bennett and R. E. Wood on which was right.

The chairman put it to a vote and Mr Mason secured the appointment.

The pastor closed the meeting with a few words in reference to his kindly associations with the congregation. He expressed his pleasure and happiness at being permitted to mention it to them. He urged personal work by the members of the congregation, whom he felt were in much better position to benefit their business associates than was the pastor.

The meeting closed with devotional exercises.

A FIELD DAY IN PETERBOROUGH

According to advices received from the Dominion Alliance, Toronto, a great deal of interest is being awakened in the Field Day which is to be observed in Peterboro County on Sunday next.

On Monday afternoon and evening live issues will be discussed at the Convention in this city. The Liquor License Act, is by no means a perfect piece of legislation and needed improvements in it will be dealt with. It is almost certain that the Government will be again approached with a view to securing some amendments which experience has shown to be urgently required. Law enforcement is a subject which is also looming up large and it will receive considerable attention. As 460 municipalities will be free from bar-rooms after 1st of May next, the Provincial situation is becoming one of very great interest, and an exposition of this will be passed under review. The time is drawing near, when another Local Option contest can be held in the city of Peterboro, and the convention will probably decide whether any action should be taken now.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST CHURCH HAD GOOD YEAR

Gifts to Missions in Advance of Other Years — Some New Elections.

The annual meeting of Murray street church was a large and enthusiastic gathering last night. The attendance was probably the largest in the history of the church.

Reports from fifteen organizations of the church were presented and adopted. In every case the report showed a splendid year's work and in the matter of finance a considerable increase over former years. One gratifying fact called forth the hearty applause of the meeting. When the figures were placed on the blackboard it was seen that this year had passed former years by a considerable sum in gifts to missions.

Murray street church was always been conspicuous for its generous gifts for missionary purposes and it was indeed a satisfaction to note that the building enterprise had not hindered the onward progress of that department.

The report of the treasurer, Mr. T. F. Matthews, also indicated an improvement on other years.

The chairman of the Finance Committee, Mr. D. Thompson, was re-elected and complimented on his splendid year of service.

Rev. J. R. Webb has completed his fifth year of his pastorate and cannot but be encouraged by the hearty and unanimous way in which this church has followed his leadership and is coming to its own in this rapidly growing city.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The following officers were elected:

To serve as deacons for three years—R. White, R. Harding, John Riddell. This makes a deaconate of eleven, including two life deacons.

Clerk—Mr. Gilbert Pringle.

Assistant—Miss Edith Smith.

Treasurer—Mr. T. F. Matthews.

Chairman of Finance Committee—Chief Thompson.

The following additions were made to the Finance Commmittee:—C. B. Routley, Thos. McCeachie, Joseph Dought, Dr. Morgan.

Treasurer of Fellowship Fund—Dr. W. D. Scott.

Representative of Nicholls Hospital Board.—W. Aldridge.

Representative to Protestant Home Board—Dr. Morgan.

Representative to Charity Board—P. White.

PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS

Dr. G. D. Porter Will Address Public Meeting Here on Question

The Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis has been doing a great educational work throughout the Dominion during the past few years by the free distribution of literature and the delivery of lectures to the public regarding the methods of preventing consumption.

The secretary, Dr. George D. Poeter, is to address a public meeting upon this subject in the Collegiate Institute on the evening of Jan. 30th, at eight o'clock.

Dr. Porter has addressed large meetings from one end of Canada to the other, and everywhere the press speaks very highly of his lectures. The experiences of his life have peculiarly fitted him for this work, while his platform ability is of a high order.

He is a talcuted speaker, and presents this important subject in a popular and most attractive manner. As this subject is one touching the health of all, and as the lecture is free to the public, we trust that there will be a full house on Tuesday evening.

THE ROMANCE OF CANADIAN WEST

Knox Congregation Hoard Interesting Address by Former Member

Mr. William Shea, a former elder of Knox church, addressed the regular mid-week service last evening, relating in a most graphic and interesting manner some of his experiences in the West. As a settler and citizen Mr. Shea has been in the thick of the progress of the West and has witnessed in the vicinity of his home in the West, rapid strides and growth in the settlement of the country. Mr. Shea told of following for days a team of oxen on long trails; of living in a mud hut; of the advent of the railway, and the succeeding growth in values of property, until its present vigorous state, in bright and entertaining language.

There was a fairly good attendance at the meeting.

SPECIAL SERIES OF QUESTIONS

Special sermons will be preached at the evening services of Park street church commencing next Sunday, in order to try and answer several questions, which have found their way lately into the pastor's question boxes, inquiring about the religious indifferentism of the present day, and the existence of so many different denominations. The subjects will be as follows:

Jan. 29—Did Christ establish one or two churches?

Feb. 4th—Does the Church of Christ exist to-day?

Feb. 11th—Where can this church be found?

Feb. 18th—Of whom is it composed?

Bright Liners on Athletic Topics

1912 HOLDER OF GRAND CHALLENGE CUP WILL BE DECIDED TO-NIGHT

The annual bonspiel, now in progress at the curling rink, has passed into the semi-final stage, the semi-final primary games being played off this morning, and the consolation semi-finals this afternoon. The outside rinks, particularly Keene, Claremont and Cobourg, are becoming large in the contest, but they will have a stiff proposition in trying to get over the local rinks. The winners of the cup and prizes in the primary contest will be decided to-night.

The prizes to be won in this competition are on exhibition in the windows of Mr. R. Neil's shoe establishment, and are well worth winning. The winners of the primary competition, besides getting the cup for a year, will receive four solid leather club bags. The second prize for the primary competition consists of four solid brass jardiniere stands. There are three prizes for the winners' consolation games, the first prize being four silver dishes, the second prize four carving sets, and the third, four Varsity sweater coats. The local club is to be congratulated on this array of valuable prizes, which are sure to be appreciated by the lucky rinks.

The games so far have resulted as follows:

PRIMARY COMPETITION.

CONSOLATION.

First Round.

In the first round of the Consolation Connal and Wightman beat the Norwood rinks. "Pete" Lang fell before Smith, of Oshawa, while McDermid had one shot lead over Luke, of Oshawa.

Oshawa. Luke, 8	Hastings Fisher, 15
Peterborough. Fitzgerald, 13	Peterborough. McDermid, 10
Neill, 15	Harstone, 6
Peterborough.	Keene.

Second Round.

Davidson, 12	Teal (Claremont) 11
Keene. Wigmore, 8	Keene. McWilliams, 15

Harstone won from Howson and Sturgeon disposed of the Moher quartet from Cobourg. Father O'Sullivan won by the default of the Peterborough rink.

In the second round Connal continued to win and finished 5 up against Wightman. Smith, of Oshawa, beat McDermid, and Sturgeon was 4 to the good against Harstone. The O'Sullivan-Davidson game did not materialize, and McFadden, of Lindsay, and Fisher, of Hastings, won by default. This was the standing up to last night:

On the draw this morning, Dr. McMcWilliams, of Keene, defeated N— of Claremont, and Giroux after being to all indications, beaten by Allen, of Cobourg, came out ahead b 2 shots. Allan had a good lead of 8 shots, but bad judgment gave Giroux a 5 end and he finally won out.

Fitzgerald had an easy win from Maitland by 6 shots and McIlroy dropped off on hoodoo No. 1 rink, when Matthews handed a 17—5 victory.

AFTERNOON DRAW.

The draw for this afternoon was McWilliams vs. Giroux and Fitzgerald vs. Matthews. The winners will meet to-night in the finals, on the result of which rests the possession of the Grand Challenge Cup.

CONSOLATION.

Davidson of Peterborough, defeated Father O'Sullivan, of Port Hope, with 5 shots, and Bessie, of Claremont, won out by 4 from Wigmore, of Keene. Davidson and Bessie will draw for this afternoon and with the other consolations decided the final will be played to-night.

FRED TAYLOR WAS SO BAD AGAINST WANDERERS, OTTAWA DITCHED HIM

Montreal, Jan. 24.—After having more than an even break of the play in the first period of the game against Ottawa to-night, Wanderers went completely to pieces in the remaining periods of play and received a well-deserved drubbing from the Senators, the final score standing at 10 to 6 for the visitors.

The feature was the playing of Taylor, the bone of prolonged contention between Wanderers and Ottawa. The "Cyclone" played for Ottawa for the first period of the match, and if he had remained on the ice it is not at all improbable that the locals would have walked away with the victory in almost as easy style as Ottawa actually did. Taylor was at cover-point when the game started, with Shore at point, and the result of the change from Lake to Taylor was the complete disorganization of the defence of the champions, and it was a wise move that pulled him from the game and put Lake back in his old position at the beginning of the second half, for with the old line-up working smoothly the champions fairly swamped the Wanderers, and after pulling down the two-point lead Wanderers had gained in the first period, travelled right ahead, piling up the points, allowing the locals through only one more for a tally.

ROYAL-COMMERCE FAILED TO SCORE

Were Given Bad Trouncing by Dom-Montreal Team

In a Bank League game at Brock street rink last night the Dominion-Montreal combination whitewashed the Royal-Commerce aggregation by the score of 16—0. The game was a runaway from the start, and the losers in desperation changed the positions of their men after each goal but they could not stop Dominion-Montreal bunch nor break through their defence. Cook and Elliott did most of the net pounding for the winners. The teams were:

Dominion-Montreal.		Royal-Commerce.
	Goal
Hatton		McCartney
	Point
Fitzgerald		Hatton
	Cover
Tobin		Eastwood
	Left
Cook		Heard
	Right
Grant		Harper

BOYER OF THE FRONTENACS HURT

Argonauts Were Beaten at Kingston by Score of 6-2

Kingston, Ont., Jan. 25—Frontenacs won their third successive victory in the senior O.H.A. series by defeating Toronto Argonauts last night by 6 to 2, in a sharp and exciting game in which Boyer, of Frontenacs, received an injury to his collarbone, which may keep him out of the game for the balance of the season. The accident occurred after 20 minutes play in the first half. Gilbert retired with Boyer to even up the teams. At half-time the score was 1 to 0 in favor of Frontenacs, Crawford having scored from a face-off in front of Argonauts' goal.

THE CHALLENGE IS ACCEPTED

The Big Six Wheelers of the Dominion Express Company, accept the challenge of the Small Four Wheelers to a game of hockey to be played at Brock street rink. It must be understood that all players to be bonified express employes. If this is satisfactory to the Canadian Express Company management, Mr. Skitch might release one of his homing pigeons with instructions to fly over to the Dominion Express Company's office where he can make the necessary arrangements.

THE RING

Instead of tackling Jim Flynn alone next July, it is likely that Champion Jack Johnson will meet both the Fireman and Palzer, considered to be the best of the "white hopes" on the same day. According to a despatch from New Haven, Conn., promoters in that state have made a proposition to Johnson to take on the two men for fifteen rounds each and have offered him $50,000, for his end. This is a little better than the amount he is to receive for fighting Flynn in Nevada, where $31,000 has been hung up. The New Haven proposition is as follows—

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 25— Local sporting promoters have asked the local police here for "tentative sanction" for a boxing bout in which Jack Johnson, the champion, will meet Jim Flynn and Al Palzer on the same afternoon, each bout to be fifteen rounds. It is proposed to hold the sessions at a near-by summer resort on July 4. The promoters say they have offered Johnson as his share a guarantee of $50,000.

HOCKEY

Madoc was defeated in Stirling last night, the score reading 9—1.

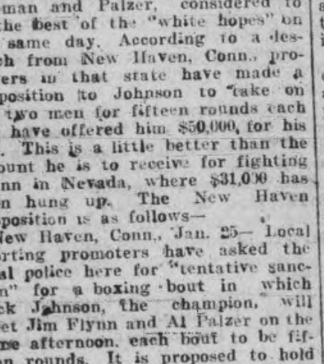
T.A.S. go to Havelock to-morrow night to play a Trent Valley League game.

BASEBALL

Ottawa, Jan. 25—Fears that Ottawa would not be able to secure the services of Frank Shaughnessy as manager of its new ball club in the Canadian League, were removed Monday when Shaughnessy returned from a Southern scouting expedition, and expects to secure his release in a few days. Shaughnessy, while away, signed six or seven fast players for the Ottawa team. He is communicating with Secretary Robinson, of the Canadian League and expects to have the Ottawa franchise cinched within a week or two.



WOMAN ESCAPES OPERATION

Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Elwood, Ind.—"Your remedies have cured me and I have only taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was sick three months and could not walk. I suffered all the time. The doctors said I could not get well without an operation, for I could hardly stand the pains in my sides, especially my right one, and down my right leg. I began to feel better when I had taken only one bottle of Compound, but kept on as I was afraid to stop too soon."—Mrs. SADIE MULLEN, 2728 N. B. St., Elwood, Ind.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be absolutely confidential, and the advice free.

CLAIMS ANNUITIES ARE INADEQUATE

in England, but was not prepared to adopt its applicability to Canada. There was no pauperism here, no "army of unemployed."

The annuity system, he thought, a more important question. It had worked well so far, though inadequately advertised.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster denied that the Government were luke-warm on the annuities scheme. Everything would be done to push it.

Hon. H. R. Emmerson feared that very little would be done with the annuities under the postmasters of the country.

Hon. Charles Murphy enquired if there was any modification to the specification for the printing of Dominion bank notes and stamps.

Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, answered that the specifications were modeled very much as in 1896, and while the tenders were open to the world, yet the work must be done in Ottawa.

Thereupon a little breeze stirred the calm when Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux asked if the specifications made any provision for the printing of bank notes and stamps in French.

Hon. Mr. White answered in the negative.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux: What, then, have you done in council? You will have to square yourself with the two gentlemen on your right (Hons. Pelletier and Monk). They and their friends have crucified Sir Wilfrid and myself for the reason that we have not had those bank notes printed in French."

Hon. Mr. Foster: Mr. Speaker, the hon. gentleman is making a speech.

Hon. Mr. White: The contract is wide enough to include any wording that may be decided upon.

Hon. F. D. Monk, in answer to a question, stated that the subsidy agreement with the Grand Trunk Pacific as to the proposed dry dock at Prince Rupert, was signed on Nov. 30 last, the work to be completed within two years.

The average rate of interest payable on the public debt, the Minister of Finance informed Mr. Sinclair, was 3,398 per cent. (as on Dec. 31 last).

Mr. Carvell was informed that Oliver Asselin of Montreal had been appointed on the recommendation of the Minister of the Interior to investigate the workings of some immigration agencies in Europe, at a salary of $150 per month for four months.

CANALEJAS EXPLAINS.

Spanish Crisis Is Accounted For by Incredible Story.

Madrid, Jan. 24.—The unexpected and mysterious crisis appears to have ended as abruptly and inexplicably as it began. Premier Canalejas, on leaving the birthday reception at the palace yesterday, told the reporters that the King had just questioned him about the reports of his resignation and had asked to be informed upon the exact situation.

The Premier answered that he knew nothing about the matter except that his fall had been announced everywhere, and added that for his part, in view of the persistence of the reports, he was quite disposed to quit.

The King, however, said that he would not hear of such a thing. Premier Canalejas declared to the newspaper men that the reports in question were fabricated in the lobbies of the Chambers and that Parliament would resume its labors normally to-day.

The Premier's statement has been received with incredulity. The general conviction is that something really happened, but an unfavorable impression was created on public opinion by the unexpected news of the fall of the Cabinet, and for some unknown reasons all idea of a Ministerial change has been abandoned.

Rutherford Page, a wealthy young Yale graduate, fell 150 feet from a flying machine at Los Angelos just after getting an aviator's license, and was killed.

THE OPPOSITIONIST.

He Is a Very Happy Care-Free Chap These Days.

The Oppositionist filled his well-cushioned armchair in the hotel rotunda like a sagged-down heap of humanity and overcoat, and the whole suggested a man taking his ease in his inn and not worrying about his digestion or the worst the clerk could do with his bill, says a writer in a humorous sketch in The Montreal Standard. He had just had his lunch, his mid-day meal which, if he were at home in Bunkerville, he would call dinner; and now in the laziest posture permissible in a hotel rotunda, he was enjoying his after-dinner smoke.

Now was the psychological moment for learning the man's thoughts respecting the change in his political fortune. How did he like being an Oppositionist, and how did the job compare with the other one of which he had been deprived by circumstances over which he had no control?

After offering him the greetings due a member of Parliament, in which politeness takes precedence over truth, and which inform him that everybody is pleased to see him back because his country needs his services. I ventured to propose my question—How did he like being an Oppositionist, and how did it compare with the other role?

"Sit down," said he. "Here, light up," and he handed me a cigar, which as it burned away I perceived was not quite up to the standard of quality of those he used to smoke when his seat was at the right of the Speaker. Perhaps there are Ministerial and Opposition cigars, as well as Ministerial and Opposition politics.

Through the cigar smoke we discussed the position of an Oppositionist, as one was able to see it after the smoke of the battle of the ballots had somewhat cleared away.

"How do I like being an Oppositionist?" said he. "Right here, within sight is your answer. You see me here, holding down this chair with as much ease and serenity as if I were a country hotelkeeper, and you see that fellow across there with a sort of factory made smile working over his countenance, trying to talk to six excited but very insistent men, and all the time skilfully edging them towards the door, so that a quick flank movement will enable him to escape to the street.

Well, the difference between my ease and the nothing I am doing, and his distress and care, indicates the difference between the life of an Oppositionist and that of a Ministerialist.

"That man is the Government supporter from the second riding of our country. I ate my lunch in peace, and peace followed me to my chair out here, where I am enjoying my cigar. He had to take three of his constituents to lunch, and the moment he stuck his nose outside the dining-room door he ran into an ambuscade composed of more constituents, each of whom wants something from the Government, and which their member, of course, must obtain for them — or incur their everlasting enmity and the enmity too of all their uncles, their cousins and their aunts.

When I was a Ministerialist I dreaded going home from Ottawa. I used to drop off the rear of the train and dodge across lots and through gardens, and get into the house by the woodshed, but after a time the honest and independent office and contract-seekers discovered my stratagem, and began to waylay me.

Now I alight at the station platform, swing up the main street as free as a schoolboy home for a holiday. The honest and independent electors now know I can do nothing to get 'Cousin Bill' a place in the customs house, or help to sell 'Uncle Josh's' timber to the Department of Public Works. So far as these matters are concerned I am a man who has been. I have lost influence, but I have also been relieved of a thousand and one annoyances.

Could Do That.

Col. Sam Hughes, who has made the awful discovery that swords imported from England, are really "made in Germany" is the sponsor of the following anecdote. It shows the extraordinary opinion some people hold concerning the public service. One of the gallant Colonel's constituents, who had been for some years a more or less eccentric character and was once confined in an asylum, called on him a few days ago. Col. Hughes courteously granted an interview, and his visitor said: "Well, Colonel, you've known me for years, and you know I'm generally thought to be crazy."

The Colonel nodded a smiling assent. "Well, what can I do for you?" he asked.

"Well," retorted the visitor, "I feel quite sure I could hold down a Government job!"—Saturday Night.

Doubles.

Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, and Mr. J. R. L. Starr, the Toronto lawyer, were in Ottawa recently on the same day; and it is said they were mistaken for each other several times. They are of about the same age and build, and have the same white, curly hair, and ruddy, healthy countenance.

Mr. McBride, however, has "a little on" his double. His hair is a little whiter, a little curlier, and a little longer. He is also a shade taller and a shade stouter. His manner, too, is a trifle more dramatic.

Nasty, Mean Man.

At a certain Ontario educational institution the "freshman" girls of this college year are said to be less noted for beauty than for intellect. The men and girl students had their first meeting as a body at a masked ball. A student, whose chief virtue is not gallantry, was asked how he had enjoyed himself at the ball.

"Well," he said, "I liked it all right till the girls took off their masks."

HEART DISEASE CURED

Kingston Girl Saved by "Fruit-a-tives"

Heart Weakness and Heart Irritation are the common outgrowth of Indigestion. Gas is formed in the stomach and this accumulation of gas bulges out the walls of the stomach and presses against the heart. Palpitation, pain over the heart, and sometimes a feeling of smothering and dizziness, all are caused by the stomach and not because of any organic heart disease.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always cure this weak, irritated condition of the heart by curing the stomach.

I was treated by physicians and took many remedies, but nothing did me any good. Then I began taking "Fruit-a-tives", and this medicine completely cured me of all the heart trouble, constipation and indigestion, and gave me back perfect health." (Miss) MABLE TODD.

REPLENISH SEALS IN FIFTEEN YEARS

Plan for Preservation of Herds at Pribyloff Group in Alaska

Washington, Jan 25— Representative Edward E. Townsend's plan for the preservation of the seal herds in the Pribyioff group, in Alaska, has been accepted by the Committee on Foreign Affairs of the House and will be presented to the House as an amendment to the bill recommended by the state department. The bill would limit the slaughter of male seals to 6,000 a year for five years; 7,500 a year for the next five years and 10,000 annually for a period of five years following. At the expiration of 15 years new regulations are to be adopted.

The belief was expressed by experts and the committee that at the en dof 15 years the depleted seal herds will be restored to their old size. The United States forbids pelagic sealing and it is expected the proposed bill will demonstrate to Russia Japan and Great Britain that pelagic sealing was responsible for the terrible slaughter of the seals and the consequent diminution of the herds. The bill will be reported to the House to-morrow.

STRATEGIST SAYS JAPAN DOMINATES THE PACIFIC

She Could Defeat Americans and Humiliate Americans

London, Jan. 25.—Dr. T. W. Miller Maguire, British strategic expert, last night held a large audience at the Royal Colonian Institute deeply interested in his lectur con "The New Pacific." He dealt at length on the power of the Japanese and said Japan was Great Britain's ally only so long as the British alliance was worth having.

"I consider," he said, "that the British possessions in the Pacific Ocean are by no means safe. Moreover, the Japanese might attack and defeat the Americans any day."

Describing the Pacific Ocean as the "strategic centre of mankind," he expressed the belief that Japan could take the Phillipines from the Americans with just as much ease as the Americans defeated the Spaniards in 1898, and pointed out that there were excuses for a quarrel with the complications now pending.

The sea forces and the land forces at present maintained in the Pacific by all the European States put together, he remarked, would not suffice to prevent the yellow race from inflicting a grievous humiliation on New Zealand and Australia.

RICHESON MAY NOT LIVE TO DIE IN CHAIR

Has Failed Rapidly Since His Attempt at Suicide

Boston, Mass., Jan. 25— "Clarence V. T. Richeson is a dying man," was the announcement made to newspaper men by Sheriff Quinn, keeper of the Charles street jail, where the prisoner is now awaiting sentence of death for the slaying of Avis Linnell, Quinn also declared he doubted very much, if Richeson could live until May 19, the date set for the electrocution.

Since Richeson committed his act of self mutilation, he has failed rapidly. This afternoon, five members of the city council who had visited Richeson this morning, all said that he was in very poor physical condition, and several of them declared that they did not believe he could live more than a month.

PURIFYING A STATE RIVER

Pennsylvania, the favorite hunting ground of the muckraker, actually has a health department with four thousand employes, every one of whom is holding his job, not by order of the "organization," but solely by the saving grace of fitness and industry, which is disbursing millions of dollars and receiving full value for every nickel. And the results that the four thousand have accomplished and are still acheiving are impressive and inspiring.

While some folks thought a health department was a good thing to make other people behave themselves, they resented any attempt to interfere with their won liberty to do as they pleased. Thus, when twenty hogs died of cholera their owner refused to bury them. When the department of health notified him to abate the nuisance he allowed that he would do as he darn pleased on his own land. It required a fine of twenty-five dollars to induce him to revise his opinion.

This was bad enough for an uneducated farmer; but that is to be said of a manufacturing town, which, upon being ordered to make certain changes in its water supply, engaged a lawyer to fight the department's order, then sent a deputation accompanied by the lawyer to protest to the commissoiner, Dr. Dixon. Dr. Dixon waited until the deputation was out of breath, then produced data from his own engineers, who had measured the flow of the stream that supplied the town with water. The intake of the water-works was just a little dam on one side of the stream while a sewer discharged on the opposite bank. The engineers' measurements proved that the stream did not furnish water enough to supply the town if it had not been reenforced by the sewage pouring into the pond. The deputation turned pale and wobbled at the knees upon receiving this disquieting information. They had not another word to say. Dr. Dixon thereupon dismissed his callers with a funny story; but somehow, though the laugh came in the proper place, it seemed to lack spontaneity and sprightliness. The changes ordered were made with alacrity. — From "Saving 27,000 Lives in One State," Technical World Magazine.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.

Recommend From Texas Farmer

Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.,
Marshall, Mich.

Gentlemen:—

I feel it my duty to let you, and also all people afflicted as I was, know what your Appliance has done for me. I have been ruptured for many years and have worn many different trusses, but never got any relief until I got your Appliance. I put it on last November, but had very little faith in it, but must say I am now cured. I have laid it away—have had it off for two weeks and doing all kinds of farm work with ease. While I was wearing it, I had lagrippe and coughed a great deal but it held all right. Words cannot express my gratitude towards you and your Appliance. Will recommend it to all ruptured people.

Yours sincerely,
Bald Prairie, Texas. J. E. LONG.

Others Failed But the Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON

Cured At the Age of 76.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,
Jamestown, N.C. SAM A. HOOVER

Child Cured In Four Months.

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa
Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

Gentlemen:— The baby's rupture is altogether cured, thanks to your appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly
Andrew Eggenberger.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send For Brooks Rupture Appliance.

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

MOB HANGED NEGRO WOMAN AND THREE MEN

Were Taken From Jail—Bodies Riddled With Bullets

Hamilton, Ga., Jan. 24—A mob of a hundred men broke into the Harris County jail here, overpowered Jailer E. M. Rabbitson, and took four negroes, three men and one woman, out and hanged them to trees one mile from town. The bodies were riddled with bullets. It is estimated that three hundred shots were fired.

The negroes were arrested yesterday charged with the murder of Norman Hadley, a well-to-do farmer. Hadley was killed Sunday night as he sat in his home, a shot being fired from the outside.

The blacks were tenants of the Hadley farm. The negroes protested their innocence to the last.

No motive for the killing of Hadley, who was very popular, is known.

LIFE POSSIBLE ON VENUS BUT MARS IS TOO COLD

Theory of Life on Planet Mars Untenable

London, Jan. 24.—E. Walter Maunder, F.R.A.S., reading before the Philosophical Society of Great Britain, said he had decided that the theory of life on Mars was untenable, as the temperature on that planet often approached absolute zero.

Venus was possibly inhabited, said Mr. Maunder, for though it received twice as much light and heat from the sun as it did the earth, it was possible that the immense amount of vapor with which its atmosphere was filled might preserve a temperature low enough to make life possible.

Mr. Maunder, who is superintendent of the Solar Department of the Royal Observatory at Greenwich, assumed that Venus rotated like the earth in twenty-four hours, in opposition to other astronomers, who believe that it is like the moon, and presents the same face always to the sun.

Meek Man

Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Everybody who has had any experience with marriage knows that the word "obey" is not necessary so far as the man is concerned, and is merely a matter of conventionality so far as the woman is concerned. The woman may promise to obey, but it is the man who does obey. He obeys not because of any marriage ceremony, but partly because he must, and largely because he finds that it is good for him.

OPARATION FOR APPENDICITIS IS NOW SIMPLIFIED

Patient Can Leave Bed 24 Hours After the Operation

Cleveland, Jan. 25—Operations for appendicitis thought to have been perfected several years ago when one and a half inch incisions were found to be adequate, have been still further simplified according to announcement made to surgeons of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine. This sets forth than an incision of but three-fourths of an inch is necessary permitting the patient to leave the bed within 24 hours after the operation.

Description of the operation is given in the Cleveland Journal of Medicine, just issued. Briefly, it reads, A short incision is made over the appendix. No muscle or fibres are cut. These are instead separated just enough to admit the introduction of the index finger with which a careful examination is made of all the structures within reach.

"After examination has verified the diagnosis, the appendix is brought to the surface with the hooked index finger. After the appendix is delivered the rest of the operation is easy."

The Sikhs and Their Wives

Toronto Star.

I do not know much about the Sikhs, but I know something about marriage and feel convinced that a married Sikh with a wife and baby in his cottage will be a far better Sikh and a far decenter Canadian citizen than a glowering, morose and wronged Sikh leading a lonely life and disapproving of all he sees around him. The man should not be here if his wife is not. The arrangement is an impossible one, unjust and immoral. It would be better to treat those fairly who are here and restrict further immigration The reason for excluding others would be largely economic and, in a way, defensible; the reason for excluding the lawful wife of a man who is here is openly racial, while the refusal to let a man who is here marry a barbarous according to the whole theory of our civilization and bound to result in evil one way or another.

OPPOSE EXTRA PAY FOR N. T. R. BOARD

Conservative Members think They Have Already Been Amply Paid.

Opposition Urged Govt. to Grant Retiring Members Gratuity.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—Quite a lively debate took place when the House was in committee on Hon. Frank Cochrane's Transcontinental Railway bill, Opposition members urging that the members of the commission. whose resignations had been demanded, should be allowed three months' salary as compensation. The Minister said he would consider the matter. One of the commissioners had resigned unconditionally, one had asked three months and the other six months' holidays.

Arthur Meighen (Portage la Prairie) was opposed to compensation. If the offices had been abolished, it was evidently because the commissioners had not been worth what the country was paying.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier defended the late commissioners. They had done splendid service.

J. H. Sinclair (Guysboro) went further and even talked of their "care in the expenditure of money," a phrase which was greeted by Government groans.

Mr. Meighen retorted by alleging some instances which had occurred before the public accounts committee the session before last. A leading Liberal lawyer of Winnipeg, he declared, had charged a minimum fee for passing all torrens titles for land purchased by the commissioners. Not only this, but he was allowed by the commissioners to divide up sections so as to mutiply his fees.

Single fees were $600 and $400. The average was six times the usual charge.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier defended the fees charged.

Dr. Clark (Red Deer) thought Mr. Meighen was trying to base a widespreading charge on trivial details. He commended the Government to walk in the way of the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Foster), to whom had been confided "the guidance of their infant footsteps in the pathway of Cabinet duty." Even he, who looked into the "cheese-parings and candle-ends" of his Department had thought it right to do justice to the annuities' lectures.

W. S. Middlebro (N. Grey) recalled the fact that the chief engineer of the commission, Mr. Lumsden, had resigned because in one section alone, he said, $2,700,000 had been paid out to contractors by over-classification of loose earth and rock as solid rock. When his successor went over the road he reported disclassification, and in section F. J. D. McArthur had voluntarily reduced the amount he had claimed by $360,000. "And his $360,000," Mr. Middlebro continued, "the commissioners had approved against the consent of their own chief engineer, Mr. Lumsden. Now, in the face of this, have any men the right to come to us and say "give us something to which we are not legally entitled?'"

E. M. MacDonald (Pictou) defended the late commissioners on the ground of high character, and deprecated Engineer Lumsden's reliability.

Hon. Frank Cochrane promised Sir Wilfrid Laurier to bring down a return showing the number of miles constructed and when the road would be completed, before the third reading of the bill. The leader of the Opposition agreed to this, but Hugh

"NE TEMERE" DECREE WILL BE WITHDRAWN FROM CANADA

Report From Montreal Says That The Pope Will Take Such Action Shortly

Toronto, Jan. 26.—The Mail and Empire to-day publishes a special dispatch from Montreal as follows;

The near future will see the "ne temere" decree withdrawn, in so far as it applies to Canada. Your correspondent is in a position to make this statement with absolute confidence. It is based upon information the accuracy of which is not open to question.

Steps have already been initiated, and are now in progress, the success of which will remove the vexed question of the validity of mixed marriages from the field of practical consideration in this country. The appeal is being made direct to the Vatican, and to his Holiness the Pope personally, and is known to have the endorsation and support of eminent adherents of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada.

There is good reason for believing that a decree will be issued by the Pope withdrawing the "ne temere" decree from operation in Canada—as was done in the case of Germany—before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has passed upon the constitutionality of the Lancaster Bill.

The result will be that the "ne te mere" decree will cease to be an issue in Canada, irrespective of any Federal legislation. The right which the Lancaster Bill is designed to assert will no longer be subjected to attack, and the necessity for the bill itself will be removed.

The representations which are being made to the Vatican with the above object in view are backed by an exceedingly powerful element in Canadian society, both ecclesiastical and lay, and carry with them such weight as to practically assure their success. The withdrawal of the decree seems, therefore, to be a question of time only, and the time is not expected to be long.

NO AGREEMENT BY CANCEL DEBT OF COUNTY TO THE GOVERNMENT

Mr. Stratton Promised to Wipe Out $3,000 Indebtedness of Peterborough Council When Laurier Government Took Over Buckhorn Bridge.

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—A very awkward situation has arisen over the failure of the Laurier Government to carry out its promises to the county of Peterborough ,made at the time of the great celebration on the taking over of the Buckhorn bridge, on June 22 of last year. J. R. Stratton then promised the county to cancel its three thousand dollar indebtedness in regard to the bridge, but failed to carry out his promise. Now the present government can find no agreement of the late government to do so.

PRIEST'S MARRIAGE ASSAILED BY EDITOR OF CATHOLIC PAPER

Daughter of the Late Charles Chiniquy Sues for $10,000 Damages — The Quebec Law.

Montreal, Jan. 26.—The question whether a sacredotal vow of chastity such as that taken by members of the Roman Catholic priesthood constitutes, as far as the Quebec civil law is concerned, an inpediment to marriage is one which was referred for resolution before the judge of merits as a result of a ruling handed down by Mr. Justice Beaudin in the Chiniquy-Begin case yesterday.

In this case the plaintiff, the wife of Prof. Morin of McGill, and daughter of the late Charles Chiniquy, a Roman Catholic priest, who deserted the church and devoted the remainder of his life to attacks upon his former faith, is suing the editor of a local Catholic journal for $10,000 damages owing to the publication of an article which questioned the validity of the marriage of Charles Chiniquy on the ground of his vow of chastity on joining the priesthood, and thus incidentally reflected on the plaintiff, his daughter.

The defendant filed a defence to the plaintiff's claims and yesterday afternoon the plaintiff sought an inscription in law to have the defence set aside as inadequate and ill-founded. The presiding justice thereupon ordered that the discussion of the merits of the respective pleas entered be thrown over to the judge of merits for judicial pronouncement, the editor claiming that under the Quebec civil law, the marriage of the late Charles Chiniquy must be considered invalid.

Disorders In Brazil.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 26.—The political struggle has broken out afresh at Bahia, to which port the Federal Government two weeks ago was compelled to despatch a warship to quell the disturbances. There has been renewed violence throughout the city and considerable fighting in the streets. The newspapers are opposing the candidacy of Dr. J. J. Seabra, the Minister of Public Works, for the governorship of the state. Residences have been burned and looted and trade is at a standstill.

A similar state of affairs is reported at Fortaleza, capital of the State of Ceara, and the situation is considered grave.

TO INVESTIGATE FREIGHT RATES

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—H. W. Whitla of Winnipeg, who has been appointed counsel to represent the public in the investigation into the charges of discrimination against the west in freight rates, has been in Ottawa for the past couple of days, conferring with the Government and the Railway Commissioners. Mr. Whitla was closeted all day yesterday with the commissioners; considerable data which has already been collected was reviewed, and plans for the coming campaign were made.

Mr. Whitla left for Montreal last night, where he will spend a couple of more days gathering information before going west. The first sitting of the commission will be Feb. 13 in Ottawa.

COUNSEL RUEL IS CANDID

Ottawa, Jan. 26.—"A member of Parliament often goes to Sir William Mackenzie and asks for a line of railway through his constituency," said Gerard Ruel, counsel for the Canadian Northern yesterday in discussion in the railway committee of a western bill.

"Sir William," he added, "comes to his law department. and asks: 'Have we a charter there?' If we have not, he asks: 'Well, why in —— haven't you?' So we try and get them."

This was cited as a reason for passing a C.N.R. bill in Manitoba, where the members and people are pressing for a line. The bill passed.

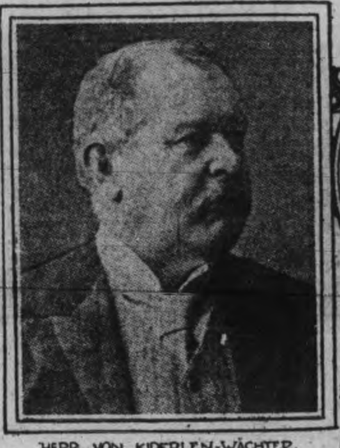
FRANCE IS ROUSED BY SEIZURE OF TURKS ABOARD NEUTRAL SHIPS



HERR VON KIDERLEN-WÄCHTER.

COLONEL RIZA-BEY.

MONS. POINCARE, THE FRENCH PREMIER.

MARCHESE DI SAN GIULIANO ITALIAN FOREIGN MINISTER.

The new version of the Trent case, namely the seizure by Italians of Turks on board the French steamship Manouba, a neutral vessel, overshadows all other topics of discussion in Paris.

All the French newspapers devote must space to the subject. The document on it is characterized by the decision to uphold the right of France—in other words, of neutral Powers—and indignation against Italy.

The predominating opinion is that Italy has infringed both the law of nations and the law of humanity. By international law passengers on board neutral ships plying between ports outside the sphere of hostilities are inviolate. By the accepted rules of humanity members of hospital corps are sacred.

The French thesis is that the Italian authorities are doubly in the wrong. The Turks on board the Manouba were bound from Marseilles to Sfax, both neutral ports. Hence they were no more liable to seizure than were Mason and Slidell on board the English packet at the outbreak of our civil war; but even if the Turks had been bound for Tripoli, as the Italians contend, they would have been inviolate, as they belong to the Turkish Red Crescent Society.

Frederick R. Coudert, one of the foremost American international lawyers, is inclined to believe that Italy was justified.

BUSY DAY IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 26.—The Duke of Connaught went the American "pace" in his visit to the national capital yesterday. Arriving late in the afternoon, he was whirled first to the British embassy, spent 40 minutes in the White House, where he was received by President and Mrs. Taft, was then motored back to the embassy, where he was the guest of honor at a dinner, to which most of the prominent members of the diplomatic corps were invited, visited the National Press Club, and then, tired, but "delighted," as he expressed it, sought his private car. He left about midnight for New York.

The duke, the first royal visitor to Washington in many years, spent 40 minutes in the White House and President Taft returned his call at the British embassy.

Altogether the chief executive of the United States and his vice-regal visitor were together for a little more than an hour. The duke had no official message to bear from England and the President had none to give. Their conversation was of the most general character and the only formal welcome to His Royal Highness was that extended to him when he left his private car at the Union Station, by Major A. W. Butt, President Taft's personal aide. The Union Station was well filled with spectators. Three White House automobiles were waiting, and the visitor and the aides and embassy attaches were taken immediately to the embassy. From the embassy to the White House and back four troops of cavalry, an unusually large number, formed an escort of honor. Thousands of people crowded around the White House grounds to watch the duke as he passed in, but he rode in a closed automobile and they were disappointed. A dozen extra policemen kept the crowd outside the gates.

Mr. James Bryce, First Assistant Secretary of State Huntingdon Wilson, and Second Assistant Secretary Adee were the only guests outside the Cabinet. The duke's aide, Col. Lowther, who came with him from New York, and the staff of the British embassy, were presented to Mr. Taft. Following the formal reception tea was served in the red room of the White House by Miss Helen Taft.

The duke chatted with all the President's guests, but spent much of his time talking with Mr. Taft and Secretary of State Knox.

Last night, the duke was the guest of Ambassador Bryce at a dinner at the embassy, which he left shortly before midnight to visit the National Press Club.

BROKEN AXLE DERAILS TRAIN

Montreal, Jan. 26.—One passenger had his leg broken and a number of others were badly shaken up, cut and bruised by an accident which occurred yesterday morning to a mixed train on the Napierville branch of the Delaware & Hudson Railway. The train, consisting of eight coal cars, a passenger car and a baggage car, was running from St. Constant to Rouse's Point at about 25 miles an hour when a broken axle on the baggage car caused it to leave the track, dragging the passenger and some of the coal cars with it. Most of the twenty-five passengers were thrown from their seats.

SERIOUS TROUBLE HAS BEEN AVERTED

Churchill Says He is Not Set on Speaking in Ulster Hall

Ministers Jubilant But Are Secretly Glad of the Loophole.

London, Jan. 26.—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has sent a letter to Lord Londonderry, ex-viceroy of Ireland, and one of the Unionist leaders who are opposing the proposed home rule meeting, stating that he would advise the Ulster Liberal Association not to insist upon holding the meeting in Ulster Hall, Belfast, as contemplated on Feb. 8, but that he intends to deliver a speech somewhere else in Belfast on that day.

Mr. Churchill says in his letter:

"It is my duty to keep my promise to the Ulster Liberal Association and assert the right of free speech in a public meeting. But as the main objection appears to be directed against the holding of the meeting in Ulster Hall I shall ask the Irish Liberal Association to accede to your wish. There will thus be no necessity for your friends to endure the hardships of a vigil or sustain the anxieties of a siege. Neither will it be necessary for you to break the law in an attempt to deprive us forcibly of the use of property to which we are lawfully entitled.

"It s not a point of any importance to me where I speak in Belfast. On contrary I desire to choose whatever hall or place is least likely to cause ill feeling to the Orange party.

The letter concludes:

"It has, however, become necessary to public liberties that the meeting should take place at Belfast on Feb. 8, and I intend to hold it there in the lawful exercise of the elementary rights of citizenship."

Mr Churchill's conciliatory move is calculated to lessen the chances of rioting at Belfast on Feb. 8.

Matters had reached a deadlock offering no except without the gravest consequences. The Ulster Unionists appeared ready to take any risk to prevent Mr. Churchill from speaking in the hall where his father, Lord Churchill, had delivered his famous dictum:

"Ulster will fight, and Ulster will be right."

The harbor commissioners of Belfast by informing Mr. Churchill that Feb. 9 would be an inconvenient day for his proposed visit of inspection, gave strong support to the Unionists. On the other hand, the Liberals made a formal demand to be placed in possession of Ulster Hall on the morning of Feb. 8, with a view to defeating the Unionist tactics.

At this point, as a result of a conference held in London on Wednesday, Mr. Churchill volunteered to accept a change in the place of meeting, and although the Unionists joyfully hail his decision as a retreat, largely due to the rebuff administered by the Belfast harbor commissioners, there is little doubt that they welcome the opportunity to escape from an unpleasant position, as public opinion seems to be going against them. Mr. Churchills 'letter was made public too late for the Orange leaders to arrive at a decision last night, but the general belief is that the trouble has been averted and the harbor board appear to have placed themselves in an uncomfortable position by needlessly snubbing Mr. Churchill.

In a long article in Reynold's Weekly Newspaper, dealing with the situation, John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, reminds the British public that the threats do not emanate from the general body of Protestants in Ireland, but from a small and noisy minority of Orangemen, who are opposed to every great reform for the benefit of Ireland.

ALLIED LIBERAL FORCES NOW CONTROL GERMAN REICHSTAG

Working Majority of Conservatives Swept Away—Socialists Have 110 Seats.

Berlin, Jan. 26.—The complexion of the new Reichstag as determined by the final results of the three re-ballots taken yesterday, is shown by the general party groupings as follows: The subordinate or allied factions are included for convenience with the parties with which they generally vote:

Socialists, 110; Progressive non-Socialist groups, 95, including 46 National Liberals, 42 Radical people's party and 7 Progressive Peasants' parties. Clericals with Polish, Alsatian and Hanoverian Particularists, 120; Conservatives, allied parties, 70; Independent, 1—ex-Minister of the Interior, Count von Posadowsky-Wedner.

The results completely overthrow the working majority of the Conservative-Centre, or "blue black bloc," in the last Reichstag, which is now able to muster only 191, counting every possible vote, and places the control in the hands of the National Liberals, who will be able to form a majority by throwing their strength with either the right or left.

This makes the National leader, Ernst Bassermann, a commanding figure in the next Reichstag. He will be able to swing avowed National Liberals who. under proper inducements, would probably be prepared to co-operate with the Government on most questions. The hostility of other progressive groups to the so-called reactionary "bloc" apparently is too great for any working understanding, except on questions of national defence and the increase of the army and navy.

The Socialists return as the strongest individual party, bringing their total up to 110 by winning 11 of the 21 re-ballots in which they participated yesterday. This is more than double their strength, which was 53 at the time of the dissolution, and 29 above their previous maximum in 1903.

The Reichstag centre or clerical is the next strongest individual party, with 93 seats of their own, a falling off of 10, the result of widespread resentment at their share in the unpopular financial reform of 1909 and the prevalent high cost of living.

Having accomplished what the utmost efforts of Von Buelow and the Government were unable to effect in 1907, the Poles return with 19 of 20 former mandates. They had hoped to play a big role and obtain important concessions for the Polish policy as an essential factor to the new Government majority, but the extent of the opposition victory dashes their expectations.

A CIVIL MARRIAGE LAW

The action of the Borden Government in referring the marriage question to the courts for decision has displeased Mr. Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, who approves the stand taken bu Sir Wilfrid against any encroachment by parliament upon the jurisdiction of the provinces with regard to the marriage question. Mr. Bourassa, who is a strong advocate of provincial rights, when it suits his purpose, says the Borden Government is making the same mistake that Sir John Thompson made in the Manitoba difficulty and that justice still suffers because of that mistake. The Manitoba school question was referred to the courts by Sir John Thompson, in order that the question of jurisdiction might be settled. Now if Sir John had acted as Mr. Bourassa thinks he should have done in the school question, he would have cast provincial rights to the wind and coerced Manitoba without going to the trouble to find out whether the federal government was right in pursuing such a course. But then Mr. Bourassa has never been noted of being consistent on anything. He says that Parliament should not act even if the Privy Council decides that it has a right to act; but "the provincial authorities should study the question with care, taking into consideration the legitimate rights of al', and offer as soon as possible a reasonable solution of the question."

This would not help matters to any great extent, as it is doubtful if any remedial legislation passed in Quebec would meet the whole difficulty. A civil marriage law would seem to be the proper solution of the question, and if Parliament has the power it will probably pass such a law. This would have the effect of making marriage in any part of the Dominion a civil contract only. This contract would not need to be solemnized by any minister to make it legal. Of course there would be nothing in such a law to prevent marriages being solemnized according to the rules and ritual of any church, if this was desired by the parties about to be made man and wife.

People generally throughout the Dominion will await the decision of the Supreme Court and the Privy Council with interest. Premier Borden's action in sending the matter to the courts to decide the question of jurisdiction is meeting with general approval.

FOREIGNERS WELL TREATED

The Manchus will give battle to the Chinese revolutionists in hope of yet saving the throne. At least this is the latest report from the seat of war. The Empress Dowager has been strongly in favor of resuming hostilities, but up to the present the Premier has opposed the idea, but is now said to have agreed to fight it out. The Manchu princes are eager to attack the enemy, but the premier advocates letting the Republicans do the attacking. It begins to look as if there will be much bloodshed yet before the dove of peace hovers over China.

The present strife brings out one remarkable fact at least showing the advancement of China. On former occasions when there was any disturbances in that country, the foreigners were usually the first to suffer at the hands of the mob, if they were not under strong protection. Legations were attacked and many other outrages committed against them. Now in the present trouble letters from missionaries in China, in most cases, point out that there has been no attempt to attack or interfere with foreigners, who, in fact have been given protection by both the Republicans and the Manchus. But to the Republicans must be given the credit for this, as they issued placards that all foreigners were to be well treated and in no way molested. The Manchus, of course, had to follow suit.

That the Republicans will eventually win the day seems to be the opinion of those conversant with Chinese affairs. The Manchus, numbering about 8,000,000, have been ruling the 400,000,000 million people of China for a long time, and have kept them in ignorance, while the rest of the world was advancing. For years the people have shown signs of awakening, and now it has come in real earnest, and the people want a change of government, and it looks as if they were surely about to get it. The Manchus have had their day.

STANDING OF PROVINCES

Saskatchewan claims to now be the third province in the Dominion in point of population, but Nova Scotia also claims this distinction. This calls attention to the remarkable changes in the standing of the provinces in the past few years. The provinces stood in the following order in 1901;—Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, British Columbia, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Alberta. According to the census of 1911 they stand;—Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Alberta, British Columbia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island.

The population of the provinces in 1901 was as follows:—Ontario, 2,182,947; Quebec, 1,648,898; Nova Scotia, 459,574; New Brunswick, 311,120; Manitoba, 255,211; British Columbia, 178,657; Prince Edward Island, 103,259; Saskatchewan, 91,279; Alberta, 73,022.

In 1911 (July 1st) it was;—Ontario, 2,529,902; Quebec, 2,000,697; Nova Scotia, 492,339; Saskatchewan, 487,982; Manitoba, 454,691; Alberta, 372,919; British Columbia, 362,768; New Brunswick, 351,815; Prince Edward Island, 93,722.

Saskatwhecan bases its claim to be in third place on the fact that of the large immigration into Canada since the first of July, 1911, Saskatchewan has received a very large proposition and Nova Scotia very little, and the claim is well founded and Saskatchewas no doubt now leads Nova Scotia in point of population by at least some slight degree.

Western people are predicting that by the time another ten years rolls around the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta will be the two leaders.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

I was thinking of the women.

He slumped into a chair, clasped his outstretched hands upon the writing-table, and allowed his head to droop between his arms. At that moment I heard Belle calling "Papa!" She was running lightly down the stairs. Again she called, and I knew that she was coming swiftly toward the library.

Genevieve made a move as if to bolt the door, but I checked her with a gesture. Of what use would it be to bar the way of her who came so impulsively? The dreadful truth must be broken to her. It was a task that no third person might assume; let her hear it wrung from her father's unwilling lips.

"Papa!" She was approaching quickly. How youthful and self-reliant her voice sounded! The sweet, girlish soprano jarred painfully upon at least two of our tense, waiting group. And Belle continued to advance all unsuspectingly.

"Papa, where are you? Why don't you answer?"

Genevieve ran over to her uncle, and laid one arm across his bowed shoulders.

"Uncle! Uncle!" She shook him, striving in an agitated way to rouse him to a sense of realization. "Uncle! Sit up! Don't go all to pieces, this way! Belle is at the door!"

And sure enough, as the bent figure painfully straightened a light rap sounded upon the panel, and Belle's fresh young voice again called:

"Are you in there, papa? May I come in?"

Genevieve drew suddenly back to a shadowed corner, wringing her hands with a helpless, despairing gesture. Fluette rose unsteadily to his feet. Then the door opened, and Belle stood framed in the doorway.

The man's look darted feverishly between the two girls—Genevieve well-nigh overcome, while the smile on Belle's handsome face quickly gave way to an expression of bewilderment, and then to a dawning one of alarm. Next she rushed into the room, and stopped abruptly. Bending a look of anxious inquiry first upon her cousin and then upon me, she finally confronted her father.

"Papa," she faltered, her voice quaking with the fear that suddenly gripped her heart, "what is it? What does this mean?" Then, as she started blindly toward him, she uttered one piercing, agonizing cry: "Papa!"

Unconsciously he brushed aside her beseeching arms. He did not answer her directly; his words were a response to the charge that I had not yet made.

"Man, you are right," he said huskily, "it is my conscience. It is not you that accuse me, but the pure eyes of these two innocent girls—the unspoken reproach of that broken, white-haired woman who sits in silence upstairs—those fling the charge into my face—sear it into my very soul—every minute of the day and night.

"Take me. I am guilty. It was I who killed Felix Page."

CHAPTER XXV.
"Thimble, Thimble—"

It is needless to dwell upon the scene in Alfred Fluette's study; I shall take up merely such details as constitute an integral part of this memoir and hurry along.

After Genevieve had led Belle away Mr. Fluette quickly mastered himself. The bitter moment of the confession once passed, it seemed as if his mind had been relieved of a great burden and he talked to me with comparative unreserve. But his appearance was in pitiable contrast with what it must have been before he wandered into devious ways. He was crushed, his mein one of hopeless submission to whatever the future might have in store for him.

"First of all," he began, with impressive earnestness, "I want to emphasize the fact that when I snuffed out that man's life I was in imminent peril of my own. When I snatched up the candlestick, if ever a man had murder in his heart Felix Page had at that moment.

"The rest was automatic; I could no more have stayed the deadly blow than I can now hope to escape its consequences. Revolt from almost a lifetime of pitiless, persistent persecution filled me with an irresistible impulse to destroy and rendered my arm invincible."

I went with him, step by step, over the ground that is already familiar. Felix Page had ever been the thorn in his flesh.

"It wasn't as if I had a tangible enemy," he declared; "he wouldn't come out into the open and fight. His aims were always petty, he perpetually annoyed and harrassed me by mean and ignoble ways, which I was obliged to bear with an assumption of ignoring them, or else lower myself to his level to meet them. Any bold, decisive stroke would at least have won my respect; but no, the cunning hound knew that my disposition could not forever turn aside his sly thrusts; he knew that, by degrees but inevitably, he was warping my nature, slowly but surely destroying all that was best in me.

"Well," bitterly, "he has succeeded. He has ruined me not only financially, but body and soul as well.

"Time and again he flaunted in my face some old letters which my wife wrote when she was a mere girl. They were such as any artless, inexperienced girl might write to a man who has for the moment captured her fancy; but how could that be made clear to a public ever greedy for scandal? How would those letters read in the light of my wife's years and the dignity of her present position? Yet the scoundrel has threatened me times without number that he would scatter them broadcast.

"Then—the ruby: that was a crowning stroke. He deliberately stepped in and wrested it from my grasp simply because he in some way found out that I had set my heart upon it for my collection. It was as if he perpetually had his fingers upon the pulse of my desires and intentions; he seemed to divine and anticipate my every move.

"But I was soon reconciled to the stone's loss, and I would have remained so had it not been for that creature, Burke. When he put the idea into my mind that perhaps Page had no legal title to it, I was tempted—and I fell. He presented to me too good an opportunity to retaliate for me to let it pass.

"It was a foolish thing for me to do, going to his house that fatal Tuesday night; but there was no other way. Burke was willing to procure the stone from its hiding-place, but flatly refused to assume the risk of conveying it through the streets. Page was to be away from town that night, so in an evil moment I decided to take the chance.

"You know what happened. I failed to get the gem that night; your unrelaxing vigilance prevented Burke from getting at where he supposed he had hidden it, and at last the Burmese determined to make the attempt Thursday night. Friday morning I was to have again met Tshen-byo-yen to close the deal for the stone, when one of his henchmen notified Burke and me that the attempt had been a failure, that they had succeeded in securing only the replica. We both charged Burke with double-dealing.'"

I started suddenly at his words; a possibility had flashed into my mind, so huge and significant that I could comprehend it only by degrees. I spoke with quick eagerness.

"Mr. Fluette, do you think the Burmese would have devoted all these years to recovering the jewel, if they were willing to sell it to the first would-be purchaser that happened along? Doesn't it strike you as a bit peculiar?—as being inconsistent with their unflagging zeal, their tireless efforts to regain what they contend was once stolen from them? Those fellows are very far from home, please bear in mind."

"I never before regarded it in that light," he returned thoughtfully.

He was not interested, and did not press me for an explanation. But his suggestion of Burke's double-dealing had given me an idea which was clearing away one dark corner of the puzzle: the possibility was opening up more rapidly. I looked at him shrewdly.

"Just how did Maillot's story of his experience with Page impress you?" I asked.

He gave me a quick glance.

"It was amazing. I could not believe that Maillot was wilfully fabricating; yet, to accept his extraordinary story left me, as the only alternative, a conviction that Felix Page had either undergone a change of heart, or else had lost his mind."

"It didn't occur to you that Page might be trying a game of his own?"

"No."

"Did you ever see the replica?" I asked.

"Yes, many times. It is a remarkably excellent imitation—silicate of alumina; the weight, color, and hardness, the measurements—table, girdle, and culasse—all correspond exactly with the original. It lacks only in density, and perhaps a trifle in—but no; it would require an expert test to determine that it was not a true ruby."

"Then," I eagerly pursued, "even an expert might be imposed upon by the replica?"

"Well," he slowly admitted, "perhaps—yes. But not for long; men who deal in precious stones after a time develop a sort of sixth sense that protects them against imposition. It is too subtle to define; but any diamond imitation will raise a doubt in his mind as to its genuineness; a true stone, never."

When I considered his special knowledge of the subject in general, and of the Paternoster ruby in particular, I was astounded at his obtuseness. Later, I was not less astounded at my own.

"Is it possible, Mr. Fluette," I went on, with an enthusiasm which he did not in the least share, "that it never occurred to you what Burke's game might be? With the connivance of these Burmese, he was deliberately attempting to swindle you; he meant to practice the old familiar game of 'switching' the false for the real stone. The Burmese want the stone, not the money without the stone; but for a generous share in the proceeds, they were willing to lend themselves to Burke's fraud. There's the Oriental for you."

"And Felix Page—he was craftier than even you give him credit for. Mr. Fluette, there's nothing extraordinary in Maillot's story of his Tuesday night adventure—except our stupidity in comprehending its real significance.

"Remember Page's strict injunction to Maillot not to let the jewel-case out of his possession until he and Miss Belle were married; think of the alacrity with which he acceded to Maillot's request; think of his sly chuckles and furtive manner, of his attitude during the whole of that remarkable conference, and tell me what it means if he, too, didn't intend palming off the false stone on you? Maillot and Miss Belle once married, then the young man—in complete innocence, to be sure—would have handed you, not the ruby, but—the replica."

Slowly the dull look died out in Alfred Fluette's eyes, and in spite of his distress, his face flushed darkly with anger.

"The hound!" he muttered through his clenched teeth. "What a dupe I've been. But," he added, with kindling interest, "where is the ruby, then?"

To be continued.

IMPORTANT TO MOTHERS!

Mothers should know just why Zam-Buk is so effective in cases of rashes, scalp sores, pimples and eruptions on babies and young children.

Most ordinary salves contain animal oil and fat. Every housewife knows that if animal oil or fat be left exposed to air for any length of time putrefactive changes must occur. These changes occur none the less even if they are hidden by scent.

Now, any salve which sinks into the pores enters the blood. You would not feed your child impure food. Why put into its blood rancid animal fats?

Zam-Buk contains no trace of animal fat or oil, or any mineral poison. It is compounded of healing herbal juices and essences.

Applied to cuts, burns, bruises and skin injuries it allays pain, kills disease germs and heals. Sold everywhere at 50c. box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materia s embracing their make-up The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

You are safe in rejecting the article offered as "just as good."

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

GOOD TIME AT THE LYCEUM

Progressive Euchre and Dancing Enjoyed by Large Crowd

The Sacred Heart Sodality held a very successful "At Home" last night in the St. Alphonsus Lyceum, the entertainment beginning about half-past eight o'clock, and concluding shortly after one o'clock. The first part of the evening was spent in progressive euchre contests, which were finished about eleven o'clock, Mr. P. O'Donnell winning the gentleman's prize and Miss Carrie Succee carrying off the ladies' prize. The ladies of the Sodality served refreshments at the close of the contests and after the large number in attendance had partaken of the dainties, the dancing commenced in the large hall. There were almost three hundred people present, and every one passed a most enjoyable evening.

E. L. GOODWILL ON THE EXECUTIVE

Association of Children's Aid Societies to be Formed

Deputation Asks Government for Increase in Annual Grant

Mr. E. L. Goodwill, secretary of the local Children's Aid Society, was in Toronto yesterday, and was one of a deputation which met the Hon. W. J. Hanna, with the request that the government increase its grant to Children's Aid work from $15,000 to $40,000 a year, and that Mr. J. J. Kelso be given at least $30,000 a year for the extension of his work. Broader legislation was also suggested in order to allow Mr. Kelso to deal with needy children.

It was suggested that one officer be placed in each county and city municipality to care for and look after children placed in homes. Mr. Hanna said the Government realized the importance of the work, and knew also that it could not be carried on so successfully if it were not for the private contributions. The Government he said, would give the requests serious consideration.

At the conclusion of the interview with the Minister the delegates held a meeting and decided to form an association of Children's Aid Societies, which will take charge of all thhhe work in the province, and hold an independent conference every year. The following Executive Committee was appointed to draft a constitution and plan of organization: C. R. Miller, Berlin, president; J. C. McConachie, Kingston, secretary; Rev. W. M. H. Quartermaine, Rev. J. M. Whitelaw, E. L. Goodwill, J. R. Shaw, Adam Brown and Sheriff Middleton.

VERDICT AGAINST MINE COMPANY OF NEGLIGENCE

Should Have Removed the Loose Stones in Mine Shaft

The jury in the inquest into the death of Bert Easton, who met his death at Cordova mines returned a verdict

"That your jurymen hereby agree that Bert Easton came to his death in No. 3 shaft of the Cordova Mines Ltd., on the night of the 10th of Jan., 1912, caused by something falling on his and we further think that the company were very negligent in not having the shaft cleared down as the water was pumped out."

The Government mining inspector, Mr. Edward Corkill, gave evidence that he found a large number of loose stones on the timbering in the shaft and that the company was negligent in not having them removed.

Mr. R. E. Wood, Crown Attorney, conducted the examination.

"A gambler's life is honey one day and the next day nothing," wrote Tom Korn, a former bookmaker, who destitute, ended his life in New York.

MOTHER BROKE DOWN DURING EXAMINATION

Young Man Charged With Seduction of Her Daughter

Accused Sent up for Trial Before Judgs Huycke

At the police court this morning the nauseating particulars of a case in which Antome Lasuer, a young man was charged with seducing a girl of fifteen years was heard. The revelations are such that the Review will not publish them.

The prisoner did not elect as to trial, but pleaded not guilty, through his counsel, F. D. Kerr. The police court doors were closed.

The mother during her examination broke down, but recovered and told of what transpired so far as she knew.

After hearing the evidence, Magistrate Dumble, sent the case in to Judge Huycke. The trial was called for three weeks.

"THE GIRL AND THE TRAMP"

Fun of the real uproarious kind, predominates in Carlos Inskeep's laughing comedy success, "The Girl and the Tramp" which comes to the Grand to-morrow, Saturday, but there are other things besides. The play tells an absorbing heart story of a supposed wrong to a loving husband, which happily, comes out all right in the end. Then, too, there are a grist of startlingly dramatic situations, the explosion of a real automobile, etc., etc. Briefly, it is a performance that should certainly be seen by everyone who enjoys a clean comedy drama.

25 DEGREES BELOW DURING THE NIGHT

This morning at seven o'clock the thermometer marked 21 degrees below zero. The lowest during the night was 25 below. Still lower readings are said to have been registered at the south end, which is quite likely, as the land lies much lower. The above, however are the official figures.

MR. BURNHAM MAKES REPLY

To Bitter Attack Made on Him by Examiner

Defends His Vote on Marriage Bill in the House

(To The Editor of The Review.

Sir—The Examiner is in a bad way over my course on the Ne Temere question. Well!, It and its friends will probably feel worse before I get through. Both the Lancaster Bill and the general supremacy of the state in all matters are now to be submitted to the highest court in the realm. That makes the Examiner uneasy and probably others also. The self assumed supremacy of other bodies than the state, will now be tested in the courts and will be set aside once and forever. If there is no delay, (and delay is the only possible charge that can be unearthed against it) the whole question of the supremacy of the state will be solved. Did the Liberal administration ever propose to relieve the situation? Did it propose a reference? Does Sir Wilfrid suggest a remedy? No. He maintains that there is nothing to refer to the courts. He maintains that Ne Temere is not a civil but an ecclesiastical measure. The same old sophistry that has been and is being played upon the people. Meanwhile families are being torn asunder. The Borden measure refers not only to marriage (the Lancaster Bill) but all questions of civil rights, a most far-reaching proposal.

The Examiner objects to this. It is under the lash. It must object as Sir James would say "poor thing."

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

MISS McCALLA HEARS FROM CHINA

Miss McCalla, secretary of the Y.W.C.A., has received a long letter from her sister, Mrs. Ratcliffe, of Wei-hwei-fu, Honan, China, written on Christmas Day. The letter, while personal in nature, is full of interesting little stories of the Chinese people, and the account of a Christmas concert given by the Chinese children, is very amusing.

Miss Ratcliffe is in charge of the school at the mission where she is located. The letter contains no reference to the troubled condition of affairs in China.

PETES' CAPTAIN SCORED FIVE OF SIX GOALS AT TRENTON

Locals Lead at the Half 5-1, and Finished in Front by 6-3 in Well Played Game.

The local Intermediates added another victory to their list last night when they beat Trenton on Trenton rink by a 6-3 score, the half-time figures being 5-1.

From the spectators' viewpoint, the exhibition was fifty per cent better than that of Tuesday night at the local rink, when the score was 17 to 2, the homesters putting up a good argument all the way, though the Petes always looked like winners. Under the watchful eye of Lawson Whitehead, Trenton played hockey all the way but the superior teamwork of Captain Park's men was too much for them though they nipped an efforts at individual stunts.

That the Trenton fans have deserted their Intermediates was evidenced by the exceptionally small number of spectators who turned out to view the fray last night. The winning Juniors are getting to the hockey lovers, but though the Intermediates have been deserted it can be said of them that they are not in the "quitters' class" with some of their neighbors. They went on the ice last night to win if they could and showed almost a complete reversal of form from that on the occasion of their their appearance here.

Art. Armstrong, as usual, was the star for the losers, but he was well taken care of by Giroux and captain Park. Reynolds at cover point, was at his best, rushing and checking like a fiend. The remainder of the seven, also did good work. McGorman, who checked "Jerry" Cough'in on the local ice, was replaced by his brother of the Juniors. He was not given much chance to shine as "Jerry" was with him at every period.

McGorman gets credit for Trenton's first goal, though it went in off Park's skate.

The Petes forwards played better combination last night than in any game this season though ther is still room for improvement. Parks notched five of the six counters, Kelly getting the other.

There were only five two-minute penalties handed out by referee, W. McCord, Trenton getting three of them.

The line-ups were as follows—

Trenton		Peterboro.

THE LINDSAY INTERMEDIATES DON'T WANT HARVEY SPROULE

Lindsay Warder.—The game next Tuesday night between the Lindsay Intermediates and Peterborough is one that every hockey fan in Lindsayy is looking forward to with keen anticipation. It will be a case to do or die for both teams, and Lindsay Midgets will be right on the job and after the puck all the time. The strongest line-up possible will be selected to meet the Porridge City braves.

The locals were out on Monday night and again last night, when to-night they will bump up against the picked team from the town hockey league. This will give the locals a chance to take on a few jolts and bumps and be in good condition for the game next Tuesday.

It is understood that the management of the Lindsay intermediates will raise objection to Referee Harvey Sproule handling the game next Tuesday night in Lindsay. Sproule has, it appears refereed every game, junior and intermediate, for Peterborough this season, and certainly the Lindsay fans [illegible] that he handled the bell here when the Peterborough Juniors played Lindsay Juniors, and the local fans were dissatisfied.

It is quite true that Sproule has handled the majority of games in which Peterborough teams have played this season, but the insinuation from the Warder that the Peterborough team was given the "edge" in Lindsay is hardly fair to Sproule. His work has not met with the unanimous approval of Peterborough fans, but at the same time, those who have followed his decisions throughout the season and can give an unbiased opinion, are satisfied. The Lindsay management might remember that in the last junior game, when Peterborough won, three of the visiting team were in the "coop" in the closing period of the game. Some of the local fans didn't like it, but nevertheless the penalties were warranted.

Trenton intermediates may take another district next season. They like the teams but are not satisfied with the long jump.

Peterborough juniors may meet the winners of district 3 instead of No. 1, on account of the fact of the former district being decided at an earlier date. District No. 1 games are scheduled till February 2nd, while No. 3 finishes to-night. The winner will be either Oshawa or Toronto Argonauts.

The All Saints' team left on the Belleville train at 1.10 o'clock for Campbellford, where they play to-night, the special having been cancelled.

By scoring five goals last night at Trenton, Captain Park made his total for the season 31.

Armand Chaput was elected president of the Montreal Chamber of Commerce.

SKIP GIROUX REPEATED AND WON GRAND CHALLENGE CUP

His Rink Finished 3 Up Against Fitzgerald—Finals in Consolation to be Played To-night—McIlroy's Rink Took Third Prize.

The honor of holding the Grand Challenge Cup remains with Mr. George Giroux's rink as a result of the final played last night with Fitzgerald's rink.

The winners finished 3 up after after playing in winning form throughout the game, which was witnessed by a large crowd.

Skip Giroux has won the championship for three consecutive years, a record for the club. In the two previous years his rink remained intact, but the quartet for the bonspiel had two new faces in [illegible] and Knapman. This is the second year for the Grand Challenge Cup, which is a handsome one and a fitting reward for the strenuous fight which must be waged before fresh honors are attained.

Skip Fitzgerald did not get all the support due him, although a big spurt was made in the closing of the contest, the necessary was not forthcoming. The rinks were:

J. H. Metheral	Lead.	Adams
H. Evans	Second	Webb
T. Brightman	Vice	Knapman
J. E. A. Fitzgerald,		Giroux.
	Skip—10	Skip—13

In the fourth round of the primary contest yesterday McWilliams, of Keene, was defeated by Giroux, and Matthews fell down to Fitzgerald by 9 shots.

In the third round of the consolation Connal put away Smith, of Oshawa, and Davidson defeated Sturgeon by 6 shots. Bessie, of Claremont, came out ahead of Wigmore, from Keene, and Morrow entered the semi-finals by winning from Neill. Allan, of Cobourg, defeated Neal, of Claremont, but went down before McIlroy, who had entered the semi-finals by defeating [illegible] in a bot game, from which the winner emerged only one shot ahead. Matthews passed into the fifth round by defeating McWilliams, of Keene, and won out in a closely contested game with McIlroy by two shots. Connal had an easy victory in a game with Bessie, of Claremont.

Yesterday's play leaves Connal and Matthews in the finals to play for the first and second consolation prizes. Bessie and McIlroy met this morning in a contest for the third prize, from which McIlroy emerged victorious, although he had to forfeit three shots on account of one of his players being absent. Skips Connal and Matthews meet to-night in a game that will decide the winners of the first consolation prizes.

OFFICE SEPTET BEAT SALES SEVEN

Teams From the Quaker Oats Came Together

There was an exciting time in the Brock street rink yesterday, when the general office team of the Quaker Oats chashed with the sales department in a rough and tumble hockey match. The general office started well when Quinn took the puck on a pass from Morphet, and scored about one minute after the face off. Then Butcher, for the Sales, scored twice after two individual rushes, and Quinn, for the office, landed the rubber in the Sales' nets making the score 2-2. After this the Sales, had things all their own way and raised the score to 6-2 before half-time. In the second half, Morphet, Kirn and Quinn started a grand combination act that kept the Sales busy for a while, but towards the last, Butcher and Pratt started getting away from the office defense and pounded the nets till th escore was 11-2 in favor of the Sales Department. After this the nets remained untouched, and the final score was 11-2 in favor of the Sales team. The line-ups were—

Gen. Office		Sales Dpt.
	Goal	R. Briggs
F. Heaslip	Point	E. Fearight.
E. Carr	Cover	K. Brown.
R. Hunter	Rover	R. Coughlin
H. Kirn	Left	A. Butcher

V. Morphet	Centre	W. Pratt.

RAILWAY TEAMS TIED.

The G.T.R. seven clashed with the C.P.R. team in a close game of hockey last night at the Brock street rink. Long, for the G.T.R., saved the Trunk nets on more than one occasion, while Harper and Merryfield on the forward line, held up that end of the game. McGregor, Tully and Guerin did most of the hot work for the C.P.R. The score was 4—4, and at half time the score was 1—1. The teams were:

G.T.R.		C.P.R.
Palmer	Goal	Golyman
Long	Point	Guerin
Sullivan	Cover	Howard
Merryfield	Rover	Brooks
Harper	Left	Tully
Zealand	Right	McGregor

BOB FITZSIMMONS LEAVES HIS WIFE

New York, Jan. 23—Bob Fitzsimmons, ex-champion heavyweight, declared to-day that he and his wife, Julia Gifford had parted. "I am through with her forever," said the freckled marvel of the ring, when told that his actress wife had made the formal announcement that she would never again tolerate his company unless he quit drinking.

King Alfonso celebrated his name day by donating $5,000 for the poor and by remitting eight death sentences.

CLEVER AND CAPABLE.

French Women Easily Manage Home and Profession at Same Time.

French women who go in for professions are numerous and highly successful, but in France the cheery "bachelor girl" so often met with in Anglo-Saxon countries, who wants no other husband than her work, is very rare. Perhaps the reason for this is that the French are a feminine rather than a masculine race, and that whereas one type of English and American girl—often a very good type—has a certain manly element in her character, the French girl is womanly to her fingertips, and cannot be perfectly happy except as a wife and mother. Moreover, she does not as a rule have to choose between her profession and marriage. In nine cases out of ten her situation stands in place of a dot to the professional girl, and it is taken as a matter of course that she should continue in it after marriage.

On the whole, this is a pity, for it is, of course, a strain to a woman to be an effective house-mother, and to carry on a profession at the same time; but Frenchwomen are so quick and capable that they often manage to combine the two sets of duties with extraordinary success. "But how on earth do you do it?" asked an English girl of a teacher, who was, of course, busy in school all the morning, but yet contrived to do all her own cooking. An Englishwoman similarly circumstanced would have probably tried to subsist on a midday bun and cup of tea; but here was a delicious and substantial meal prepared as if by magic. "Ah, we French have clever fingers!" was the laughing answer.

The suffrage movement, as a force to be reckoned with, hardly exists in France as yet, although at least one spirited lady did offer herself as a Parliamentary candidate during the last general election. Still, the cause cannot be said to have made much headway so far with the average progressive-minded Frenchwoman. Perhaps it is because of a serene conviction that she has all the power she wants already, or perhaps she is simply waiting. "We French are watching England," said a Frenchwoman to an English suffragette, "and when you have won the vote we shall certainly follow your example."

"You Never Can Tell."

An amusing story is told in a foreign newspaper of the recent production in Budapest by Prof. Max Reinhardt of the tragedy King Edipus.

At the most thrilling point of the play, when the king is discovered sitting alone in the plague-stricken city, a dog suddenly began barking furiously at the back of the stage. It was an animal trainer's Great Dane, which was howling at the moon from a shed adjoining the back of the theatre.

Reinhardt fumed and raged at this interruption at the critical moment, sent messages to the stage manager and finally went himself to stop the row. There was much running to and fro, but the barking didn't stop until a scene shifter had a bright notion. He got a large plate of scraps and fed the dog slowly until the curtain went down.

The next day the papers printed enthusiastic accounts of the really brilliant bit of stage management, the fearsome howling of the ownerless dogs in the deserted city! Reinhardt put down his paper with a whimsical smile and sent for the stage manager.

"Give the scene shifter an extra tip," he said, "but tell him to make that confounded dog howl like mad to-night."

Queer Memorials.

Except to call attention to the fact that we are all mortal, a hearse seems a very queer memorial to the famous dead; but it was recently stated that one village in England had decided to keep the memory of King Edward green by the purchase of such a vehicle.

A hearse also commemorates the many virtues and long reign of Queen Victoria. This is at Burghersdorp, in Cape Colony, where the natives bought a gorgeous hearse to carry their dead to the cemetery, the vehicle bearing a plate with the inscription, "Queen Victoria Memorial Hearse."

A loan of $7,500,000 has been made to the Turkish government by the National Bank and the Salonika Bank.

THE EVILS OF THE BLACKBOARD

Much Eye Strain on Children in the Schools

At a recent gathering of medical men, Dr. John Neely Rhoads, of Philadelphia, said that children, and every one else for that matter, should learn to avoid glare, no matter what its source. In order to prevent the glare that came from the blackboards into the eyes of the children, the base of the board should be pulled away from the wall so as to deflect the light upward. Children, he said, should never be required to copy script from the blackboard, because, in order for a child forty feet away to see them, the letters would have to have lines a quarter of an inch thick. To be in proportion the letters would have to be five or six inches high. Besides, such copying made a constant strain upon the accommodation.

The copybook evil he considered just a trifle less serious than the blackboard evil. There was a glare from the white page, and the writing of the child became less and less good as he wrote further and further away from the copy. The copies should be inserted in a carrier on a ruler that could be moved down the page in such a manner as to cover the last line of writing. Every child should also be taught to write and cipher without the use of his eyes. This would enable him to do a good part of his work without looking at it, and thus avoid a considerable part of the strain upon his sight.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

MISSION AT WINNIPEG IS SUCCESSFUL

Large Attendances at Meetings of Rev. R. H. Whiteside

Winnipeg, Jan. 25.—Rev. R. H. Whiteside concluded his two weeks' evangelistic mission at Norwood Methodist church yesterday morning. The building was so crowded that extra seating accommodation had to be provided. During his ministry there, over fifty persons have professed conversion.

Speaking at King Edward church last evening Rev. Mr. Whiteside described his methods of conducting a revival campaign. He belives in the co-operative method and having all the church organizations engaged in some part of the work. By these means he considers the results attained are made permanent for the reason that after the evangelist has left the interest still exists among the workers, who feel called upon to do their share in carrying the work on.

Friends made by Rev. Mr. Whiteside in his mission at St. James church will be pleased to hear of his success.

VALUABLE PONIES DIED FROM RABIES

Animals Developed Disease After Being Bitten by Mad Dog

Hempstead, N.Y., Jan. 25—Champion, the third of the string of imported polo ponies of John S. Phipps of the Meadowbrook Polo Club, was destroyed yesterday because of an attack of rabies. The pony was valued at $4,000, and was imported from England for the polo match between teams of the United States and England last Summer. Two weeks ago rabies developed in the Phipps polo stables after a cur dog had bit Gay Boy, a $4,000 pony, and also a $5,000 broo dmare. Both these animals died within a few days.

Nine other valuable ponies were inoculated with preventive serum None of these had shown ndications of rabies until last night, when Champion was attacked with a virulent form of the disease.

A rigid quarantine has been declared until May 1, against all dogs in the Town of North Hempstead, which is the millionaire residential section of Long Island.

HONORED MEMORY OF NOTED RULER

Prussia Commemorates Bicentenary of Birth of Frederick the Great

Berlin, Jan. 26.—The 200th anniversary of the birthday of Frederick the Great was the occasion Wednesday of patriotic demonstrations throughout Prussia. Berlin is decorated with flags and numerous statues of Frederick are covered with laurel wreaths.

At Potsdam Emperor William reviewed a number of regiments first formed during Frederick's reign, and which took part in many wars under his command. The Emperor also visited the ancient garrison church and placed a wreath on Frederick's coffin, which lies in a vault beneath the pulpit, together with that of his father.

The Emperor addressed the members of the Royal Academy of Sciences in the White Hall of the palace, eulogizing Frederick the Great as an ardent patron of the academy and a zealous promoter of its work. The Emperor announced a gift to the academy, consisting of the voluminous correspondence between Frederick and Field Marshall Richard Joachim Heinrich von Mollendorf, who was distinguished for services in the Seven Years' War.

REFUSED TO BE MADE BRIDE AT REVOLVER'S POINT

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 26—Julia Stematz, fifteen years old, daughter of a miner, has roused the countryside near her home at Oakdale by her story of how two strange men held her up at the point of revolvers, demanded that she become the bride of one, and then, after she had indignantly refused, marched her in zero weather and through deep snow for twelve miles and tied her to railroad tracks. She was released just as a train came rushing down upon her. "I never saw the men before," said Julia. "When they tied me to the rails I was cold and frightened, and in my terror I saw phantom trains bear down upon me. In desperation I started to pray. After what seemed a great time, some one came. I think it was one of my captors. He cut the rope, raised me up and I started to run and kept on running.

"Down the tracks I ran until I reached a town. I went to the first house I could see and told my story. The woman there sent me to neighbors. A constable was called and a search begun for my tormentors. I stayed all night at the home of a Mrs. Malone, and then came home, yesterday morning.

ORANGE CORNERS

Orange Corners, Jan. 25—Mr. Walter Megee is busy hauling the material for his new barn which he intends building this summer.

Miss Aggie Lee of Toronto has spent the last week with her friends here and also renewing old acquaintances.

The Ladies' Guild of St. John's church held their last meeting at Mrs. Fred. Megee's last Wednesday evening. There was not a full attendance, owing to the roads not being in good condition, however, all being well, we expect a better attendance at the next meeting which will be held at Mrs. John Megee's on Wednesday, Feb. 7th at two o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Jennie McConnel of Omemee our former school teacher spent Sunday with Mrs. H. Jackson.

Mrs Wm. Handley of Mount Pleasant payed a flying visit to our corner this week.

A number of our people were much disappointed in not getting to the basket social at Bethel last Tueday evening on account of the cold an dstormy night. Those who did go report an excellent time.

Master Robert Hopwood has been attending school at Kinmount since New Years; we wish him every success.

Mrs. Wm. N. Jackson spent last Sunday in Peterboro with her sister, Mrs. Carr, who has just arrived from Carburn.

Guthrie (S. Wellington) thought this would not do, as these facts were at the basis of the present bill. He appealed for delay.

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden said that it was not so long ago that the House had been furnished with the information asked for. The road was to have been finished in September last, and it would be hard to say when its completion would take place.

There was something radically wrong about the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. We had had four commissioners in seven or eight years, none of whom had expert knowledge. The time had come to appoint a man who did know something about the work he had to oversee. Better results would ensue when the responsibility rested on one man.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux: "What about the commission of enquiry?"

Hon. T. W. Crothers: "That is quite another matter."

Mr. Lemieux: "What about the tariff commission?"

Mr. Crothers: "That is also another matter."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "What about the waterways commission?"

Mr. Crothers: "Oh, don't give us too much. That commission was appointed by the late Government."

Hon. Charles Murphy accused Hon. Frank Cochrane of ignoring the question of the Opposition. More courtesy on his part would expedite public business.

Rt. Hon. R. L Borden moved that the committee rise and report progress and that the bill stand over till the information desired by the Opposition was produced.

Sea Serpent In St. Lawrence.

Quebec, Jan. 26.—Another man claims to have seen the "sea serpent." This time the witness is a reliable official of the Marine Department, Mr. Fafard, lighthouse keeper at Pointe Des Monts, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Mr. Fafard informed his superiors that he saw a "sea serpent" twice this winter. The monster was a hundred feet long.

Revolutionaries Murdered.

Mukden, Manchuria, Jan. 26.—A series of assassinations of revolutionaries occurred here on Tuesday.

Chang-Yang, one of the rebel leaders, was murdered on that day, and simultaneously a mob of assassins attacked his residence, where they killed his brother and his secretary.

A number of other murders were committed on the same evening.

Maloney Opens Campaign.

Eganville, Jan. 26.—That the bulk of the Liberal Conservative party of South Renfrew had never fostered any agreement that Hon. G. P. Graham would be unopposed in South Renfrew, that Mr. A. T. Low erred if he said that they had, and he intended to seek the suffrage of the riding, conscious that he had never broken faith with it and independent of any agreement, were the emphatic statements made by Dr. Maloney, Conservative candidate in South Renfrew, before an audience of some 700 in Eganville town hall last night.

He was backed by the presence on the platform and inclusion in the list of the evening's speakers of Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General.

It was the first shot in what promises to be one of the most warmly contested campaigns that South Renfrew has yet seen.

Calm After Storm.

Rome, Jan. 26.—The Franco-Italian incident, brought about by the seizure of Turkish doctors and nurses from the French steamer Manouba by Italian warships, is practically closed.

The only question now being discussed is that of finding a method by which the Turkish prisoners can be released or delivered to the French authorities.

Archduke Operated Upon.

Budapest, Jan. 26.—Archduke Joseph, who is a grand-nephew of Emperor Francis Joseph, was operated upon yesterday for appendicitis. The attending physicians report that he is not yet out of danger. Archduke Joseph is commander of a cavalry regiment at Budapest.

Again the Poor Censor.

London, Jan. 26.—Indignation is expressed in dramatic and literary circles at the refusal of the Lord Chamberlain to allow the production of "The Coronation," a play by Christopher St John and Charles Thursby.

The one-act drama represents the King on his way to the coronation ceremony, refusing to proceed until the burden of armaments is removed from the people. He takes the ground that his oath to see that the poor are not oppressed demands that he should prevent the spending of huge sums for armaments, and forces an autocratic Cabinet of three to stop expenditure.

The piece will be presented privately at the Savoy Theatre next Sunday.

Railway Service Poor.

Woodstock, Jan. 26—The Woodstock Board of Trade decided last night to enlist the support of other western Ontario towns and cities to impress upon the Grand Trunk Railroad and the Canadians Pacific Railroad the need of an improved train service.

At the present time there is no passenger service for points west of London between the hours of 10.27 a.m. and 7.15 p.m. out of Stratford on the Grand Trunk Railroad, and between 10.45 a.m. and 7 p.m. on the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

What is wanted is a train passing through Woodstock at about 2 p.m., making connection at London for points west.

Trusts to Control Canal.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The ultimate control of all shipping through the Panama Canal by the foreign "shipping trust" with chief benefit to big American shippers, such as the U. S. Steel Corporation, would result from the admission of foreign ships to the American coastwise trade, according to President George S. Dearborn of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co., who testified yesterday before the House committee on interstate commerce.

The "Bunyan" Window.

London, Jan. 26.—A memorial window for John Bunyan was unveiled in Westminster Abbey yesterday afternoon, 224 years after his death. The window illustrates scenes from "The Pilgrim's Progress." This is the window for which contributions were given last year. The cost of the memorial was about $7,000.

Good Word For "Shoe Trust."

Montreal, Jan. 26.—"Since the United Shoe Machinery Co. has been established in Canada, conditions have improved wonderfully, both in the quantity and quality of the work turned out by the machines," said W. S. Mardon of the S. Mardon Shoe Co., yesterday, before the commission investigating trade conditions as handled by the company in question.

The enquiry was adjourned until Tuesday, Jan. 30.

Revolution In Montenegro.

London, Jan. 26.—A despatch from Cettinjie, Montenegro, reports that the police there have discovered a widespread movement to overthrow the Montenegrin dynasty and establish a republic. It is alleged that the movement is being engineered chiefly by Montenegrin emigrants in the United States, who have sent $200,000 to the revolutionary committee, whose headquarters are in Belgrade.

Hydro For Brantford.

Brantford, Jan. 26.—As a result of a conference with Engineer Sothman and the citizens' committee, the City Council will ask that estimates be prepared for the submission of a Hydro-electric bylaw in this city. Mr. Sothman advised that Brantford apply for 2,000 horsepower, and gave an estimate that $75,000 would be required. Estimates will be submitted to the city within a month.

BLIND HORSE DEALER AN EXPERT

Ottawa, Jan. 26—The North Renfrew Agricultural Society has just elected a most remarkable man as its president. He is R. H. Scott, who has been totally blind since childhood. Scott is a living example of the power of the human will and ntelligence to conquer difficulties. He is, strange to say, a machinery agent and horse dealer and travels the United States and Canada unassisted, buying horses which he judges solely by the sense of touch. He is said to be an expert. Scott became blind through an accident in which a portion of a copper rivet was driven into one eye. In the inflammation which ensued the other became in- and he lost the sight of both.

Thos. Low, ex-M.P., has formally declined the Conservatives' proposal to resume the seat for South Renfrew.

There is reason to believe that the question of renewing the iron and steel bounties is still in a state of indecision.

SERMONETTES from OLD SAWS

BY TABITHA

"AN OLD EWE DRESSED LAMB FASHION"

In this age how often we are reminded of this old saying. A few days ago I was in a large gathering of ladies, all of them, I should say, long past forty, and their dress kept reminding me continually of the old saw. One dear old maiden lady who makes no secret of her sixty winters, had on what is known to small girls as a "flop" Now a flop drooping over a fresh young face with profusions of lovely hair hanging over the child's shoulders and a black beaver flop trimmed with red poinsettes drooping over a very wrinkled face, surmounted by thin, grey hair, are vastly two different things and "this old ewe dressed lamb fashion" set my thoughts wandering.

It is just this folly of trying to look what we are not—young, and the air of ridicule which it carries with it—which is one of the reasons why in this age the young people have so little respect and veneration for grey hairs.

Grey hairs which should be honorable and add dignity and should be a crown of glory to the face, the lines of which have been drawn by years of patience, of love, or it may be of sorrow.

"TABITHA."

NO TRACE OF FATHER CAN BE FOUND

Seven Windover Children Will Remain in the Shelter

No trace of Alexander Windover, the father of the seven children at present in the Shelter, has been discovered, the man having disappeared completely. Constable Cochrane has made diligent inquiries at the places the man was accustomed to frequent, but without success. He has also been in constant communication with the constable at Buckhorn.

The children have no home and they will remain in the Shelter, pending the enlargement of the case for a week.

CARRIED REVOLVER.

A man named John Parker was apprehended by the local police yesterday while unlawfully carrying a pistol on George street.

He was not exhibiting it dangerously, however.

He pleaded guilty of the charge. Chief Thompson remarked that the man is wanted in Aedendale on another charge, the chief having been in communication with the constable of that village.

The case was enlarged for a week.

Australia will send a detachment of cadets to participate in military competitions in Canada.

NEED OF CHINA'S MISSIONARIES

Toronto, Jan. 26—Miss Veletia A. Shuttleworth, a missionary to the Chinese attached to the Women's Methodist Missionary Society, has written from Chentu to relatives in this city. She describes the conditions of the Chinese under the oppression of the Manchus as pitiable.

"There are a great many Manchus in this city. Their part of the city is really a city in itself, walled off from the main part," she writes. "It is pitiful, so many of the Chinese have suffered loss of property, money, friends, and a great many lives have been lost through the trouble. It is the Chinese and the Manchus that need the prayers of the home church at this time. Really it is wonderful how comfortable we all are, and that there has been no attempt to harm foreigners or their property.

Miss Shuttleworth, whose Toronto address, was 114 Major street, came down the Yangtse Kiang River to Shangai two weeks ago, a description of which trip was cabled to The Star by Mr Plewman. The party was fired upon by the native soldiers.

PROGRESS AT ST. ANDREW'S

Growth in the Membership and the Finances

Stipend of Pastor, Rev. Jas. Rollins is Increased

Rev. James Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was presented with an addition of $200 a year to his stipend by his congregation last evening at the annual congregational rally. The meeting was largely attended and the presentation of reports from the various church organizations were closely and attentively followed.

CHURCH HAS GROWN

During the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Rollins, a gratifying growth and increase in both membership and finances has been noted, and with the statement from the many societies of the church as evidence, the congregation last evening were highly pleased at the prosperity which St. Andrew's is enjoying.

NEW ORGAN

In regard to a new church organ for St. Andrew's, a committee was appointed to investigate the whole question, and to report back at a meeting of the congregation to be called at an early date. The organ at present in use has not been giving satisfaction for some time past and has been constantly undergoing repairs.

The manner of auditing the books of the church will slightly varied this year, and it is hoped that the new plan adopted would prove more desirable. Messrs. Chisholm and E. B. Fowler will audit the church accounts for 1912 and Messrs. H. Warran and E. Thornton, the books of the other societies of the church.

It was also decided to allow the congregation to have a better idea of the expenses of the church by publishing in future, a more detailed statement of the financial expenditures so that any member might ascertain without trouble the main items of expense and how the money had been spent.

E. B. Fowler occupied the chair at the meeting and Mr. McClelland, sr., was re-appointed secretary. The session was rather lengthy owing to the number of reports and a considerable amount of discussion occurring re matters of general interest to the congregation.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The rereport of the session followed read by R. Lees.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Sunday school report was read by W. A. Campbell, which showed a very satisfactory and prosperous condition. The installation of an $180 lantern for use in the choral work of the Sunday school was one of the main features of the work of Mr. John Laing's Bible class, which is associated with the school, an innovation which has proved worthy of the expenditure.

The average attendance was 164; the highest attendance during the year 216. There was a balance of $59.34 in th ebank.

The reports of the treasurer of the session, the Women's Foreign Missionary society, the Young Women's Mission band, the Willing Workers, the Ladies' Aid, the Young Men's Guild, the choir and the Managers were given by the following respectively and adopted— Mr. Mathieson, R. Lees, Miss Girvin, Hazel Eaton, Mrs. Mowat, W. Langford, F. E. Kerr, and Andrew McFarlane.

Every society was reported to be in a satisfactory and in nearly every case, growing condition.

THE FINANCES

The financial statement of the church showed encouraging gains. The increase of Sabbath offerings over last year amounted to $528.84.

A net gain in the year's operations after the year's expenses were paid, of $242.23 was also shown, and an increase in the Sabbath missionary givings of $200.00.

The balance at credit for permanent improvements is $2389.19, after subtracting $391.46, which was used for renovating and repairing the manse.

Messrs. McFarlane and Harstone were re-elected managers. Mrs. Dr. Robinson was elected representative to the Protestant Home Board.

WAR GAME IS CONCLUDED AT THE ARMORIES

Officers Hope to Have Another at Some Future Date

For the past couple of days the officers of the Peterborough Garrison have been playing at war under the direction of Col. Benson, Officer Commanding 3rd Division, and Maj. Horden, C.S.O. 3rd. Division. The war game is worked out on maps, the opposing forces being in different rooms with the umpires in a third room. A scheme is set by the Chief Umpire and the officers commanding the opposing forces, which in this case were the Reds and Blues, issue their orders accordingly. Markers representing troops are placed on the maps, those of both sides being on the map in the umpires room. These markers are moved to correspond with the movement of the troops until finally the operations are concluded.

The umpire expressed the opinion that the officers commanding both forces had appreciated the situation and that their plans of operations were entirely sound.

The Blue force, is under command of Lieut.-Col. E. B. Clegg, while Major George W. Bennett was at the head of the Reds, while senior officers commanding the cavalry and artillery in each case.

The tactical situations were a very interesting study to the officers and the experience gained in writing orders on the field was new, and will be of great benefit.

The opposing forces met in an attack by the Blues on the Reds, who held the objective point, but it was impossible to say which won out, the disposition of both forces being well planned.

The officers of the garrison are all keen over the game, and are anxious to have another one as soon as the divisional officers can make it convenient.

The body of Seib Bing was found in an unclaimed trunk in the Great Northern baggage room at the Union Station, Seattle. The Torso had been cut through at the waist and the legs cut off.

ACTOR PREACHER PLAYS TITLE ROLE

Refused to Preach Time Worn Theology and Withdrew From Ministry

H. Arthur Barton, known as the actor-preacher, until last March a pastor of a prominent Kansas City church, is now playing a strong part with the Fred Byers "Girl and the Tramp Co." which appears at the Grand here to-day.

Mr. Barton is the son of a Chaplain in the English army. When in his teens, he came to this country travelled in the West, working as an artist. Later he began to preach, came east and studied for the ministry. After three years on the stage he became a public entertainer. Later Mr. Barton became ordained in the Methodist Episcopal Church, preached for a short time in St. Louis, and then accepted a church in Kansas City, Missouri where he was pastor for about three years. Mr. Barton's religious views gradually underwent a change until he became a higher critic, and accepted "new thought." He refused to preach the time-worn theology, and boldly enunciated a religion of love, science and common sense. His determined departure from the time-worn creeds, coupled with his "actor" manner in the pulpit, caused a serious breach in his church, and comment favorable and reverse from the outside. The papers stated that Mr. Barton had been asked to play the leadin grole in a "new thought" play which would antagonize the old religious views. The result was that the Conference of which Mr. Barton was a member requested his withdrawal from the ministry and membership of the Methodist church.

There is, however, another chapter in the actor-preacher's romantic history. When on the stage playing "Landry" in "Fanchon the Cricket" in a Western city, he met a beautiful girl, "the flower of the town." whom he afterwards married. At the time of Mr. Barton's church trouble the actor-preacher was divorced by his wife on the ground of incompatability. Mrs. Barton speaks in high terms of her former husband, and says; "We merrily drifted apart."

The leading lady with the Fred. Byers' "Girl and Tramp Co." is Miss Floy Belle Mann, a sister of Mr. Barton's fomer wife. Miss Mann and Mr. Barton engaged in dramatic work together before Mr. Barton's marriage with her sister. It was at the earnest request of Miss Floy Mann that Mr. Barton was induced to support Mr. Fred. Byers in "The Girl and Tramp Company."

Life's Long Journeys.

A traveling ticket-collector on the Great Western Railway between Paddington and Exeter (Eng.) makes the double trip six days a week. In other words, he covers no fewer than 2,085 miles per week, or 108,420 miles in the round year. Every third Sunday or so he works a trip, but then there are his holidays, so these runs need not be added to his total.

The traveling staffs on the Scotch trains from London cover an even greater annual distance, and, as for the crews of Atlantic liner, they aggregate a larger total still.

Approximately the distance from England to New York is 3,000 miles, and putting the number of actual crossings at forty, this gives a total of 120,000 miles a year.

There are many business men holding season-tickets between London and Glasgow, who make the double journey twice or three times a week. British members of Parliament are great travelers, and many who represent Irish constituencies journey home every week-end.

THE WEST IS RAPIDLY CHANGING

PICTURESQUE PLAINS MAKE WAY FOR MODERN HOMES.

The Prairie Farms Are Not Yet the Highly Civilized Arcadias That They Are Sometimes Depicted However, Says Writer In Globe, But They Contain the Germ of a Wonderful Agricultural Civilization.

The stories of the west are numerous and varied, and cause many a young hopeful to conjure up a fairy picture in his mind which is only dispelled by actual experience in the country.

Most people imagine the southern Alberta of the past is yet the same—a wide, unshorn plain, with scarce a habitation in sight, huge herds of range cattle grazing here and there, with a plentiful supply of cowboys to each herd. Though that was true enough of past years, the present scene is one of endless miles of fences, countless acres of grain, and the accompanying number of farm houses, with the regulation supply of chickens, pigs, cows and stables.

Ten years ago one could drive forty miles across the prairie and pass but two lonely shacks on his journey. Often one would catch a glimpse of a small herd of antelope as they darted across the prairie in their fright, stopping now and then to gaze in motionless wonder at the unwonted sight of a human being. The trail was faint in those days, and the prairie buttes were used as guides. They were hills that stood prominently above the rest of the plain and seemed in the distance to have a peculiar blue shade cast upon them. The traveler always made for these buttes and from them could usually direct his path in the right direction. If in doubt he climbed the butte and from the remains of the old Indian signalling pile at the top viewed the few dots which represented the sole settlement of the country. If one met a traveler then he did not drive by with scarcely a glance as he does now. No, they greeted each other cordially as long-lost friends, drew in their horses and chatted an hour or more upon affairs strictly personal.

Now, along the same route, one is hemmed in by countless acres of yellow wheat and only occasionally is there a stretch of perhaps a quarter section of prairie. The grain fields are beautiful indeed, but all the vastness of the prairie seems lost, as Uncle Sam ably illustrated when, as he drove along the wheat fields of Alberta, only his top hat being visible, he remarked: "It's all right, John, but, hang it all, I can't see anything for the wheat." Also upon the same trip one passes three busy little railroad towns; and the old shack which was once the largest house on the Little Bow is replaced by a fine white edifice, with waterworks laid in, if you please, from the spring on the side of the hill.

There are still a few lonely little bachelors' shacks with the corral, the dog, and the usual amount of tinned goods, but the ordinary habitation is a moderate house occupied by a large and busy family, and surrounded by an ample supply of barns, henhouses and pig-pens.

The cowboys have disappeared with the range cattle, and just as they have vanished so has the old-time goodfellowship gone. No longer does the owner of the shack leave his door open for his wandering brother of the prairie. If he did he would probably find his spoons and his stovepipes gone. No, he bars and boards the door, likewise the windows, and returns as soon as possible to see whether the wires of his fence have not been cut.

In the time of the shack a visitor was welcomed with open arms, hospitality being taken as a matter of course, and returned as freely at some future time. Travelers would go twenty miles out of their way in order to pass the night in the house which contained the sole piano in all the countryside. It was then an open-arm welcome and free hospitality for every passing stranger, but this has been much abused lately, and now, more often than not, you will find it is "twenty-five cents for meals, and fifty cents for beds."

Though the ranches have been turned into farms, do not imagine a picture of an ideal country home. The country has not advanced far enough for that. I have read delightful stories of the busy farmer's wife as she cheerily does her housework, feeds the pigs and chickens, and makes butter in her immaculately clean dairy, while her jovial husband whistles about his work as he drives his sleek, well-fed horses about the farm.

The farmhouses I have seen in southern Alberta have nearly all been dirty inside and out, the house swarming with flies, chickens running about the floor, and dirty dishes piled high upon the table, while the housewife was outside driving the cattle from the grain field or repairing a fence. Her tight-fisted, money-making husband in the meantime was out swearing at his lean colts as he flung the harness on them ready for the day's seeding.

As for the cowboy, he, too, is a thing of the past. I know that the cowboy of the eastern imagination would not be complete without "shaps" and spurs and an untamable steed. I hate to dispel this illusion by saying that I have actually seen that personage in common overalls, without spurs, and mounted on a well-broken horse. In fact his ordinary mount was usually a well-trained animal, and it was only when occasion called for it that he performed his evolutions on the famous broncho. The ordinary cowboy was quiet in manner, unostentatious in his actions, and showed up to best advantage with his native background when managing a bunch of range cattle. There he could give free vent to his native eloquence in language and call his comrades by what he considered their only appropriate names, such as "Bunch Grass Billy," "Wolf Henry," "Side-Wheel Tom" and "Buffalo Bill."

But this remnant of the past is almost gone. Only stories of him remain, except an odd veteran or two. Now there is no room for ranching or "round-ups," and the cowboy has sold out and departed for other spheres. His place is being taken by the "would-be" cowboy, usually a rough-and-ready Yankee who, having heard tales of the heroes before him, desires to do likewise. With a good fund of profane language, large and ample supplies of shaps and spurs and a certain amount of devil-may-care in his actions, he launches forth with the nom de plume of the western cowboy. In spite of his reckless bearing, however, he cannot handle a gun nor imitate the cowboy's wild doings in times of excitement. Do not be deceived. You can find the imitation every day as he dashes along the road on his bucking broncho, waving some sort of a lariat and with boisterous laughter and speech doing his best to impersonate his ideal.

The inner qualities of the two differ greatly. For an example I will describe their treatment of the gentler sex. No genuine cowboy would swear in the presence of women. He has too much respect for them for that, besides he is not given to showing off, but I have heard the modern representation utter a stream of language in the presence of women that would cause a hardened horse-thief to blush. Though the real cowboy is anything but deferential in manner, I have never seen him allow a woman to harness or saddle a horse while he was around, yet I have seen his namesake calmly sit and smoke in the shade watching his wife or sister saddle and bridle her pony, while he peacefully surveyed the scene. Sometimes from the height of his superiority he would give directions as to how it should be done!

The old prairie times are over, and though the north is yet to be explored it can never have the vastness and freedom which once belonged to the plains, and when this last great west is filled wither can we turn our footsteps? Though our land is improved in many respects, we old-timers will ever retain a warm spot in our hearts for the good old days of prairie freedom and equality which once were ours.—D. E. Nemmous in Saturday Globe.

An Ambitious Boy.

A little story has come from the West, of which Hon. R. L. Borden is the hero. During the last trip which he made to the Pacific Coast while he was still Leader of the Opposition. Mr. Borden visited a well-known health resort. A small boy carried some parcels for the future Premier, and Mr. Borden got into conversation with the lad. Like most adults who are not accustomed to converse with juniors, he asked the small boy what he intended to become when he grew up.

"I want to go on the bench," said the lad.

Mr. Borden was much impressed by the ambition of his young acquaintance. He was rather surprised that an apparently unlettered youth should be an admirer of the Canadian judiciary, but he took the opportunity to praise and encourage him. Canada would indeed become a great nation if all the boys entertained such high hopes for their futures.

Later in the day, Mr. Borden recounted the incident to some of his local friends.

"I am afraid that the boy's ambition is not as exhalted as you imagined," one of them said. "The bench is the seat of the bell-boys up at the hotel, and I suppose he looks forward to joining the uniformed squad."

Paper Drinking Cups.

In the schools of Austria the children are taught to carry several sheets of writing paper in their pockets at all times. Then when a child is thirsty he can roll one of the sheets into a cone and make a perfectly serviceable cup, which may be placed, after being used, in the nearest waste paper box. How to roll the cones deftly is taught the children. The tearing of a notch about half an inch long near one end before rolling the cone serves to make the improved cup stronger.

"Well, have you thought of a sentence containing the word dynamite?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, sir. My sister Rose wouldn't let you kiss her, but my sister Dinah might.

A FIELD DAY IN PETERBOROUGH

According to advices received from the Dominion Alliance, Toronto, a great deal of interest is being awakened in the Field Day which is to be observed in Peterboro County on Sunday next.

On Monday afternoon and evening live issues will be discussed at the Convention in this city. The Liquor License Act, is by no means a perfect piece of legislation and needed improvements in it will be dealt with. It is almost certain that the Government will be again approached with a view to securing some amendments which experience has shown to be urgently required. Law enforcement is a subject which is also looming up large and it will receive considerable attention. As 460 municipalities will be free from bar-rooms after 1st of May next, the Provincial situation is becoming one of very great interest, and an exposition of this will be passed under review. The time is drawing near, when another Local Option contest can be held in the city of Peterboro, and the convention will probably decide whether any action should be taken now.

A Riddle.

What is the difference between a gardener, a billiard player, a gentleman and a sexton? Answer.—The first minds his peas, the second minds his cues, the third minds his p's and q's, and the fourth minds his keys and pews.

Seed Peas at Home.

The resourcefulness of New Ontario is becoming more and more apparent every day. At the annual meeting of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association held recently at the Parliament buildings, Toronto, it was decided to grow seed peas in New Ontario instead of importing them from Germany, as has been done hitherto. The price paid for the imported peas was $16 per bushel, and on account of the large quantities needed in Canada, the expense was consequently very great. Experiments have been tried at growing the seed peas in New Ontario and excellent results have been obtained. The weevil and moth are unknown in that region. A greatly increased crop of seed potatoes will also be grown in the northern clay belt in future.

The vegetable growers are anxious to have the number of greenhouses increased at the Guelph Agricultural College, and they also want 50 acres of the Monteith demonstration farm devoted to the growing of vegetables.

C.N.R. Wreck In West.

Kamsack, Sask., Jan. 24.—The Canadian Northern express from Edmonton to Winnipeg was badly wrecked yesterday morning a mile east of Cote, 273 miles from Winnipeg. The cause was the spreading of rails. The train was in charge of Conductor Murphy, who was very seriously injured.

The engine, mail and baggage cars remained on the rails. but the first and second-class coaches. the dining car and sleeper took the ditch.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

LAST OF THE PIT WOMEN.

Kitty Grayson Evaded the English Law Disguised as a Man.

By the death of old Kitty Grayson, which has just taken place at Brynn, in the Wigan coal field, England, probably the last survivor of the race of pit women of the old days has passed away, says the London Times. Kitty, who was in her ninety-second year, was, in fact, probably the last woman who worked in the mine, and her life linked up the present with the faroff days when women and children toiled long and arduously in the bowels of the earth.

The act of parliament, known as Lord Ashley's act, which prohibited women and girls, as well as boys under the age of ten years, from working underground in the mines, came into operation in 1843, when Kitty was a sprightly young woman of nineteen, working as collier's "drawer," or wagoner, in the pit.

In order to evade what was then resented as a legislative innovation by many of those in whose interest the law had been put upon the statute book, Kitty Grayson disguised herself as a man by donning her father's breeches, jacket and flannel shirt. The government inspector got wind of it, however, and paid a surprise visit to the colliery, catching Kitty at her work below ground. The result was that she was instantly stopped, though she had by this time actually worked for full twelve months in the pit after the act of parliament had become operative and had, of course, been defying the law of the land all this time. In later life old Kitty often told how she had outrun the legislature by donning her disguise.

Soap and Water In German Schools.

The latest feature of the German city school system is the introduction of soap, towels and water basins into children's day schools. The purpose is not only to diminish the danger that may arise from dirt, but also to wake in the children the sense of cleanliness, mental as well as physical. The city authorities, besides laying down times and occasions for hand washing, go on to explain how it is done. The great majority of mankind regard the process of washing one's hands as a comparatively simple matter. That is not the view of the German authorities. They recognize a perfunctory and a thorough way of doing things, and with this view they have included a nail brush in the equipment about to be issued to the schools.

States That Parisian Sage is Best Hair Tonic

"I had a bad case of dandruff. My sclap was full of dandruff and it came out thick and scaly. My hair came out badly; often I nearly cried on account of losing my pretty head of of hair.

I heard of PARISIAN SAGE and only had to use two bottles, before the hair stopped coming out, the scalp became clean, and all the dandruff disappeared. The hair became silky and one big reason that I liked PARISIAN SAGE was that it kept the hair smooth, silky, and clean with no traces of stickiness.

I believe this tonic to be the best on the market as there has been no return of dandruff, or hair falling out whatever. I am glad to publicly endorse the use of PARISIAN SAGE. I have often endorsed its use and am glad to do it." 33 E. Bond Street, Corry, Pa.

A Gift For Your Friend's Baby.

Have you tried making a pair of little shoes for the baby? Clean a pair of long wristed chamois skin gloves and trace on them the outline and design of a pattern for little embroidered shoes. Then with pyrographic outfit burn the design, being sure that the point is not too hot, and after cutting out on the outline carefully overcast the soles to the tops. You will thus have a pretty little pair of shoes, knowing that they are warm and comfortable and made at trifling cost.

Corsage Pins Half a Foot Long.

Six inches is not an extraordinary length for a brooch now, but of course these very long bodice pins have particular uses. The straight pin, set with rhinestones and artificial rubies, is for one of the wide jabots, and the humped pin will hold a bunch of violets securely in place.

Yuletide Quotations.

The quotations given below may be of some value to those who like to accompany a Christmas gift with an appropriate sentiment: With a calendar, "Write it on your heart that every day is the best day of the year;" with a book, "An old friend to trust;" with a pair of slippers, "We must go together;" with a pair of gloves, "We're a pair if ever there was one."

To Keep a Little Fire.

To keep only a little fire in the furnace, as it is often desirable to do in the fall, put in the coal so that it forms a little pile about one foot in diameter near the door and not so that it is scattered all over the floor of the furnace. This "does the trick" admirably.

THE MYSTIC MIKADO.

Outside the Royal Clan No Man Has Ever Spoken to Him Directly.

The mikado, earth born son of heaven, and his court of demigods dwell in a forest solitude in the midst of the great city of Tokyo. The palace world is separated from the world of the people by a triple moat of dead water and a double wall of granite crowned by twisted pine trees and mottled with the moss of ages. Except upon stated occasions the mikado is as invisible and well nigh as inaccessible as the sun goddess amid the hereditary treasures of the Ise shrine. In his august person the hotly disputed origin of his race finds its reflection, for he has the eyes of the Mongol, the coloring and facial structure of the Malay.

To his people, despite all the other changes which the last decade has seen, the mikado still remains the vague mystic figure of the feudal days. Outside of the imperial clan no man has ever spoken to him directly, not even Prince Ito or General Yamagata, the old bow and arrow soldiers whom he loves. Conversation even with the elder statesmen must pass through a "third voice" so as to preserve the etiquette of indirection.—Metropolitan Magazine.

China's Population.

According to the latest official returns, the number of inhabitants of China proper, Manchuria and the new dominion is 312,423,025. And as we have pointed out before, observes the National Review (China), the estimates of China's population have always had a tendency to exaggeration, and even if 10,000,000 be added on for Mongolia and Tibet the total is far below that usually quoted. In 1904 Mr. Rockhill, then United States minister in Pekin, after careful inquiry came to the conclusion that the number of inhabitants of China proper was probably less than 270,000,000. That would make the total population of the empire something slightly under 300,000,000. If something be allowed for natural increase since that time it does not seem as if the 312,000,000 of the latest census erred on the side of understatement.—London Globe.

BEIN' GRAN'PA.

Bein' gran'pa, I allow,
Is the finest sort o' fun.
Age has settled on your brow,
An' you've got your hard work done
Only thing you've got t' do
Is t' sit around an' play
With the babes, so long as you
Keep 'em out of mother's way.

When it's pleasant out o' doors
You go walkin' hand in hand;
When it's wet the parlor's yours,
An' you romp in Carpet Land.
Battles? Yes, you have 'em there
With your warriors of tin,
An' the fort's your rockin' chair,
That they allus storm an' win.

An' your knee's a ragged cliff
That the bravest of 'em climbs.
Though it's gettin' old an' stiff
You don't notice it such times.
You just take 'em as they come,
Helter-skelter, one an' all,
To the sound o' horn an' drum,
An' at their command you fall.

Then you let 'em get you down,
An' you play sometimes you're dead,
An' they take the paper crown
That you made 'em from your head,
An' they cheer an' shout: "Hooray!
We have killed the wicked king!"
An' around your lifeless clay
They begin to dance an' sing.

Then they let you rise again
On the promise that you'll tell
All about that wondrous glen
Where the elves an' goblins dwell,
An' they sit about your knee,
Eyes an' mouths all open wide,
An' they wish that they could see
All the haunts where fairies hide.

There are some think gettin' old
Is a reason to be sad,
But with youngsters in the fold
Gettin' old should make you glad,
An' I can't help smilin' now
As I view life's settin' sun.
Bein' gran'pa, I allow,
Is the finest sort o' fun.

The Autoplow In War.

Germany has introduced an autoplow for digging trenches during actual engagement, and it promises to play an important part hereafter in army circles. The new machine can do the work three times as speedily as men, besides saving immeasurable energy to an army. It requires but one operator and travels at about six miles an hour when going at top speed.

EMPEROR PU-YI.

THE IMPERIAL PALACE AT JEHOL.

THE EMPRESS DOWAGER.

THE GUARDIAN OF THE PALACE AT JEHOL.

When the fall of the Manchu dynasty began to appear inevitable it was stated that the court would flee in case of need to its old refuge among the mountains of Mongolia, 150 miles to the north of Pekin. The palace, with a surrounding galaxy of temples, lies in the valley near the small military town of Jehol. Temples and palace were built about two hundred years ago by order of the great Emperor Chien-lung, the first in an attempt to shift the centre of Buddhist influence from Thibet to Mongolia, the second as a cool pleasure resort in summer.

The Potala, a huge square building, is modelled on the great temple at Lhasa, and there are three others of varying magnificence, each with its complement of lamas. Opposite the Valley of Temples lies the palace, a kingdom of dreams—willow pattern come to life—set in a semicircle of little green hills.

The palace consists of one story buildings with yellow tiled roofs built round flagged courtyards and shaded with fine trees. There are splendid bronzes in the neglected courtyards, and rumor tells of many treasures hidden away within the palace walls not to be seen by the prying eyes of foreigners.

In the grounds are small temples, a theatre, an immense pagoda, tallest and most perfect of its kind, and everywhere pavilions, large and small, one to suit each mood of the art loving Emperor who designed them—one for poetry, one for learning, one for the old and one for the young—even one for rainy days. There is all that skill and taste could furnish for a king's delight in summer time, but for all its beauty the court may find its refuge bleak and chill among the snowclad hills.

CARELESS PARENTS.

Many men and women carry through life the effects of falls received during helpless childhood, though at the time careless parents paid little heed to the matter. It is one of our weak points that so few children are properly cared for during infancy. In some ways the Indian mother knows more about what is good for her child than the white skinned mother, though the former is far from being the most clean in her ways and the latter is supposed to be well informed in all the fine points of modern hygiene.

The Indian woman knows nothing of sterilizing the child's toys and in most cases she scorns even to wash him, but she knows that if he is to be straight and strong his little back must be taken care of and the delicate and easily moulded spinal column must have something straight to support it. So in most tribes the papoose is put into a sack or bound to a thin board or piece of stiff, straight leather. According to some doctors it would be far better if we had something like the papoose bag for the white baby, which is allowed at an early age to support the weight of his head on his weak spine.

In childhood the vertebrae are easily displaced and when they become so the pressunre of the bones on the nerves induces many diseases. Some doctors believe this to be the commonest cause of all disease, but others do not agree on this point. One thing is certain, however, a displaced vertebrae may cause any one of several kinds of trouble, from simple headache to paralysis, and readjustment usually brings cure. But prevention is far better, and without doubt many of the ills which attend men and women in later life might be avoided if the infant's spine were more carefully supported and were subject to less violence.

The young child should not be grasped around the chest or lifted up under the arms without the support of the other hand under it. Tossing and bouncing the baby are bad for it because they cause shock to the delicate spinal cord and the results of these shocks are seldom discovered until years afterward.

The best position for a small child is lying on its stomach, and its bed should have a mattress that while soft is not too soft or two springy. To avoid bending the spine and to guard against any premature permanent curvature some arangement such as the bag of the papoose or the wickelkissen of the German child should be used when carrying the baby.

Unfortunately neither of these devices is considered hygienic, because the child's limbs are too closely confined. But a pillow or small portable mattress can be arranged to carry the child about on without handling it, and this will prove in the end more comfortable to the child as well as more healthful.

One frequently sees a child almost lifted off the ground by one arm or pulled up into a high seat by a firm grasp of one hand. No wonder children's nerves are on edge and that children seen around the shopping districts loudly wail their distress.

Catarrh and Bronchitis

The Bane of Thousands, and has Hitherto Baffled the Skill of Medical Science.

Catarrhozone

Dry air treatment is the one treatment that will cure these diseases.

What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?

Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine, that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.

Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?

Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?

Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.

Think for a moment. Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

A Problem In Mathematics.

There is a certain instructor in mathematics in a Washington institution who is beginning to wonder whether his five-year-old son is going to inherit his mathematical temperament.

On one occasion the father and mother of this youngster, while visiting a resort near the capital, were watching the boys and girls swing the circle on a merry-go-round. The father commented upon the sight presented by one small sized youngster astride a huge lion, and, as he did so, noticed a serious look on the face of his own offspring, who was standing beside him.

"Why such a solemn expression, Tom?" asked the father.

"I was just wondering," said Tom, who had had one ride and, having a ticket for another, wished to use it to the best advantage, "whether I would get a longer ride than I had on the horse in the inside circle if I rode on one of the lions on the outside row."—Judge.

Absolutely Safe.

"You'd better fumigate these bills before you go home. They may be covered with microbes," said the druggist one Saturday evening as he handed a few faded, worn and soiled silver certificates to his clerk. "No danger from that source," responded the latter. "A microbe could not live on a drug clerk's salary."—National Monthly.

A VARIEGATED MENU.

From the Italian Point of View Only However.

In the downtown district of Chicago there is a restaurant which makes a specialty of serving a business men's luncheon at an unusually low price, the meal consisting of meat, a cup of coffee and a side dish of vegetables.

One of the customers of the place became indignant because macaroni had been served as a side dish every day for a week. Calling the manager, the aggrieved customer said:

"John, you have macaroni here too often, and it"—

"You are right, sir; quite right," agreed the manager.

"I don't want to pose as a kicker," explained the customer, "but"—

"Say no more about it, I beg," entreated the manager. "I'll have it changed at once."

Then he called to the head waiter and said:

"Tell the chef he has macaroni too often. Tomorrow we will make a change. We will have spaghetti."—Popular Magazine.

Obliterating the Color Line.

Poindexter was Michael's understudy and first assistant gardener. The latter, a jovial Irishman, was above the average in many ways and was superintendent of the lawn and general utility man about the place. Fond of a joke, he could appreciate a good one even at his own expense.

There was no question whatever as to the nationality of Michael's Senegambian cohort, as he was called. The word "black" did not do justice to Poindexter's complexion.

One day Michael said to him, "Poindexter, they say if ye give a nigger a watermelon to eat he can lie in the hottest sun all day and never get sunstruck, nor even feel the heat."

"No, suh; no, suh. Dat ain' so!" expostulated Poindexter. "De sun affecks niggers jes' de same as it does you or me."—Woman's Home Companion.

THE GENUINE ALWAYS SUPERIOR TO THE IMITATION

The experienced buyer never permits the shrewd merchant to convince him that an imitation is superior to the genuine advertised article. In refusing a substitute he protects himself and the manufacturers who have expended enormous sums in giving the public information regarding their products.

Advertised articles have stood the test of public approval on their merits and materials embracing their make-up The mere fact that they are imitated is competent testimony of their worth.

DECAYING SPLENDOR.

As Seen In the Ruins of the Imperial Tombs of Nanking.

Few of the splendors of Nanking, once the populous and prosperous capital of the Chinese empire, survive, for the city began to decline when the seat of government was removed to Pekin. Some of the more durable of its public works and decorations remain in part and probably the best preserved is the avenue leading to the famous Ming Tombs. On either side of this thoroughfare are massive stone figures of elephants, camels and lions, as if guarding the road over which were borne to their final resting places the once mighty rulers of the world's most populous country. Each of the two figures in the foreground was carved from one piece of stone and is about 12 feet high. The silent sentries in the distance, proportionately large, were produced in the same manner and give an impressive lesson of the patient and persevering industry of the Chinese. These monuments to despotic vanity are fully 500 years old. The avenue leads to the Imperial tombs upon which time have made telling ravages. It is believed that some, if not all, of the massive stone animal figures were used as sepulchres for faithful adherents of the occupants of the Imperial tombs. Thus in sepulchre as in palace, rulers and guards continued in the same relative positions.

In the years when these stone figures were carved and the avenue constructed, Nanking had a population of 4,000,000 and rivaled any other city in the world in its palaces, libraries, institutions of learning, commerce and manufactures. Its porcelain tower, built in 1413-32 by Emperor Yungkoh in commemoration of his mother, was one of the most wonderful structures of the centuries. It was octagonal in form 322 feet high, slightly tapering and nine stories high. Each story was provided with a gallery and a projecting roof from the corners of which bells were suspended. In the interior a spiral staircase led to the summit, formed by an elegant spire, on the top of which rested a ball of brass overlaid with gold. This tower with many of the other great works of the city disappeared during the period from 1853 to 1864, when the Tai-Pings were in possession of the city.

Amid the ruins of the Imperial palace, only the square tower, 50 feet high, is now standing, and on the top thereof is the gigantic statue of a turtle.

BEAUTIFUL EYES

are made beautiful by long, silky lashes and well defined, lustrous brows. Eyes, like diamonds, depend on their setting. The beauties of the face are lost is the eye brows are thin and scanty, and the lashes are thing and scanty. Parisian Lash Lustre grows beautiful, soft, silky lashes. It has done so for society women throughout Europe, and it comes here well recommended to do the same for you. Parisian Lash Lustre is not a dye or colorator, but a scientific preparation for beautifying the eye lashes and brows. Our guarantee goes with every box of Parisian Lash Lustre. A two weeks' treatment will bring beauty to your eyes that you have never before possessed. By mail, prepaid, in opal boxes on receipt of price, fifty cents. B. V. RED TAPE IN FRANCE.

Why the Army Is Still Hungering For Canned Sausage.

The ways of the French red tape expert are many and delightful. Here is a French war office story, for which my authority vouches. A maker of tinned goods, who dealt largely with the French war office, had invented a novelty. He had found a means of putting sausages into tin boxes which preserved them absolutely.

But the French war office has a rule with regard to preserves. They have to be left at the Rue St. Dominique for six months to see if they will really keep before any contract is given. M. X. left his box of sausages and went away happy. He was away for a year. At the end of this time he called at the war office so that the sausages should be opened in his presence. He was told that it was no use opening them; he would not get a contract. "Why not?" he asked. "They have been here a year," he was told, "instead of six months. Our orders are to open after six months and see whether the goods are in a proper state of preservation."

And, although M. X. explained that a year held just twice six months and that if the sausages were still sausages it would be proof positive that they were well tinned, red tape, as usual, held its own. He was obliged to take his sausages away, to bring back two boxes of others, and he will have to wait six months before he gets his contract. And the sausage loving soldiers will have to wait for their dainties.—Paris Cor. London Standard.

BREAD FROM SAWDUST.

Made For Horses, It Would Nourish Humans In Famine Times.

Sawdust may not appeal to the palate as a digestible or appetizing substitute for flour in the making of bread, but all the same there is a large bakery in Berlin turning out 20,000 loaves of sawdust bread daily.

The sawdust is first subjected to a process of fermentation and various chemical manipulations. Finally it is mixed with one-third part of rye flour, formed into loaves and baked in ovens like any other bread.

Although this new "pain de bois," as the French call it, is meant for consumption by horses only, claim is made by the manufacturers that in case of famine it would furnish a nutritious and highly satisfactory food for human beings.

Sawdust bread may not taste so bad as it sounds. In various parts of the world bread is obtained from trees. For example, in the Molucca islands the starchy pith of the sago palm furnishes a white, floury meal, which is made into flat, oblong loaves and baked in curious little ovens divided into small oblong cells just big enough to receive the loaves.

In Lapland the inner bark of pine trees, well ground and mixed with oat flour, is made into cakes, which are cooked in a pan over the fire. In Kamchatka pine bark and birch bark are used for bread without the addition of any other substance, being reduced to powder by pounding, made into loaves and baked.—New York World.

"Spotting" by Camera.

At present the fall of the shots in target practice is observed from the tops of the cage masts of our battleships and cruisers, the "spotter" noting through his glasses whether the shot falls short or over or has a deflection to right or left. Lieutenant Commander Cleland Davis has invented a method of spotting by the aid of the camera. The splash is photographed, and in a few seconds the negative is developed. The necessary corrections in the range and deflection are then made, and it is stated that the operations are so speedy that there is practically no delay as compared with the present methods of spotting.—Scientific American.

Carnegie's Spelling.

If school children took to spelling according to Andrew Carnegie's rules they would never get out of the primer class. Here are examples of his spelling, taken from the manuscript of a speech he delivered in Baltimore on May 5 last:

"Hed" for "head," "hart" for "heart," "stund" for "stunned," "thot" for "thought," "honr" for "honor," "messures" for "measures," "caus" for "cause."

And, what's more to the point, the steel king expects to have his spelling method adopted, sooner or later.—Popular Magazine.

Mysterious Arctic Tribe.

Vilhjmar Stefanson, who claims to have discovered a tribe in the arctic region of British Columbia that had never seen a white man before or even an Eskimo, though they had heard of both, has been in the far north since 1908 on a scientific expedition for the American museum. He is a graduate of Harvard and has devoted several years to anthropological research, particularly among the Eskimos. He feels that his discovery may lead to the solution of the mystery surrounding the fate of the Franklin expedition.

Canal Zone Mosquito Traps.

Mosquito traps placed in the ventilators near the roofs of barracks are giving satisfactory results in the Panama canal zone. To make the traps really effective the work of destroying the insects is done twice a day. No section in the world perhaps has received such careful anti-mosquito treatment as the zone. Crude oil to the extent of 24,000 gallons and 11,000 gallons of larvacide are now used monthly in the work of ridding the zone of mosquitoes.

THOUGHT IT WAS CANCER

"Fruit-a-tives" completely restored me

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., Jan. 25th. 1910.

"For many years, I suffered tortures from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited my food constantly. I also suffered with Constipation. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer, but medicine gave only temporary relief.

I read in the 'Maritime Baptist' about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the cures this medicine was making and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say 'Fruit-a-tives' has entirely cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say "Thank God for 'Fruit-a-tives'."

NOT TO BE RELIED UPON.

Are Our Senses the Last Thing In the World to Be Believed?

While it is a fact that nine persons out of ten place, or think they place, the utmost faith in the testimony of their senses, when it comes to the more important affairs of life few of us accept this testimony. For instance, we do not believe that the sun moves around the earth, although we see it; and the flatness of the earth that is evident to our uninstructed physical sight is refuted by the understanding. We do not believe our senses, but our reason, in these premises, though we do rely upon them in many matters where we should know better. We have for guidance such truisms as "Don't trust in appearances," and "Believe nothing that you hear and only half of what you see," but still we are often deceived. Illusions and delusions afflict us from the cradle to the grave.

We think that we see and hear a great deal that we do not see or hear at all. On the witness stand and under oath we testify to things that we imagine to have taken place only to have our testimony contradicted by that of other witnesses, equally reliable and conscientious, who describe minutely things and occurrences as being evident to them at the same time and place as those we have described, yet materially different in every important detail. It is contended by many able men and with much reason that the much derided "circumstantial evidence" is, after all, more reliable than that of so-called "eye-witnesses."

A celebrated professor recently staged a mimic "holdup" in the lecture room, having his actors suddenly rush in, engage in a pretended fight and suddenly depart. There were some 50 members of the class and each was requested to write an accurate description of the occurrence. The result was about 50 different versions. One man had seen an assault committed with a knife, another with a pistol, another with a club and so on. None of the descriptions of the persons engaged tallied with the facts. Yet each man was willing to swear to what he had seen.

This is all natural when it is considered that no two persons have the same sense of color, form, or sound. And whose senses are reliable? No one's!

Alpine Fatalities.

The foolish fad of Alpine climbing has caused the deaths of 115 persons during the present year. Of these the majority were Germans — 38 — while there was only one American victim. A considerable number lost their lives in their search for edelweiss and other Alpine blooms and nearly all of the tragedies were preventable. In not one instance did the climber provided with a guide lose his life. The victims were the inexperienced, who dared fate and lost.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

THE PEACH KING.

Persistency of the Boy Who Wanted Good Roads.

In the American Magazine E. I. Farrington writes of J. H. Hale, the peach king. When Mr. Hale was a small boy there was a mortgage on his mother's house. Young Hale bought some peach trees, and just as the mortgage was to be foreclosed he sold his first crop and paid it off. Mr. Farrington writes:

"After that the Hale boy was much in the local public eye. He went to town meeting one year and asked for a better road between Glastonbury and Hartford. The conservative tobacco farmers frowned on the forward youth. Next year he was on hand again, however, this time to plead for permission to have built only ten rods of good road at the town's expense. He was politely informed that boys were made to be seen and not heard and went home disappointed once more. But the next year he bobbed up a third time, more determined than ever, and evinced a disposition to talk all day. On that occasion his persistency and filibustering tactics were too much for the town farmers, and they consented to the appointment of a committee, with young Hale as chairman, to lay ten rods of modern roadway, telling them to build it anywhere they chose, but naturally expecting that Hale would select the section in front of his own farm. Instead, he picked out the worst section of the road, at least four miles from his home.

"When the next spring came this piece of roadway was like an oasis in a desert of mud, and there was little further opposition to road improvement in that part of the Connecticut valley."

ROMANCE OF FINANCE.

Rise of Sir Ernest Cassel, the Famous English Philanthropist.

The world of finance contains no more thrilling romance than that in which the central figure is Sir Ernest Cassel, whose recent gift of a park to Newmarket in memory of King Edward, whose friendship he enjoyed for many years, is but one of many splendid acts of munificence.

His father was a small banker at Cologne. At sixteen young Cassel came to England to earn his own living. He started in Liverpool, and then he came to London, and perhaps scores of people who read these lines will recall the time when he was a junior clerk, getting $4 a week. When one of the London financial houses got into difficulties the task of disentangling the complications was intrusted to the young man, and he did his work with such marked ability that he at once made a name for himself. Since then his progress has been phenomenal.

Sir Ernest provided most of the funds for the new radium institute in London, which was opened a short time ago, and he gave the $1,000,000 with which the late King Edward founded a sanitarium for the victims of tuberculosis, while he gave another million dollars for the establishment of an Anglo-German institute.

How self reliant Sir Ernest is is proved by the fact that in none of his colossal financial enterprises has he ever had a partner.—London Answers.

Chicago Fire Fans.

Plans have been perfected for the formation of a social club to be known as the Chicago Fire Fans' association. "It is not our intent merely to rush to all the big fires in our automobiles," one of the incorporators says. "We have the best interests of the department at heart. Our aim will always be to aid the firemen in every way possible, so that the Chicago fire department may always be the most efficient in the country. Although we are not allowed fire alarm signals in our homes, we always get word of any big fire either day or night by personal arrangement with either the men in the alarm department or at the different fire houses."

An Old Wright Aeroplane.

An interesting reminder of the rapid development of the art of aviation is found in the consignment to the National museum of the Wright aeroplane purchased for $30,000 in 1909 by the department of war. At the time of its acquisition by the government it had successfully passed the tests required of it—tests that seemed well nigh impossible—but already it is obsolete and must take its place alongside the earliest locomotives and sewing machines as a mere relic, useful only to show the promising beginnings of aerial navigation before cross country flights had become a commonplace.—Providence Journal.

Richest City of Its Size.

Frankfort probably shares with Amsterdam eminence as being the wealthiest city in the world per capita. There is an immense investment fund in this city garnered through the centuries. Frankfort has long been one of the great money markets of Europe, and banking in Germany centered here until recent years, the great Frankfort private banking homes leading and being assisted in their operations by such houses as Mendelssohns and Bleichroeder in Berlin and the Oppenheims in Hanover.

Man and Horse In a Race.

At Dublin, Ireland, recently a large crowd witnessed a ten mile race between a trotting mare and a man. The man was given an allowance of eighteen minutes and covered 3 miles 1 furlong in that time. He was caught 700 yards from the tape and beaten by 300 yards in 53 minutes 58 seconds.

TRADE RELATIONS WILL BE DISCUSSED

Conference to be Held in Ottawa in March Next.

Hon. Mr. Foster Writes to Australian Minister of Trade on Question.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Two important announcements were made by Hon. George E. Foster at yesterday afternoon's session of the House of Commons. A proposition had been made in writing to the Minister of Trade and Customs of Australia, he stated, which he hoped would result in a conference on the improvement of trade relations between the countries, between members of the two Governments, or at least between special commissioners.

He also stated that a cable had been received saying that it had been decided that commissioners from the West Indies and British Guiana would come to Ottawa on March 27 to discuss improved trade relations and communications.

H. B. Ames (Montreal-St. Antoine), gave an admirable exposition of the case for "imperial reciprocity" with Australia, founded on the fact, that the season were mutually exclusive and the respective products of the two countries were mutually exclusive. Political conditions in Australia now made the time a good one to seek a preferential arrangement.

Postmaster-General Pelletier denied, in answer to a question by E. B. Devlin (Wright), that he had said at Eganville as reported in The Ottawa Citizen, that the Georgian Bay Canal was part of the Government's program. He had never even mentioned the canal.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "That is a sad commentary in the Conservative press."

Hon. L. P. Pelletier: "It has been degraded by the Grit press."

Hon. Wm. Pugsley brought up the question of improved trade relations of the West Indies, and Australia. He thought the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Foster) would have done well not to confine his attention to improving the West Indies trade by tariff reduction, but to have taken up as well the question of improvement of the steamship service.

There was a recommendation which he thought an admirable one for the establishment of a double service, a direct line of steamers from Halifax and another running from Montreal with a call at St. John during the summer and running direct from St. John in the winter.

As to Australia, the [illegible] Government had been continually urging on the Government of the Commonwealth the desirability of entering into a preferential arrangement between the two countries, so far with no success.

Here again he thought Canada should move ahead regardless of the improvement of tariff conditions and improve steamship communications.

H. B. Ames (Montreal-St. Antoine), declared that, under the conditions involved in the recent reciprocity pact, Canada's proposition to the other parts of the Empire was "to send

SIR WILLIAM REFUSES TO TALK

Vancouver, Jan. 27.—Sir William Mackenzie left yesterday for the east after conferring with Premier McBride. It was reported that as a result of the conference the Canadian Northern would build their projected line into the Peace River district, starting from Lytton up the Fraser to Lilloot, then on to Fort George, thence into the Peace River country.

Sir William, however, declined to make any announcement. He briefly inspected Port Mann, the Canadian Northern Railway terminus, where three million and a half dollars' worth of property has already been sold. The entire townsite of 2,500 acres will be cleared within the next two months.

ARCHBISHOP DENIES STORY

No Move to Have the Ne Temere Decree Withdrawn From Canada.

Montreal, Jan. 27.—Speaking through his secretary, Canon Ray, Archbishop Bruchesi yesterday issued a very positive denial of the story that was wired out of Montreal on Thursday night to The Mail and Empire to the effect that prominent Roman Catholic clergy and laity in Montreal were starting a movement with a view to persuading the Pope to abolish the ne temere decree in Canada.

"It is absolutely and entirely false," was the message which the canon brought to the newspapermen from the head of the Catholic Church in Quebec. "There is not a word of truth in the story. It is a fabrication from beginning to end."

Father Donnelly, pastor of St. Anthony's parish, and one of the most prominent Catholic priests in Montreal, also denied the story. "I have heard nothing of any such movement, and were any such move in progress I would be sure to hear of it," he said. "You can say there is not a word of truth in the story."

STORY HAS NO FOUNDATION

Quebec Members Pursued Usual Course by Leaving The Capital

Are Not in Revolt Because of Harbor Commission Affair

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—The story from Ottawa to the effect that twenty-two Quebec members have left for their homes with the statement that they would not appear in the House in support of the Government, until the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal are dismissed, is characterized by Premier Borden as silly and without foundation. The occasion of the usual week-end exodus of members was made the basis of the story.

MISSIONS SCHOOLS TO BE RE-OPENED

Missionaries Will Return to Their Work at Hankow.

New York, Jan. 27.—A cable message received yesterday by the Board of Missions of the Episcopal Church from the Right Rev. Logan H. Roots, D.D., Bishop of Hankow, who with a band of workers, has remained at his post throughout the revolution, announces that the mission schools, which had to be closed when the siege of the Wuhan cities began, are to be reopened on March 7. The bishop also requests that new teachers be sent.

Hankow and Wu Chang are the centre of a very important work of the Episcopal Church, which is under Bishop Root's direction. The institutions to which he referred are Boone University, with 400 pupils, and St. Hilda's School for Girls with something over 100 pupils.

The fact that the bishop has planned for and set the date of the reopening of these institutions is regarded by the board secretaries as the most cheering news yet received from China. It will mean the return of all the missionaries of the Episcopal Church in that locality—about thirty in number. The bishop, in making his decision, it is thought by the missionary board here, must have felt confident of the immediate and peaceful outcome of the revolution, or at any rate, to have satisfied himself that a permanent quiet has been sufficiently restored in Hankow to warrant a resumption of all missionary activities.

Muzzling Dogs In St. Thomas.

Aylmer, Ont., Jan. 27.—Owing to the appearance of symptoms of rabies in St. Thomas, the Aylmer council has thought it advisable to forbid the running of unmuzzled dogs on the streets, and the mayor has issued a proclamation to that effect.

LIVELY SCENE IN COMMONS

Hon. Mr. Monk and Hon. Mr. Lemieux Have a Tilt.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Confusion reigned supreme at several stages of last evening's session of Parliament, when the House was in committee of supply on the public works estimates for Nova Scotia.

Hon. F. D. Monk and Hon. R. Lemieux shouted defiance at each other across the Chamber. The Minister of Public Works shook his fist at the ex-Minister, who denounced the Minister of Public Works as a "Marat," who demanded hundreds of heads to purify the country.

At another point of the debate when Mr. Monk denied that an appointee named Chauvin was his relative, Mr. Lemieux retorted: "O, he would deny anything. He would deny his own flesh and blood."

Members were shouting wildly and the chairman had twice to interfere. In the fiercest passage at arms between the ex-Postmaster-General and the present Minister of Public Works, the latter showing his fist at Lemieux, shouted: "I owe that to a different sort of man from you," and when Lemieux appealed to the chair, he retorted, "It's the only sort of language that suits you."

The chairman ruled that both parties had offended the rules of debate, and at last peace reigned.

Order Against a Marquis.

London, Jan. 27.—A receiving order was made yesterday by the Bankruptcy Court against the Marquis of Queensberry upon the petition of a moneylender. No figures were divulged.

TRYING TO CORNER HALLS

Liberals and Unionists Indulge in Race in Relfast.

London, Jan. 27.—Lord Londonderry, ex-Viceroy of Ireland, and one of the Unionists who are opposing the proposed home rule meeting in Belfast, yesterday sent a letter to Mr. Churchill in reply to the communication addressed to him Thursday by the First Lord of the Admiralty. In his letter Mr. Churchill informed Lord Londonderry that he would advise the Ulster Liberal Association that he would not insist on holding the meeting in Ulster Hall, but that he intended to deliver a speech somewhere in Belfast on Feb. 8.

"So far as the Ulster Unionist Council is concerned," said Lord Londonderry's reply, "its main objection, which is in the interest of law and order, is removed, if you determine to hold your meeting outside the districts which passionately resent your action. * * * At the same time having regard to the intense state of feeling created by your proposed action, the Ulster Unionist Council cannot accept any responsibility with reference to your visit to Belfast, and they do not desire to give any assurance they might be unable to fulfil."

Trying to Corner Halls.

Belfast, Jan. 27.—Lord Londonderry's letter to Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, concerning Mr. Churchill's address before a proposed Liberal meeting here Feb. 8 in favor of home rule for Ireland denotes a cessation of active efforts by the Unionist leaders to prevent Mr. Churchill speaking. Both sides to the controversy are now engaged in an endeavor to create a "corner" in the available halls of Belfast suitable for political meetings, while the business community of the city is alarmed over the possibility of rioting if the Liberal gathering is held, and has petitioned the corporation to cancel all dates for gatherings in Ulster Hall.

The Archbishop of London, assisted by other dignitaries, performed the ceremony.

Reforestation in Hastings.

Training Camp at Barrie.

Barrie, Jan. 27.—On more than one occasion the large tract of waste land northeast of Alliston has been spoken of as a site for permanent training camp for the militia. The new Minister of Militia, Hon. S. Hughes, has taken the matter up and is making a personal enquiry into the situation.

To the County Council, assembled here yesterday afternoon, he stated that one of the main objects of his visit to Barrie was to confer with the military men regarding a site for the annual camp, which would be easy of access for a number of regiments. From what he had heard there seemed to be such a site available near Angus. If arrangements could not be made for this location, he believed others could be secured.

France and Italy Agree on Seizure of Steamers.

Turkish Red Cross Officers Will be Taken to France.

Paris, Jan. 27.—The Franco-Italian incident arising from the seizure of the French steamers Manouba and Carthage, by Italian war vessels, was settled yesterday satisfactorily to both nations. This announcement was made last night at the close of a meeting of the Cabinet, which, after examination approved the terms of the note agreed upon by Camille Barrere, the French ambassador at Rome, and the Marquis di San Giuliano, Italian Minister of Foreign Affairs, and which will be published in Rome by the Italian Government.

The twenty-nine Turks, said to be members of the Turkish Red Crescent Society, who were taken off the Manouba by the Italians and sent to Cagliari, are to be immediately turned over to the French consul at Cagliari, who will send them to France where their identity will be verified by the French Government. All questions of law arising from the seizure of both the Manouba and the Carthage will be referred to The Hague.

Immediately the Cabinet adjourned Premier Poincare sent a wireless despatch to the captain of the steamer Ville Alger, which is now on its way from Tunis to Marseilles, instructing him to call at Caglieri and take the Turks on board.

The note is couched in terms of moderation and shows a spirit of conciliation. The preamble insists that it has been the desire to arrange the incident in a manner which would safeguard the dignity of both countries. The first paragraph is devoted to the case of the Carthage and the second to that of the Manouba.

The French Government is responsible for the Turks captured on the Manouba who do not belong to the Red Crescent Society and will see that they do not leave for the seat of war from a French port.

The settlement of the controversy comes in good season, for the long deliberation of the diplomats on the incident was beginning to provoke a spirit of exasperation on the part of both the public and the politicians. An instance of this was the intention announced yesterday to Premier Poincare by two members of the Chamber of Deputies that they proposed to interpellate the Government on the subject of Italy's dilatoriness. Their temper was only partially allayed by the assurance of M. Poincare that he had sent further instructions to M. Barrere, instructing that the matter be pushed to a conclusion.

The news received last night of the capture off Tunis by the Italians of the French steamer Tavignano, coming on top of the announcement of the settlement of the Carthage and Manouba incident, created an unpleasant sensation here, but public opinion is disposed to await further details of this seizure before discussing its probable outcome.

Another Seizure.

Tunis, Jan. 27.—The small French passenger steamer Tavignano, belonging to the Mixie Navigation Co. of Marseilles, and which takes the mails from Tunis to Sfox, Susa, Zarzis and Biban, all on the east coast of Tunis, was arrested Thursday night ten miles off Biban by Italian torpedo boats. The Tavignano was then taken to Tripoli, where she is held.

TO NATIONALIZE PHONE SYSTEMS

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—There is no doubt but that in due course the Government will take up the important question of the naturalization of the telephone and telegraph system of Canada. As a report is being expected from those enquiring into the telegraph rates of the country, there is no reason to assume that anything will be done until the report is made. This session will then not see any legislation introduced.

Hon. Mr. Pelletier referred to the matter at Eganville on Thursday night, and his reference had been hailed as definite. This afternoon he stated: "What I did say was that the nationalization of the telephone and telegraph was a plank in Mr. Borden's Halifax platform, and that in due course it would be taken up by the Government."

GOLD RUSH IN MANITOBA

Minitonas, Man., Jan. 27.—One hundred more gold prospectors arrived by yesterday morning from scattered points in the United States and Canada. Winnipeg wires that 300 more are leaving there. Not much prospecting is being done, only a wild desire to stake, regardless of location. The private car of R. J. Mackenzie is here with his mining expert from California and several others. They left yesterday.

To Encourage Teachers.

Ottawa, Jan. 27.—Owing to the scarcity of teachers for the rural schools, the county council will present a memorial to the lieutenant-governor in council asking for changes in the educational regulations, which will enable students passing from "unapproved" schools to take the normal schol course without passing the examinations, which are now required of them.

FINANCING THE DYNAMITE PLOT

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 27.—Facts about J. J. McNamara's expense in paying his dynamiting "crew" and in buying explosives to blow up "open shop" structures for more than two years before his arrest, were made available to the federal grand jury yesterday, through Leo M. Rappaport, formerly an attorney for McNamara.

Rappaport told the grand jury the names to whom he had entrusted all the checkbook stubs and cancelled checks, which showed McNamara's financial dealings from December, 1909, to the day of his arrest on April 22, 1911, and which also showed what disposition the dynamiter had made of the $100 a month allowed him in his capacity as secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Bridge and Structural [illegible]

COMMITTEE WILL WAIT FOR RESULT IN OTTAWA CASES

Before Taking Action as to Judgment, Which Exempts St. Alphonsus Lyceum From Taxation.

Mrs Milborough's claim for $194 damages sustained by falling on a faulty wooden sidewalk on October 16th last, came up at the meeting of the Legal Committee of the city council last evening. The claim and the circumstances were ordered to be investigated, the chairman and city solicitor being appointed to look into the matter.

Judge Huycke's ruling that St. Alphonsus Lyceum be exempted from taxation was also discussed. On the advice of the city solicitor the committee agreed to await action on the ruling, until the result of the hearing of eight similar cases now before the court of appeal of Ottawa, is made known.

The garbage by-law cropped up and came in for some comments by the committee. They agreed that such a move was in the right direction.

Ald Duffus offered that the booklet published for the Scotch Curlers who recently visited this city, will prove a splendid advertising medium for Peterborough. The booklet was handsomely illustrated and descriptive of Peterborough, will be taken back to Scotland as Souvenirs, and unquestionably freely commented upon and quoted from in the British press, thus drawing attention to this city as a desirable industrial centre. Consequently he thought the Council should pay the cost of publishing these booklets—70 at 70c each $49 in all. Ald. Duffus moved in this direction, but secured no seconder.

Ald. Duffus here contended that the Council should advertise Peterborough in a similar way, which he thought would aid considerably in booming this city.

PROSPECTORS GOLD BRICKED

Very Little Gold If Any At Minitonas

Special to the Review.

Minitonas, Man., Jan. 27.—The gold boom, which caused the population of this town to swell within a fortnight from two hundred to two thousand, seems to have been based chiefly on the word of two ex-Klondykers, who reported as to the value of the finds.

Experts now state that there is so littel gold, that it is not worth mining. Others say that which was supposed to be gold is not gold at all. Last night the prospectors held an indination meeting and expressed themselves very freely.

UNION LABEL

GERMANY AFTER MORE TERRITORY

Germany wants more territory in Africa, but wants to do no fighting to get it, but would like to secure the same by negotiations or an outright purchase. It is reported that the Congo is one part the Emperor is anxious to secure, and has made overtures to Belgium in the matter. Another story is that Germany wants the Portuguese dominions in either East or West Africa, or both. If these portions of Africa passed into Germany's hands the power most effected would of course, be Great Britain. It is understood the German ambassador in London and the British Foreign Minister have been in consultation in the matter. Sir Edward Grey recently stated that Britain did not want to stand in the way of German colonial expansion, and the sincerity of his words is now being put to the test by the Kaiser. But then Britain has nothing to fear even if Germany does secure this territory and the British people would gladly see the Germans in charge of the Congo if it would stop the horrors of the rubber trade and help the natives.

It is pointed out by some of the English papers that this would give Germany control of a wide belt of territory from the Indian ocean to the Atlantic, and that they could check British trade along the Cape to Cairo railway, which would have to pass through Belgium or Germany territory as the case may be. From the viewpoint of trade the question assumes another aspect, and Britain will no doubt take steps to see that if Germany secures this territory some working arrangement is entered into that will protect British interests. Alarmists believe that the Germans are playing just such another move in the game against Britain, but this view of the case is not shared by many. As to the Portuguese possessions, there could be no serious objection to them falling into the hands of Germany.

Britain will demand certain concessions if she allows Germany to secure these territories in Africa and will make efforts to secure Delagoa Bay as an eastern outlet for the Transvaal in the exchange. She can well afford some concessions elsewhere to secure this.

TRADERS BANK REPORT

The Traders Bank of Canada showed total assets of nearly $52,500,000 at the close of the year's business on December 30th, 1911. The comparative statement issued this year is a somewhat new feature in bank reports and shows the Traders progress in a striking manner. During the the year the bank made net profits of $601,000, being an increase of over $75,000 over the figures for the previous year. During the year the bank built up its reserve account by the addition of $200,000, and this now stands at $2,500,000.

A satisfactory feature of the report is the large increase in deposits, which now stand over $40,500,000, as compared with $36,477,000 for the previous year. This indicates more clearly than anything else that the bank is increasing in popularity with the public. Other features deserving special comment are the large increase in gold and silver coin and other quickly available assets. These represent over $14,865,000, as compared with $11,731,000 for the previous year. The total assets, as mentioned at the outset, amounted to $52,427,000, an increase of over $5,250,000 over the figures for the year 1910

The Traders Bank is a progressive and carefully managed institution, and the rapid progress which it has been making during recent years is a matter of satisfaction to the shareholders and management.

STEADY INCREASE IN THE ASSETS

The annual meeting of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company was held at their head office, 437 George street, yesterday.

The Twenty-Seventh Annual Statement presented to the shareholders at the meeting, was the report of a prosperous institution, and one of which the directors of the company may justifiably be proud. The net earnings for the past year, after payment of interest on deposits and debentures and all expenses of management, amounted to $141,943.44, and including a balance of $44,477.71, carried forward from the previous year, provided a total sum for distribution of $186,421.15.

This amount was disposed of in the following manner: $100,000.00 in quarterly dividends to the shareholders, being at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum; $40,000.00 was transferred to the credit of the reserve fund, which now amounts to $760,000.00, 76 per cent. of the paid up capital of the institution, and the balance of $46,421.15 carried forward to profit and loss account. The total assets of the company at the 31st December, 1911, were $3,580,549.41, an increase in the past year of a quarter of a million.

This steady increase in the assets further strengthens the already ample security to depositors and those entrusting their funds to the company's care.

Altogether the showing is a very creditable one and reflects great credit on the management.

Hon. Geo. A. Cox was re-elected President, and Messrs. W. G. Morrow and Richard Hall Vice-Presidents of the Company.

EDITORIAL NOTES

January is certainly trying to establish a record for continued cold weather.

A lighthouse keeper in the St. Lawrence River, says he has seen a sea serpent over 100 feet long twice. Many a poor chap would like to have had half of his jag on these two occasions.

A number of French Canadian members are said to have bolted because the Borden government refuses to discuss the Montreal Harbor board. These members are just playing to the gallery and will soon again answer the call of the party whip.

Archbishop Bruchesi says the story that the "Ne Temere decree is to be withdrawn is absolutely false and is indignant that the press should publish the item." However, there are many people, both Catholic and Protestants, who believe this would be the best solution of a troublesome problem.

The Socialists have made tremendous gains in Germany, now having 110 members, and they will have to be catered by by any government in power in that country. Emperor William is furious at the advance of Socialism, he sees in the Socialists bitter opponents of his grand military schemes.

A New Jersey wife beater was sentenced to kneel before his better half beg her pardon and then wound up by giving her a kiss. The magistrate thought this exhibition in court would shame the individual and be more severe than a jail sentence. About a dozen lashes would have been better. Wife beaters as a rule have no shame in them.

Whether or not the Ne Temere decree is withdrawn from Canada, the federal government should go ahead with its application to the Privy Council as to their power in the question of a marriage law. The question is one that should be settled for all time. Even if withdrawn now it might be again put in force at any time, and the same trouble would occur all over again.

MONTREAL, Jan. 26.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat and oats over the cable to-day was quieter, but the bids that did come forward showed no important change. The local demand for oats continues good and sales of 5000 bushels lots of extra No. 1 feed were made at 48¼c, ex-store. There was an increased demand from foreign buyers for spring wheat flour and bids in some cases were 6d per sack higher, sales of a few round lots were made. A fair business is being done on spot. Demand for all lines of millfeed is good. The cheese situation is strong and sales of finest western were made as high as 15½c. Demand for butter is good and the market is fairly active with a firm undertone. Eggs fairly active and firm. The trade in provisions continues good.

Morgan's Treasures.

London, Jan. 27.—The authorities of the Victoria and Albert Museum are greatly disturbed about the withdrawal of the magnificent collection of art objects lent for many years by J. Pierpont Morgan.

The director of the museum, Sir Cecil H Smith, is now absent and it is reported that he has gone to Egypt to attempt to persuade Mr. Morgan to reconsider his decision. In the meanwhile the curators of the museum are packing up the collection.

The newspapers to-day comment on the "British red tapeism and official shortsightedness," which they hold responsible for what they describe as a national loss.

A Lazy Liver

Upsets the Whole System. Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Put Things Right Again.

His liver is to sluggish—his stomach bad.

A bitter taste in the mouth—coated tongue—dizziness on rising suddenly—bowels alternately loose and constipated—these mean that the liver is out of order.

Instead of flowing into the bowels, to regulate them and aid digestion, the bile has been going all through the system, upsetting digestion, leaving the bowels constipated, and making the sufferer perfectly miserable. This is biliousness.

The quick, safe and certain cure is Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills. They clear out the clogged-up system, stir up the lazy liver, cleanse the stomach and bowels and purify the blood. The bile returns to its normal course, the food is again digested properly and all the disagreeable symptoms vanish.

Doctors prescribe Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills and they are known throughout the world as a proven cure for all digestive troubles. They are equally effective in strengthening weak kidneys and curing rheumatism.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

"Ah, precisely. That's what I would like to know myself. I think, however, I have the key that will unlock its hiding-place, when I learn how to use it." And I showed him the cipher. He shook his head over it; it was utterly meaningless to him.

There was one phase of our conference concerning which I insisted that the wretched man be minutely circumstantial. Our talk touching upon this point was much too painful for me to reproduce here in its entirety; but after I had almost literally dragged from him every minute detail of the actual tragedy, I felt justified in offering a word of encouragement.

It is sufficient simply to record now the point brought out, to supplement it with certain details acquired from Burke, and to state that it had a vital bearing upon the outcome of the case. The Page affair was by no means closed yet.

When Mr. Fluette struck the blow with the candlestick he was standing at the angle of the balustrade nearest the rooms which Burke and Maillot were occupying. Mr. Page was facing in that direction—that is, toward the west—and consequently his left side was opposed to the balustrade. Such were the respective positions of the two men at the instant the candlestick was snatched from the floor.

Immediately after the blow was struck both Burke and Fluette were thrown into a panic. The latter at once ran wildly down the front stairs, stumbling over the body on the landing, and out at the front door and away. Burke followed hastily after him, his teeth chattering with fright, and promptly bolted the front door. The act was accomplished so soon after the flight that Fluette, overcome with horror at his deed, distinctly heard the bolt shoot while he was speeding down the walk.

Burke had already informed me that after he made fast the front door he ran back to the rear stairs—he was afraid to pass again the body on the landing—where he observed the rear door wide-open. This he also closed and locked, then hurried up to the front floor, being governed by only one idea—to secure, as quickly as he possibly could, Maillot's companionship.

Between the instant he started to follow Fluette down-stairs and the time he stood rapping at Maillot's door, he had consumed much less than a minute. Some time later he thought of the Burmese, but when he looked into his room it was empty. The open back door accounted for their absense.

When I departed from Alfred Fluette—and I did that very thing; walked deliberately away from him, leaving him hopeful in the midst of his household—my heart was exultant, although I had in contemplation a task that might have dismayed Hercules.

But sometimes, usually when we are least expecting it, or when we are getting our affairs into too much of a muddle, Providence intervenes, and with a decisive stroke straightens matters out for us. After all, it is ridiculous wasting so much time and energy in rough-hewing our ends, when the shaping lies with other hands than ours. On this day of days Providence appeared in the guise of Dr. Wentworth De Breen.

"Hullo!" was his gruff salutation.

I was pleased at the meeting.

"The very man I was wanting to see," said I. "How many hospitals are there in the city and the immediate vicinity?"

He eyed me in his customary serious, intent manner. I amplified:

"I haven't the least idea, you know. Perhaps I could name a dozen, perhaps a score; but there might be five hundred. Anyhow, I have to search them all—or, until I find what I want."

"The deuce you have!" he jerked out. "Anything to do with your ruby case?"

"Everything," said I.

"Well!" He stared at me for a moment, then with a sudden movement whipped the fur lap-robe aside. "Get in here," he commanded, in his abrupt manner.

The next instant I was seated beside him, and his spirited mare was dashing along the street at a pace which I regarded as altogether too reckless. Dr. De Breen had a weakness for spirited horses, and he handled them with a careless ease that never failed to excite in me a secret envy; for—I here confess it—I always have been a bit afraid of horses, whether spirited or not; not much, but just enough to make me cautious. I never take any liberties with even a blind and spavined derelict.

"What d'ye want to find?" he bluntly asked, after we had ridden the better part of five minutes in silence.

"A disabled Burmese," was the reply. "I trust to find some part of his upper-works in a more or less damaged condition."

"Burmese!" he echoed in an exclamation. "Good. I win. Larrimer bet me five he was a Javanese." The doctor sniffed scornfully. "Devilish lot Larrimer knows about ethnology." He then became lucid.

"Larimer's head at the Drevel Hospital, y'know; deuced clever at the operating-table, but set in his ideas. Lord, dynamite wouldn't move him; stubborn's no name for it.

"Your Burmese is there: triple fracture of the left parietal, left clavicle and bladebone badly crushed; trephined him last night. Beggar'll die."

"It certainly sounds serious enough," commented I. "Is the parietal a part of his upper-works?"

He jabbed with the tip of one gloved finger the side of my head nearest him, which happened to be the right.

"That's your right parietal," he explained; "the left one's on the other side."

"Thank Heaven for sending you across my path this day!"—fervently. "That's my man."

The doctor was a good deal of a scoffer. "Heaven had nothing to do with it," said he, with unnecessary asperity. "I knew you'd be wanting to see him; I was hunting for you. Beggar speaks English fairly well, and he let out a word or two that made me think he knew something you ought to know. . . . Whoa! Jump out!"

We entered the hospital, and soon were at the bedside of the dying man. The operation had relieved the brain from the pressure of the fractured skull, and the man's wanderings were interspersed with rational periods, during which his story was taken down in shorthand, with infinite difficulty, by the hospital stenographer. I have taken the liberty of preparing a summary from the long rambling account, sufficient to show my justification for anticipating that the case was on the eve of taking an unexpetced turn, and to satisfy the curious respecting certain aspects of the ruby's history.

The man, whose name was Chaya, was a priest of the temple at Tounghain, Upper Burma, "where the sublime Da-Fou-Jan sits in eternal meditation among the thousand caverns that lie beyond Mandalay." His companions were also priests, and Tshen-byo-yen was a wealthy noble of the district, whose family was accountable to the king for the safeguarding of the temple's sacred relic—the "Heart of Budda." Thus was the great ruby known, and the rich crimson jewel was averred by tradition to be nothing less holy than the actual blood of "the Perfectly Enlightened One," bestowed upon mankind in an imperishable form.

Naturally, the gem was greatly venerated and not to be profaned by impious hands. But in the time of Tshen's father, it was stolen from the temple by an English adventurer, who succeeded in escaping out of the country with it and making his way to London.

However, a curse went with the ruby. In the temple its influence was beneficent, its crimson glow benignant and abounding with blessings for all true believers; but when desecrated by the plundering vandal's touch it became a great power for evil.

Therefore it came to pass that by the time the reckless Englishman set foot upon his native soil he was only too glad to part with his ill-gotten treasure at almost any price. He was in rags, starving and broken in health.

Thus it was that the rough, uncut gem passed into the possession of Luca Paternostro.

HER DAUGHTER SAVED

Stricken With Acute Rheumatism —Recovery Scarcely Expected

Mrs. Dolina J. Lawlor, writing from Oxbow, Sask., says: "I would be lacking in gratitude if I did not write you and let you know of the wonderful good your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for my daughter, Belle Lawlor. Indeed I think I may safely say that they have been the means of saving her life. For many years my home has been in Bruce Mines, Ont. Something over a year ago my son and daughter, then in her sixteenth year, left for the west. When leaving here my daughter was in the best of health, but in the following spring she was stricken with what the doctor said was inflammatory rheumatism in its worst form. After a few weeks she was able to get up, but her hands and limbs were so swollen that she could not dress herself. She continued in this way for some time, and then a second attack, worse than the first, set in, and my son telegraphed me, as she was very low. While I was getting ready to make the trip of eighteen hundred miles I got a second message to come at once, as they feared she could not live. When I reached her I found her even worse than I had expected. She was so weak and emaciated that I would not have known her, and she could only speak in a whisper. Her hands and fingers were all twisted and her limbs swollen to twice their natural size. The doctor had then been attending her for two months, and she seemed steadily growing worse. We did not dare move her in bed for fear of her heart giving out. She was as pale as a corpse, and her lips and face always cold. We had to fan her continually, and if we ceased even for a little while she would gasp for breath, and no one who saw her thought it possible she could get better. She suffered suffered such pain that I used to go out of the room and put my fingers in my ears to shut out her gasping and moaning. I had known before of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and as we could gradually see her sinking I told my son I was going to give her the Pills. He was opposed to my idea, for he thought a change in the medicine might prove fatal. However, it was finally decided to give her the Pills. In a week's time she showed some improvement and felt like eating. From that time on she began to gain steadily. Gradually her hands and fingers became straight, the swelling in the limbs went down and her heart-beats became regular, and the color returned to her face, and soon the cure was complete. She is now as strong and healthy as any girl of her age, and to see her you would never think she had passed through an illness from which none of her friends thought she could recover. You have my sincerest thenks for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for my daughter, and you may be sure I shall always warmly recommend them."

Just Succotash.

No man living ever said a word against succotash, says a western paper. He may discard chicken pie, sweet potatoes, tomato bisque, or clam chowder, but succotash he never turns from. There is a romance in the name. It dwells in the smile of the Great Spirit, and is, too, the lovely relic of Indian life. A man who eats succotash revels in the chase and the sunlit joys of the prairie. Succotash is made up of dreams and good things—beans and corn romping together and teasing you with a banter to join the melee. Of course, you will.

Canada's Foreign Agents.

Hon. Dr. Roche, Secretary of State, has just presented to the Commons a report of the State Department for the fiscal year ending March 31 last. The report gives a list of the foreign consular and commercial agents and consuls in Canada showing that there are about 35 of these.

Thirty-five countries are thus represented in Canada, the United States having alone 100 agents. The report contains a list of the passports issued by Canada in the year and also the regulations governing these. The officers and clerks of the department of external affairs number 9 in all.

A Hangman Saving Souls.

In Toronto, an evanglist has been holding forth who has attracted much attention. He was not always an evangelist. Indeed, his former profession was in marked contrast to his present one. He was wont not to save but destroy. He was a hangman—public executioner to the British Government. After having hung upwards of 200 people, James Berry decided to retire and save souls. In an interview at Toronto he stated that the reason for his deserting the Government service was his fixed belief that every year many innocent persons are hanged.

Coast Auto Roads.

There are 500 miles of automobile roads on Vancouver Island, British Columbia. The Government has built a seventy-five mile trunk road from Victoria to Alberni and a sixty mile scenic drive along the Saanich peninsula.

The Snake's Head and Tail.

The Hindus have more proverbs than any other race. One that especially applies to modern business runs as follows: The snake's tail had a quarrel with the snake's head about who was to walk in front. The head said, "You cannot walk in front, because you have no eyes and ears."

The tail said:

"Yes, but I have strength, I move you; if I want to, I can wind myself around a tree, and you cannot get off the spot."

The head said:

"Let us separate."

And the tail tore himself loose from the head and crept on; but the moment he got away from the head he fell into a hole and was lost.

Moral: To conduct a business successfully everyone should work for one common end, "SUCCESS."

FELL FROM A HAY LOFT

Suffered Tortures With His Kidneys Until He Tried Gin Pills

You might think that Mr. Baker needed a surgeon more than GIN PILLS. But there were no bones broken. His back was strained, which was harder to cure because nothing seemed to do any good. It is the same with a sprained ankle and broken leg. You can set the fracture and it will be well in six weeks—but the sprain may take months to get well.

AULTSVILLE, ONT.

"I have been a great sufferer from Kidney Trouble from an injury to my back caused by falling from a hay loft about six years ago. This left my kidneys weak, so that every cold I got would settle in my kidneys and cause intense suffering. I was advised to try GIN PILLS. I found, to my surprise, after taking two boxes, that the pains were relieved and I began to feel better. I am still taking GIN PILLS and feel sure I will be completely cured. I recommend GIN PILLS to all who suffer from any Kidney Trouble". C. BAKER.

A BAD FALL.

You see, the fall had strained the kidneys and they were affected by the slightest chill. GIN PILLS immediately strengthened the kidneys—soothed any irritation and thus enabled the kidneys to overcome the effects of the fall.

If you are having pain in the back—or trouble with kidneys or bladder through accident or overwork—do just as Mr. Baker did—take GIN PILLS. They will help you—cure you—or we will promptly refund your money. Buy six boxes at your dealer's. If, after taking them, you feel that Gin Pills have not helped you, return the empty boxes and get your money. We will take your word for it. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50. Sample box sent free if you write National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Dept. B Toronto.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

"FEEBLE STOMACH"

Causes Digestive Weakness and Poisons the Entire System.

"No one can have suffered more than I did with stomach trouble." writes Phil. E. Pascalar, well known at St. Andrews Corners. "My doctor told me my indigestion and sleeplessness were due to poisons in the blood. Certainly my condition was desperate, and it seemed from the despondent feelings that swept over me that I would lose my reason. I happened to read about Dr. Hamilton's Pills and bought five boxes from the druggist. Such body-cleansing pills I never used; they were mild and yet quite strong enough to drive all the humors out of the blood. My stomach gained strength rapidly with Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I improved so much that in eight weeks I could eat and digest all ordinary food. Depression and weariness passed away and I am, thanks to Dr. Hamilton's Pills, enjoying robust good health."

No remedy for billiousness, indigestion, headache, sick stomach, or constipation that compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Refuse substitutes. Sold in 25c. boxes. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

VISIT TO THE PLANET MARS

Prof. Chant Lectures to the Local Centre R.A.S.

Instructive and Interesting Explanations and Excellent Views.

There was a good attendance in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute last night to hear Prof. Chant of Toronto University lecture on the subject of "The Planet Mars." under the auspices of the local centre of the Astronomical Society. Dr. Marsh acted as chairman, as Mr. Fiske was engaged in operating the lantern. All business of the ordinary meeting of the society was dispensed with and Prof. Chant proceeded with his interesting lecture immediately after the chairman's address. The chairman said that Prof. Chant would hardly need an introduction, as he had already addressed the society several times. Prof. Chance had come into close contact with modern methods of studying astronomy, and the chairman believed that Dr. Chant's lecture would be a great treat to the audience.

Dr. Chant remarked that he was glad to hear the astronomical work in Peterboro was flourishing. He had he said, a class in elementary astronomy composed of about 170 students and the amount of practical work, such as lantern slides and photographs and observations, aroused in them much interest.

The planet Mars was of much interest in astronomy, because of its relation to the discovery of the law of solar gravitation, and the fact that the planets travel around the sun in elliptical paths. Mars was also used by Newton, later, to prove why those laws existed.

Mars was interesting to the astronomers an dall thinking people, who wonder and attempt to discover if it similar to the earth, and whether or not it is inhabited.

Mars is in a good position for observation every two years, because it approaches near to the earth every second year, and is, every two years, in opposition to the sun, or on the same side of the sun as the earth; and for the reason that while the earth's passage round the sun takes one year, Mars completes its orbit every two years. This year the best time to robservation was in September. The most successful observations were made in 1877, by a 26 inch telescope—then the largest one in the world—when the two satelites of Mars were discovered. Dr. Chant explained the existence of certain markings on Mars, which enables scientists to calculate the time that planet required to make a complete revolution. Mars rotates on its axis in a period of time a little over 24 hours.

The lecturer went on to discuss the construction and composition of the planet, and finally treated the subject from the standpoint of whether or not, Mars was inhabited. He mentioned in this connection the perfectly straight markins on Mars, that are thought to be canals. Some observers have found the canals, other report that they can find no indication of their existence. The question of the existence of these geometrical markings, was warmly combated, but later observations were made that verified almost wholly, the reports of the early astronomers, Lowell, a famous astronomer, claims that these markings, are caused by the vegetation springing up along the banks of real artificial canals. This, of course, argues for the existence of beings on Mars.

The lecture was illustrated by limelight lantern slides, and these graphic illustrations of the speakers' statements added to the instruction.

INVESTIGATION INTO CAUSE OF LAKEFIELD FIRE

Sieman Company Will Endeavor to Learn the Real Cause

A thorough investigation will be made into the cause of the fire which destroyed the Siemon Company mill at Lakefield on Tuesday night, as it is thought that the mill was deliberately set on fire. President Siemon of the Company writes to Mr. J. F. Lillicrap at Lakefield as follows:

Mr. J. F. Lillicrap, Lakefield:

Dear Mr. Lillicrap,—Your telephone of the fire last night is a stunner, I assure you. In all our 27 years' experience we have never been connected with any building or plant where there was a dollar's worth of property destroyed by fire, and we do not intend to let this pass without investigation, and we will push it to the limit if it costs the price of the mill.

Now, I think the right way to go about this is for the Mayor or Reeve of Lakefield to appoint a jury and have an inquest, and do it right away.

Will you look after this, as I only got home from the West last night and have to go out again to-day on a trip east.

Will you kindly try and have the Mayor or Reeve take this up at once and see if the party cannot be run to earth. I am simply at a loss to think of a motive for anyone doing such a thing. I did not think you or any of us could expect the like of this Kindly let me know any particulars you may have and oblige.

Yours truly,
J. C. SIEMON.

The judge handed out a written judgment covering the case and the law applicable to it, and it is expected that this will be printed on Monday.

Progressive euchre, waltzing and square dancing were indulged in by the one hundred couples present, and the very evident pleasure of the guests during the program proclaimed the evening a grand success. The Opera House orchestra supplied the music, and the services of Coleman Bros. had been secured. The refreshments served were dainty and appetizing, and were thoroughly appreciated by the dancers. Among the guests were Col. Clegg and Capt. McLean, of the 57th Regiment, and Major Young and Lieut. Fee, of the 24th Field Battery, besides Lieutenants Carruthers, Watt, Mills, Ackerman, Comstock and Lech of the 57th, and Lieut. Watson, and Lieut. The ball room and refreshment hall were gaily decorated for the occasion by a tasty display of flags and bunting.

ICE FOR USE IN COLD STORAGE PLANTS CAN BE TAKEN FROM LITTLE LAKE

A special meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of hearing the objections of the cold storage proprietors against the Board's decree issued at the last meeting, that no ice shall be cut in Little Lake this winter. The proprietors, namely, Ald. A. G. Gillespie and Wm. Scott, and also a representative of Calcutt's brewery, were present and explained just how the decree would affect their business.

NO CONTRACT.

"If we can't get ice from Little Lake," said Mr. Scott, "it will be a great hardship to us, as I do not know where else we can procure it, except six to seven miles out of the city.

He explained thoroughly the working of the plant, and to what purpose the ice is used. Nothing in the way of articles for storage are allowed to come in direct contact with the ice, the cold air arising from the coils in the tank being used for cooling.

Ald. Gillespie also spoke, stating that he was in a similar predicament to Mr. Scott.

"The ice used," said Ald. Gillespie, "never comes in contact with the ice cream or butter, at any time, but the articles are kept cool by the cooling air alone."

The question then arose as to the advisability of allowing ice to be used in the refrigerators in stores wherein dairy products might be packed.

Dr. Young said that if ice were packed next to articles for sale in refrigerators, if the ice were impure, it would furnish an excellent growing ground for impurities, which practice could not be countenanced.

"A law should be passed making it punishable to put ice next to saleable articles," said Ald. Gillespie. The latter, however, did not favor doing away with refrigerators, but drew the line at ice being used next to the articles deposited in the refrigerator.

The ice-men themselves know that Little Lake is not a fit place from which to secure ice, as Mr. Allen admitted to Dr. MacPherson, according to the latter's statement, that it was not proper, while in conversation with Dr. McPherson last summer.

The storage men, however, will be all right, they being allowed to cut ice under the provisions of the following resolution brought in by Mayor Bradburn.

"That ice may be cut in Little Lake for storage and cooling purposes, on a permit from the Medical Health Officer, that such ice is all right."

A discussion followed bearing upon the amount of license the resolution allowed in the matter. It was suggested that the ice men distinguish between the quality of ice sold to customers, one kind for domestic use and the other for sale to storage men.

Finally it was decided on motion that the chairman and Dr. McPherson interview Mr. Allen on the matter and see what arrangements could be made, and report back to the Board. The plan was satisfactory to all the Board.

The meeting was attended by Dr. Young, chairman; Mayor Bradburn, Robert Neill, D. H. Kerneghan, Mr. Murty and Dr. McPherson.

ILLUSTRATED Y.W.C.A. LECTURE

Our readers will be gratified to learn that next Friday evening, Prof. Morison of Queens University will deliver a lecture on "The Highlands of Scotland" under the auspices of the Y.W.C.A. in the gymnasium hall. This distinguished historian lecturer and author, is an honor graduate of Glasgow and Oxford Universities and has won preeminence by his profound scholarship, rare versability and strong and ardent personality.

The subject of this lecture lends itself with irresistible charm to Prof. Morison's simple naturalness of manner, which so attractively unites itself with high literary excellence, a deep insight into life and a delicate humor as subtle as it is pervasive. His broad sympathies and vital appreciation of the aspects of nature, he so vividly describes, transport his listeners to the hills and lochs of Bonnie Scotland: they see the beauty of crag and tarn and trosachs, feel the breezes, smell the fragrant heather, and relate themselves to the passionate loyalty of her people to their native land.

The illustrations are few but carefully selected, to deepen the realities of description.

No man or woman in our city can afford to miss this opportunity of hearing the lecture.

PARODIES FOR ROOTERS CLUB

The Rooters' Club are going to be one of the big noises in the Lindsay-Peterborough game next Tuesday night, and have arranged a number of parodies for the battle. Here are some more of the melodies which will cause consternation in the ranks of the Stoddard brigade:

Tune—(Down by the Old Mill Stream)
Down goes that Lindsay team
Before the White and Blue,
And when we get through
There'll be an awful stew.
'Twas there we knew that,
That we'd beat them, too;
There a dream, a lovely dream
Is that Lindsay team.

Tune (Beautiful Doll)

Oh you Peterborough team, you speedy Peterborough team,
Wait till we get through with Lindsay;
Their chances will be awful flimsy.

Oh you Peterborough team, you speedy Peterborough team,
We will win this game there is no doubt,
Everybody get up and shout
Oh, Oh, Oh, Oh, Oh, you Peterborough team.

Tune (If you talk in your sleep, please don't mention my name)

Oh we look like district winners,
For we never lost a game,
Lindsay knows we'll beat them bad,
Trenton, too, we made them sad.
Oh if we work hard we'll be champions
And this is not a dream,
We're one best bet in the O.H.A..
Rah. Rah. for Peterborough team.
Rickety, Rackety, Rum, Sum,
Rickety, Rockety, Roe,
We're the men your hear about,
We come from Peterboro,
PETERBORO,
Peterboro.

Chorus—You'll do the same thing over

For we'll do the same thing over,
over again, over again,
We'll do the same thing over, over and over again,
That 13—1 score was a teaser, this time we'll give you a pain,
And the song "down and out you can all sing and shout
Over and over again.

KELLY

Has anybody here seen Kelly
K—E—L—L—Y
Has anybody here seen Kelly
Have you seen him skating by,
His speed is great and his shot is true,
He takes the puck right through and through;
Has anybody here seen Kelly
Kelly, that Peterboro boy.

BILLY

For when we rush, we always rush by Lindsay
For our team knows just how to rush,
And when we check, we always check
For our team knows just how to check;
And when we shoot, we always score on Lindsay
We'll beat them till we make them sad;
And when we're through, and when we're through,
Poor Lindsay, t'is too bad.

BETTY BROWN

Good bye Lindsay, good bye Lindsay team,
All your penant hopes are just a dream;
Hang some crepe on your dead old town,
We're going to win to-night and win hands down:
Don't you feel so bad, just dry your tears,
Perhaps you'll win a cup in fifty years,
Way down upon the Scugog river;
Good bye Lindsay town.

them round to the back door with a stranger's ticket, when we should take them in by the front door and welcome them as brethren."

In the last ten years, unstable political conditions in Australia had made their Government chary of touching the tariff. Now a frankly protectionist labor Government controlled both Houses, and the time was favorable for action.

If we were to get a slight advantage over the U. S. in the Australian market, said Mr. Ames, we would be able to divert a considerable part of the $30,000,000 annually sent by the United States to ourselves. The Americans sent shoes, ammunition and explosives, furniture, machines, railway iron, timber, fish, paper, etc.

Hon. George E. Foster declared that owing to the reciprocity of seasons and the reciprocity of certain products, there was a wide margin for successful trade between Canada and Australia.

It would be better not to tie ourselves to an arrangement of preference for preference, said the Minister of Trade and Commerce, and he announced that he had made a proposition in writing to the Minister of Trade and Customs of Australia that he hoped would result in a conference between members of the two Governments, or at least between special commissioners.

Sir Wilfrid complimented Mr. Ames on his speech. It was the clearest exposition of the subject ever made in the House. Australia, he said, had two principal products which she exported, wool and meat. He did not think anything could be done with meat, but under the proposed arrangement Australian wool, which we now imported through Great Britain, might come direct.

There was a wide market in Australia for Canadian manufactured goods. He thought, however, it would be hard for Mr. Foster to persuade the protectionists of Australia to allow Canadians to compete with Australian-manufactured articles.

"But let him try the job," Sir Wilfrid concluded. "If he succeeds. I can assure him that he will receive the hearty approval of both sides of the House."

Every time you order an imported beer you must pay the duty imposed on its importation plus extra freight charges. This is one of the reasons why you should insist on "Salvador" (The Famous National Drink) and there are others. No beer brewed on this continent is quite so good as "Salvador." It has been the favorite drink of Germans for centuries. The Reinhardts' of Toronto have the sole right of brewing "Salvador"—they alone possess the formula.

Cold Weather Philosophy

Ottawa Citizen

The reasons why cold air seems to be curative have not yet been discovered, but it is pointed out that our ignorance must not delay the application of the new theory. The only main fact known is that cold contracts the superficial arterioles, or small arteries, and this tends to the soothing of inflamed surfaces. Cold air has more oxigen and requires fewer respirations and less heart energy—a matter of importance to those with cardiac affections. Internally, more blood is available if the superficial vessel sare contracted and this of itself tends to cure and arrest infections.

Breaking it Gently

New York Journal

There is quite an art in putting a thing nicely.

A prisoner was being sentenced at a country court recently.

"You have a pleasant home, and a bright fireside, with happy little ones sitting round it I suppose?" asked judge amiably.

"Yes sir," whined the prisoner who thought he saw a chance of getting off lightly. But he was mistaken.

"Well," went on the judge, just as amiably, "if those happy little ones sit around the fireside until you return, they will stay there just three months."

DIRECTORS' REPORT

The Directors have much pleasure in submitting their Twenty-seventh Annual Report and balance sheet of the affairs of the Bank, as of the 30th December, 1911, together with Profit and Loss Account, showing the result of the operations of the Bank for the year which ended that day. The net profits of the Bank, after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, amount to $601,133.78, being 13.80% on the paid-up capital of the Bank, which has been applied as follows:

The net profits for the twelve months, after making provision for bad and doubtful debts, and reserving accrued interest, amount to........	$601,133.78
Balance at credit of Profit and Loss last year	153,434.79
	$754,568.57
Appropriated as follows, viz.:
Dividend No. 60, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	$ 87,090.00
Dividend No. 61, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	87,090.00
Dividend No. 62, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	87,090.00
Dividend No. 63, quarterly, at the rate of 8% per annum	87,090.00
Transferred to Rest Account	200,000.00
Written off Bank Furniture	15,000.00
Transferred to Officers' Guarantee Fund	5,000.00
Transferred to Officers' Pension Fund	5,000.00
Balance at credit of Profit and Loss, new account	181,208.57
	$754,568.57

You will observe $200,000 has been added to Rest Account. The Rest Account is now $2,500,000, or about 58% of the subscribed and paid-up capital of the Bank.

The business of the Bank continues to grow most satisfactorily, as the comparative statement submitted shows. The deposits during the year have increased $4,193,898.29, and the circulation has increased $583,595.

The Head Office and all the Branches have been carefully inspected during the year, and a full report of each office brought in review before your Directors, and, in addition to these inspections, a Committee of the Directors, other than the officers, and composed of Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, K.C., Mr. W. J. Sheppard, Mr. C. S. Wilcox, and Mr. H. S. Strathy, was appointed to examine and appraise all the securities held at the Head Office, which they did, and reported to the Board that they are as represented to it.

The increase in Bank premises is partly accounted for by discharging the encumbrances which existed at the time of the purchase of Vancouver and Winnipeg properties, and partly by the purchase of the property immediately east of your Head Office Building, which was acquired at a reasonable figure, a portion of which will be used for the purposes of the Bank. This purchase will be of great advantage in protecting the lighting of the east side of the Head Office Building. Your Bank premises now comprise 34 separate buildings.

The Directors have much pleasure in testifying to the good work performed by the Staff during the period under review.

All of which is respectfully submitted. CHAS. D. WARREN, President.

The General Manager read the General Statement of the Bank, as of the 30th of December, 1911, as follows:

The General Manager having read the statement and made explanatory remarks thereon, referred to the improved profits, which were $76,782.39 more than the year before. He also called attention to the growth of the Bank from its inception, which may be seen from the comparative statement appended to this report. In conclusion, he asked if any of the shareholders wished for further information regarding any of the items of the statement, upon which a general discussion ensued.

On motion of the President, seconded by the Vice-President, the report was unanimously adopted.

The By-law governing the number of Directors was amended, increasing the number from seven to eight, and a By-law creating a Second Vice-President was passed.

The customary resolutions of thanks to the Directors and Officers were duly passed.

Ins and Outs

(London Answers)

Never be in your place of business when a person wants to borrow money of you, because if you are in, you will be out, but if you are out you will be in.

It pays to advertise in the Review.

That Britain and Russia are responsible for "chaos and anarchy" in Persia, is the assertion of Shuster, the deposed American treasurer-general, now at Vienna.

SNAPPY SNAPS FOR SATURDAY

THERE'S A REASON WHY

The BIG RETIRING SALE has been such an unbounded success. Our purpose is to effect an immense clearance in every department, and to that end we have marked every article at prices sure to loosen the purse strings of the shrewd, enconomical buyer. We are exceedingly grateful for the results attained, as we believe our patrons and friends are equally grateful for the very generous measure of value we have given them. Hundreds have taken advantage of our sensational price concessions. But we are looking forward to this month's end reductions to effect an immense clearance of Women's Ready-to-wear apparel, Coats, Suits, Skirts, Waists, Dress Goods and Silks, Embroideries, Flouncings; also, Carpets, Rugs, Curtains, Linens, and ladies accessories.

PLACED END TO END C.P.R. BOATS WOULD MAKE FOUR MILES

Montreal, Jan, 27—One of the most remarkable features of the development of the Canadian Pacific Railway as a transportation company, has been the rapid extension of its fleet of ocean going and lake steamships.

It is not so very long since the steamships owned by the Company could be counted on the fingers of the hands, but a recent census taken by the Stemship Department discloses the fact that when the present ships at present being built are added to these now in commission, the C.P.R. will have a fleet of seventy-five steamships. If all of these steamships were placed end to end, they would stretch a distance of nearly four miles.

The greatest development of the C.P.R fleet has been on the Pacific Coast where the company has been adding new boats at the rate of two each year. Of the famous "Princess" boats alone there are now nine operating on the Pacific Coast and these will shortly be augmented by two more of the same class of boats, "The Princess Patricia," and the "Princess Sophia." The former of these, is already on its long trip round Cape Horn to Victoria, while the latter will leave Britain in a few weeks on the same journey. When these two boats are put into commission on the Pacific Coast they will bring the number of new boats added to the Pacific coast fleet, since 1910, up to five, the other three boats being the "Princess Adelaide", the "Princess Mary" in 1910, and the "Princess Alice" in 1911.

Another development of C.P.R. shipping on the Pacific Coast has been the adoption of oil for fuel on these Princess boats. It has been found that the oil not only makes efficient fuel, bu tthat it does away with the smoke and dirt resulting from the use of coal, so the railway is rapidly equipping its boasts for oil burning. With its 75 steamships, the C.P.R. carries a staff of 12000 employees, and the amount of coal burned on each day is about 3,000 tons.

LIFE IN THE COAL MINES

St. James' Brotherhood Had an Interesting Evening

It was by no means a dry, burdensome subject, devoid of interest, that was delivered at St. James' Brotherhood meeting last evening on the topic of "The History of a Piece of Coal." Mr. J. H. Moss, president of the society was the speaker. The latter has had thirty-six years experience as a miner in the Old Country and during that time, more than the usual share of thrilling experiences often found in a miner's life has fallen to his lot.

It was a few of these incidents that were related in graphic style, and descriptive manner by Mr. Moss. By means of slides thrown on canvas the lecture was increased in interest.

Two excellent solos were sung by Mr. Barton.

At the close of the lecture, a sincere vote of thanks was bestowed upon the speaker, for his entertaining and instructive talk.

Wm. McLaren was chairman.

TWO DRUNKS PUT UP STIFF FIGHT

Big Crown Watched Hard Tussle on Simcoe Street

The police force and two drunks created some excitement at the corner of George and Simcoe streets this afternoon, when the officers endeavored to arrest the men who were drunk and disorderly. Anything in the wrestling game that was eleminated isn't worth mentioning.

The Chief, P. C. McGinty and Detective Newhall got one man landed into a cell while P. C. Brown, after a rough and tumble entanglement in front of Barries, escorted his prisoner to the station. There must have been six or seven hundred people in the vicinity.

WHO'S COMING AND GOING

Miss Pauline Simmons, of Toronto, is the guest of Miss Alice Dawson for a few days.

Miss Luella Jobbitt, who has been visiting friends in Lindsay for the past few days, has returned home.

Mr. Harold Meldrum has returned from Lethbridge, Alberta, where he has been engaged on the construction department of the C.P.R.

Mrs. R. E. McKee, 465 Walton street, was hostess last evening to about fifty guests, at a progressive euchre party.

The Misses Smith, Cook, Moore and Dodds, of Toronto, accompanied by Mrs. Babb, also of Toronto, are the guests of Miss Pearl Brook, of this city.

Following the lecture at the Collegiate Assembly hall last night, Mr. and Mrs. Holmer O. Fiske, McDonnel street, entertained Prof. Chant and members of the Astronomical Society. The occasion was also the wedding anniversary of the host and hostess.

They All Helped

In the report of the congregational rally at St. Andrew's Thursday night the impression was conveyed in reference to the Sunday school report that Mr. John Laing's class was chiefly financially responsible for the installation of the lantern in the Sunday school room. The Review is informed that the subscriptions for the lantern were from the Sunday school as a body, and not to any particular department. All generously contributed in raising the amount necessary.

TO THE FARMERS OF THE West Riding of Peterborough

Gentlemen,—To-day (Jan. 29) Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works in the late Laurier Administration moved in the House of Commons that the Borden government take immediate steps to bring about preferential reciprocal trade with Australasia. He was supported by Mr. Ames (Conservative) of Montreal Centre, and others from populous centres. The government, through Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, promised to bring it on accordingly and to send commissioners to Australasia early in the spring, for that purpose. Australasia exports in vast quantities mutton and beef and poultry, and in some years vast quantities of butter and eggs, and other farm products, at prices less than one-half (delivered here) of the like products of Canadian farmers. Such a treaty, on the proposed list for list basis, would rob the farmer here of this protection and almost ruin him. That is my opinion. But I believe that our farmers should be protected as well as our other manufacturers and I do not propose to discriminate against the farmer and in favor of the manufacturer, unless the farmers wish it. I appeal therefore to the farmers of W. Peterborough to let me know with all speed if they are in favor of preferential reciprocity with Australasia. If so I will vote for it. If they consider it contrary to their interests and will let me know I will vote against it. No time is to be lost.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier supported very strongly the proposition for an Australasian preferential reciprocity treaty.

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

ACTOR PREACHER PLAYS TITLE ROLE

Refused to Preach Time Worn Theology and Withdrew From Ministry

H. Arthur Barton, known as the actor-preacher, until last March a pastor of a prominent Kansas City church, is now playing a strong part with the Fred Byers "Girl and the Kramp Co." which appears at the Grand here to-day.

Mr. Barton is the son of a Chaplain in the English army. When in his teens, he came to this country travelled in the West, working as an artist. Later he began to preach, came east and studied for the ministry. After three years on the stage he became a public entertainer. Later Mr. Barton became ordained in the Methodist Episcopal Church, preached for a short time in St. Louis, and then accepted a church in Kansas City, Missouri where he was pastor for about three years. Mr. Barton's religious views gradually underwent a change until he became a higher critic, and accepted "new thought." He refused to preach the time-worn theology, and boldly enunciated a religion of love, science and common sense. His determined departure from the time-worn creeds, coupled with his "actor" manner in the pulpit, caused a serious breach in his church, and comment favorable and reverse from the outside. The papers stated that Mr. Barton had been asked to play the leadin grole in a "new thought" play which would antagonize the old religious views. The result was that the Conference of which Mr. Barton was a member requested his withdrawal from the ministry and membership of the Methodist church.

There is, however, another chapter in the actor-preacher's romantic history. When on the stage playing "Landry" in "Fanchon the Cricket" in a Western city, he met a beautiful girl, "the flower of the town," whom he afterwards married. At the time of Mr. Barton's church trouble the actor-preacher was divorced by his wife on the ground of incompatability. Mrs. Barton speaks in high terms of her former husband, and says: "We merrily drifted apart."

The leading lady with the Fred. Byers' "G'rl and Tramp Co." is Miss Floy Belle Mann, a sister of Mr. Barton's fomer wife. Miss Mann and Mr Barton engaged in dramatic work together before Mr. Barton's marriage with her sister. It was at the earnest request of Miss Floy Mann that Mr. Barton was induced to support Mr. Fred. Byers in "The Girl and Tramp Company."

Life's Long Journeys.

A traveling ticket-collector on the Great Western Railway between Paddington and Exeter (Eng.) makes the double trip six days a week. In other words, he covers no fewer than 2,085 miles per week, or 108,420 miles in the round year. Every third Sunday or so he works a trip, but then there are his holidays, so these runs need not be added to his total.

The traveling staffs on the Scotch trains from London cover an even greater annual distance, and, as for the crews of Atlantic liner, they aggregate a larger total still.

Approximately the distance from England to New York is 3,000 miles, and putting the number of actual crossings at forty, this gives a total of 120,000 miles a year.

There are many business men holding season-tickets between London and Glasgow, who make the double journey twice or three times a week. British members of Parliament are great travelers, and many who represent Irish constituencies journey home every week-end.

THE WEST IS RAPIDLY CHANGING

PICTURESQUE PLAINS MAKE WAY FOR MODERN HOMES.

The Prairie Farms Are Not Yet the Highly Civilized Arcadias That They Are Sometimes Depicted However, Says Writer In Globe, But They Contain the Germ of a Wonderful Agricultural Civilization.

The stories of the west are numerous and varied, and cause many a young hopeful to conjure up a fairy picture in his mind which is only dispelled by actual experience in the country.

Most people imagine the southern Alberta of the past is yet the same—a wide, unshorn plain, with scarce a habitation in sight, huge herds of range cattle grazing here and there, with a plentiful supply of cowboys to each herd. Though that was true enough of past years, the present scene is one of endless miles of fences, countless acres of grain, and the accompanying number of farm houses, with the regulation supply of chickens, pigs, cows and stables.

Ten years ago one could drive forty miles across the prairie and pass but two lonely shacks on his journey. Often one would catch a glimpse of a small herd of antelope as they darted across the prairie in their fright, stopping now and then to gaze in motionless wonder at the unwonted sight of a human being. The trail was faint in those days, and the prairie buttes were used as guides. They were hills that stood prominently above the rest of the plain and seemed in the distance to have a peculiar blue shade cast upon them. The traveler always made for these buttes and from them could usually direct his path in the right direction. If in doubt he climbed the butte and from the remains of the old Indian signalling pile at the top viewed the few dots which represented the sole settlement of the country. If one met a traveler then he did not drive by with scarcely a glance as he does now. No, they greeted each other cordially as long-lost friends, drew in their horses and chatted an hour or more upon affairs strictly personal.

Now, along the same route, one is hemmed in by countless acres of yellow wheat and only occasionally is there a stretch of perhaps a quarter section of prairie. The grain fields are beautiful indeed, but all the vastness of the prairie seems lost, as Uncle Sam ably illustrated when, as he drove along the wheat fields of Alberta, only his top hat being visible, he remarked: "It's all right, John, but, hang it all, I can't see anything for the wheat." Also upon the same trip one passes three busy little railroad towns; and the old shack which was once the largest house on the Little Bow is replaced by a fine white edifice, with waterworks laid in, if you please, from the spring on the side of the hill.

There are still a few lonely little bachelors' shacks with the corral, the dog, and the usual amount of tinned goods, but the ordinary habitation is a moderate house occupied by a large and busy family, and surrounded by an ample supply of barns, henhouses and pig-pens.

The cowboys have disappeared with the range cattle, and just as they have vanished so has the old-time good-fellowship gone. No longer does the owner of the shack leave his door open for his wandering brother of the prairie. If he did he would probably find his spoons and his stovepipes gone. No, he bars and boards the door, likewise the windows, and returns as soon as possible to see whether the wires of his fence have not been cut.

In the time of the shack a visitor was welcomed with open arms, hospitality being taken as a matter of course, and returned as freely at some future time. Travelers would go twenty miles out of their way in order to pass the night in the house which contained the sole piano in all the countryside. It was then an open-arm welcome and free hospitality for every passing stranger, but this has been much abused lately, and now, more often than not, you will find it is "twenty-five cents for meals, and fifty cents for beds."

Though the ranches have been turned into farms, do not imagine a picture of an ideal country home. The country has not advanced far enough for that. I have read delightful stories of the busy farmer's wife as she cheerily does her housework, feeds the pigs and chickens, and makes butter in her immaculately clean dairy, while her jovial husband whistles about his work as he drives his sleek, well-fed horses about the farm.

The farmhouses I have seen in southern Alberta have nearly all been dirty inside and out, the house swarming with flies, chickens running about the floor, and dirty dishes piled high upon the table, while the housewife was outside driving the cattle from the grain field or repairing a fence. Her tight-fisted, money-making husband in the meantime was out swearing at his lean colts as he flung the harness on them ready for the day's seeding.

As for the cowboy, he, too, is a thing of the past. I know that the cowboy of the eastern imagination would not be complete without "shaps" and spurs and an untamable steed. I hate to dispel this illusion by saying that I have actually seen that personage in common overalls, without spurs, and mounted on a well-broken horse. In fact his ordinary mount was usually a well-trained animal, and it was only when occasion called for it that he performed his evolutions on the famous broncho. The ordinary cowboy was quiet in manner, unostentatious in his actions, and showed up to best advantage with his native background when managing a bunch of range cattle. There he could give free vent to his native eloquence in language and call his comrades by what he considered their only appropriate names, such as "Bunch Grass Billy," "Wolf Henry," "Side-Wheel Tom" and "Buffalo Bill."

But this remnant of the past is almost gone. Only stories of him remain, except an odd veteran or two. Now there is no room for ranching or "round-ups," and the cowboy has sold out and departed for other spheres. His place is being taken by the "would-be" cowboy, usually a rough-and-ready Yankee who, having heard tales of the heroes before him, desires to do likewise. With a good fund of profane language, large and ample supplies of shaps and spurs and a certain amount of devil-may-care in his actions, he launches forth with the nom de plume of the western cowboy. In spite of his reckless bearing, however, he cannot handle a gun nor imitate the cowboy's wild doings in times of excitement. Do not be deceived. You can find the imitation every day as he dashes along the road on his bucking broncho, waving some sort of a lariat and with boisterous laughter and speech doing his best to impersonate his ideal.

The inner qualities of the two differ greatly. For an example I will describe their treatment of the gentler sex. No genuine cowboy would swear in the presence of women. He has too much respect for them for that, besides he is not given to showing off, but I have heard the modern representation utter a stream of language in the presence of women that would cause a hardened horse-thief to blush. Though the real cowboy is anything but deferential in manner, I have never seen him allow a woman to harness or saddle a horse while he was around, yet I have seen his namesake calmly sit and smoke in the shade watching his wife or sister saddle and bridle her pony, while he peacefully surveyed the scene. Sometimes from the height of his superiority he would give directions as to how it should be done!

The old prairie times are over, and though the north is yet to be explored it can never have the vastness and freedom which once belonged to the plains, and when this last great west is filled wither can we turn our footsteps? Though our land is improved in many respects, we old-timers will ever retain a warm spot in our hearts for the good old days of prairie freedom and equality which once were ours.—D. E. Nemmous in Saturday Globe.

An Ambitious Boy.

A little story has come from the West, of which Hon. R. L. Borden is the hero. During the last trip which he made to the Pacific Coast while he was still Leader of the Opposition. Mr. Borden visited a well-known health resort. A small boy carried some parcels for the future Premier, and Mr. Borden got into conversation with the lad. Like most adults who are not accustomed to converse with juniors, he asked the small boy what he intended to become when he grew up.

"I want to go on the bench," said the lad.

Mr. Borden was much impressed by the ambition of his young acquaintance. He was rather surprised that an apparently unlettered youth should be an admirer of the Canadian judiciary, but he took the opportunity to praise and encourage him. Canada would indeed become a great nation if all the boys entertained such high hopes for their futures.

Later in the day, Mr. Borden recounted the incident to some of his local friends.

"I am afraid that the boy's ambition is not as exhalted as you imagined," one of them said. "The bench is the seat of the bell-boys up at the hotel, and I suppose he looks forward to joining the uniformed squad."

Paper Drinking Cups.

In the schools of Austria the children are taught to carry several sheets of writing paper in their pockets at all times. Then when a child is thirsty he can roll one of the sheets into a cone and make a perfectly serviceable cup, which may be placed, after being used, in the nearest waste paper box. How to roll the cones deftly is taught the children. The tearing of a notch about half an inch long near one end before rolling the cone serves to make the improved cup stronger.

Awful.

"Well, have you thought of a sentence containing the word dynamite?" asked the teacher.

"Yes, sir. My sister Rose wouldn't let you kiss her, but my sister Dinah might.

A FIELD DAY IN PETERBOROUGH

According to advices received from the Dominion Alliance, Toronto, a great deal of interest is being awakened in the Field Day which is to be observed in Peterboro County on Sunday next.

On Monday afternoon and evening live issues will be discussed at the Convention in this city. The Liquor License Act, is by no means a perfect piece of legislation and needed improvements in it will be dealt with. It is almost certain that the Government will be again approached with a view to securing some amendments which experience has shown to be urgently required. Law enforcement is a subject which is also looming up large and it will receive considerable attention. As 460 municipalities will be free from bar-rooms after 1st of May next, the Provincial situation is becoming one of very great interest, and an exposition of this will be passed under review. The time is drawing near, when another Local Option contest can be held in the city of Peterboro, and the convention will probably decide whether any action should be taken now.

A Riddle.

What is the difference between a gardener, a billiard player, a gentleman and a sexton? Answer.—The first minds his peas, the second minds his cues, the third minds his p's and q's, and the fourth minds his keys and pews.

Seed Peas at Home.

The resourcefulness of New Ontario is becoming more and more apparent every day. At the annual meeting of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association held recently at the Parliament buildings, Toronto, it was decided to grow seed peas in New Ontario instead of importing them from Germany, as has been done hitherto. The price paid for the imported peas was $16 per bushel, and on account of the large quantities needed in Canada, the expense was consequently very great. Experiments have been tried at growing the seed peas in New Ontario and excellent results have been obtained. The weevil and moth are unknown in that region. A greatly increased crop of seed potatoes will also be grown in the northern clay belt in future.

The vegetable growers are anxious to have the number of greenhouses increased at the Guelph Agricultural College, and they also want 50 acres of the Monteith demonstration farm devoted to the growing of vegetables.

C.N.R. Wreck In West.

Kamsack, Sask., Jan. 24.—The Canadian Northern express from Edmonton to Winnipeg was badly wrecked yesterday morning a mile east of Cote, 273 miles from Winnipeg. The cause was the spreading of rails. The train was in charge of Conductor Murphy, who was very seriously injured.

The engine, mail and baggage cars remained on the rails. but the first and second-class coaches. the dining car and sleeper took the ditch.

Twenty-seven passengers are suffering from cuts caused by breaking windows in their efforts to escape.

SHE SUFFERED FIVE YEARS

Erie, Pa.—"I suffered for five years from female troubles and at last was almost helpless. I went to three doctors and they did me no good, so my sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and when I had taken only two bottles I could see a big change, so I took six bottles and I am now strong and well again. I don't know how to express my thanks for the good it has done me and I hope all suffering women will give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It was worth its weight in gold."—Mrs. J. P. ENDLICH, R. F. D. No. 7, Erie, Pa.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and to-day holds the record for the largest number of actual cures of female diseases we know of, and thousands of voluntary testimonials are on file in the Pinkham laboratory at Lynn, Mass., from women who have been cured from almost every form of female complaints, such as inflammation, ulceration, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration. Every suffering woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

If you want special advice write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for it. It is free and always helpful.

LAST OF THE PIT WOMEN.

Kitty Grayson Evaded the English Law Disguised as a Man.

By the death of old Kitty Grayson, which has just taken place at Brynn, in the Wigan coal field, England, probably the last survivor of the race of pit women of the old days has passed away, says the London Times. Kitty, who was in her ninety-second year, was, in fact, probably the last woman who worked in the mine, and her life linked up the present with the faroff days when women and children toiled long and arduously in the bowels of the earth.

The act of parliament, known as Lord Ashley's act, which prohibited women and girls, as well as boys under the age of ten years, from working underground in the mines, came into operation in 1843, when Kitty was a sprightly young woman of nineteen, working as collier's "drawer," or wagoner, in the pit.

In order to evade what was then resented as a legislative innovation by many of those in whose interest the law had been put upon the statute book, Kitty Grayson disguised herself as a man by donning her father's breeches, jacket and flannel shirt. The government inspector got wind of it, however, and paid a surprise visit to the colliery, catching Kitty at her work below ground. The result was that she was instantly stopped, though she had by this time actually worked for full twelve months in the pit after the act of parliament had become operative and had, of course, been defying the law of the land all this time. In later life old Kitty often told how she had outrun the legislature by donning her disguise.

Soap and Water In German Schools.

The latest feature of the German city school system is the introduction of soap, towels and water basins into children's day schools. The purpose is not only to diminish the danger that may arise from dirt, but also to wake in the children the sense of cleanliness, mental as well as physical. The city authorities, besides laying down times and occasions for hand washing, go on to explain how it is done. The great majority of mankind regard the process of washing one's hands as a comparatively simple matter. That is not the view of the German authorities. They recognize a perfunctory and a thorough way of doing things, and with this view they have included a nail brush in the equipment about to be issued to the schools.

MRS. GEORGE KAUPP

States That Parisian Sage is Best Hair Tonic

"I had a bad case of dandruff. My sclap was full of dandruff and it came out thick and scaly. My hair came out badly; often I nearly cried on account of losing my pretty head of of hair.

I heard of PARISIAN SAGE and only had to use two bottles, before the hair stopped coming out, the scalp became clean, and all the dandruff disappeared. The hair became silky and one big reason that I liked PARISIAN SAGE was that it kept the hair smooth, silky, and clean with no traces of stickiness.

I believe this tonic to be the best on the market as there has been no return of dandruff, or hair falling out whatever. I am glad to publicly endorse the use of PARISIAN SAGE. I have often endorsed its use and am glad to do it." 33 E. Bond Street, Corry, Pa.

A Gift For Your Friend's Baby.

Have you tried making a pair of little shoes for the baby? Clean a pair of long wristed chamois skin gloves and trace on them the outline and design of a pattern for little embroidered shoes. Then with pyrographic outfit burn the design, being sure that the point is not too hot, and after cutting out on the outline carefully overcast the soles to the tops. You will thus have a pretty little pair of shoes, knowing that they are warm and comfortable and made at trifling cost.

Yuletide Quotations.

The quotations given below may be of some value to those who like to accompany a Christmas gift with an appropriate sentiment: With a calendar, "Write it on your heart that every day is the best day of the year;" with a book, "An old friend to trust;" with a pair of slippers, "We must go together;" with a pair of gloves, "We're a pair if ever there was one."

To Keep a Little Fire.

To keep only a little fire in the furnace, as it is often desirable to do in the fall, put in the coal so that it forms a little pile about one foot in diameter near the door and not so that it is scattered all over the floor of the furnace. This "does the trick" admirably.

The Practical Wife.

She cannot cook, she cannot sew,
She cannot even knead the dough,
She cannot scrub, she cannot bake
Or make the plainest pastry cake.
She cannot dust, she cannot sweep
Or make a bed that's fit to sleep.
She cannot mend or patch my pants,
But playing bridge she makes things hum,
Which nets us both a tidy sum.

THE MYSTIC MIKADO.

Outside the Royal Clan No Man Has Ever Spoken to Him Directly.

The mikado, earth born son of heaven, and his court of demigods dwell in a forest solitude in the midst of the great city of Tokyo. The palace world is separated from the world of the people by a triple moat of dead water and a double wall of granite crowned by twisted pine trees and mottled with the moss of ages. Except upon stated occasions the mikado is as invisible and well nigh as inaccessible as the sun goddess amid the hereditary treasures of the Ise shrine. In his august person the hotly disputed origin of his race finds its reflection, for he has the eyes of the Mongol, the coloring and facial structure of the Malay.

To his people, despite all the other changes which the last decade has seen, the mikado still remains the vague mystic figure of the feudal days. Outside of the imperial clan no man has ever spoken to him directly, not even Prince Ito or General Yamagata, the old bow and arrow soldiers whom he loves. Conversation even with the elder statesmen must pass through a "third voice" so as to preserve the etiquette of indirection.—Metropolitan Magazine.

China's Population.

According to the latest official returns, the number of inhabitants of China proper, Manchuria and the new dominion is 312,423,025. And as we have pointed out before, observes the National Review (China), the estimates of China's population have always had a tendency to exaggeration, and even if 10,000,000 be added on for Mongolia and Tibet the total is far below that usually quoted. In 1904 Mr. Rockhill, then United States minister in Pekin, after careful inquiry came to the conclusion that the number of inhabitants of China proper was probably less than 270,000,000. That would make the total population of the empire something slightly under 300,000,000. If something be allowed for natural increase since that time it does not seem as if the 312,000,000 of the latest census erred on the side of understatement.—London Globe.

SHE STRUCK AT ROOT OF TROUBLE

Mrs. Comeau Cured Her Kidney With Dodd's Kidney Pills

And Her Heart Trouble, Backache and Other Ailments Disappeared — Says She Owes Her Good Health to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Petit Rocher, Gloucester Co., N.B., Jan. 26.—(Special.)—When Mrs. Pierre I. Comeau, a well known and highly respected resident of this place, cured her kidney disease, her heart trouble and other aches and pains also disappeared. She cured her kidney disease easily and quickly by using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"My heart troubled me all the time," Mrs. Comeau states; "and I feared for the terrible results that might follow. My limbs would swell, my back ached and I was always tired and nervous.

"These sysmptoms led me to believe that kidney disease was the root of all my troubles, so I turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Before I had finished the first box the swelling was gone, my back was well and my heart no longer troubled me. I am now in the best of health, and I owe it all to Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Always strike at the root of the trouble. And in nine cases out of ten all women's troubles start with the Kidneys. That's why Dodd's Kidney Pills are woman's best friend.

BEIN' GRAN'PA.

Bein' gran'pa, I allow,
Is the finest sort o' fun.
Age has settled on your brow,
An' you've got your hard work done
Only thing you've got t' do
Is t' sit around an' play
With the babes, so long as you
Keep 'em out of mother's way.

When it's pleasant out o' doors
You go walkin' hand in hand;
When it's wet the parlor's yours,
An' you romp in Carpet Land.
Battles? Yes, you have 'em there
With your warriors of tin,
An' the fort's your rockin' chair,
That they allus storm an' win.

An' your knee's a ragged cliff
That the bravest of 'em climbs.
Though it's gettin' old an' stiff
You don't notice it such times.
You just take 'em as they come,
Helter-skelter, one an' all,
To the sound o' horn an' drum,
An' at their command you fall.

Then you let 'em get you down,
An' you play sometimes you're dead,
An' they take the paper crown
That you made 'em from your head,
An' they cheer an' shout: "Hooray!
We have killed the wicked king!"
An' around your lifeless clay
They begin to dance an' sing.

Then they let you rise again
On the promise that you'll tell
All about that wondrous glen
Where the elves an' goblins dwell,
An' they sit about your knee,
Eyes an' mouths all open wide,
An' they wish that they could see
All the haunts where fairies hide.

There are some think gettin' old
Is a reason to be sad,
But with youngsters in the fold
Gettin' old should make you glad,
An' I can't help smilin' now
As I view life's settin' sun.
Bein' gran'pa, I allow,
Is the finest sort o' fun.

The Autoplow In War.

Germany has introduced an autoplow for digging trenches during actual engagement, and it promises to play an important part hereafter in army circles. The new machine can do the work three times as speedily as men, besides saving immeasurable energy to an army. It requires but one operator and travels at about six miles an hour when going at top speed.

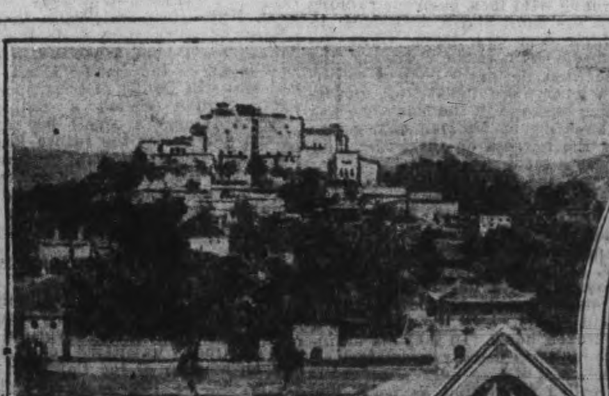
EMPEROR PU-YI.



THE IMPERIAL PALACE AT JEHOL.

THE EMPRESS DOWAGER.

THE GUARDIAN OF THE PALACE AT JEHOL.

SOME OF THE PALACE [illegible]

When the fall of the Manchu dynasty began to appear inevitable it was stated that the court would flee in case of need to its old refuge among the mountains of Mongolia, 150 miles to the north of Pekin. The palace, with a surrounding galaxy of temples, lies in the valley near the small military town of Jehol. Temples and palace were built about two hundred years ago by order of the great Emperor Chien-lung, the first in an attempt to shift the centre of Buddhist influence from Thibet to Mongolia, the second as a cool pleasure resort in summer.

The Potala, a huge square building, is modelled on the great temple at Lhasa, and there are three others of varying magnificence, each with its complement of lamas. Opposite the Valley of Temples lies the palace, a kingdom of dreams—willow pattern come to life—set in a semicircle of little green hills.

The palace consists of one story buildings with yellow tiled roofs built round flagged courtyards and shaded with fine trees. There are splendid bronzes in the neglected courtyards, and rumor tells of many treasures hidden away within the palace walls not to be seen by the prying eyes of foreigners.

In the grounds are small temples, a theatre, an immense pagoda, tallest and most perfect of its kind, and everywhere pavilions, large and small, one to suit each mood of the art loving Emperor who designed them—one for poetry, one for learning, one for the old and one for the young—even one for rainy days. There is all that skill and taste could furnish for a king's delight in summer time, but for all its beauty the court may find its refuge bleak and chill among the snowclad hills.

CARELESS PARENTS.

Many men and women carry through life the effects of falls received during helpless childhood, though at the time careless parents paid little heed to the matter. It is one of our weak points that so few children are properly cared for during infancy. In some ways the Indian mother knows more about what is good for her child than the white skinned mother, though the former is far from being the most clean in her ways and the latter is supposed to be well informed in all the fine points of modern hygiene.

The Indian woman knows nothing of sterilizing the child's toys and in most cases she scorns even to wash him, but she knows that if he is to be straight and strong his little back must be taken care of and the delicate and easily moulded spinal column must have something straight to support it. So in most tribes the papoose is put into a sack or bound to a thin board or piece of stiff, straight leather. According to some doctors it would be far better if we had something like the papoose bag for the white baby, which is allowed at an early age to support the weight of his head on his weak spine.

In childhood the vertebrae are easily displaced and when they become so the pressunre of the bones on the nerves induces many diseases. Some doctors believe this to be the commonest cause of all disease, but others do not agree on this point. One thing is certain, however, a displaced vertebrae may cause any one of several kinds of trouble, from simple headache to paralysis, and readjustment usually brings cure. But prevention is far better, and without doubt many of the ills which attend men and women in later life might be avoided if the infant's spine were more carefully supported and were subject to less violence.

The young child should not be grasped around the chest or lifted up under the arms without the support of the other hand under it. Tossing and bouncing the baby are bad for it because they cause shock to the delicate spinal cord and the results of these shocks are seldom discovered until years afterward.

The best position for a small child is lying on its stomach, and its bed should have a mattress that while soft is not too soft or two springy. To avoid bending the spine and to guard against any premature permanent curvature some arangement such as the bag of the papoose or the wickelkissen of the German child should be used when carrying the baby.

Unfortunately neither of these devices is considered hygienic, because the child's limbs are too closely confined. But a pillow or small portable mattress can be arranged to carry the child about on without handling it, and this will prove in the end more comfortable to the child as well as more healthful.

One frequently sees a child almost lifted off the ground by one arm or pulled up into a high seat by a firm grasp of one hand. No wonder children's nerves are on edge and that children seen around the shopping districts loudly wail their distress.

Catarrh and Bronchitis

The Bane of Thousands, and has Hitherto Baffled the Skill of Medical Science.

Catarrhozone

Dry air treatment is the one treatment that will cure these diseases.

What stomach medicine has ever been known to cure Catarrh or Bronchitis?

Catarrhozone is not a stomach medicine, but an air medicine, that carries to the remotest parts of the throat, lungs, and air cells little drops of healing so curative that whenever it touches germ life it kills and eradicates them from the system.

Thousands of doctors and patients have been disappointed by using stomach medicines for coughs and colds. Have you not found it a rather roundabout way to reach the diseased portion of the throat and lungs?

Why not use Catarrhozone, which is breathed to the very root of the disease and heals so quickly and perfectly that every spot is rebuilt with new healthy tissue?

Catarrhozone is the only medicine that will cure. Thousands have testified.

Think for a moment. Is it not sense? Little drops of healing—the air carries them just where disease exists. That is why

A Problem In Mathematics.

There is a certain instructor in mathematics in a Washington institution who is beginning to wonder whether his five-year-old son is going to inherit his mathematical temperament.

On one occasion the father and mother of this youngster, while visiting a resort near the capital, were watching the boys and girls swing the circle on a merry-go-round. The father commented upon the sight presented by one small sized youngster astride a huge lion, and, as he did so, noticed a serious look on the face of his own offspring, who was standing beside him.

"Why such a solemn expression, Tom?" asked the father.

"I was just wondering," said Tom, who had had one ride and, having a ticket for another, wished to use it to the best advantage, "whether I would get a longer ride than I had on the horse in the inside circle if I rode on one of the lions on the outside row."—Judge.

Absolutely Safe.

"You'd better fumigate these bills before you go home. They may be covered with microbes," said the druggist one Saturday evening as he handed a few faded, worn and soiled silver certificates to his clerk. "No danger from that source," responded the latter. "A microbe could not live on a drug clerk's salary."—National Monthly.

A VARIEGATED MENU.

From the Italian Point of View Only However.

In the downtown district of Chicago there is a restaurant which makes a specialty of serving a business men's luncheon at an unusually low price, the meal consisting of meat, a cup of coffee and a side dish of vegetables.

One of the customers of the place became indignant because macaroni had been served as a side dish every day for a week. Calling the manager, the aggrieved customer said:

"John, you have macaroni here too often, and it"—

"You are right, sir; quite right," agreed the manager.

"I don't want to pose as a kicker," explained the customer, "but"—

"Say no more about it, I beg," entreated the manager. "I'll have it changed at once."

Then he called to the head waiter and said:

"Tell the chef he has macaroni too often. Tomorrow we will make a change. We will have spaghetti."—Popular Magazine.

Obliterating the Color Line.

Poindexter was Michael's understudy and first assistant gardener. The latter, a jovial Irishman, was above the average in many ways and was superintendent of the lawn and general utility man about the place. Fond of a joke, he could appreciate a good one even at his own expense.

There was no question whatever as to the nationality of Michael's Senegambian cohort, as he was called. The word "black" did not do justice to Poindexter's complexion.

One day Michael said to him, "Poindexter, they say if ye give a nigger a watermelon to eat he can lie in the hottest sun all day and never get sunstruck, nor even feel the heat."

"No, suh; no, suh. Dat ain' so!" expostulated Poindexter. "De sun affecks niggers jes' de same as it does you or me."—Woman's Home Companion.

DECAYING SPLENDOR.

As Seen In the Ruins of the Imperial Tombs of Nanking.

Few of the splendors of Nanking. once the populous and prosperous capital of the Chinese empire, survive, for the city began to decline when the seat of government was removed to Pekin. Some of the more durable of its public works and decorations remain in part and probably the best preserved is the avenue leading to the famous Ming Tombs. On either side of this thoroughfare are massive stone figures of elephants, camels and lions, as if guarding the road over which were borne to their final resting places the once mighty rulers of the world's most populous country. Each of the two figures in the foreground was carved from one piece of stone and is about 12 feet high. The silent sentries in the distance, proportionately large, were produced in the same manner and give an impressive lesson of the patient and persevering industry of the Chinese. These monuments to despotic vanity are fully 500 years old. The avenue leads to the Imperial tombs upon which time have made telling ravages. It is believed that some, if not all, of the massive stone animal figures were used as sepulchres for faithful adherents of the occupants of the Imperial tombs. Thus in sepulchre as in palace, rulers and guards continued in the same relative positions.

In the years when these stone figures were carved and the avenue constructed, Nanking had a population of 4,000,000 and rivaled any other city in the world in its palaces, libraries, institutions of learning, commerce and manufactures. Its porcelain tower, built in 1413-32 by Emperor Yungkoh in commemoration of his mother, was one of the most wonderful structures of the centuries. It was octagonal in form 322 feet high, slightly tapering and nine stories high. Each story was provided with a gallery and a projecting roof from the corners of which bells were suspended. In the interior a spiral staircase led to the summit, formed by an elegant spire, on the top of which rested a ball of brass overlaid with gold. This tower with many of the other great works of the city disappeared during the period from 1853 to 1864, when the Tai-Pings were in possession of the city.

Amid the ruins of the Imperial palace, only the square tower, 50 feet high, is now standing, and on the top thereof is the gigantic statue of a turtle.

RED TAPE IN FRANCE.

Why the Army Is Still Hungering For Canned Sausage.

The ways of the French red tape expert are many and delightful. Here is a French war office story, for which my authority vouches. A maker of tinned goods, who dealt largely with the French war office, had invented a novelty. He had found a means of putting sausages into tin boxes which preserved them absolutely.

But the French war office has a rule with regard to preserves. They have to be left at the Rue St. Dominique for six months to see if they will really keep before any contract is given. M. X. left his box of sausages and went away happy. He was away for a year. At the end of this time he called at the war office so that the sausages should be opened in his presence. He was told that it was no use opening them; he would not get a contract. "Why not?" he asked. "They have been here a year," he was told, "instead of six months. Our orders are to open after six months and see whether the goods are in a proper state of preservation."

And, although M. X. explained that a year held just twice six months and that if the sausages were still sausages it would be proof positive that they were well tinned, red tape, as usual, held its own. He was obliged to take his sausages away, to bring back two boxes of others, and he will have to wait six months before he gets his contract. And the sausage loving soldiers will have to wait for their dainties.—Paris Cor. London Standard.

BREAD FROM SAWDUST.

Made For Horses, It Would Nourish Humans In Famine Times.

Sawdust may not appeal to the palate as a digestible or appetizing substitute for flour in the making of bread, but all the same there is a large bakery in Berlin turning out 20,000 loaves of sawdust bread daily.

The sawdust is first subjected to a process of fermentation and various chemical manipulations. Finally it is mixed with one-third part of rye flour, formed into loaves and baked in ovens like any other bread.

Although this new "pain de bois," as the French call it, is meant for consumption by horses only, claim is made by the manufacturers that in case of famine it would furnish a nutritious and highly satisfactory food for human beings.

Sawdust bread may not taste so bad as it sounds. In various parts of the world bread is obtained from trees. For example, in the Molucca islands the starchy pith of the sago palm furnishes a white, floury meal, which is made into flat, oblong loaves and baked in curious little ovens divided into small oblong cells just big enough to receive the loaves.

In Lapland the inner bark of pine trees, well ground and mixed with oat flour, is made into cakes, which are cooked in a pan over the fire. In Kamchatka pine bark and birch bark are used for bread without the addition of any other substance, being reduced to powder by pounding, made into loaves and baked.—New York World.

"Spotting" by Camera.

At present the fall of the shots in target practice is observed from the tops of the cage masts of our battleships and cruisers, the "spotter" noting through his glasses whether the shot falls short or over or has a deflection to right or left. Lieutenant Commander Cleland Davis has invented a method of spotting by the aid of the camera. The splash is photographed, and in a few seconds the negative is developed. The necessary corrections in the range and deflection are then made, and it is stated that the operations are so speedy that there is practically no delay as compared with the present methods of spotting.—Scientific American.

Carnegie's Spelling.

If school children took to spelling according to Andrew Carnegie's rules they would never get out of the primer class. Here are examples of his spelling, taken from the manuscript of a speech he delivered in Baltimore on May 5 last:

"Hed" for "head," "hart" for "heart," "stund" for "stunned," "thot" for "thought," "honr" for "honor," "messures" for "measures," "caus" for "cause."

And, what's more to the point, the steel king expects to have his spelling method adopted, sooner or later.—Popular Magazine.

Mysterious Arctic Tribe.

Vilhjmar Stefanson, who claims to have discovered a tribe in the arctic region of British Columbia that had never seen a white man before or even an Eskimo, though they had heard of both, has been in the far north since 1908 on a scientific expedition for the American museum. He is a graduate of Harvard and has devoted several years to anthropological research, particularly among the Eskimos. He feels that his discovery may lead to the solution of the mystery surrounding the fate of the Franklin expedition.

Canal Zone Mosquito Traps.

Mosquito traps placed in the ventilators near the roofs of barracks are giving satisfactory results in the Panama canal zone. To make the traps really effective the work of destroying the insects is done twice a day. No section in the world perhaps has received such careful anti-mosquito treatment as the zone. Crude oil to the extent of 24,000 gallons and 11,000 gallons of larvacide are now used monthly in the work of ridding the zone of mosquitoes.

Australia will send a detachment of cadets to participate in military competitions in Canada.

THOUGHT IT WAS CANCER

"Fruit-a-tives" completely restored me

SYDNEY MINES, N.S., Jan. 25th. 1910.

"For many years, I suffered tortures from Indigestion and Dyspepsia. Two years ago, I was so bad that I vomited my food constantly. I also suffered with Constipation. I consulted physicians, as I was afraid the disease was cancer, but medicine gave only temporary relief.

I read in the 'Maritime Baptist' about 'Fruit-a-tives' and the cures this medicine was making and I decided to try it. After taking three boxes, I found a great change for the better and now I can say 'Fruit-a-tives' has entirely cured me when every other treatment failed, and I reverently say "Thank God for 'Fruit-a-tives'."

NOT TO BE RELIED UPON.

Are Our Senses the Last Thing In the World to Be Believed?

While it is a fact that nine persons out of ten place, or think they place, the utmost faith in the testimony of their senses, when it comes to the more important affairs of life few of us accept this testimony. For instance, we do not believe that the sun moves around the earth, although we see it; and the flatness of the earth that is evident to our uninstructed physical sight is refuted by the understanding. We do not believe our senses, but our reason, in these premises, though we do rely upon them in many matters where we should know better. We have for guidance such truisms as "Don't trust in appearances," and "Believe nothing that you hear and only half of what you see," but still we are often deceived. Illusions and delusions afflict us from the cradle to the grave.

We think that we see and hear a great deal that we do not see or hear at all. On the witness stand and under oath we testify to things that we imagine to have taken place only to have our testimony contradicted by that of other witnesses, equally reliable and conscientious, who describe minutely things and occurrences as being evident to them at the same time and place as those we have described, yet materially different in every important detail. It is contended by many able men and with much reason that the much derided "circumstantial evidence" is, after all, more reliable than that of so-called "eye-witnesses."

A celebrated professor recently staged a mimic "holdup" in the lecture room, having his actors suddenly rush in, engage in a pretended fight and suddenly depart. There were some 50 members of the class and each was requested to write an accurate description of the occurrence. The result was about 50 different versions. One man had seen an assault committed with a knife, another with a pistol, another with a club and so on. None of the descriptions of the persons engaged tallied with the facts. Yet each man was willing to swear to what he had seen.

This is all natural when it is considered that no two persons have the same sense of color, form, or sound. And whose senses are reliable? No one's!

Alpine Fatalities.

The foolish fad of Alpine climbing has caused the deaths of 115 persons during the present year. Of these the majority were Germans — 38 — while there was only one American victim. A considerable number lost their lives in their search for edelweiss and other Alpine blooms and nearly all of the tragedies were preventable. In not one instance did the climber provided with a guide lose his life. The victims were the inexperienced, who dared fate and lost.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

THE PEACH KING.

Persistency of the Boy Who Wanted Good Roads.

In the American Magazine E. I. Farrington writes of J. H. Hale, the peach king. When Mr. Hale was a small boy there was a mortgage on his mother's house. Young Hale bought some peach trees, and just as the mortgage was to be foreclosed he sold his first crop and paid it off. Mr. Farrington writes:

"After that the Hale boy was much in the local public eye. He went to town meeting one year and asked for a better road between Glastonbury and Hartford. The conservative tobacco farmers frowned on the forward youth. Next year he was on hand again, however, this time to plead for permission to have built only ten rods of good road at the town's expense. He was politely informed that boys were made to be seen and not heard and went home disappointed once more. But the next year he bobbed up a third time, more determined than ever, and evinced a disposition to talk all day. On that occasion his persistency and filibustering tactics were too much for the town farmers, and they consented to the appointment of a committee, with young Hale as chairman, to lay ten rods of modern roadway, telling them to build it anywhere they chose, but naturally expecting that Hale would select the section in front of his own farm. Instead, he picked out the worst section of the road, at least four miles from his home.

"When the next spring came this piece of roadway was like an oasis in a desert of mud, and there was little further opposition to road improvement in that part of the Connecticut valley."

ROMANCE OF FINANCE.

Rise of Sir Ernest Cassel, the Famous English Philanthropist.

The world of finance contains no more thrilling romance than that in which the central figure is Sir Ernest Cassel, whose recent gift of a park to Newmarket in memory of King Edward, whose friendship he enjoyed for many years, is but one of many splendid acts of munificence.

His father was a small banker at Cologne. At sixteen young Cassel came to England to earn his own living. He started in Liverpool, and then he came to London, and perhaps scores of people who read these lines will recall the time when he was a junior clerk, getting $4 a week. When one of the London financial houses got into difficulties the task of disentangling the complications was intrusted to the young man, and he did his work with such marked ability that he at once made a name for himself. Since then his progress has been phenomenal.

Sir Ernest provided most of the funds for the new radium institute in London, which was opened a short time ago, and he gave the $1,000,000 with which the late King Edward founded a sanitarium for the victims of tuberculosis, while he gave another million dollars for the establishment of an Anglo-German institute.

How self reliant Sir Ernest is is proved by the fact that in none of his colossal financial enterprises has he ever had a partner.—London Answers.

Chicago Fire Fans.

Plans have been perfected for the formation of a social club to be known as the Chicago Fire Fans' association. "It is not our intent merely to rush to all the big fires in our automobiles," one of the incorporators says. "We have the best interests of the department at heart. Our aim will always be to aid the firemen in every way possible, so that the Chicago fire department may always be the most efficient in the country. Although we are not allowed fire alarm signals in our homes, we always get word of any big fire either day or night by personal arrangement with either the men in the alarm department or at the different fire houses."

An Old Wright Aeroplane.

An interesting reminder of the rapid development of the art of aviation is found in the consignment to the National museum of the Wright aeroplane purchased for $30,000 in 1909 by the department of war. At the time of its acquisition by the government it had successfully passed the tests required of it—tests that seemed well nigh impossible—but already it is obsolete and must take its place alongside the earliest locomotives and sewing machines as a mere relic, useful only to show the promising beginnings of aerial navigation before cross country flights had become a commonplace.—Providence Journal.

Richest City of Its Size.

Frankfort probably shares with Amsterdam eminence as being the wealthiest city in the world per capita. There is an immense investment fund in this city garnered through the centuries. Frankfort has long been one of the great money markets of Europe, and banking in Germany centered here until recent years, the great Frankfort private banking homes leading and being assisted in their operations by such houses as Mendelssohns and Bleichroeder in Berlin and the Oppenheims in Hanover.

Man and Horse In a Race.

At Dublin, Ireland, recently a large crowd witnessed a ten mile race between a trotting mare and a man. The man was given an allowance of eighteen minutes and covered 3 miles 1 furlong in that time. He was caught 700 yards from the tape and beaten by 300 yards in 53 minutes 58 seconds.

DEMONSTRATIONS HELD TO PROTEST

Threat to Form a Provisional Government Made by Ulstermen.

London, Jan. 29.—Ulster is now the political storm-centre of the United Kingdom. Home rule has been discussed in England and Scotland by Nationalists and Unionists, but no great enthusiasm has been aroused either for or against. In Ireland, outside of Ulster, the people are firmly convinced they are to have home rule. Ulsterites, however, are up to their eyes in fight.

Several big demonstrations have been held in various parts of Ulster to protest against any change in the form of Government of the country. One of the demonstrations in Belfast was of the industrial workers; another in Omagh was largely made up of farmers, small holders and farm laborers, who showed just as strong opposition to home rule as did their city brothers. In the latter place again the Ulsterites pledged themselves to form a provisional government if the bill passed.

Every voter in Ulster, however, is not a Unionist. There is, in fact, a fairly large sprinkling of Nationalists. In many cases the Unionist members were only returned in the last elections by narrow majorities, the Marquis of Hamilton, for instance, winning by only 100 votes in Londonderry. One division of Belfast itself, is represented by Joseph Devlin, one of the Nationalist leaders.

Elaborate police precautions will be taken for the protection of Mr. Churchill. Should he be joined by Mr. Redmond, the drive from the residence of Lord Pirrie, where he is to be the guest, to the place of meeting with Mr. Redmond's usual escort of Nationalists, there is almost certain to be rioting.

Except for a visit of Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in 1906, and another by Mr. Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland in 1907, no Liberal statesman has spoken in Belfast in eighteen years, and when Mr. Churchill and Mr. Redmond appear, it will be the first time a Cabinet Minister and a Nationalist leader have spoken from a platform in the city.

Respects Protestants Right.

London, Jan. 29.—The correspondence between Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Lord Londonderry, regarding the home rule meeting which is to be held in Belfast on Feb. 8, has not yet ended, Mr. Churchill sending a second letter to the ex-viceroy, in which he explains that he had nothing to do with the local arrangements for the Belfast meeting, and reminds him that home rule meetings had been held in Ulster Hall recently. "I had no other idea," says Mr. Churchill in his latest letter, "than to discuss, according to the long established custom of British politics, matters which are serious to us and which we freely recognize are serious to you. The rightful interests of the Protestants of Ireland must be the deep concern of every British Government. They will be respected by all who faithfully strive to reconcile Ireland to the British Empire and end the hatreds which disturb the foundations of the state.

"Your letter forced me to refer to a personal matter. Your lordship has a claim, to which I bow, to remind me of the memory of Lord Randolph Churchill. You were his friend through evil, as well as good days. The Unionist party, who, within a few months of the very speech which is now on your lips, pursued him with harsh ingratitude, have no such right."

It was on the platform of Ulster Hall that Lord Randolph Churchill, denounced Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill, and at the same time declared "Ulster will fight, and Ulster will be right." It is to the mention of this by Lord Londonderry that Mr. Churchill's letter referred.

Unionists are organizing a counter demonstration, but the First Lord of the Admiralty, in advocating a policy which his father with equal vehemence denounced, will be the centre of attraction.

Andrew Bonar Law, the Unionist leader, will go to Belfast on Easter Tuesday. April 9, to reply to Mr. Churchill and there will be another demontrations so that Belfast has a lively time ahead.

The objections of Ulster have been set forth by the Rt. Hon. Thomas Sinclair, one of the leading merchants of Belfast, a former Liberal, who left that party on the introduction of Mr. Gladstone's first home rule bill in 1886 and has since been leader of the anti-home rule party. There are many objections to the measure, he said, but among the chief of them is that it would lessen the status of the citzenship of Ulstermen. Under the union they had the same civic status as a resident of England, the same control of local affairs, the same representation in Parliament and enjoyed the benfits of its legislation. To deprive them of this would be an unwarrantable degradation of their citizenship, especially as their forefathers were sent to Ulster 300 years ago by the state, for the purpose of assisting to hold, by their habits of industry and their loyalty, Ireland for the British nation.

Home rule would undoubtedly set prosperity back, if it did not entirely ruin the industries which Ireland had to thank for her present increasingly happy position. says Sinclair.

Engine Cabin Burned.

Toronto, Jan. 29.—While a new G.T.P. locomotive was waiting in the Bathurst street yards to be taken to Fort William. where it was to have been put into commission, it caught fire from an overheated stove which had been placed in the cabin to keep the attendant warm while the engine made its journey "dead" northward. Practically the entire cabin was destroyed. The damage amounted to about $100.

CLERGY FIGHT HIGH PRICES

Open Series of Sales Places—Will do Away With Middlemen's Profits

New York, Jan. 29.—War on high prices for vegetables for the poor of New York, fashioned after the campaign of Mayor Shank of Indianapolis, was begun yesterday with the opening by a committee of clergymen and others of the first of what is proposed to be a series of sales places where products of the soil will be transferred from producer to consumer without a middleman's intervention.

Customer who flocked to the big room in which quantities of carrots, potatoes, cabbages, beets, turnips and other vegetables were stacked, quickly emptied it of its contents. The stock cost $27 and sold for $27.48. The man in charge gave two boys half a dollar for cleaning up, so there was no profit.

An old woman who keeps a grocery store across the way from the first station, offered to weigh the goods sold by the new station, and denounced the innovation as destined to hurt her business, while not benefiting purchasers.

SCORES RECALL OF JUDGES

New York, Jan. 29.—On the eve of his three-day visit to Ohio, his home state, President Taft spoke last night at the Waldorf-Astoria to the Ohio Society of New York, delivering probably the most impassioned speech he has made in many months, directed against the "nostrums of reform" and particularly aimed at the recall of judges.

In the efforts that have been made to reform legislation in this country, the President said, he saw much that was good. He saw the faults of government in the United States to-day and admitted that in trying to eradicate them much might be accomplished by reformers. But in the effort to make the judiciary responsive to every "whim" of the people, he saw destruction.

He declared that the conservative element of the nation must eventually "get together" to prevent a movement that would make the courts the creatures of popular will and might make the decision in every case, not accord with the law, but accord with what a majority of the people thought the law should be.

CHAMP CLARK IN THE FIELD

Washington, Jan. 29.—Speaker Champ Clark in a public statement yesterday declared that he was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, standing on his own feet "without leaning on any other candidate."

The speaker appeals for the support of a representative delegation of "loyal Missouri Democrats," who will stand by him as long as he has a chance for the nomination. Mr. Clark is emphatic that he is in the presidential race on his own record and standing, and seeks no alliance with any other candidate.

"Governor Folk and his friends," said Speaker Clark in his statement, "may make combinations with other candidates if they wish, but they have no right to excuse such conduct by wrongfully charging me with like practices."

COW'S KICK MAY PROVE FATAL

London, Ont., Jan. 29.—Charles Blizard, a London Township farmer, while milking his cows on Sunday was kicked by one of the animals and is now lying in his home in a precarious condition, his recovery being doubtful. Three ribs were fractured, his shoulder broken and his face badly cut by the animal's kicks. Lying unconscious for an hour before being discovered, the seriousness of his case was accentuated.

ROOSEVELT NOT OUT FOR THE REPUBLICAN NOMINATION

Governor Stubbs Says He Will be Nominated, However, and Will be Next President—Will Await a Call.

New York, Jan. 29.—Theodore Roosevelt is not a candidate for the Presidency, but nevertheless will be nominated and elected, according to a statement issued Saturday night by Walter R. Stubbs, Governor of Kansas, who lunched with the former President Saturday at Oyster Bay. Governor Stubbs is the second governor within 24 hours to say that he is going back home to work for Roosevelt.

"There is no doubt whatever that Col. Theodore Roosevelt will be nominated by the Republican convention and elected the next President of the United States," said Governor Stubbs. "I say this knowing from his personal statements to me, repeated during a personal conversation to-day, that he is not a candidate and will not be a candidate for the nomination. I am fully convinced he means exactly what he says and that he honestly and sincerely feels that he personally has nothing to gain by another term as President.

"But Col. Roosevelt never has said to me nor to any other living human being to my knowledge that he would refuse the nomination if it came to him as the result of a genuine demand on the part of the American people.

"There is such a demand at this time. All the information that I have been able to gather from all parts of the country is that that demand will persist and grow and force the convention to offer him the nomination. His patriotic spirit, his courage and his keen sense of the duties and obligations of a citizen will forbid him to set his back against a task which the people demand he perform."

No Saw-off In Middlesex.

London, Jan. 29.—At the annual meeting of the East Middlesex Conservative Association, held here Saturday afternoon, a resolution was unanimously passed endorsing the action of the executive in entering a protest of the result in the recent provincial contests. The resolution declared against any saw-off whatever on the part of the assocation.

CRITICAL DAY OF MILL STRIKE

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 29.—Labor leaders in charge of the strike of nearly 20,000 operatives in the cotton and woollen mills of this city, were yesterday organizing their followers in an effort to keep them from returning to work to-day, which, it is conceded by both sides, is likely to be the critical day of the two weeks' strike.

COSTLY FIRE IN PITTSBURG

Pittsburg, Mass., Jan. 29.—Flames that raged for six hours yesterday morning, destroyed three buildings in the business section of this city at a loss estimated at $250,000. The Academy of Music building, which contained the oldest playhouse in the city; the Miller building, which adjourns it on North street, and a storage building in the rear, were the structures burned. The fire started about midnight in the rear of the Outlet Clothing store, which was on the first floor of the Academy building. The police regard the origin of the fire as suspicious, and State Officer Thomas E. Bligh began an investigation.

The high wind with zero temperature hindered the firemen, who worked for hours in coats encased in ice. One fireman who had stood over a hose for a long time was frozen so severely that he could not move and was carried to a nearby hotel to be thawed out.

TURKS WERE REPULSED

Tripoli, Jan. 29.—The Turkish forces on Saturday renewed the movement against Ghirgarish, the small oasis about twelve miles from Tripoli, which has been the scene recently of numerous engagements between the Turks and Italians, and at the same time another force of 3,000 Turks and Arabs delivered a determined attack on Ainzara, some miles inland.

The fierce Italian artillery fire, however, compelled the assaulting forces to fall back towards the south and southwest. The Italian casualties numbered two killed and eight wounded.

HOLY CROSS COLLEGE IS DESTROYED

AUSTRALIA IS WILLING

Melbourne, Jan. 29.—The Australian Prime Minister, Andrew Fisher, in an interview yesterday said that he had received no official intimation of the proposals for a reciprocal agreement between Australia and Canada, which the Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, George E. Foster, is said to have made. Consideration will be given to these, he added, when proposals in a definite form reach Australia.

Both the Prime Minister and the Minister of Customs, F. G. Tudor, say that the visit of the Canadian Minister to Australia would be heartily welcomed. as such a visit would greatly facilitate negotiations.

More Anarchy In Brazil.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 29.—Anarchy prevails at Bahia. The governor, Aurello Vianna, who recently withdrew from office, has taken refuge in the French consulate. which is guarded by federal troops. His successor has also withdrawn, and the town, deprived of control, has been abandoned to the soldiery and populace. Business is entirely suspended.

The foreign consuls held a meeting here Saturday and drew up a protest against the condition of affairs.

TWELVE PERSONS WERE DROWNED

Row Boat Crossing the Mississippi Caught in an Ice Jam

Cairo, Ill., Jan. 29.—Twelve persons are said to have been drowned when a rowboat crossing the Mississippi from Bird's Point to Cairo, was caught in an ice jam. Searching parties have been unable to find any trace of the lost boat or its passengers.

The passengers were part of 135 who left a noon Cotton Belt train at Bird's Point, Mo., and were left without conveyance across the river, because the railroad ferryman feared to risk his steamer in the ice and heavy fog.

Three boatmen were hired to carry the passengers to this side of the river. Two of them took five passengers each. Frank Jones, said to be an expert boatman, permitted twelve to get in his boat.

Boatmen of the two lighter ferries were about 50 yards ahead of James when they heard shouts for help and, turning, saw James battling frantically with a monster floe which was sweeping his craft beyond control. A heavy fog then hid him and nothing has since been heard of the ferryman or his passengers.

Yuan Has Another Conference With Princes Regarding Abdication.

Armistic Has Expired But Rebels Say There is no One to Fight With.

Nanking, Jan. 29.—The armistice, which has been in operation for several weeks past, expired yesterday, but no definite steps have been taken for its renewal. Neither Tang Shao Yi, the representative of Yuan Shi Kai, nor Wu Ting Fang, the Republican Minister of Justice, expects serious fighting. Dr. Wu said in this connection:

"There is no one to fight; all are our friends."

Chang Hsun, commander of the Imperial troops, has his central base at Suchowfu, in the northern part of Kiangsu province. Under his direct command are 8,000 of all sorts of good fighters, inured to the winter. The revolutionists' centre is at Linhwaikwan, in Anh Wei Province, about 100 miles from Nanking. The revolutionists number 15,000 men, eager for fighting, but not acclimated.

Gen. Chang now occupies a special car, from which point of vantage he directs his troops, but a significant fact is that an engine is attached at both ends of the car. His retreat, however, is cut off 100 miles to the north by the cities along the railway line, which turned over a few days ago to the revolutionary cause.

It is confidently believed here that abdication will come when Yuan Shi Kais is satisfied that the Chinese troops in Pekin are sufficient in numbers to control the Manchus.

The new senate was inaugurated here yesterday. It is made up of 42 senators, who appeared in foreign dress. President Sun Yat Sen, in his speech, urged unity. He said that it was proposed by the new regime to build up not to destroy. At the close of the President's address there was an impressive scene, the members, rising in a body and giving three cheers for the republic. The hall was handsomely decorated and a military band played popular airs familiar to the foreigners.

Bomb Outrages Increase.

London, Jan. 29.—A despatch from Tientsin to the Exchange Telegraph Co., says that the Imperial family met at the palace in Pekin yesterday to consider the question of abdication. Yuan Shi Kai has consented to the convening of the National Assembly at either Hankow or Hsingtu.

According to The Daily Telegraph's Pekin correspondent, President Sun Yat Sen has sent a circular note to the powers through the Pekin legations, stigmatizing Yuan Shi Kai as the champion of the Manchus, and accusing him of repudiation of his pledges and agreements and of intriguing to secure the dictatorship for himself. The President declares that the Republicans have not changed their terms, but will insist on a guarantee that Premier Yuan will work solely for sound Republican government.

Bomb and revolver outrages are increasing in Pekin, Tientsin and Mukden. There has been 32 of these outrages in Mukden in the last five days.

A Shanghai despatch to The Telegraph says that the national convention at Nanking has unanimously resolved not to extend the armistice.

COMMISSIONER HOWARD COMING

New York, Jan. 29.—Thomas H. Howard, commissioner of the Salvation Army, arrived yesterday from Europe on the Celtic, to make a tour of inspection which will include New York, Chicago and Toronto. He was met at the pier by a delegation from the Salvation Army and taken to headquarters. He will return to Europe Feb. 13. He said that, notwithstanding the age of Gen. William Booth, the octogenarian head of the Salvation Army, the chief was in good health and was now traveling on the continent.

FOUR PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH FIVE OTHERS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Italian Murderer Caught.

Sault Ste. Marie, Jan. 29.—Guiseppe Nardoni, the man who shot Mike Pappas here a week ago yesterday, was arrested by Chief of Police Vincent, near Little Italy, at 8.30 o'clock Saturday night.

During the past few days the authorities have impressed upon Italians the nature of the crime of harboring a murderer and it is believed that the parties who had him in hiding at length insisted that he take his own chance. The man seems remorseful and does not seem to realize the enormity of his act. He admits that he did the shooting.

FOUGHT WITH TRIBESMEN

Rabat, Morocco, Jan. 29.—A French column, commanded by Col. Simon, has had a severe engagement with the tribes, who are in the habit of attacking the posts on the Rabat-Mequinez Road. Many tribesmen were killed or injured and the French lost four killed and fifteen wounded.

Disastrous Fire in a Butler, Pa, Home—Bodies of Vic- Recovered.

Butler, Pa., Jan. 29.—Four persons were burned to death or suffocated and five others are in a serious condition as a result of a fire early yesterday at the home of Curtis Hale, at Claytonia, a mining town ten miles from here.

A family reunion was held at the home of Curtis Hale Saturday night. The fire was discovered at three o'clock yesterday morning. An overheated stove or the explosion of a lamp is thought to have been the cause.

The dead are: Earl Miles, aged 35, son-in-law of Curtis Hale; Mrs. Pollie Miles, aged 35; Mrs. Belle Hale, aged 28, wife of James Hale; Scott Hale, aged 18.

Curtis Hale, his wife and children, David, James and Sadie, sustained burns about the head and body.

Men from a nearby coal mine, assisted by neighbors, extinguished the fire, provided for the injured and recovered the charred bodies of the victims. The damage to the house was less than $1,000.

HORSE'S LEG SWELLED

Animal Was Too Sore and Lame to Work—Quickly Cured by "Nerviline."

"I have had a long experience in treating horses, and I can safely say that I know of no liniment for strains, sprains, and swelling that is so useful around the stable as Nerviline." Thus writes Mr. Joshua E. Murchison, from his home, Crofts Hill P. O. I had a fine young mare that wrenched her right fore leg, and from the shoulder down she was stiff, sore, and swollen. I applied Nerviline, and it worked like a charm; in fact, that mare was in shape to work a day after I used Nerviline.

Nerviline Is a Trusty Liniment

"We have used Nerviline on our farm for twenty-five years and never found it wanting. For man or beast it is a wonderful liniment."

We have received nearly five thousand letters, recommending Nerviline as a general household liniment, as an all-round cure for aches and pains. One million bottles used each year. Try it yourself. Large bottles of Nerviline 50c; trial size, 25c. All dealers, or The Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

ADULTERATED FOOL

Sulphurous acid has been used extensively in canning corn in Canada. This is shown in a bulletin just issued by Chief Analyst, McGill, which declares that out of a total of 146 samples of canned corn, no fewer than 73 showed traces of sulphurous acid. Forty six of these samples showed a considerable amount. Then in a large proportion of the samples he reports finding saccharin a non-sugar sweetner, at present on the United States and German blacklists. The question as to the harm resulting from articles containing these compounds has caused quite a widespread discussion. The Dominion Analyst gives no opinion on the question of them being harmful, etc., but is in favor of forcing the manufacturer of products to announce the use of such compounds on their labels. This is demanded under the pure food law in the United States, and would work out well here, as people would then know just what they were getting. Many insist that these compounds are not harmful, but it should be left to the people to decide for themselves. Adulteration of food stuffs is a serious matter and there should be some measures adapted to stop the practice. It is a well known fact that many adulterated articles are being offered to consumers and some of these have, from time to time, been pointed out by the Dominion Analyst, but no prosecution has followed

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

"To judge from the trade being done by manufacturers and wholesale houses all over Canada there is nothing to complain of in the business outlook," says the Financial Post. The article goes on to say that most business houses are decidedly busy, in fact doing as big a business as they have ever done. It shows that many of them are doing a record trade, and reports of various companies in many lines bear out this statement. The Post further says that 1912 should be another exceptionally good year.

Some financial men believe that a depression is bound to follow, but their view is not shared by many men in the financial and business world. There is little to warrant these fears as there is no over-production in Canada, and very little in the United States, and over-production is usually the factor that looms up largest in bringing about a depression. Then another reassuring feature is that money in practically all markets is comparatively easy.

The Post in dealing with the question further says:

"Another feature that does not look right is the excessive height to which food products are continuing to go. There are several causes. One of them is short production, while there is at the same time a better demand owing to increasing population, and also to increasing wealth. The latter is, however, the interesting fact. Grocery houses, for example, notice that even the less well-to-do classes of the community are now demanding, for ample, package food, where formerly they bought the bulk product. This tendency toward extravagance is perhaps to be expected when the country is so prosperous, but it is at the same time one of the danger marks'."

The article in the Post refers also to the waves of real estate speculation which are sweeping over the country, and says that too large a proportion of the private, and perhaps comapny, available assets are becoming locked up in the real estate transactions. It points out the danger if a smash comes.

The main feature brought out in the Post's review, on the business outlook ,however, is that general business in Canada is reassuring. Advances are shown from week to week in bank clearings, railway earnings, building permits, etc. If unsound conditions prevailed it would be speedily indicated by empty railway cars, falling off in the building trades and by other unmistakable signs.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Will the Nationalists stick to Borden," an exchange asks. Not likely, if they could get more out of it by switching over.

The Kaiser threatened to close up his palace at Potsdam in Germany, if a Socialist was elected there.A Socialist has been elected and its up to Emperor Bill, to vacate.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux came close to weeping in the Commons because some French Canadians had been dismissed by the Borden Government. Some of Mr. Lemieux's political henchmen must have been hard hit.

Vancouver will soon be known as "Thugville," unless the series of assaults and hold-ups cease. Holdups are of nightly occurrence and the latest is a daylight bank robbery and the men made good their escape.

The Socialists of Germany, who made such a gain in the German elections, claim that it means an era of world's peace. If the Socialists bring this about, they certainly deserve their success at the polls.

The Sunday tobogganing question is still a "live wire" in Toronto and the civic fathers are between two fires. First a Lord's Day Observance deputation and then the advocates of Sunday sliding. Old Sol will settle the question if they keep at it long enough.

The dedication of the Khartoun Cathedral to the memory of General Gordon, who laid down his life in the defence of British rights, some 27 years ago, shows to a marked degree the steadily advancing march of civilization. At the time of his death there was bloodshed and anarchy at Khartoum and to-day peace reigns and a beautiful cathedral has been erected. Gordon was the hero who did much to bring about the present happy state of things there.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Gulled People

The United States post office department is doing good work in pursuing the class of criminals who use the mails for gulling the people. Chief Inspector Sharp estimates that the few people arrested during the past year acquired from their victims no less than seventy-five million dollars. What the real total may have been it is difficult to appreciate. The wonder is that the number of persons who may be deceived by these practices is so large.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

The recovery of the Heart of Budda straightway became a sacred charge upon all the priests. Tshen's father devoted his entire fortune to the cause. With infinite patience, laboring tirelessly, the Burmese never lost sight of their precious relic; but in England they soon found that conditions were vastly different from those of their home country. It was impossible to approach the object which they coveted; and their opinion of legal redress was based upon their familiarity with what passed for justice in Burma. But they never grew disheartened; and at last their opportunity came.

It was Tshen's father who slew Paternostro. It was he who won undying honor by recovering the jewel. It was he who, hard-pressed by the police, was obliged to seek the nearest sanctuary, which happened to be France. The rest we know.

But the gem still carried its baleful spell, for we also know how the expert whom the Paternostros carried with them to Paris, was drowned just as the homeward-bound vessel was entering Dover harbor.

So much for the ruby's eventful history.

Chaya's declaration also confirmed my conclusions respecting Burke's designed imposition upon Alfred Fluette—which, by the way, he seemed to regard as perfectly legitimate. And then it concluded with the most important matter of all.

On the night of Felix Page's murder, while his companions were all in the second story, Chaya had remained on guard below. He had watched Page following Burke np-stairs, after the robbery, but could not warn the thief without alarming the pursuer.

After the struggle began in the hall, Chaya harkened to it a while, then dashed up the rear stairs to take a hand, in case the jewel was to be snatche dfrom his companions at the very moment of victory. He passed through the bath room during the brief period Burke was in his own room informing Tshen of the state of affairs, entered the hall, where, by the dim light of the solitary candle, the two men were locked in combat. The struggle was so furious that his presence was not noticed. He proceeded to the north-east angle of the balustrade, where he crouched around the corner and followed through the balusters the uncertain issues of the fight.

He watched the two chief actors so intently, in fact, that he failed to perceive Burke snatch up the supposed ruby from the floor; but he did see Page wrest the leather case from Fluette.

Now was the time for him to act. He was armed with a black-jack—a ball of lead wrapped in leather and with a short, flexible leather handle—and just as Fluette grabbed up the iron candle-stick he plunged forward.

At this instant the light was extinguished, and he received the full weight of a human body as it staggered backward. He supposed it to be Page's. He struck out blindly with his own cruel weapon, at the same time shoving the body away from him. He felt his bludgeon crush his victim's head; and the he was himself felled to the floor with a tremendous blow that blotted out everything else for him. The base of the candlestick had found a mark wholly unsuspected by any one.

He knew afterwards that his companions had carried him down the rear stairs and away; that they tried to doctor him until they grew alarmed at the seriousness of his injuries; whereupon they deserted him in his room, after notifying the landlord, who had in turn notified the hospital authorities. Chaya was well supplied with funds, so there had been no difficulty on that score.

And thus was my deduction proved to be correct. Felix Page's left side had been toward the balustrade at the instant Fluette snatched up the candlistick; on the balustrade was a deep indentation where the base of the improvised weapon had impinged, after glancing; and the fatal blow had struck upon the victim's temple. A single descending blow can not very well pass down one side of a man and end upon the other.

But while Chaya's story gratified me beyond measure, at the same time it was incomplete: it threw no light upon the ruby's resting-place, and for the simple reason that he knew no more about it than any of the rest of the individuals interested in discovering where it had been hidden. I was satisfied that the cipher, once I had interpreted it, would lead me to the gem. Therefore, it remained for me to find it.

Well, the cryptic writing was solved, pretty soon; but the solution came like a crash of thunder, revealing the one twist toward the end that I had least expected.

And, worst of all, I should have known!

CHAPTER XXVI
The Cipher Solved.

Chaya's ante-mortem statement, properly attested by Dr. Larrimer, Dr. De Breen, the hospital secretary, and myself, together with the otherwise complete case I had, was sufficient of course to open the prison doors for Royal Maillot. It should also have lifted the cloud from Alfred Fluette; but, alas! it did not.

To make my story end as all well-conditioned stories ought to end, I should here be able to wave my wand, or invoke some good genie, or however it is that the writer-folk bestow happiness at a stroke upon the helpless creatures whom they have been ruthlessly dragging through a sea of trial and tribulation, and show you the actors in my own drama transported with joy. But I am recording what actually happened. It was a strange fatality that cast itself into the lives of these people. They were dismayed, overwhelmed, rendered helpless, left uncomprehending. However much I may desire to do so, therefore, I can not twist the truth to give my own story precisely the ending that you or I might desire it to have.

As for myself, I could'nt carry the news fast enough to Maillot and to Mr. Fluette, and to Belle and Genevive. My enthusiasm met its first damper when the cell door swung open, and the young fellow walked out a free man. It is true that his gratitude was immeasurable: he could find no words to express it, and wrung my hand until—strong man that I am—I had to tear away from him.

But after his elation had time to cool, he grew morose and gloomy; he was more inclined to cling to what he had gone through, than to accept the extremely satisfactory assurance that he stood clear and as far above suspicion as Cæsar's wife.

"No use talking, Swift," he responded to my attempts to rally him out of his humor; "the taint will stick to me. People will say I'm the fellow who was arrested for killing his uncle so that he could inherit his fortune. They'll always point me out and shake their heads and say I was released only because the police could'nt find evidence to convict me. I hope to Heaven the old man made a will giving all his money to charity."

"Faugh!" Such morbid talk was thoroughly exasperating. "Mr. Fluette had a much narrower escape than you did."

"Perhaps," he admitted heavily. "But nobody knows it outside of you and his family. I can't go to Belle with the odor of prison clinging to me. And what's more, I sha'n't."

"If you don't," I said quietly, "you'll break her heart. Your suffferering has been as nothing compared to hers." Then I lost my patience completely. "Maillot," I flung at him, "you're a damned fool!" And I swung on my heel and strode away.

"Hi! Swift! Come back here!" he yelled after me. In the next second he had caught hold of my arm and jerked me to a standstill.

"Good Lord, man! I didn't know you had such a nasty temper! Here you come and drag me out of jail, and because I don't strike out hot-footed and throw myself into the presence of the cleanest, sweetest girl in the world, you think I'm an ass.

"Look here. I knew I was innocent; but at the same time I didn't try to blink my compromising predicament. I wouldn't blame any fair-minded person for being suspicious of me. But everything's happened so sudden—I can't understand—and—well, hang it, Swift! you havn't made yourself clear, by a long shot. If you think I ought to go to Belle, why, I'll go."

"Then let's go together," said I.

And we did.

After we had boarded a car, I reverted to the matter of the will.

"I don't think it's likely that any will will turn up," I told him. "I have talked with Mr. Ulysses White about it, and he said that Felix Page was one of the sort who have a holy horror of last testaments. If the old gentleman ever made any such disposition of his property, Mr. White had no hand in it."

To dismiss the matter, I will say here that no will ever did turn up, and that Maillot inherited the entire Page fortune. I merely mentioned this topic to pave the way for that of the ruby.

"Not the least part of the estate," I pursued, "will be the Paternoster ruby."

The young fellow interrupted me impulsively.

"By George, Swift! it's yours. Find it and keep it—or sell it and keep the money. I'll not have the ghastly thing—duck it into the lake first."

"That's no proper way to dispose of it; and later on you might regret such a gift to me. This was what I was going to suggest.

"I believe the claim of the Burmese to be just, for I suppose they're honest according to their lights. They would have a pretty hard time establishing it, though, if you are of a mind to contest the matter."

"Great Scott! Forget that cursed ruby; talk about something else. I want to get the thing out of my mind and never think of it again."

"All right. I sha'n't mention it after to-day. But let me get through. Here's an easy way to settle the matter.

"Let the Burmese have it after reimbursing the estate for what your uncle paid for it; it would be only fair—at least, in a measure.

"I want to hold Tshen and his entourage of mild-eyed cutthroats until I put Burke through; they're my best witnesses. We can't hang the rascal, but we have an excellent case against him for burglary, attempted swindling, and attempted blackmail. After I find the ruby you can do the bargaining."

He agreed to this. After a bit he favored me with a quizzical regard.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

PRESENT LICENSE SYSTEM NOT APPROVAL, BUT DISAPPROVAL

Government Realizes the Liquor Traffic Must be Held Down—Local Option Advancing, Says Rev. Ben H. Spence.

That the present license legislation of the government did not denote approval of the liquor traffic, but rather disapproval was one of the points brought out by Prof. Hallam, as he spoke to an audience of three hundred men at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon.

It was one of the meetings in connection with the Field Day throughout the city and county, held by the Dominion Alliance and County Temperance Association.

Mr. H. B. Cowan was chairman.

In commencing his address Prof. Hallam, made it clear that all churches were against the liquor traffic. He quoted resolutions passed at meetings by the Anglicans, Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, and Presbyterians and read the statements of Bishop Manning, which expressed the feeling of the Roman Catholic church, as against the traffic. All the churches were on the platform against the evil.

Prof. Hallam took up the question of license by the government, and explained that the license which placed a limit on the time of sale, limited the place, and limited the person, only showed that the government realized that the traffic was not for the good of the country. In the past two years the bars were ordered to be closed on Christmas day. Why? The traffic was at variance with the spirit of the day. The bars were closed on election day. Why? Because the government realized that men needed clear heads to pass on the laws of the country.

What argument could be brought forward for the opening of the bar on any day? The present license system meant that the traffic was of such a nature that it must be held down.

In local option, he held, the people were only taking to a logical point the principles of the license law.

In answer to the statement sometimes made, that despite local option "you could get it anywhere," Prof. Hallam held that, while such a statement was easily made, but had to be proven.

People said it was better to have decent bars than the dives. As to this, a wholesale and retail liquor journal of San Francisco said, "the model saloon is found in the minds of editors of liquor journals and in mythical stories."

The government recognized the evil of the traffic, in regard to the boys, and for the first offence for selling to a minor, a fine of not less than $10 and not more than $50 could be imposed.

"You bring in local option, and what will happen," asked the speaker. "The first offence means a fine of not less than $100 and not more than $200, for the second offence the penalty is four months in jail."

Rev. H. Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, told of the object of the fieldday campaign. Two thousand five hundred public meetings, he said, were held last year throughout the province. Every municipality had a part in the province-wide movement to abolish the bar. The people were not working for local option, but with local option for something larger.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

He explained that in 1909 there were 97 Ontario municipalities where repeal contests were possible. Bar-room advocates were only able to bring on 29 contests, and they were beaten in 27 of these.

In 1910 there were 111 possible repeal contests, voting was brought on in only 12, and Local Option was sustained in 10 of these.

In 1911 there were 134 possible contests, but the law was such an unqualified success that in 131 the liquor interests found it impossible to even muster up strength enough to bring on a contest. Three places voted and all sustained the law.

The speaker had a huge bundle of telegrams from mayors and reeves of municipalities telling of the success of local option. On May of this year 18 more by-laws would go into effect.

Another big meeting was held in the Opera House at night. The singing of Mr. Howard Russell was much enjoyed.

AT MARK STREET

The services at Mark street church yesterday morning, were a great success, the church being filled to its utmost capacity by those interested in the campaign of the Temperance Alliance.

The sermon preached by the Rev D. H. Spence was a very scientific exposition of the temperance principles and was thoroughly appreciated by the large congregation.

The offering amounted to $74 dollars, a sum very gratifying to those in charge of the services.

New Examination at Collegiate for Those Entering Middle School

And Who Intend to Take Teacher's Course—The Time Table

The various departmental examinations to be held at the Collegiate Institute at the close of this term will take place at an earlier date than those of last year. In the 1911 examinations the extreme heat caused much inconvenience among the candidates, and it is thought that the change in the dates of the examinations will avoid this difficulty. There will be a new examination this year, namely, the Lower School examination for entrance into the Normal Schools and into the Faculties of Education. This examination will be tried by those pupils entering the middle school, who intend to take the teachers' course. The following is the time-table for the 1912 examinations.

Lower School examinations for entrance into Normal School or Faculty of Education begins June 11.

Faculty Entrance (upper school) begins June 12.

Matriculation Examinations begin June 13.

High School Entrance Examinations. June 19th, and Normal School Entrance (middle), June 24th.

A comparison with last year's time-table shows that the examinations are considerably earlier this year. In 1911, the Matriculation and Faculty Entrance commenced on June 29; Normal School Entrance, July the 3rd, and High School Entrance, June 26th.

TO VOTE ON CHURCH UNION

Charlotte St. Congregation to Give an Opinion by Ballot

Subject Was Treated by the Pastor at Morning Service

Rev. G. W. Henderson, of Charlotte street Methodist church, treated the question of church union at the morning service yesterday, giving some general information relative to the proposed basis of union of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational churches.

The pastor showed that his sympathy was with the movement by remarking that he would try to avoid introducing argument in favor of union into his discourse, a procedure, however, which he found rather difficult, owing to his sympathies lying with the movement. He felt, moreover, that the careful and reverent hand of God was plainly discernible in the planning of church union

PEOPLE TO BE HEARD.

"The higher courts of the three churches proposed to be included in the union, have all voted most decidedly in favor of the plan, but the people have yet to be heard from," he remarked.

The pastor treated the topic by asking three questions, two of which were:

Is the organic union of these three churches to be desired?

Is the proposed union on the basis admitted, practical?

In the first case in support of the question, the pastor referred to a town of 900 population, which contained four churches, one Roman Catholic and three Protestant; any one of which, if need be, could have accommodated all who attended church, in the town. When conditions such as these exist, and yet urgent calls for ministers for missions constantly being received, it can be readily recognized that no man can justify the existence of such conditions.

"We cannot afford to perpetuate such conditions that waste men and money, besides the serious injuries growing out of congregational rivalries.

The pastor referred to interdenominational marriages as a cause hastening union.

In support of his second question, the pastor considered the proposed union to be a providential way of affecting some needed changes in the doctrinal creeds of the three churches. The doctrines laid down in a pamphlet than has been issued, deals with the great essential principles of Christianity and fairy. The construction and wording of several of the clauses of this pamphlet were quoted by the pastor, and are remarkable for their simplicity, and yet thoroughness and beauty.

In the near future ballots are to be distributed to obtain an expression of opinion of the question of union.

EXAMINATION FEES HAVE BEEN INCREASED

Each Candidate Trying Entrance Examinations Must Pay $1

Higher education and higher education fees are apparently coming together. A circular from the department of Education at Toronto, received by Principal Kenner, of the Collegiate, this morning, announced a new schedule of examination fees. Most striking in these changes is the innovation of a $1 fee for High school entrance.

Heretofore there has been no charge for the entrance examination, but commencing this year an assessment of $1 will be levied on each pupil trying the examination.

The senior High school entrance, the examination for admittance to the High schools and Collegiate Institutes, taken by pupils who have taken several years at a continuation school, will now be $5. The fees for all other examinations save that of entrance to the Normal schools have also been boosted.

THE OLD AND NEW FEES.

A comparative table of the old and new fixed fees for the examination is:

	New rate.	Old rate.
High school entrance...	1.00
Junior matriculation ...	8.00	5.00
Partial matriculation ...	3.00	2.00
Honors or scholarship matriculation	10.00	5.00
Entrance normal school	5.00	5.00
Entrance to faculty of education	8.00	5.00
(Part 1 or 2)...	5.00	3.00

The increase in the fees is for the purpose of preventing candidates unpared for their examinations trying them for the mere sake of trying.

THEATRICAL

"The Girl and The Tramp"

Those who witnessed the presentation of the Girl and the Tramp at the Grand Opera House, Saturday, should receive "conscience money" during the next few days. The company was possibly the weakest that ever stood before the local glimmers and that lets them down good and easy. It was they who should have stood and not the audience.

Happy Jack, the tramp, was the only bright spot in the presentation and at that one of his gags brought forth the agonizing story of the "Bald-headed maid from Peterborough." There were five in the company, but the audience looked in vain for the "Daintiest Girl" and automobile explosion. The excuse in both cases was awful.

All new plays and vaudeville will be presented and the prices will be 10, 20 and 30 cents. Reserve seats can be procured in advance at the box office.

AFTERMATH OF SIMCOE ST. ENGAGEMENT, FINES OF $10

Scrappers Express Their Sorrow, and Magistrate, Too, is Sympathetic.

Two sore and badly battered persons limped into the dock at police court this morning, as the result of a rough and tumble encounter with the police on Saturday afternoon while resisting arrest.

The desperate and exciting struggle which lasted from the time the two men were apprehended for trying to clear out the bar-room of the King George hotel, until the police cell doors clicked behind them, kept a monster crowd of onlookers on edge. The fight was undoubtedly one of the most strenuous and exciting and strenuous seen on Peterborough streets for some time, and the police force, though up against a snag, acquitted themselves well.

The row had its origin, as stated, in the King George hotel bar-room on Simcoe street about 3.15 Saturday afternoon. The two trouble-makers named James Hattrey and Alfred Stevens, with a couple of glasses each on board, became at first frisky and then quarrelsome. A phone message to the police headquarters sent Detective Newhall to the spot, accompanied by P.C. Brown. The officers endeavored to quiet the men when they entered the bar-room, but without success, they being compelled then to use force. From then on the struggle did not abate, as the officers wrestled their men, foot by foot, to the police station. Every inch of their progress was contested, and the slippery state of the pavement and roads was a drawback to the officers. The fighting instincts of the two drunks was roused, and they fought, tripped and kicked like fiends. Periodically officers and men both fell to the ground, and at such occasions, the hundreds of people who surged around the combatants would emit a long, reverberating howl of delight until the scene began to assume the character of a gridiron contest.

Detective Newhall's prisoner was a tough proposition, being a husky, well built man. Had the officer been given more freedom by the crowd, who, with the usual mob-like tactics, crowded up close, he would have had far less difficulty in trotting his man to custody. Chief Thompson and P.C. McGinty were called, finally subduing the man, but not until he was in a state of semi-undress. A couple of the city officials also aided in the arrest.

P.C. Brown was left to handle his man alone. The officer had a hitch upon the man's wrist, by means of a rope, but the cord parted, and the man, although handicapped by a recently fractured ankle, put up a good, fair argument. An express cart standing near by was requisitioned, the officer tossing the man into it and literally holding him down all the way to the station.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

This morning the men were sorry looking specimens, when arraigned on charges of being drunk and disorderly, and of assaulting P.C. Brown and Detective Newhall. Both pleaded guilty, but expressed their sorrow that it had happened.

"I'm sorry for you, too," said His Worship.

The sentence imposed was light, being only a $10 fine each, or 20 days in jail. Neither had much money, so their prospects are confinement. Both men live in the city, and neither are married. They are laboring men.

Hattery was in police court before Christmas, and while in his cell injured his ankle, necessitating eight days in the hospital. He was later freed without the charge of drunkenness, for which he had been arrested, being pressed, through the kindness of Chief Thompson. He hails from England, and has resided here six months. It is understood that a recommendation for his deportation will be sent in to the department at Ottawa.

Stevens is an old-time boxer, it is learned, having put away some fair mit artists in the old land.

The charges of resisting the officers were not pressed.

JUDGEMENT IN THE APPEAL BROUGHT BY PATRICK CARROLL

Sufficient Uncertainty in Appearance of Lavery to Justify the Doubt and the Question and an Honest Belief in Truth of the Answer—A Falsehood.

In his judgment, sustaining the appeal of Patrick Carroll against the police court conviction, in which he was fined $25, Judge Huycke says:

Carroll is a licensed bartender at the Oriental Hotel in this city. Evidence was given to show he had been a bartender for 25 years, and was never in that time convicted with infraction of the liquor law, which is in his favor, so far as it goes, but only so far. To convict him the following must be proved:

1. That he sold liquor to Lavery.
2. That Lavery was to Carroll's knowledge under 21, or
3. That Lavery was apparently under 21.

It is proved, and I find that Carroll did on December 16th, 1911, sell liquor to Lavery.

I find also, that he, Lavery, was then under 21, to wit, 19 years old. This was amply proved. It is not proved to the knowledge of Carroll that he was under 21. The contrary is the fact. The sole question, therefore, is was Lavery then apparently under 21 years of age. If he was, Carroll should be convicted; if not, the existing conviction must be quashed.

What does "apparently" or "apparent" mean, and to whom must the "apparency" appeal, or to whom must he be so "apparent." Is it to the bartender, or to the magistrate or judge, or to the world at large, i.e., men of ordinary observation, intelligence, reason and common sense, the public generally. I think it must be so to the ordinary reasonable citizen, the public generally.

Further, does "apparently" here mean "probably" or "plainly, evidently." Several witnesses were called to testify to their opinion or judgment of Lavery's age. There was, of course, a large diversity—16 or 17 up to 23—this diversity largely varying with the view point of the witnesses. Some of the witnesses as to the apparent age of Lavery when giving judgment as to the apparent age of two other young men present at the court, proved quite inaccurate in their opinion. The learned Police Magistrate also found that in his judgment Lavery was under 21. I do not find fault with that judgment—I quite agree with it.

But is that enough? I think not. The weight of evidence given before me was that in the judgment or opinion of the deponents he was under 21 years of age—but there was quite a diversity in the opinions even of those who thought so, as to his exact age and more so when compared with evidence given on behalf of the appellant Carroll.

"Apparently" is defined in the Standard Dictionary as follows:—As "judged by appearances," "without passing on its reality," seeming, plainly evident to the senses, clearly, plainly, and "Apparent" as "clearly perceived or perceivable," evidently; easily seen or to be seen.

With such diversity of opinion, undoubtedly honest, can it be said that Lavery was clearly, plainly, evidently, clearly perceivable or easily seen or to be seen under 21 years of age? I cannot so find, and so failing to find the appeal must be allowed.

In addition to this, inspection by the court is allowed as a mode of proof when practicable to assist in forming a conclusion, but a judge may not decide on his own view exclusive of evidence London v. Laveile, 1901, 1 Ch. 135.

Here I had a view of Lavery and heard the evidence in addition. I too would have judged him under 21, but not clearly so or plainly, self evidently.

I have found from general observation and especially in revising voters lists that appearances are often deceptive as a criterion of age especially so perhaps at about the age of majority. Lavery is a stout heavy, strong young chap—with character not yet very fully marked in his face, an indication probably of youth; on the other hand, he is as large as the ordinary grown man, and has a substantial growth of hair on his face, quite visible though clean shaven, as much as or more than many young men show at 25 years. His appearance undoubtedly indicates a debateable age, and so evidently Carroll thought. When Lavery asked for the liquor at the bar, Carroll as he says in doubt, asked his age, if he was 21 yet. The reply was yes I amm 22 years old or 22 past. He then got the liquor. This is admitted by Lavery and doubtless true. What is the effect of this? If there was collusion and this question asked and answered simply as a blind and for protection it would make bad matters worse. But I do not think this the case. I find that Carroll was in honest doubt when asked the question and that he believed and relied on the answer given. I think too, the ordinary observer would have had the same doubt and asked the same question and receiving the same answer would have come to the same conclusion with the same result. There is sufficient uncertainty in his appearance to justify the doubt and the question, and an honest belief in the truth of the answer, given so openly and brazenly, a deliberate unblushing falsehood. As I said before I would have judged him under 21, but if I had asked him his age, would have believed his reply that he was 22, unless there was something else to raise suspicion, and I think this is the general result of the evidence adduced before me. The question is not one of bona-fides or of age, but of the apparent, self evident age. The statute is quasis criminal and must be construed strictly before enforcing penalty.

The result is then that Carroll did sell liquor to Lavery, that Lavery was then under 21 years; that he was not under 21 years to the knowledge of Carroll nor was he apparently under 21 as defined and applied above. Reference was had to, and the case is largely governed by Rex v. Farrell 16 C.C.C. 419 and 20 O.L.R. 543, and cases there cited. The appeal must therefore be allowed and the conviction quashed. It is practically a new trial and not a case for costs. If necesasry, and I have power to grant it herein an order may go for protection of the officers instigating the prosecution order accordingly.

Jan. 24, 1912.

E. C. S. HUYCKE.
Judge.

Mr. G. N. Gordon acted for the appellant.

A New Ally

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Wouldn't it make a horse laugh. "Sunny Jim" hooking up with the temperance horse in the proposed new local option campaign, and this in the face of thirty years' enforced support from the hotel interests. But then the Good Book tells us that the eleventh hour penitent has as good a chance as the fellow who was always good.

The Ne Temere Decree

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The Church of Rome for centuries, and in every land, has always been credited with being a pastmaster in the art of clothing its designs against the liberties of the masses in velvet and silk, and only coming out in the open when its schemes were ripe and the time opportune. For ages this policy has been pursued and invariably with success. History can point to no more polished diplomats than those occupying the high places in the Romish Church. In view of all this, and the circumstances surrounding us in Canada to-day, may we not well ask what has become of this "fine Italian hand"? Have the leaders of this church lost their ancient expertness, or have they grown desperate and reckless under adversity? What are they doing in Protestant Canada to-day—stepping between man, wife and family—setting at naught the marriage laws of the land and placing the behests of a foreign potentate above those of the State And mark you, attempting this in the freest land under the sun to-day, and under the only flag—the grand old Union Jack—that tolerates them without restrictions. Have not their leaders been kicked out of every country in Europe except Great Britain? They have been banished from all their ancient strong-holds. Even the supreme head of the Church—the Pope—is a virtual prisoner in the country in which Romanism had its birth. When in the last ditch, as it were, wouldn't it be thought that common sense, if nothing else, would teach them to at least mind their own business and not attempt to impose on the good nature of the last country in the world open to them. Apart from its deep importance to the nation as a whole, it may be thought by the careless that it concerns us here in Peterborough very little This view would be wrong in any case, but right in this city instances can be pointed to where injury is being done through this "Ne Temere" decree. Is it not high time that this unrighteous edict was placed outside the zone of party politics and pronounced upon by the highest tribunal in the land?

Yours sincerely,
LIBERTY.

WIN FOR THE PETES MEANS THE DISTRICT CHAMPIONSHIP

The Game of the Season at Lindsay To-morrow Night—Port Hope Juniors Here To-night—First Appearance of the Rooters' Club.

D. B. Thomas and Harry Malcolm Graham may have caused some excitement in Mudville, but all records will be broken to-morrow night, when the Petes invade the camp of Bill Stoddard and company, in quest of the district championship.

Peterboro and Lindsay teams have had some hot battles during their O.H.A. experience, but the engagement of to-morrow night will go down into history unless the unexpected happens and the game is made very ordinary by Peterboro winning in pretty much the same style as in the first game. Then the score was 13-1, but it must be remembered that the visitors practically quit.

A win for Peterboro means the championship of the district, but with Lindsay winning, both teams will be tied and a play off will be necessary.

Many of the local fans are making the trip on the regular, 5.30, but the majority will leave on the special, at seven o'clock. The Juniors are to witness the game as guests of the hockey club. It is just possible that Lindsay will spring Jack Spratt. That's just how anxious they are about the outcome of the game.

Should the Juniors be successful in winning from Port Hope at Brock street rink to-night they will certainly deserve to be congratulated on their work of the season. It will be six straight wins, and they have had to fight for every game. The fans should turn out to-night and show the youngsters that they appreciate their efforts.

Manager Cox on behalf of the Drivers' hockey team challenges the Express men to a game of hockey, the same to be played at the earliest possible date.

The Rooters' Club will be heard for the first time at the junior game to-night. The songs have been published and any of the fans wishing to assist with their vocal powers can join the Songsters' Brigade to-night.

PORT HOPE DEFAULTS

No Junior Game at Brock Street Rink To-night

At three o'clock this afternoon Secretary Glover was wired by the Port Hope management that the game to-night was defaulted to Peterborough.

There will therefore be no game to-night.

HOCKEY

An important meeting of the hockey club executive is called for to-night at the half-time period of the Peterboro-Port Hope, Junior game.

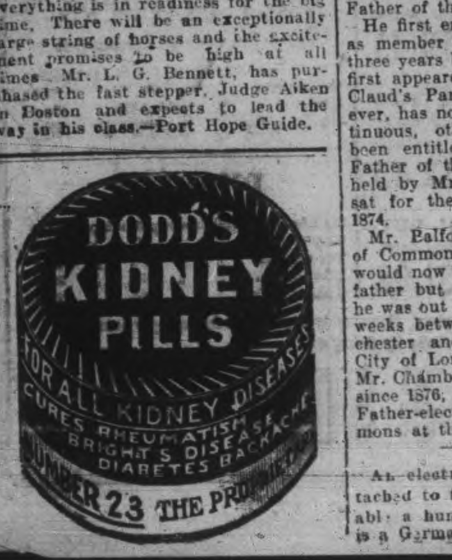
Lindsay Warder.—In Bond and Bearrs Peterborough has a husky and speedy defence, capable of using their body and weight with telling effect, perhaps fairly, perhaps unfairly. Be it one or the other let us have a referee for the coming game who makes sure only the former variety of play is indulged in, and thus assure both Lindsay players and backers a fair shake.

Harry Bourgoyne will referee the Lindsay game to-morrow night. Lindsay refused to consider Sproule and Peterborough didn't want Hancock.

There are no dates arranged for Peterborough juniors.

ICE RACING

Owing to the large amount of snow in the Park, it will be necessary to hold the ice races on Corbett's pond next Thursday and Friday. The course has been marked off, and everything is in readiness for the big time. There will be an exceptionally large string of horses and the excitement promises to be high at all times. Mr. L. G. Bennett, has purchased the fast stepper, Judge Aiken in Boston and expects to lead the way in his class.—Port Hope Guide.



REVOLUTION ENDS.

Ecuador's Revolutionary Leaders Are Put to Death by Loyalists.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, Jan. 29.—With the putting to death at the hands of a mob of Gen. Eloy Alfaro, ex-President of Ecuador, his brother, Gen. Flavio Alfaro, ex-Minister of War, and commander-in-chief of the revolutionary forces; Gen. Medardo Alfaro, who is believed to have been a brother of the two other Alfaros, and Gens. Paez and Manuel Serrano, the leading lights in Ecuador's last revolution, have been snuffed out. This revolution, although it had been a long time brewing, began in reality a few days after the sudden death on Dec. 22 last of President Emilio Estrada.

The first of the drastic measures taken by those who opposed the revolution were carried into effect last Thursday at Guayaquil, when Gen. Pedro Montero, who was proclaimed president by the troops after the death of Estrada, was shot and beheaded by a mob which later burned his body.

Eloy Alfaro and Gens. Paez and Montero were captured Jan. 22 at Guayaquil when Government troops under Gen. Leonidas Plaza forced the revolutionists who held Guayaquil to capitulate. Flavio Alfaro had been wounded in a battle a few days before the fall of Guayaquil. Medardo Alfaro was captured Jan. 25 as he arrived at Guayaquil on board a steamer with a body of rebel troops.

Eloy Alfaro was proclaimed President of Ecuador by the populace in January, 1906, after he had defeated the Government troops at Quito. In October of the same year he was elected president of the national convention, and held the office of chief executive until 1911.

Doyen at St. Stephen's.

Lord Claud Hamilton, M.P., who has recently suffered a bereavement, Lady Claud Hamilton dying after a prolonged illness, is the doyen at St. Stephen's, although not actually the Father of the House of Commons.

He first entered Parliament in 1865 as member for Londonderry, exactly three years before Mr. Henry Chaplin first appeared at Westminster. Lord Claud's Parliamentary service, however, has not been anything like continuous, otherwise he would have been entitled to the appellation of Father of the House, a position now held by Mr. Thomas Burt, who has sat for the Morpeth Division since 1874.

Mr. Balfour first joined the House of Commons in the same year, and would now be entitled to be called its father but for the circumstance that he was out of Parliament two or three weeks between his rejection at Manchester and his re-election for the City of London. On the other hand Mr. Chamberlain has sat continuously since 1876, so that he is in reality the Father-elect of the House of Commons at the present time.

BE KIND.

Be kind to newsboys on the street.
Their pleasures are but few.
Besides, if you should give them lip
Some one of them is like to slip
Some phony change to you.

Speak gently to the homeless dog.
Don't hurl a brick at him.
Don't frown upon him angrily,
For if you're rude to him maybe
He'll bite you on the limb.

Be patient with the restive mule.
His life has little mirth.
A gentle word will cause him glee.
Besides, if he gets angry he
May kick you off the earth.

Speak sweetly to the lordly cop.
He may have kids at home.
It grieves him to be called a dub.
Besides, he has a hefty club,
And he may wreck your dome.

Help out the poor old janitor.
A coin will make him beam.
His monthly wages may be slim.
Besides, if you get fresh with him
You won't get any steam.

Be pleasant to the waitress fair.

A little wink may cause her joy
And make her say, "You dear old boy!"
But do not tell your wife.

Found a Loophole.

An attorney for a western railroad was arguing before the interstate commerce commission for postponement of the enforcement of the safety device regulations so far as they applied to his road.

He said the road was in the hands of receivers and the court that appointed the receivers would not sanction the issue of certificates for the purpose of buying automatic couplers.

"So you see, your honor," he declaimed, "we are between—between"—He hesitated and concluded lamely, "the upper and the nether millstone."

"Why didn't you say what you started to say?" asked Chairman Knapp.

"Very well, your honor," replied the attorney blandly: "we shall in that case consider your august body the—deep blue sea."—Saturday Evening Post.

FOUND SINGLE TAX.

Late Thos. Fyshe Was Co-Discoverer With George.

The fact that the late Thomas Fyshe, the Montreal banker, was co-discoverer of the single tax theory with Henry George is recalled by a writer in Toronto Saturday Night. Describing a request for an interview on financial matters the reporter says:

"My reception was neither cold nor hot. I explained my business, and Mr. Fyshe gave me little enough satisfaction. While explaining why he couldn't do what I asked him, he expressed in round terms his opinion of certain financial matters. This was better "stuff" even than I had gone to get, and I asked him to allow me to quote him. Neither would he permit me to quote him. But by that time we were seated and had begun swapping ideas. I recollect, particularly, that questions concerning political economy came up, and I soon found that I had run into a pastmaster. He was a free trader from the grass roots, and what he thought about the policy of protection would have done you good to hear. He soon saw that I was particularly interested, and as no one in particular came in to interrupt, I think the "interview" lasted fully two hours.

One thing which I have often recalled since was his statement concerning Henry George, author of "Progress and Poverty" and other works on political economy. The conversation had reached the point where the vast accumulations of capital were being compared with the poverty of the masses. He blamed this partly upon the tariff laws and partly upon the legislation permitting the value of natural opportunities and resources to be alienated, through sale or long lease at inadequate prices, from the people to the private interests.

I wanted to ask him what he proposed to do about it, but was afraid to chip in lest I break the spell—in other words, lest he remember I represented the press. However, I presently put the question.

"Why," said he, "all you have to do is to put a tax of such a character on the natural resources of the land that it will off-set the advantages which the private owners are now reaping over and above that which they are creating."

I remarked that that was similar to the proposal known as single tax. "Did you ever examine that proposal?" asked I.

"Did I ever examine it!" he exclaimed, all animation—if it was possible for him to be animated. "Did I ever examine it? Why, I discovered it."

I was naturally a little astonished, and perhaps showed my feelings. Mr. Fyshe smiled a rather inscrutable smile which it seems to me must have been characteristic of him.

"I suppose that sounds strange to you," said he, "but it's nevertheless true. I don't want to take any honor from Henry George, but in justice to myself, I make the claim that I was a co-discoverer of the single tax, with him."

Later on he told me, when and how and under what circumstances the economic idea or philosophy had developed in his brain which was at the same time developing in the brain of George a thousand miles away. Unfortunately for my story, as well as for Mr. Fyshe's health, he was taken ill before he reached Little Metis or shortly after, and from this illness he never fully recovered. My recollecton is, however, that it was while he was general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia that he evolved, on his own behalf, the conclusions set forth in "Progress and Poverty" shortly after by a man who, for years, had been thinking along the same lines.

Mr. Fyshe was born near Edinburgh, in 1845, and was comparatively young at the time of his death, being but sixty-six years of age. After serving in the Bank of Scotland, and later in the Birmingham Joint Stock Bank, he made an engagement with the Bank of British North America, and came to Montreal in its employ. He was largely instrumental in framing the Bank Act of Hon. George E. Foster, which has been the basis of Canadian banking legislation, as well as of that of other countries. Subsequently, he investigated conditions in the civil service, for the Laurier Government, and his report was what might have been expected from him—blunt and outspoken. It probably led to the permanent commission to administer the civil service.

A Different Species.

The young hopeful of a well-known Canadian jurist had lately become very much interested in the study of butterflies and moths. Just before Christmas his father had given him a dollar as a reward for some service and the boy promptly flew off to a bookseller's where he had observed a certain work on sale relating to his favorite study.

He brought the book home in high glee, and speedily became lost in perusing its contents. His father was quite delighted to notice the serious way his young son and heir, was applying himself and asked the boy how he was getting on with his new book.

"Not very well, father. I've read three chapters and can't find a blessed thing about moths."

"Bring the book to me and let me see it," said his father kindly.

On looking at the cover of the book, the judge was extremely amused to read the following title: "Help to Young (Mothers) Moth-ers."

A Veteran Civil Servant.

Montreal lost a veteran civil servant when the new year bells were ringing recently, in the person of Mr. William D. Robb, who resigned the position of city treasurer.

Mr. Robb enjoys the unique distinction of having held office under twenty-one mayors. Advanced age alone has compelled his retirement. Mr. Robb, who is a Scotsman by birth, is 75 years old. He once attributed his long fortitude in office to his custom of resting his figure-haunted brain by writing poetry! Much verse from the ex-treasurer's pen has appeared in various periodicals.

AN OBEDIENT YOUTH.

He Followed Advice About Being Good to Some One.

It was the second meeting of the Sunday school class, and the teacher gazed with pride upon the row of happy little faces before her.

"You all look so happy this morning, children," she said, "that I am quite sure you must have obeyed my injunction to you last Sunday to devote your week to the task of making at least one person happy. It is in this way that we obtain the greatest happiness for ourselves. Haven't you found it so, Willie?" she added, turning to a beaming little bunch of freckles seated on the end of the bench.

"Yessum," said Willie.

"You have found it out from your personal experience, haven't you, dear?" she went on.

"Yessum," said Willie.

"And now I want you to tell these other children what you did last week in accordance with my directions to make at least one person happy," said the teacher.

"I took the twenty-five cents my father give me," began Willie.

"Yes," said the teacher, "and what did you do with it?"

"I spent it all in cake and candy and sody water," said Willie.

"And all for some little boy or girl?" asked the teacher.

"Yessum," said Willie. "It was for a little boy."

"That was splendid of you, Willie," said the teacher, "and I am going to reward you with one of our largest merit cards."

"Thanky, ma'am," said Willie. "I'll give it to the same little boy."

"You dear, sweet child!" ejaculated the teacher, giving him a resounding smack of a kiss. "Who was the little boy, dear?"

"Me," said Willie.—Harper's Weekly.

A Great Distinction.

The late Sir W. S. Gilbert, the librettist, once met Liebling, the pianist, and the following interchange of courtesies occurred between them. Gilbert said:

"Sir, I have heard Liszt"—

Liebling bowed his head in acknowledgment at what he supposed was the coming compliment.

"I have heard Henry Hertz," continued Gilbert. "I have heard Paderewski."

Liebling made a genuflexion even unto the ground.

"Well, sir," continued Gilbert in abrupt tones, "not one of them—not one of them, sir—perspired as profusely as you do!—Red Hen.

Real Fun.

A child of strict parents, whose greatest joy had hitherto been the weekly prayer meeting, was taken by its nurse to the circus for the first time. Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

No more convincing evidence was ever put on paper than the following letter from one of Montreal's well-known citizens, Mr. D. R. Larose, of 338 Joliette street.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment, after having read your advertisement in the paper. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. COW TESTING WORK ADVANCES

Some Who Were Opposed Are Now Falling in Line

Better Prices at Norwood Sale for Cows With Records

Reports from all parts of the district show that a great deal of interest is being taken in the cow testing movement, and that a number of men who formerly were opposed to cow testing are making preparations to test their cows this year, as they are beginning to realize that the only sure way to know what a cow is doing is by weighing the milk, and having samples tested.

Many interesting things have been revealed during the past year. Take, for instance, the case of the farmer who told us last spring that he was "disgusted with his cows." When his June report was received we found that two of the cows averaged 1230 lbs. of milk, which was very good, but the other 4 cows only averaged 547 lbs., and the six together averaged 775 lbs. Thus the good work being done by the two cows was being lost sight of because of the poor work of the four cows. The two cows were producing more milk than the other four, and all were being fed alike. Many men hesitate to start testing their cows because they think they are not very good, and are ashamed to let it be known, but they need have no fear on this score, as all the information obtained is private.

At a sale of grade Holstein cows held in Norwood on Jan. 26th, under the auspices of the Farmers' Club, the cows which had been tested during the past year and the records of which were announced at the sale, averaged over $11 a head more than those which had not been tested.

CAMPHOR IN PNEUMONIA.

Remarkable Results Claimed For It In Many Serious Cases.

There have been and still are many varieties of treatment for pneumonia. A long list would be required to indicate all the medicaments which have been employed against it. Some even consider that this affection is an ailment which has a definite cycle. They are of the opinion that no medication should be adopted which might act on it and disturb its development, the proper course to take being one of "expectation," or, better, a therapeutique armee more particularly designed to combat complications.

The therapeutique armee was at one time in vogue. Today it is almost completely dethroned and a return is being made to medication.

Dr. Serbert, in the Munchner Medizinische Wochenschrift, describes the remarkable results which he obtained in the treatment of serious cases of pneumonia by means of strong doses of camphor. He first had occasion to use it in 1906 in a case of double pneumonia, where the patient was also suffering from typhoid fever. He therefore employed a subcutaneous injection of twelve cubic centimeters of camphorated oil (20 per cent) recently sterilized. The results obtained on the pulse and respiration, as well as those on the temperature and general condition, were extremely satisfactory. He renewed this dose every twelve hours, and he found after three days the trouble had disappeared.

Dr. Serbert has since employed the same treatment in twenty-one cases, one of which was extremely serious, since it was a question of double complicated pneumonia in a woman seventy-two years old. All these cases recovered. It seems certain that the camphor produced these effects, since there was no real crisis, the cure being gradual and slowly effected.—Philadelphia North American.

TURKEY'S MILITARY FORCE.

A Million Trained Soldiers Can Be Placed In the Field.

Every Mohammedan subject in Turkey is liable to service and remains liable for twenty-five years. At twenty-one the young Turk enters the active army, the nizam, and remains in it for three years. He must then serve six years in the reserve, called the tchtrad, and after this he remains nine years in the army reserve, called the redif, which resembles the German landwehr. This reserve has a second line, called the mustafis, in which the citizen liable to service is finally enrolled. Every year produces about 100,000 men liable to service, and of this number 70,000 are enrolled as recruits. The remainder—that is to say, the least effective—are given drill, and they may perhaps be compared with the extra reservists of the first class of Germany. They finally find their way into the redif. Altogether Turkey can place 1,000,000 men in the field, and, as far as material is concerned, German officers who have instructed Turkish troops declare that there is not an army in the world that would not rejoice to get such men.—Frankfurter Zeitung.

Wears Kilts to Business.

To the London eccentrics there falls to be added a London unconventional. He is the kilted man who is to be seen any morning rapidly walking northward across London bridge at a quarter to 9 o'clock. His highland attire is faultless, and the dark green kilt and the business looking skeandhus are generally admired by the natives of the borough, through which he strides twice a day on his way between a village in Kent and the Cornhill office where he is employed. As far as is known he is London's only city man who goes to business in a kilt. Without unduly invading private affairs it may be mentioned that he does not work in kilt, a quick change into customary office costume being effected before he seats himself at his desk and ledgers.—London Chronicle.

American Hustle In Hungary.

The spirit of American hustle has suddenly invaded Hungary, it seems, for, according to the Freisinnige Zeitung, a real fast train will soon start running between Budapest and Presburg. The locomotive will have a normal power of 1,600 horsepower and will haul the new train of 300 tons at a speed of eighty-four and one-half miles an hour, doing the journey in one hour and thirty-five minutes, including a stop of five minutes at Neuhausel. The fastest train now running takes three hours and two minutes.

A Telephone Safe Lock.

A remarkable new safe lock has been invented. It is provided with phonographic mechanism so that it can be opened only by the voice of the owner. A mouthpiece like that of a telephone takes the place of a knob on the door, and this is provided with the usual style or needle, which travels in a groove in the sound record of the phonograph cylinder. Before the safe can be unlocked the password must be spoken into the original cylinder by the one who made the original record. —Exchange.

Tattoo Marks.

A French army surgeon claims to have found a way to remove tattoo marks, a thing hitherto deemed impossible. You are to sandpaper the skin until the outer cuticle is rubbed off and then apply a mixture of freshly slaked lime and powdered phosphorus. This poultice, if left on for forty-eight hours, causes a sore which quickly heals, leaving no scar or trace of the tattooing.

Fashion's Forecast.

The newest skirt flares slightly below the knees, but the flare is so slight that the skirt practically hangs straight with a little more freedom at the feet. Some of the ultra fashionable skirts are coming out with yokes, some of the yokes to the knees. This is, of course, in line with the new and very slight flare. All authorities agree that spring will see a skirt that is definitely wider than the one we are wearing now. But the same authorities were solid in the same belief last spring and summer, so time alone can decide the question for a certainty. The long, slender lines of the present skirt are too well liked to be set aside easily for a less slender style. Not until they have worn themselves out and staled every desirable feature of themselves by overuse will they be superseded by something else.

Cakes For Christmas.

Little cakes that will please the children either at the table or on the Christmas tree are made as follows: Bake the cakes in little patty or muffin pans and frost the tops with white icing. Dip a small new paint brush in melted chocolate and draw a face on each. Make some crying and others laughing, the different expressions being made by the curve of the mouth line. The merest outline will be sufficient. Cut a circle of tissue paper of white or any other color liked two inches larger than the cake, pink the edge with scissors and run a thread round one inch from the edge. Put a cake in the paper, draw up the thread, and a cunning little cap is formed. The pleasure of small children will well repay the trouble of making these little cake babies.

First Aid to Santa Claus.

A clever idea for a Christmas night party is to have the gifts come in on a sled piled high and strapped on and the sled drawn by two lads dubbed Santa Claus' assistants. The place cards at the supper which follows the distribution of the gifts should be tiny sleds made from cardboard and dipped in mucilage, then in diamond dust, the rope to be of silver cord and each sled drawn by a miniature Santa Claus about three inches high.

OUR SEA HARVEST.

Canada's Great Fishery Wealth Is Often Overlooked.

We make much of our harvest of the soil particularly of the harvest known as agricultural of which the principal part is grain. We make much of the wealth annually produced by our fertile fields, and rightly so, because it is the main stay of our prosperity. We are before all else an agricultural people. The farmers form the backbone of our population, and the fruits of their labors not only feed the people but form the principal articles of our external trade.

But there are other harvests besides that of the land—harvests that supply us with food and that swell the volume of our exports—and one of these is the harvest of the sea, the lake and river. Canada's fisheries are large contributors to Canada's national wealth — perhaps larger than is commonly understood.

Here is a book that tells how large is that contribution—the latest report of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, this volume being devoted to fisheries alone.

Last year the fisheries of Canada produced wealth to the amount of $29,965,433—a sum equal to the value of about fifty million bushels of wheat, according to the average price paid our western farmers for their crop. In other words, the fisheries of Canada last year produced as much wealth as did the wheat of Alberta or Saskatchewan. As an element of our population, as a factor in our industrial life the fisherman is not to be despised.

Considered from the commercial point of view, salmon now is king of our fish, and yet Nova Scotia heads the provinces as a producer of fish values; but it is a small lead, for British Columbia is a close second. However, last year Nova Scotia considerably increased its lead, for while as production exceeded that of the preceding year by more than two million dollars, the production of British Columbia fell off by more than one million.

The value produced by provinces was: Nova Scotia, $10,119,243; British Columbia, $9,163,235; New Brunswick, $4,134,144; Ontario, $2,026,121; Quebec, $1,692,475; Manitoba, $1,302,779; P.E.I., $1,153,708; Saskatchewan, $172,903; Alberta, $82,460, making a total of $29,965,433, being a net increase of $336,263 over the returns of the preceding year.

Salmon, it has been said, is now king as a wealth-producer, heading the list with $7,205,000 to its credit. The cod is second with almost six million dollars, the lobster third, with three million seven hundred thousand dollars, the herring fourth with two and a quarter millions, while halibut, haddock and whitefish follow in this order, the two former having produced a little more than a million dollars, and the latter not quite a million. The list, which includes only fish returning $100,000 and upwards, concludes with eels, whose yield had a value of $110,802.

Our fishing industry gives employment to 93,588 persons—2?,978 in canneries and fish-houses; 8,521 in vessels; 60,089 in boats—and these persons, less than one hundred thousand all told, or about equal to the population of four ordinary counties, drew up with their nets and seines and lines wealth to the value of almost thirty million dollars.

Fishery inspection and fish protection is one of the important works carried on by the Department, and a considerable part of the bluebook is devoted to the reports of the inspectors.

A Comforting Suggestion.

"Tact is a most wonderful asset," said Dr. Charles Sheard, in addressing a gathering of young women recently at the Toronto Technical School. "It is especially valuable to nurses, and their greatest value to the physician arises from the fact that they place the mind of the patient so entirely at rest. It is a quality that should be cultivated, although there are persons to whom it is an unknown thing. I had a patient in one of the hospitals who was accustomed to suffer spasms of the most severe pain, especially in the early morning hours. I had instructed the night nurse to keep an especial eye on him about this time, and she no doubt soothed his pain to the best of her ability. Her ministrations were not very successful, however, and at length the patient was led to remark: 'I don't think you have any idea of how I suffer.' 'Oh, yes I have,' was the comforting reply, 'my father used to suffer exactly the same way just before he died.'"

Convention In Fredericton.

Fredericton is preparing for a great convention this year—the Federation of Canadian Clubs. Last year, the Federation convened in Winnipeg. On that occasion, a Fredericton man, Dr. W. S. Carter, was elected president, and Fredericton chosen as the meeting place for this year.

Dr. Carter is getting things in order for Fredericton's reception to the delegates, who will probably be invited to the city in September. One hundred representatives of the different Canadian Clubs throughout the Dominion are expected.

The Canadian Tree.

Forest protection will be a live topic under discussion when the Canadian Forestry convention holds its annual convention at Ottawa. Conservation experts from all over this continent will be on hand to discuss the Canadian tree. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught will preside over the gathering. By giving his patronage to the forestry convention the Duke of Connaught follows in the footsteps of Earl Grey in evincing active interest in the problem of our natural resources.

Regina to Make Gas.

Regina wants gas. For some time, the Saskatchewan city has been considering the advisability of erecting a municipal gas plant. Not long ago the council made recommendations for public works to be undertaken in 1912. Among the proposals was a gas plant to be ready by August 15, and to cost $200,000.

LETTER FROM MISS M. QUINN

Was in Shanghai the Latter Part of December

Miss M. Quinn, a missionary in China, in a letter to a Peterboro friend, dated Dec. 29th from Shanghai says—

I left my station in November and have been here since Dec. 5th, with eight other missionaries. I am busy studying Chinese. We were not driven out of our station, but were advised to leave by the British Consul owing to the unsettled state of the country. We are anxiously waiting the result of peace conference, which does not look hopeful yet. Things are in an awful state and we may be here for some time.

RESPONSIBILITY OF THE CONGREGATIONS

Preaching at an induction service in Montreal, Dean Almon Abbott, of Hamilton, urged that not only was there a deep responsibility of clergy to their congregations, but an almost equal responsibility of congregations towards their clergy. Perhaps for 20 clergy who ran their congregations to the ground, there were 40 congregations who ran their clergy down to the hell of discouragement.

TORONTO CENTRAL LEADERS CORPS ENTERTAINED

The Visitors Gave Exhibition of Physical Work in Gymnasium

Presentation of Volume of Poetical Works to Mr. Gilchrist

The Toronto Central Leaders Corps under the direction of Mr. Fred J. Smith, the popular physical director, paid the local association a visit, for Saturday evening and Sunday, arriving 23 strong on the 7.50 train, they journeyed to the local "Y" where they were the guests of the Senior and Intermediate Leaders Corps.

Here they donned their "Gym" togs and gave some fine exhibitions of gymnasium work, including dumb bell drill, high horse and springboard, and the sailors' hornpipe dance, each number being warmly applauded by those who were fortunate enough to be present. This part of the program over, the local leaders joined in the games, teams being chosen by Dr. Manning, D. Loomis, A. Hardy, F. Peacock, G. Hall and Mr. Smith. After some fast and close playing Manning's, Peacock's, and Loomis' teams got into the semi-final series, Manning again earning the right to play Loomis' team for the championship, which was won by Dr. Manning's team. Score 2 to 0.

After the gymnasium work the Toronto Leaders sat down with the local men to a banquet in the boys' reading room. After all had partaken of the good things, President P. M. McCarrell called on Mr. H. M. Gilchrist to give the address of welcome, in the unavoidable absence of Mr. J. J. Turner, jr. president of the association. This was followed by a few words of welcome by President McCarrell, on behalf of the senior and intermediate leaders corps. Mr. Smith, of Toronto, was then asked to say a few words, following which Mr. J. Brimsmead, president of Toronto Central Leaders' Corps, spoke.

The proceedings were enlivened considerably by the singing of club songs set to popular tunes. Mr. Howard Russell contributing three excellent numbers, Mr. Smith also gave a very humerous recitation. The gathering was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

The Sunday program was a very full one, all the Bible classes combining for the morning session at 9.45 when Mr. Allison, Assistant Boys' Work Secretary at Toronto Central gave an address on the "Compensation fo Service."

The regular Gymnasium Men's Bible class met as usual in the parlor at 4 p.m. when Mr. Fred. Smith gave a most helpful address on "Character and Athletics." At the conclusion of which Mr. Thompson called on Mr. H.M. Gilchrist, Wm. Hastie, A. Fitzgerald to come forward. Mr. Hastie read an address to Mr. Gilchrist, (who leaves Peterborough next Wednesday to become General Secretary of the Broadview Branch Toronto) from the members of the class, expressing their regrets at his departure, and asking him to accept as a slight token of their esteem, a volume of poetical works by the great writers. The presentation being made by Mr. A. Fitzgerald. Mr. Gilchrist was completely taken by surprise, but thanked the members most feelingly for their gift.

Tea was then served by the Social Committee to the Toronto men, and other friends, after which a short song service was held until church time, when all attended Geo. Street Methodist church in a body.

The Toronto men left for home by special car over the C.P.R. at 5.25 this a.m. high in their praises of the treatment they had received at the hands of the local men. The return visit will be made by the Peterboro men, Feb. 24th.

G. T. R. Roadbed

The following is an unsolicited letter from a prominent citizen of Ottawa—

"After a varied and extensive experience on the several Canadian railway roadbeds during the past six months, I wish to say that it is a real pleasure to travel over the G.T.R. roadbed between Montreal and Detroit, either by day or night, permitting during daylight travel rest and relaxation and by night refreshing and sound sleep.

"In these days of extravagant claims as to superiority, it seems to me only fair, when conditions are found to warrant it, that 'praise be given where praise is due.' Hence this statement."

Forgetting Mr. Graham

Toronto News

With a brief respite for the holiday season, Parliament has been in session since November. How it has been able to proceed with public business lacking the presence of Mr. George P. Graham may not be clear to that estimable gentleman, but assuredly it has slipped no cogs. . . . With the House in such a state of muscular and mental perfection, it seems clear that the numbing effects of Mr. Graham's absence have been completely overcome. Parliament has art and finish in its manner of doing things. An empty chair beside Sir Wilfrid Laurier was expected to be a poignant reminder of the Absent Friend. But the House is so facile in its forgetting that it considers the chair merely as a place for the Leader of the Opposition to put his hat and the vacant desk as a convenient stand for the ex-Premier's signed photographs of Philander C. Knox, and W. S. Fielding.

WILL CO-OPERATE WITH PROVINCES

Minister of the Interior Announces a Scheme of Mutual Help Which Will Give Equal Treatment to All Parts of the Dominion—E. N. Rhodes Introduces a Resolution Declaring That East Has Had a "Raw Deal."

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of the Interior, last evening announced his intention of inaugurating an immigration policy in co-operation with the various provinces that would give equal treatment to all parts of the Dominion.

A resolution was introduced by E. N. Rhodes (Cumberland) calling for a more vigorous immigration policy in regard to the Maritime Provinces.

Donald Sutherland (S. Oxford) put in a word for Ontario, which he declared had been shamefully neglected by the late Government in regard to immigration.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier. when the orders of the day were called, asked whether the writ for the South Renfrew election had been issued, to which the Premier replied in the negative. There was some difficulty in regard to the lists.

This did not satisfy Sir Wilfrid, who pointed out that the vacancy occurred on Dec. 7, and the Ontario general elections took place on Dec. 11. The lists that were good enough for the Ontario election should be good enough now.

David Henderson (Halton) told the leader of the Opposition that there had been no contest in South Renfrew in the provincial elections.

In answer to a question by H. B. Ames (Montreal-St. Antoine), Hon. J. D. Hazen and the Premier both stated emphatically that the Government had no intention at present of making any change in the membership of the harbor commission of the port of Montreal.

To E. B. Devlin (Wright) the Premier stated that the order-in-council of Aug. 1, 1910, approving of the instructions for recruiting for the Canadian navy was still in force. He objected to a further question as to whether any representations had been made to the Government "by any member thereof" against this system of recruiting, as irregular.

E. N. Rhodes (Cumberland) declared that the Maritime Provinces had in the past received a "raw deal" at the hands of the Immigration Department, and he crystalized his indignation in the following resolution declaring: "That, inasmuch as the immigration policy of the Government and several railway companies has for many years past been almost entirely confined to the development of western Canada, and largely in consequence of this policy the Provinces of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island have not grown in equal degree with the rest of the Dominion, in the opinion of this House in order to promote uniform progress and prosperity throughout Canada, the Government should speedily inaugurate and carry out a policy of publicity and immigration designed to promote the rapid development of the said provinces."

Robert Bickerdike (Montreal-St. Lawrence) thought something was wrong with the immigration rule which kept out a good man because he had only $10 in his pocket and let in a bad man who might have $5,000. There should be some way of correcting this.

W. F. Carrill (Cape Breton, N.S.,) speaking to Mr. Rhodes' resolution, asked what good there was in bringing population to the northwest or the Maritime Provinces, if the grain were to be allowed to rot on the plains and the fish on the coast for lack of wider markets?

Hon. Robert Rogers declared that he would see that men acquainted

Woman Killed In Riot.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 30.—One woman was killed and a police officer was stabbed in the back by rioting strikers or their sympathizers, who gathered to the number of nearly 1,000 about the Everett mills, on Garden and Union streets last night. Police and militia were rushed to the scene and a free use of clubs and rifle butts resulted in the breaking up of the mob and the dispersing of the strikers.

The victim of the riot was an Italian woman. A man nearby was firing a revolver into the ground when the woman dropped. It is believed she was struck by a glancing bullet. An ambulance was summoned and the woman hurried to the Lawrence Hospital, but she died before reaching the istitution.

WOMAN GOES TO THE MERCER FOR BIGAMY

Married Toronto Man and Then Complained of Non-support

Special to the Review.

Toronto, Jan. 30.—Mrs. Sarah Amelia Harper, of Hamilton, was this morning sentenced to the Mercer Reformatory for six months.

She was convicted of bigamy, in marrying a Toronto man named Ward. The charge against her followed her complaint to the court that Ward did not support her.

SAYS GOVERNOR WILSON LIED

Washington, Jan. 30.—Col. Henry Watterson in a statement issued last night and intended to bring the "distasteful episode" to an end, so far as he was concerned, declared that the issue between him and Gov. Woodrow Wilson was solely as to which one had "lied." Col. Watterson said he "had engaged conclusively to show" that Gov. Wilson had lied and charged that the New Jersey executive "dared not face the facts."

Col. Watterson declined to make public any proofs in his possession. He denied that Thomas F. Ryan had ever been approached for campaign contributions for Gov. Wilson, but stated that the matter had been talked over with Gov. Wilson and the latter had "expressed the fear" that if the knowledge of a contribution from Mr. Ryan got abroad it might do more harm than good.

Jack Sheedy, Near Croesus.

Kingston, Jan. 30.—Ten years ago, Jack Sheedy, formerly of Cobden, Ont., well known here, left for the northwest with his two hands and a few shillings. Yesterday he returned from the Alaskan gold fields with $60,000 and deposited it in the local banks. He struck it rich, and intends to go back again.

Graduates of the School of Mining have raised $18,500 of the $20,000 necessary for the equipment of the Nichol building and the rest of the money is now in sight.

COUNSEL FOR McNAMARA'S FACES TWO INDICTMENTS

Clarence Darrow is Charged With Bribery and Corruption.

Los Angeles, Jan. 30.—Two indictments, each containing counts of bribery and attempted corruption, were returned yesterday by the county grand jury, against Clarence S. Darrow of Chicago, formerly chief counsel for the McNamara brothers. The bills allege that he furnished the money out of the McNamara defence fund and bribed Robert Bain, a juror sworn to try James B. McNamara, the confessed dynamiter and murderer, and George N. Lockwood, a venireman.

Bert Franklin, a detective, who is alleged actually to have passed the bribe money to Bain and Lockwood, is accused of the same offences in informations filed some time ago in the Superior Court. Franklin's trial has been set for Feb. 27.

The maximum penalty that could be imposed on Darrow for conviction on all counts is thirty years' imprisonment and fines aggregating $10,000. He is under $20,000 bail, but last night the former chief defender of the McNamaras, said he was glad the suspense was over and that he would face his arraignment on Thursday in the Superior Court with an equanimity born of his innocence.

Darrow had several days' notice of the impending accusations, and on Saturday he retained Earl Rogers, an attorney, who directed the first work of unearthing evidence against The Times building dynamiters and who later, as a special prosecutor, had charge of the grand jury investigation which resulted in the filing of the first dynamite indictment against Bryce (James B. McNamara), Schmidt and Caplan, early last year.

Judge C. F. McNutt, formerly of the Indiana Superior Bench, and associate counsel in the McNamara defence, also was retained by Darrow. Yesterday an intimation of the district attorney's office reached Mr. Darrow that the charges against him would be reported, and he at once set about arranging bail. Mrs. Le Compte Davis, wife of one of Darrow's associates in the McNamara case, and Col. Charles S. Young, a friend of the accused lawyer, supplied the bail fixed by Judge N. P. Conrey, who sat for presiding Judge George H. Hutton.

When Darrow arrived in court, the formalities were brief.

Judge Conrey received the indictments and ordered bench warrants issued. The warrants were served on Darrow in the court room and the judge asked Deputy District Attorney W. J. Ford what he thought would be a proper amount of bail.

"This is a very serious charge," said Ford, "and I would suggest the highest amount compatible with its degree of gravity."

"Ten thousand on each indictment," said Judge Conrey.

Mrs. Davis and Col. Young qualified at once, and Darrow, apparently greatly relieved, left court with his attorneys.

"This is something I never had to do before," said Darrow as he shook hands with several friends, "but I think I can beat it."

TRENTON OPERA HOUSE BURNED

Caused by Crossing of Live Wires —Loss About $15,000.

Trenton, Jan. 30.—About 3.30 yesterday afternoon fire broke out in the Grand Opera House. The high wind soon had the building in a mass of flames. The fire brigade quickly responded, but could do nothing towards saving it. The building is a total loss. The building and contents were valued at $15,000; partially covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is said to be the crossing of two live wires in the balcony ceiling.

CAN KILL 5,000 SEALS YEARLY

Washington, Jan. 30.—The law to make effective the pelagic sealing treaties between the United States, England, Russia and Japan probably will not absolutely forbid the killing of seals for the next fifteen years on the Pribiloff Islands, as was first proposed.

The foreign affairs committee of the House will report favorably an amendment to limit the killing to 5,000 seals each year for the first five years, 7,500 for the next five years, and 10,000 for the concluding five years. The committee holds that the killing of American seals is not a subject of international agreement.

LIBERALS BUSY IN SOUTH RENFREW

Eganville, Jan. 30.—Hon. George P. Graham, formerly Minister of Railways and Canals, and now candidate for election to the House from South Renfrew, opened his campaign here last night with a large meeting in the Town Hall. Eganville is the birthplace of Mr. Graham.

A feature of the meeting was an explanation by Thomas Low of the steps leading up to his resignation in favor of Mr. Graham and the alleged agreement of the Renfrew Conservative candidate, with having endorsed the agreement in the Conservative convention and then having broken it by announcing his own candidature.

P. McHugh of Eganville was chairman and other speakers included Dr. Connolly of Renfrew, Hon. Rudolph Lemieux and Hon. Mr. Graham.

DUKE OF FIFE PASSES AWAY

Brother-in-Law of His Majesty Suffers an Attack of Pleurisy and Congestion of the Lungs as Result of Delhi Catastrophe and Passes Away at Assuan—Was Sixty-Two Years Old —Sympathy For Duchess.

Assuan, Upper Egypt, Jan. 30.—The Duke of Fife died here at six o'clock last evening.

He was taken ill about a week ago with pleurisy and congestion of the lungs and since Saturday has been very low.

It is thought that he never completely recovered from a cold caught when he and the duchess, with their daughters, were wrecked with the Delhi off Cape Spartel in December.

The Duke of Fife, brother-in-law of His Majesty King George, was born on Nov. 20, 1849, and was the oldest son of the fifth earl.

The Duke of Fife married Her Royal Highness the Princess Royal, eldest daughter of King Edward VII. in 1889. He was educated at Eton, and represented Moray and Nairn as Liberal member from 1874 to 1879. In 1882 he went on a special mission to the King of Saxony. For nine years he was vice-president of the Chartered Company of South Africa, resigning after the Jamieson raid. He owns about 250,000 acres.

The tragic end of the Duke of Fife's ill-starred voyage to attend the consecration of the cathedral at Khartoum, erected as a memorial to Gen. Gordon, has given a great shock to the British public. Although he showed no effects of his experience in the wreck of the steamship Delhi on the arrival in Egypt, the duke's death is universally attributed to the exposure and shock resulting from that event. He contracted a chill at Wadi-Halfa, in the Egyptian Soudan a week ago and was unable to proceed. But not until a physician was summoned from London on Friday, was any alarm felt. Only yesterday, when it was learned that the duke had been removed to Assuan on Sunday, was a fatal issue feared.

The deepest sympathy is everywhere expressed for the Princess Royal, who accompanied her husband to Egypt. The duke's death will cause the curtailment or modification of all projected arrangements at Portsmouth and London for the reception of King George and Queen Mary on their return from India. It is probable that all the fectivities will be shorn of military display and state ceremonial. The court functions in the early spring also will be modified.

The Duke of Fife was one of the pioneers with Cecil Rhodes in the early history of South Africa. He was greatly liked for his public spirit and his philanthropic and other useful work for the country.

Received News at Ottawa.

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—News of the death of the Duke of Fife was received at Government House last night. There was a large dinner party of over 100, and owing to the lateness in the receipt of the sad news, the dinner could not be postponed and Their Royal Highnesses received their guests in the usual manner.

It was stated by Col. Lowther, military secretary to the Governor-General, when asked if the household here would go ito mourning, that a cable would be received from King George in connection with the length of mourning, if it were to be ordered. The Duke of Fife, however, was not of the royal family.

CARDINAL REFUSED TO MEET DUKE

New York, Jan. 30.—The World gives prominence to the fact that Cardinal Farley declined several invitations from Ambassador Reid to meet H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught during the recent visit of to New York.

It is suggested that the cardinal, being an Irish Catholic, regards the present royal family as unfriendly to Catholic Ireland and to the Roman Catholic Church. This seems unlikely in view of the modification of the coronation oath, largely brought about through the personal influence of the present sovereign.

Another theory for the cardinal's apparent unwillingness to meet his Royal Highness is based upon the fact that the latter is the grand master of the Grand Lodge of the Masonic Order of England.

BOYS IN REVENGE FIRES BIG COLLEGE

Sugar Going Up?

Havana, Jan. 30.—The continuance of unusually warm weather is affecting the sugar crop unfavorably, the cane containing an average of sugar ten per cent. below that of last year. Should the heat continue the estimate of 1,825,000 tons made in December, will prove much too high, but there is little doubt that cool weather is not far distant. In various parts of the island there are complaints of a scarcity of labor.

Six Months for Theft.

Chatham, Jan. 30—Harry Salisbury, found guilty of breaking into Dr. McDonald's barber shop in the night, was sentenced to six months in Central Prison by Magistrate Stanworth yesterday. Robert Garner, found guilty of stealing a bicycle, was also sentenced to six months. This is the second time Garner has appeared on a charge of stealing bicycles.

All's Serene In Bahia.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 30.—Order has been almost completely restored in Bahia, which had been in a state of virtual anarchy for several days, since the withdrawal of the former governor, Aurelio Vianna, who took refuge in the French consulate.

Investigation Into Destruction of Roman Catholic School at Farnham, Quebec, Results In the Jailing of Students, Three of Whom Confess—Culprit Who Admits Crime Is a Montreal Boy.

Sweetsburg, Que., Jan. 30.—High Constable Boisvert yesterday afternoon held an investigation into the incendiary fire which destroyed the Holy Cross College at Farnham, Que., causing a loss of $90,000, and for which five of the students were arrested at noon yesterday. The high constable cross-questioned the boys and found three of them connected with the fire, of whom one set the building afire while the others acted as accomplices. The other two boys arrested were released, as there was no proof against them. The actual culprit and the two accomplices confessed.

The lad who set the fire is an 11-year-old lad of Montreal. His accomplices were aged 14 and 15. They come from the U. S.

The boys were remanded by R. J. Ladd, J.P., until Feb. 5, when they will appear before Judge Mulvena.

The fire was discovered about 6.30 a.m. and was beyond control when the firemen arrived on the scene. About one hundred and fifty boarders were in the building at the time, and all safely escaped. The loss will be about $90,000, only partly covered by insurance.

It seems that there had been plans to burn the college among the boys for some time. The investigation yesterday afternoon showed two former attempts and it was also learned that one of the boys had written a letter on Jan. 20 to a friend saying that the college would burn down on Jan. 25. One of the brothers opened the letter and learned of the plan. He informed the lad's parents, and the youngster was removed from the school. The brother, however, failed to notify the police of the matter, but a strict watch was instituted.

On Dec. 4 and again on Jan. 10 attempts were made to burn the buildings, each attempt being followed by the running away of a pupil.

High Constable Boisvert has the names of the boys who ran away on these occasions, and will have them arrested and questioned.

REVOLUTIONISTS THROW BOMBS

Imperialist Generals Have Narrow Escape From Assassination

Special to the Review.

Tien Tsin, China, Jan. 30.—A section of the Vice-Regal residence was shattered by a bomb to-day and an hour later three Imperialist generals narrowly escaped assassination in the streets by similar means. It is evident that the revolutionists have agreed upon a terrorist campaign.

QUESTION OF OWNERSHIP

Washington, Jan. 30.—Rumors that Great Britain intended to take possession of Palmyra Island (in reality a group of fifty inlets), lying about 600 miles southwest of Hawaii and almost in a direct line between Australia and the Panama Canal, resulted in the subject being made a matter of enquiry unofficially at the State Department yesterday. Officials professed ignorance of any issue being raised as to the ownership of the islands, but admitted title was vague.

Palmyra Island was discovered in 1852 by an American shipmaster, was proclaimed part of the kingdom of Hawaii in 1882, and was annexed by Great Britain in 1889.

The question at issue is whether the British annexation concelled the prior Hawaiian title, for if it did not, then Palmyra Island would probably be held to have been annexed to the U. S. in 1898.

SIX GOVERNORS FOR ROOSEVELT

New York, Jan. 30.—Six Republican governors are enrolled in a self-appointed committee to advocate the nomination of Roosevelt for the Presidency, according to Governor W. R. Stubbs of Kansas. The committee, unofficial but active, includes: Governors Bass of New Hampshire, Aldrich of Nebraska, Hadley of Missouri, Glasscock of Virginia and Osborn of Michigan—all rated as leaders of the "progressive wing."

LAKE SUPERIOR FREEZING OVER

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 30.—Lake Superior is believed to be freezing over its entire area. If so, it will be the first time in the memory of the white man.

The ice field is now so great that open water can be seen from only a few points on either shore. With February at hand, and its fame as an ice-making month, there is great reason for believing the entire surface will become solid.

GOVERNMENT WOULD SET DATE

For Hearing of the NeTemere by Privy Council

Special to the Review.

Ottawa, Jan. 30.—It is said here that in the event of a stated case by the government, in regard to the Ne Temere decree, being not ready for the time limit which expires in a day or two, that special leave to set the case for hearing by Privy Council will be applied for by the government and that it will be granted, as a matter of course.

SHUSTER IS BANQUETTED

London, Jan. 30.—W. Morgan Shuster received a remarkable ovation and his claim for Persian independence was enthusiastically cheered at a banquet which the Persian committee, composed of members of the House of Commons and other prominent men gave in honor of the American ex-treasurer-general of Persia at the Savoy Hotel last night. A representative company of 200 listened to a detailed narrative of the wrecking of Persia's constitutional government.

He placed the entire responsibility upon Russian antagonism to a strong independent Persia, and made it plain that he thought the British people had been deceived regarding the facts. He declared that 99 per cent. of the disorders charged as a partial excuse for intervention had been imported by Russia.

CANADIANS ARE LIVING TO HIGH

Montreal, Jan. 30.—Sir Edmund Walker said: "We have passed from a country noticeably moderate to one of feverish speculation and extravagant expenditure in the cost of living. This is almost as destructive to the fibre of a nation as crime. The country that believes that permanent success is represented by money will not survive.

"We must have respect or else we become simply one of those hateful oligarchies which disturb the stream of civilization."

Catarrhal Deafness

Successfully Treated By

Catarrhozone

Deafness is not so common as blindness, yet thousands are more or less afflicted by it, and their comfort seriously interfered with.

Catarrhal deafness manifests itself but slowly, yet it must be acknowledged that the great majority of those who become totally deaf might have averted this unfortunate condition if they had treated the catarrhal inflammation at its beginning.

The only remedy that can be safely employed for all forms of catarrhal deafness is Catarrhozone. You simply charge the air you breathe with this healing, soothing agent, and by forcing it gently through the ears destroy the germ life which keeps up the inflammation, and at the same time by the soothing, healing action it heals the inflamed surfaces of the middle ear.

CATARRHOZONE, to those who are just a little deaf and are growing increasingly deaf, is an agent capable of affording the utmost satisfaction, and its use is attended without danger, and as the treatment can be carried on at home no person threatened with the affliction of deafness should postpone one moment in beginning its use.

From every part of the Dominion glowing accounts of the beneficial action it exerts upon catarrhal conditions of the middle ear have been sent in, and you will be resorting to the only method of cure, and the simplest method too, if you try Catarrhozone. Dealers everywhere sell it, 25c, 50c, and $1.00. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Ont.

ICE FROM LITTLE LAKE

The Board of Health should take every precaution to see that ice cut from Little Lake is used for storage purposes only. It is not fit to be used for any other purpose, and it is a question if the first plan to prohibit dealers from cutting ice there would no thave been the best. Once a consumer secures the ice, it is pretty hard to say just what purpose it will be put to. Excellent ice could be secured by a larger haul, and then there could have been no question as to the use. If the dealers were put to a little more expense in securing the ice they might have to raise the rates slightly, but the consumers should be willing to stand this in the interests of the health of the city. It is of vital importance that citizens should have pure ice in the hot summer weather, when it is put to so many uses about the household and in places of business.

STENOGRAPHERS FOR MINISTERS

Would it not be wise for the congregations of leading churches to pay for the services of a stenographer for pastor? Many ministers of churches which have large congregations, cannot make nearly as many calls as they would like to on their congregation because of lack of time. Now ministers have much to do in the way of correspondence over conferences, meetings and other affairs and must spend considerable time in getting out these communications. The question arises could not this time be employed to good advantage by the minister in his active church work? A local clergyman says that the aid of a stenographer allowed him fully one-fifth more time for his calls. Would a business man waste one-fifth of his time and do without his stenographer. We think not. Then why should a pastor who gets a stipend of say $2,000 or more, have to put his energies into this work that could well be performed by a stenographer at a small remuneration. It would not be necessary perhaps for a pastor to occupy all the time of a stenographer, but it might be arranged that one could act for perhaps two or three of them and thus lighten the expense. The question is one well worthy of consideration.

BURDEN OF DEFENCE

Australia is spending far more on national defense than is any other country in the British Empire, except Britain. Australia is governed by the Labor party, and is one of the most advanced countries in the world to-day. The Australians are not a warlike people, but they want to share in the burden of the defense of the empire in no uncertain manner. They are a proud self-respecting people and are willing to spend much to protect their country.

A writer in the Empire Review points out that, besides the naval subsidy of $1,000,000 payable to the British Admiralty, the large sum of $11,300,000 is assigned for the current year for defense purposes. Then an additional sum of $7,800,000 is set apart for naval construction. By the end of June next about $15,000,000 out of the $20,000,00 required to complete the first fleet unit of one armored cruiser, three unarmored cruisers, six destroyers and three submarines will have been provided.

In addition to this various military and naval works, such as factories for amunitions of war, barracks and training establishments will cost about $3,750,000 besides. It is estimated that in all, the sum of $21,600,000 will be spent for national defense in the current year. This means at the rate of almost $5 ahead for every man, woman and child in Australia.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Between the Dominion, Provincial, county, and now a bye-election, South Renfrew is getting her full share of the "battle of the ballots."

Mr. Bonar Law, the Unionist leader, says he will fight home rule for Ireland to the bitter end. In his speech in Albert Hall recently he charged the Liberal government with playing the part of Faust to Redmond's Mephisto.

There is talk of the bye-election in South Renfrew not being held until June, but it is hardly likely that the government would delay matters to such an extent. To keep a constituency that has gone through a series of elections that long in the campaign stage is not good either for business or for the temper of the people. A short campaign would be the proper move.

Lord Charles Beresford in his book makes a startling attack on the British Admiralty. He says the officers were never more efficient and the fleet seldom less adequate. He condemns the failure to build big docks. "The Betrayal" is the title of the book, which contains a trenchant attack on the British naval policy of the past ten years. The writer declares these evils have gone deep and will take a long time to cure by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you may have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever: nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucuous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—Business in Manitoba spring wheat over the cable was much quieter than on Saturday, but cables were firm and prices bid in some cases were 3d per quarter higher. There was a good enquiry for oats, but, as buyers fail to respond to the advance in prices here, no sales were made. The foreign demand for spring wheat flour is fairly good and bids were another 3d per sack higher in some cases. A good local trade continues to be done in all grades. The demand for all lines of millfeed is good. Cheese is quiet. Butter and eggs fairly active and strong. Potatoes have advanced 10c per bag, owing to the increasing scarcity.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards.

TORONTO, Jan. 29.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Stock Yards were 126 cars—2495 cattle, 677 hogs, 335 sheep, 54 calves and 17 horses.

Exporters.

E. L. Woodward bought for Swift & Co. 104 steers for London, 1283 lbs. each, at $6.65, average price, or a range of $6.50 to $7; also 36 steers for Liverpool, 1280 lbs., at $6.37, average, or a range of $6.20 to $6.50.

Butchers.

Prime picked butchers sold at $6.50 to $6.75; good, $6 to $6.25; medium, $5.25 to $5.75; common, $4.50 to $5; inferior, $3.75 to $4.25; good cows, $4.75 to $5.25; medium cows, $4 to $4.50; common cows and canners, $2.50 to $3.25; bulls, best quality, $5.50 to $5.75; fair to good bulls, $4.75 to $5.25; common, light bulls, $3.75 to $4.25.

Milkers and Springers.

There were 30 milkers and springers of fair to good quality, which sold at $50 to $69 each.

Veal Calves.

Prices for veal calves were steady, at $4 to $8 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $4 to $4.50; rams, $3.50 to $3.75; lambs, $6 to $6.75 per cwt.

Hogs.

W. J. Johnston reported hog prices unchanged at $6.50 for selects, fed and watered, and $6.15 f.o.b. cars.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 29.—At the Montreal Stock Yards west end market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 27 were 2150 cattle, 2075 sheep and lambs, 3310 hogs and 450 calves, while the offerings this morning were 1200 cattle, 450 sheep and lambs, 2050 hogs and 250 calves.

Altho the supply of cattle was much larger than was expected, yet the tone of the market was very firm, and prices showed no important change, owing to the fact that the percentage of good to choice steers and heifers was small, for which there is good demand. Common and inferior grades are not wanted, as the market is still well supplied with this cattle, for which the demand is limited.

In spite of the continued very cold weather there was a large gathering of buyers, and, altho packers in some cases bought several carloads in the Toronto market at the latter end of last week, they were open for a few hundred more of the right quality, and they made bids of $6.50 per 100 pounds for straight loads of choice steers and heifers, mixed, but the drovers were firm in their views for this class of stock and would not accept less than $6.75, while in broken lots as high as $7 was paid by butchers.

There was a good demand for choice cows at $5.50, and some choice bulls brought as high as $5.75 per 100 pounds. On the whole the market was fairly active and a good trade was done, which was satisfactory to both buyers and sellers.

There was no change in the condition of the market for small meats, owing to the fact that supplies were much smaller than usual, for which the demand was good at steady prices. Good to choice lambs sold at $6.75 to $7, and choice sheep at $4.50 to $4.75 per 100 pounds. A few choice calves brought as high as $15 to $20 each, but stock of this quality was very scarce.

A stronger feeling developed in the market for hogs this morning, and prices advanced 10c to 25c per 100 pounds. The supply was fairly large, there being over 2000 head on the market; but, as the demand was keen from packers, they all met with a ready sale, and an active trade was done at the higher range of prices.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.75 to $7; do., medium, $5 to $6.50; do., common, $3 to $4.50; canners, $2.50 to $3; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $5.25 to $5.50; do., medium, $3.50 to $5; do., bulls, $4.50 to $5.75; milkers, choice, $75 to $80; do., common and medium, each, $50 to $65; springers, $30 to $45.

Sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $4.75; bucks and culls, $3.75 to $4.25; lambs, $6.50 to $7.

Hogs, f.o.b., $7.10 to $7.25.

Calves, $6 to $20.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

EAST BUFFALO, Jan. 29.—Cattle—Receipts, 5000; market slow, 10c to 15c lower; prime steers, $7.50 to $7.80; butcher grades, $5.50 to $6; cows, $3 to $5.

Calves—Receipts, 1400; market slow and steady; common to prime, $6.75 to $10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 18,000; market fairly active; lambs 25c higher; sheep steady; choice lambs, $7.15 to $7.30; cull to fair, $4.75 to $7; yearlings, $5 to $5.75; sheep, $1.75 to $4.50.

Hogs—Receipts, 17,000; market fairly active and 10c lower; yorkers, $6.20 to $6.50; pigs, $5.75; mixed, $6.50; heavies, $6.50; roughs, $5.25 to $5.75; stags, $4.75 to $5.25.

SAFE FROM TYPHOID

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" THE BEST PREVENTATIVE

There is practically no danger of Typhoid Fever as long as you keep the bowels regular with "Fruit-a-tives."

Typhoid is an inflammation of the bowels, due to a germ. This germ enters the body in milk, water or food. If the bowels are constipated, the germ remains in the body long enough to attack the delicate lining and thus Typhoid begins.

"Fruit-a-tives" acts directly on the liver, kidneys and skin, and cleans the system of all impurities. "Fruit-a-tives" will not cure Typhoid—but it will cure Constipation, assist Digestion and tone up the system—thus preventing Typhoid.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

"I don't mind explaining that ring episode— now," he said, in response to my look of inquiry. "When you first pointed out the true import of the wax impression on the candlestick, it brought to my mind at once Fluette's capricious notion of wearing a ring on the middle finger of his right hand. I was keeping tab on you the day of the inquest. I knew that he was going to attend, and that the circumstance would be of considerable significance to you. I saw your look dart to his right hand—saw you watching him—"

"And you thought you'd confuse me, eh?"

"Exactly. When you saw the ring on his finger only, the circumstance was pregnant—portentous. When you had two rings on two right hands, why, you were puzzled, but the effect was scattering and weak."

I approached Mr. Fluette with an enthusiasm decidedly tempered, and so I was not as disappointed as I might have been. My good news seemed to produce not the slightest effect upon him. He appeared to have aged twenty years; and from that day until his death, which occurred only four months later, he remained melancholy and without interest in anything whatever.

However, I was placed in the most embarrassing position that I ever experienced in my life. Before explanations were half made, Miss Belle flew at me—I'm not attempting a pun, either—with a glad, impetuous cry, threw her arms around my neck, and, drawing herself to her tiptoes—kissed me! I had been far more at ease under her levelled revolver.

In the afternoon Genevieve and I repaired to the old Page place. She was so confident that she could find the originals of the designs on the cipher, that I was anxious to give her the chance. Besides, she was afraid to go alone, and I simply had to accompany her. Belle could not without Maillot tagging along, and—well, we didn't want anybody else.

First of all, Genevieve had to be shown the rent made by the candlestick in the railing of the balustrade. She placed the tip of one little finger in the depression, and drew back with a shudder.

"Let's go," she said, in a hushed voice. "I never expect to come up these stairs again. Let's find the daisies, and go."

She understood as well as I did that Felix Page must have sustituted the stones somewhere between the library table and the hidden safe in his bedroom. She proposed to start at the table and examine every object, if necessary, between the two points mentioned.

Our progress was slow until we reached the bedroom. Genevieve drew to an abrupt halt on the threshold.

"There was a table there, by the head of the bed," she said; "where is it?"

"Lying on its side in that corner"—I pointed. "It was hurled there last Friday night, when the dwarf surprised Burke here."

She went over to it, while I raised the blinds. Instantly she recoiled with a cry, and then in a flash was fairly wild with excitement.

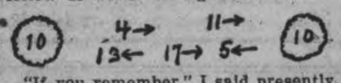
"Knowles, Knowles!" she screamed. "Here they are!"

And sure enough, there they were—the brass tacks with which the artison. Their heads were ornamental, with just such crenellated edges as might have prompted the circular figures at each end of the cipher.

I stared at them in stupified silence. The row of gleaming tacks staggered me. How many times had I lingered by that table while I racked my brain to remember where I had seen the peculiar figure! Why, once I even had paused and drawn the design in the dust on the leather cover! What a dunce—how blind I had been!

The cipher was not diffcult to read now. At once I recalled Burke's shadow on the blind; he had been bending over this table, and the agile movements of his hands were no longer mysterious. He, too, had some knowledge of the cipher, and he had been rapidly running over the tackheads, hunting for the combination that would reveal a concealed compartment.

After a while we grew rational again. I got out the cipher, and once more Genevieve and I put our heads together over it. Here it is; you may follow us while we dig it out:



"If you remember," I said presently, "I told you that very likely it would have to be interpreted in connection with something not on the paper. Count the tacks along the front edge."

There were nineteen of them.

"Counting from either end," I went on, "the centre tack will be ten. It's as simple as A-B-C. That's our starting-point from which to find the others. Find the fourth one to the right of the centre tack—number ten."

She placed the tip of one forefinger upon it—a bit gingerly, I smiled to see.

"Why, it gives!" she announced in surprise.

"I'd be terribly cut up if it didn't," said I. "Now, then, the eleventh to

This carried her to the third one around the side; number thirteen was the fifth on the left side, while number five was on the front edge, seventeen the ninth on the right side, of course, close to the centre. Each of them yielded a trifle beneath her pressure—until she came to number five. Here she drew back and clasped her hands tightly together.

"Oh, I can't!" she cried excitedly. "I'm just so nervous that I can't put my finger upon it. You do it." That's the last one."

"[illegible]!" said I. "If you don't find the ruby, it will never be found.

At last with shining eyes and parted lips, the little finger went slowly down upon the fateful tackhead. She screwed up her eyes and closed her lips tightly, as if she feared something would explode, then pushed with all her might. The tack gave; but nothing else happened.

We stared at the table, our faces long with disappointment; then we looked at each other in unspoken questioning. Genevieve's expression was so woe-begone that I laughed. The nerve-racking suspense was broken.

"How silly!" she exclaimed. "There!"

With a quick movement, she bore down upon the centre tack—number ten—and lo! a section of the table edge flew outward, disclosing an aperture perhaps six inches long and a quarter of an inch wide. It was very much like the slit in a door for letters.

But there was no ruby yet, nor any aperture large enough to accommodate the one for which we were looking. I leaned over with a puzzled scowl and peered into the slit.

"There's a folded paper in there," I announced. My fingers were too large to force into the opening, and Genevieve promptly produced a hatpin. Next moment we had the paper out—or papers, for there were three sheets folded to gether.

Across the back, written in Felix Page's small cramped hand, was this inscription:

Memorandum of Agreement between Felix Page
and Cristofano Paternotro, Michele Paternostro and Filippo Paternostro.

"Well, we're hot on the scent, at any rate," was my comment, as I folded them again, without a glance inside.

"Wait!" said I. "This is a solemn occasion, and it should be recognized with some fitting observance."

"Oh, don't tease!" cried Genevieve, dancing up and down with impatience, and trying to pluck the papers from my hand.

"I'm not teasing, my dear," said I; "I'm terribly serious. We are pretty near the end of the trail, little girl; after we have read this imposing document we will have reached the end. I'm halfway sorry, too, notwithstanding the grim tragedy that has hung over us. We must celebrate the last event with an appropriate rite—a fire upon the library hearth."

She flushed with delight, and consented to wait until I had the fire going properly. It was a most successful fire. We dragged the library table up close; I jumped Genevieve to a seat beside me. She placed a hand upon my shoulder, and our heads were again very close together.

"Now, then!" I shook the papers open.

The more imposing one—the agreement—I placed beneath; its dry legal phraseology was not at all inviting. The other sheets were, however. They too were written all over in Felix Page's hand, but bore the blunt, direct phrases of a man used to expressing himself without and rhetorical embellishment or nonsense.

And this is what we read:

This explanation is written to clear up any misunderstanding or doubt, that may arise after my death, over the stone called the Paternoster Ruby.

In June, 1884, I learned that Alfred Fluette was trying to buy it from the Paternostros. I at once determined that he should not have the stone if money could prevent it. So I too became a bidder.

The first figure set by the dealers was almost prohibitive, but as Fluette seemed willing to meet it, I was ready to go him one better. But the wily Italians hedged. They set us to bidding against each other, and as the price rose my resolution to get the stone grew more set.

While the bids mounted, I was given ample satisfaction for the weight of whatever financial obligations I was incurring by Fluette's increasing worry and chagrin. He was like a pup that doen't know whether the bone is going into the soup-kettle or the garbage-can. I swore to have that bit of red glass if it took every cent that I could rake and scrape together—and I had a few of them.

Finally Fluette drew out, cursing me. I brought the Italians to a showdown.

Still they hesitated. I became suspicious.

Hard Luck.

He had a prophylactic bent
And led a sterile life,
Had hygienic children and
A sanitary wife,
Lived in a fumigated house
And wore aseptic suits,
Ate germicidal food and smoked
Denicotined cheroots.

His milk was always pasteurized;
He drank denatured water;
He ne'er forgot to swat the flies;
Mosquitoes he would slaughter;
He screened his doors and windows and
His office disinfected;
Against microbes of every kind
He felt himself protected.

He exercised; he slept by rule
And timed his every breath;
His health was excellent, and he
Defied disease and death;
His plan was admirable, no doubt;
But, darn the measly luck,
He went and got run over by
A ten ton power truck!

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

OPERATION HER ONLY CHANCE

Lindsay, Ont.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank Mrs. Pinkham for what her kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to her some time ago I was a very sick woman, suffering from female troubles. I had inflammation of the female organs, and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend this medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and think they are fine."—Mrs. FRANK EMSLEY, Lindsay, Ontario.

We cannot understand why women will take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, without first trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has cured thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, indigestion and nervous prostration.

THE LOCAL AND PROVINCIAL SITUATIONS

Local Option an Advertisement for the City Says Mr. A. B. Cunningham

An enthusiastic meeting, in the interest of the temperance cause was held last night in St. Paul's church. There was a good attendance and all were interested in the addresses by the speakers of the evening, Mr. A. B. Cunningham and Rev. B. H. Spence. Mr. H. B. Cowan, president of the C.T.A. occupied the chair and Rev. Mr. Pogue conducted the devotional exercises.

The chairman said, already several successful meetings had been held, and that he trusted, this meeting would help considerably in the temperance work.

CITY SITUATION

Mr. A. B. Cunningham was the first speaker, addressing the audience on the "City Situation" He said that neither fire nor storm, nor flood, left a more evident mark than the liquor traffic. The one hundred and sixteen suspended sentences, reported recently by the Chief of Police, indicates the awful effect of the liquor traffic on the younger generation, and he said that in licensing this business we became responsible for much of its influence. If we looked at the plain facts of this evil, we should be up in arms against its existence. Then, too, he said, our patriotism should prompt us to put the traffic from our midst, and in not using our God given power of being voters in abolishing the evil, we are misusing the power that undoubtedly rested in our hands. In supporting the traffic, we were making our streets less safe, and our homes less comfortable, and thus violating the law of self preservation.

The speaker said that the passage of local option would be a greater advertisement for Peterboro than any that could be put forth by the council or local Board of Trade, because sober men were so much more useful in factories and offices than the drinking man. As citizens, we should realize that the traffic was ours, not belonging to the distillers' or brewers' association, because it could not exist without our consent, and because we furnished the raw material in the shape of our boys, of which one out of every eight yield to the liquor traffic. Then we were patrons in the business, because we got $1 out of every $25 of the governmental revenue from licenses and fines. But with this money we had to support jails, asylums, charitable institutions and it seemed to him, that unless a man ignored the cry of the oppressed around him and stifled his conscience he could not refuse to act with all his power against this great evil. We ought to be ashamed that this trivial fee of blood money should be allowed to influence us, and it was the duty of all Christians to arouse and act with a united effort against this monstrous evil that was threatening the youth of the country, as well as many men who descend to drunkards' graves.

PROVINCIAL SITUATION

Mr. B. H. Spence followed with a capable address on the more general subject, "The Provincial Situation." He explained that some people objected to the campaign, because they believed that it started at the wrong end. They say, "stop the manufacture of liquor and you will stop the drinking of it." But, Mr. Spence explained, the men of our country did not drink to please the brewer or distiller, they did not take liquor because certain men make it. On the other hand, why did the brewers and distillers make the liquor? Obviously because the men of the country drink it. Then if we stop the drinking of it, would it not be a blow fatal to the liquor traffic? The speaker went on to treat the subject, from an original point of view, and succeeded in pointing out to the audience with unmistakable logic, the benefits to be derived from the passage of local option.

Mr. Howard Russell, the celebrated soloist from Toronto, whose singing had already won so much praise in the previous meetings, rendered two appropriate solos. Mr. Russel's singing was a treat to those present and merited fully the hearty applause given by the audience.

DEDICATION AT TORONTO BY BISHOP O'CONNOR

Toronto, Jan. 29—Sun gleaming on virgin snow, adding splendor and brilliance to the scarlet and gold and white of priestly vestments, choristers singing solemn hymns, and a great concourse of people looking on, the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes was dedicated by his Lordship Bishop O'Connor of Peterboro, Sunday morning with time honored rites and picturesque ceremonial. At 11 o'clock the service began. The stately form of the Bishop, with a procession of priests and choristers following, emerged from the main portals. Here he offered the first prayer of blessing. Then, as the voices of the choristers rang out in the frosty air in hymns from the Litany of Saints and Psalms he proceeded around the outside of the church. Entering the temple again, his Lordship blessed the sanctuary and made a circuit of the auditorium by the outside aisles.

PREVENTION OF TUBERCULOSIS

Subject to be Treated To-night at Collegiate Institute

The Canadian Association for the Prevention fo Tuberculosis has been doing a great educational work throughout the Dominion during the past few years by the free distribution of literature and the delivery of lectures to the public regarding the methods of preventing consumption.

The Secretary, Dr. George D. Porter, is to address a public meeting upon this subject in the Collegiate Institute to-night at eight o'clock.

Dr. Porter has addressed large meetings from one end of Canada to the other, and everywhere the press speaks very highly of his lectures. The experiences of his life, have peculiarly fitted him for this work, while his platform ability is of a high order.

As this subject is one touching the health of all, and as the lecture is free to the public, we trust that there will be a full house to-night.

Summerland, B.C., is to have a railway built across the southward portion of the municipality.

MAYOR BRADBURN NAILS SOME PLANKS TO HIS PLATFORM: PERMANENT ASSESSOR WANTED

Applications for Position Will be Received Up to Saturday Night—City Also Wants Sanitary Inspector—Committee to Look After the Removal of Poles—Ald. Anderson Asks for Better Sewage Assessment.

An important item of business introduced at the meeting of the Committee of the whole Council by Mayor Bradburn last night was the matter of appointing a permanent assessor.

Ald. Morgan said that the proposal was all right, as did Ald. Anderson. Both felt that better equalization of taxes would be obtained by the innovation. The Mayor stated that perhaps for a couple of months of the year, the assessor would require assistance.

"To my mind it is high priced property that would be benefitted very materially," said the Mayor.

Ald. Duffus remarked that they turned down the proposition in Brantford for a permanent assessor.

Ald Buller thought the council had been appointing the wrong class of assessors, men who did not do the assessing proportionately, and that a permanent assessor would not improve matters one iota.

Ald Johnston explained his attitude on the question. "If there is any matter that needs urgent attention, it is the matter of assessment," he said. "touching, as it does a man's pocket closely." The matter of doing it by contract, is not the right way, but a man should be on the job all the time. I am in favor of putting this department under one man and letting him use his discretion in securing a good assistant."

Ald Gordon remarked that there are many men in this town who are not assessed properly according to income, "and that he proposed to go into the matter later. He was in favor of the Mayor's plan of a permanent assessor as being very practical. The assistant for an assessor was a very necessary precaution, according to the feeling of the committee, in case the permanent man was indisposed.

Ald Johnston moved that the Council take the necessary steps for the permanent appointment of an assessor, "to bring the matter to a head," as he added.

The Council heretofore has been paying $1,400 per year.

The idea is for a permanent assessor to be paid a stipulated salary, and let him pay his assistant out of that salary.

Ald. Gillespie and Duncan were in favor of Ald. Johnston's idea, the former seconding the motion. "That advertisements be inserted in the local papers asking for applicants for the position of permanent assessor, applicants to state salary expected.

Applications will be received up to 4 o'clock Saturday evening, as they must be ready for the Council Monday evening.

Ald. Anderson felt that the motion did not cover the ground well, as applicants might be received from many men not qualified at all for the job. He felt if the salary was stated a better class of applicants would be received.

The original motion carried.

REMOVAL OF POLES.

The next item of business was the much discussed removal of poles on George street.

Ald. Gordon moved that the chairman of the Property Committee, and of the Board of Works and the Mayor be a committee to look after the disposal of poles on George street. His motion found a seconder in Ald. Gillespie, and it carried.

PROPERTY FOR C.P.R.

A letter was read from Mr. Hatton requesting for the Canadian Pacific Railway Company a tenth of an acre on the English estate, that is necessary for the company to help them straighten out a curve. Mayor Bradburn thought that the property was not of much value to the city. He furthermore said that he had interviewed J. Osborne, superintendent of the C.P.R. in this district, about a foot bridge, and that he could not obtain permission to build it.

A blue-print of the vicinity will be obtained from Mr. Hatton, and later the aldermen can inspect the place individually, to report back on Monday evening at the City Council meeting.

SANITARY INSPECTOR.

The question of appointing a sanitary inspector arose next, and the general carrying out of the work of inspection of the city. Mayor Bradburn explained the present state of affairs, bringing up the request of the Chief of Police to be relieved of the work.

In regard to sanitary inspection Ald. Anderson felt it was a very necessary office, and that a good man should be appointed. Ald. Gordon expressed his approval of the appointment. Ald. Gillespie favored it.

On motion of Ald. Gordon, seconded by Ald. Duncan, a by-law will be prepared, appointing a sanitary inspector, limiting his duties and defining his powers, and that the by-law be submitted to the Property committee. The motion carried.

LOTS OF WORK.

Ald Anderson, near the last of the meeting, introduced a plea for a better and more equal system of sewage assessment. To that end the lowing motion was recommended by the Finance chairman, seconded by Ald. Duffus:

"That the city engineer be instructed to average the cost of construction of sewers and assist in obtaining an equal rate, per foot, and that a bylaw be prepared to carry out this this work."

Mr. William Cochrane, on behalf of the Belmont Club, requested permission to erect a streamer opposite the club rooms, advertising their minstrel show to be held in February.

The request was granted without any trouble.

OFFICERS FOR COUNTY ALLIANCE

H. B. Cowan is President and R. Lees is Secretary

Timely Topics Discussed at Temperance Convention in Y. M. C. A.

The afternoon session of the Peterborough County Temperance Alliance was held in the Y.M.C.A. parlors, yesterday commencing at two o'clock. A very representative showing of temperance advocates from the surrounding countries were present, and some interesting discussion on the temperance campaign outlook occurred.

A nominating committee brought in the following report of officers for the ensuing year and it was adopted.

Hon. President—Ex-Mayor Wm. Yelland.

President—H. B. Cowan, Peterborough.

1st Vice-President—James Thompson, M.P.P., Havelock.

2nd Vice-President—Samuel Carver, North Monaghan.

3rd Vice-President—Mrs. Ellis, Peterborough.

Secretary—Richard Lees, Peterborough.

Treasurer—E. A. Kennedy, Lakefield.

Chairmen of the Municipalities.

Lakefield—F. J. Lillicrap.
Norwood—G. A. Brethren.
Havelock—A. C. Denycke.
Asphodel—Wm. Oakwin.
Dummer—E. H. Hawthorne.
Harvey—Alexander A. Thompson
Otonabee—Jos. A. Taylor.
Smith—T. F. Milburn.
Chandos—Anson Andrus.
Douro—D. Darling.
North Monaghan—T. D. Young.
Belmont—J. A. Sexsmith, M.P.
Burleigh—D. Brown.
Peterborough—Not elected.

Mr. H. B. Cowan was on the program for a talk on "Needed Improvements in the Ontario Liquor License Act," but passed the subject over to Rev. B. H. Spence, whom he thought was better qualified to deal with the topic.

Rev. Mr. Spence pointed out the unsatisfactory condition the present License Act is in at present, being full of amendments, rendering it rather difficult to easily turn up readily any particular section desired. He also pointed out how the law governing selling and buying of liquor in "dry" districts is violated, making it difficult for license inspectors to detect wrong-doers. The speaker condemned the policy in some districts of appointing a license inspector who could only devote a small portion of his time to his duties, the position being used only as the means of increasing his livelihood besides his regular business earnings.

Mr. E. A. Peck, M.P.P., was invited to express his opinion on the temperance situation. The local provincial member said that as far as he could ascertain the license inspectors were doing their duty to the best of their ability, and were uninfluenced by fear or favor.

While not in full sympathy with some of the measures of the Temperance Alliance he was willing to do what he could to assist them.

The afternoon session concluded with a round table conference on "Law Enforcement" led by Rev. Dr. W. S. McTavish, Toronto, field secretary for Peterborough County.

LINDSAY CLUB WILL PLAY JACK SPRATT TO-NIGHT

'Twill be a Great Battle Between Two Fast Teams and May the Better Team Win.

The cup of cheer is overflowing in Lindsay to-day, for, according to the latest news, the O. H. A. has decreed that Jack Spratt, that famous youth, who won renown with the St. Michael's College hockey team, shall wear a unifrom against Peterboro in the game to-night.

Harry Burgoyne has been deputated to handle the bell, and if Lindsay is satisfied the Petes have no kick.

Lindsay will be clean upset to-night The excitement is intense, even more so than in Peterboro. The rink is going to accomodate a record crowd and fans with sore corns, will need to wear cast iron protectors.

The special is billed to leave the G.T.R station at seven o'clock sharp and it would be well for the fans to figure out the shortest cut to the rink.

So far as the locals are concerned every member of the team will go into the game with anything but fear and trembling and Peterboro fans will see to-night just what stuff their team is made of. To-night is the test and the prospects are of the brightest.

Skating is the program at the rink to-night and the returns on the game will be given out as early and as often as possible.

THE LORDS BEAT THE COMMONERS

Titled Disc. Chasers Won Annual Game by 3-1 Score

On Saturday night, these old rivals clashed together in a hair-raising hockey contest. The Lords as usual, over-rode the Commons, and brought home the bacon, by a score of three to one. The game was fast and furious throughout, and made any of the previous games this season look like a meeting of the Spinsters Wednesday evening sewing circle. For the winners, Landry's rushes were marvelous revelations of speed, and skilful stick handling, his "bunny wiggle" wiggles as he wiggled through the opposing forwards, won him the heart of many a fair spectator. MacLean also distinguished himself by his grizzly-bear style of body checking for the losers Gilchrist shone, mostly in a sitting position, though when he was not resting his turkey trot, trots up the ice were a feature. The teams lined up as follows:

Lords.		Commons.
	Goal
Earl of Harbin		Campbell
	Point
Sir Wm. A. Landry		Scott
	Cover
Count DuLabarre		Gilchrist
	Rover
Hon. Mr. S. MacDonald		Langevin

TELEPHONE TEAM WON FROM CLERKS

Good Hockey Played in Mercantile League Contest

There was plenty of good hockey in the Mercnatile League feature between the Clerks and the Bell Telephone teams last night, when the counter hoppers had to be content with the small end of the 4—3 score. One of the goals secured by the Bell seven was protested, the Clerks claiming the puck went in by the wide door entrance. The count at half time was 2—2.

There wasn't much to choose between the two teams, taking every department of the game into consideration. The lineup's were:

Bell Telephone.		Clerks.
	Goal
Freeman		McFadden
	Point
Sooper		Lech
	Cover
Wettlaufer		Ross
	Rover
Nattress		Mills
	Centre
Patterson		Halpin
	Right
Kelman		Dean
	Left
Rae		Nicholls.

CURLING

On Saturday afternoon, two rinks of Peterboro teachers played a friendly game with the Lindsay teachers, the local curlers winning by 7 shots. The ice was in splendid shape and the games were very close until near the last, when Mr. Trask's rink forged ahead. The rinks and scores—

D. Somerville	J. F. Harvey
D. A. MacKay	J. W. Kelley
D. A. Mackenzie	D. W. Walker
J. A. Trask, Skip 18	H. R. Kenner, Skip 9
T. A. Kirkconnell	J. Firth
H. G. Manning	R. Ferguson
E. A. Miller	S. Stubbs
G. A. Lucas, Skip 11	G. F. Collins, Skip 13

HOCKEY

The Tool Room added another victory to their list when they defeated the Machine Shop boys by the score 6—0, Saturday night in a Mercantile League game at the Brock street rink. The three junior O.H.A. men worked well for the Tool Room team, which piled up the figures to 6—0 in their favor at half time. In the second half there was no scoring.

Mail & Empire—Jack Spratt, the brilliant St. Michael's College forward signed a certificate last night with his "old home town" and will play to-night with Lindsay against Peterboro. In case Lindsay win the district will be tied up and home and home games will be played on Thursday and Monday. The teams will toss for the choice of last game at home.

The Marmora Club has protested the Trent Valley League hockey match, played in Tweed on an open air rink on Friday last, on the ground that the rink was inadequately lighted. The referee said that it was a regular "dark hole of Calcutta." The goal nets were composed entirely of canvas, and the goal umpires had to mix in front with the players to decide when a goal was scored. They were naturally continually in the way of the players.

Kingston, Jan. 29—Boyer, who was injured in last Wednesday's game here with Argonauts, will be unable to play with Frontenacs in Toronto, Wednesday night. His place will be taken by Reid, and George Richardson, the ex-Queen's and 14th Regiment player will jump into the game in his old position of left wing.

Cobourg, Jan. 29—Cobourg intermediates defeated Bowmanville in an O.H.A game here to-night by 9 to 0. The half-time score was 1 to 0. This ties Cobourg and Oshawa for the championship of this district.

Referee—Harry Beck, New Hamburg.

LEARNING ABOUT CANADA.

Stories Told of the Englishman and His First Days Here.

There is a story with which most persons are familiar about an Englishman who was invited to go to New Ontario on a shooting excursion. He asked a few questions about the game and learned that wild cats were extinct and that bears were not plentiful. He could only expect to get a few rabbits and birds or perhaps a deer.

"I have done considerable big game shooting in Africa," he said, "and your program hardly appeals to me. I do not care about hunting unless there is a spice of danger in it."

"There will be a spice of danger, if you come with me," said his Canadian friend. "Last time I went shooting, I shot my brother-in-law in the leg."

A newer story of somewhat the same character arises from the recent Christmas season. An Englishman, who has only been in Canada for a short time, expressed his regret that he could not get home for the great festival. "I have always understood that you do not have much of the Christmas spirit out here," he told a friend, "and I love the old day. I like to see it preserved with all its customs and its gifts. I am afraid of missing the tradition out here where you have not the proper touch to the Christmas celebration."

"Wait and see," said the Canadion.

The Englishman waited. He sent gifts to his friends in the Old Land. He purchased them for his acquaintances in the New. He was called upon to contribute to several hospitals and other charitable institutions. He helped with dinners for the poor, giving first for the adults and later for the children. Young ladies of his acquaintance made him contribute to several hampers that they were giving to poverty stricken families. He bought some toys for a Sunday School Christmas tree. Then on Christmas Eve, he found that every one who had done anything for him during the year looked expectantly at him so he handed out something to everyone from his landlady to the elevator man at his office.

Then he met his Canadian friend. "I was quite mistaken," he declared, "for I find that you have got the Christmas touch in Canada."

Cannot Maintain Lead.

Ontario still produces a little over one-third of the quantity of the lumber cut annually in Canada, but its annual cut, while increasing, is increasing more slowly each year. Ontario's 1909 cut was 17 per cent. greater than in 1908; its 1910 cut was only 7.5 per cent. more than in 1909. The Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior has compiled statistics showing that 1,642,191,000 feet of lumber worth $39,011,000 was cut in Ontario during 1910, but that British Columbia will be Canada's premier lumber province in a short time. The diversified forest of Ontario have enabled the province to hold its supremacy up to the present, as illustrated in 1910, when the chief cut of seventeen species came from Ontario. White pine to the value of $17,743,074 came from Ontario forests and formed 85 per cent. of Canada's white pine cut. Nearly half of the hemlock cut in Canada in 1910 was cut in Ontario, as was over 90 per cent. of the red pine. Ontario contributed over 70 per cent. of the hardwoods. Of the total made up by 23 species cut in Ontario, over one-half was white pine. Red pine contributed 10 per cent. hemlock 12 per cent., leaving 25 per cent. to be equally divided among the hardwoods and less important conifers. To arrive at the correct amount cut by lumber mills of Ontario in 1910, there must be added to the above lumber cut, 1,976,000,000 shingles worth $3,557,211 and 851,953,000 lath worth $1,943,544.

WILL CO-OPERATE WITH PROVINCES

with the needs of every province or the Dominion were placed in the Canadian offices in London. As Minister of the Interior he intended to invite immigration to the Maritime Provinces in the same manner and with the same hope, of results as he would to other parts of the country.

He had inaugurated a policy of cooperation with the provinces. He had invited every province to join with the Dominion in inaugurating this policy, which would deal equally with east and west. Conferences had been held with the Premiers of British Columbia and New Brunswick and with Hon. J. S. Duff of the Ontario Government. The work would not be duplicated, but they would work in harmony.

Hon. Frank Oliver said that the Laurier Government had tried to do its best for immigration to Ontario, but the provincial administration would not co-operate.

Mr. Rhodes' resolution was adopted and the House adjourned at midnight.

HOW DINING CARS ARE SUPPLIED

New Departures by the Canadian Pacific Railway

The travelling public seldom or never give a thought as to how or when the dining cars are supplied with everything the season affords. They are often heard to express themselves on the excellence of the different viands, but never give it a thought of how it reaches the table.

The Canadian Pacific have at a considerable expense equipped new supply depots at Vancouver and Winnipeg. The latest models of mechanical refrigeration enable the department to keep in perfect condition the choicest supplies from outside markets, for example, midwinter fruits, vegetables, etc.

A refrigerated store-house has been erected at Sicamous Junction in which are gathered at the approach of the winter season the finest fruit and vegetables produced by British Columbia. Two of these are at the present time featured on the menu cards in the west—"Apples from the famous Okanagan Valley" and "British Columbia Championship Potatoes," which won the $1,000 Championship Cup at the Irrigation Land Show in New York November, 1911.

The Company has opened bungalows for the accommodation of its dining car employees at lay-over points, furnishing them with sleeping quarters, baths, recreation rooms, etc., and making them at least as comfortable as they would be at home. These facilities ensure the patrons of the Company being served by waiters in first class physical and sanitary condition, and in addition, every dining car employee is required to undergo, periodically, a medical inspection and to surrender a satisfactory certificate.

WHAT THE CHIEF HAS TO SAY

Ald. Gordon, the new councillor, raised a question last night at the council meeting regarding the fees received by the police for mileage and giving evidence, etc., recommending that such monies be turned into the city treasury in place of having it divided equally among the police force, as has heretofore been the custom. The report of the recommendation will be found in another column.

Chief of Police Thompson to-day explained that such fees do not amount to much, and in nearly every case are well-earned by the police. For instance, a police officer will go off duty after a night's work, at six or seven o'clock in the morning. His presence is required at say ten o'clock in the morning up at the court house as a witness. His services maybe, occupying a goodly share of the day. This time is of course, encroaching upon the time which should be devoted to rest and sleep. It therefore appears a little hard that the fees which the officer receives should be taken away from him for his services.

Ald. Anderson's remark in connection with the matter summed it up very clearly when he said that it appeared as if the salaries of the police force were being raised, only to have the increase taken away from them.

Ald. Gordon's recommendation of course, goes before the police commissioners at their next meeting for their consideration.

FIRE IN STOVE IGNITED LATH

A slight fire occurred at noon in a house under course of constretion at 176 Wolfe street. The workmen had left a fire burning in a small stove to dry some lath which had been placed in close proximity. The heat ignited the lath, and began to smoulder, filling the house with smoke. Neighbors 'phoned in the alarm, the brigade responded promptly with the result that the damage was very slight.

Paid Their Fines

The two men who were arrested Saturday afternoon and who assaulted the police who affected their arrest, were each able to pay the $10 fine which was imposed upon them yesterday, and were given their liberty.

BURIED IN QUEBEC.

Sir Walter Scott's Brother Lies In Little Graveyard.

Every spot in Old Quebec is historical, and if there is not a sermon in every stone there are at least stories associated with most of them—stories that recall men and events connected with the making of Canada and the Empire.

At every turn one comes upon remembrances of the past that made the present.

Some of these remembrances dominate the place — battlefields where deeds of valor were done and the current of the history of this continent turned into new channels; forts and battlements that have withstood sieges; buildings associated with deliberations and enactments that are the landmarks of our constitutional history. Besides these landmarks there are less conspicuous remembrances of the past to be met with at almost every turn, and which supply the more subdued tints of the great historical picture in which the fort-crowned heights of Cape Diamond are the central object.

Here is a little churchyard in the very heart of the city which illustrates the truth of this statement.

Perhaps ten minutes' walk from the Terrace, up St. John street, which is carried through the outer wall of the ancient fortifications, stands a stone church in Gothic style so generally adopted by the Church of England. One wall of the building stands close to the street, and the notice board at the main entrance announces that it is St. Matthew's Church.

Close to the gateway and not more than a couple of feet from the wall separating the churchyard from the street, is a weather-stained slab of grey limestone somewhat less than four feet in height, and shaped at the top into a Gothic arch. The stone stands firm and erect, and although its inscription is well-worn, it can still with a little care be wholly read. It is in these words:

"Sacred to the memory of Thomas Scott, Esquire, late Paymaster of the 70th Regiment, who departed this life Feb. 4, 1825.

"And to his daughter, Barbara Scott, who died on the 5th of Oct., 1821, in the 8th year of her age."

In the graves thus simply marked repose the remains of the brother and the niece of Sir Walter Scott, "the Wizard of the North," and one of the great literary geniuses of the eighteenth century.

In 1808 Sir Walter Scott wrote a brief memoir of his early life, bringing it down to the year 1792, when he and his friend, William Clark, were admitted to the practice of law in their native Scotland. In that brief and partial autobiography Sir Walter tells of his family. "My father and mother," says he, "had a very numerous family, no fewer, I believe than twelve children, though only five survived very early youth. My eldest brother Robert was bred in the King's service and was in the most of Rodney's battles." Later he entered the service of the East India Company, made two voyages to the east, and died a victim of the climate.

Queer.

"Funny thing about my wife."

"What?"

THE HISTORY OF OUR FAITH

Its Progress Dealt With by Prof. Cosgrove at St. Luke's

In the opening service of the Rural Deanery of Northumberland and Peterborough, Prof. Cosgrove, of Trinity College, Toronto, gave a most effective discourse at St. Luke's church last night, when he traced the progress of faith from the time of the patriarch Abraham, down through the ages to the present day. His text was from the 4th chapter of Paul's epistle to the Romans, "That faith of our father Abraham."

Prof. Cosgrove explained that Abraham had an important part in the origin of faith. The story of faith, in history really began with him. That fact was an intimacy with God—a friendship so strong that Abraham would give his son as a sacrifice. And God was the same to-day. Such faith brought men to a fuller sense of God. He has a new idea of God. The intimacy was deepened as each came to know the other better.

The preacher traced the history of faith on down through time, and in a scholarly manner and in such a way as could be easily followed by the congregation. He told of the failures, the misunderstandings, reconciliations with God, and His pardons. It was to-day what it is because of that history, he said. Contrasting the faith of Abraham and St. Paul, he explained that it had passed from childhood to manhood. Now nearly 2,000 years had passed, but faith was stronger, or at all events, more widespread. The speaker pointed out that the Christianity to be planted in Japan must be Japanese, not Anglicanism. It would be folly to impose upon the Japanese the prayer book or the articles.

As faith passed through its different stages, so did the individual. The loss of faith was the greatest calamity to befall the individual was a rupture of that friendship—communion with God.

ARE THE MILKMEN GUILTY OF RESTRAINING TRADE

Ald. Gordon Takes Exception to The Increase in the Price of Milk and Moves for an Investigation—Those Extras to the Police Officers Are Also Discussed

Ald. Gordon has commenced a campaign on the milk dealers, making his first decisive move at the meeting of the committee of the whole, last night.

Ald Grodon stated that he had been advised that all the milkmen some time ago, had entered into an agreement to increase the price of milk three cents. The fact of the increase, if correct, has suggested itself to Ald. Gordon as contrary to the criminal code, and if the practice prevailed, the milkmen were liable to penalties. He therefore moved that the chairman of the Legal Committee take the matter up, investigate the truth of affairs and consider the advisability of prosecuting these men for restraining trade. Ald. Gordon pointed that the plumbers combine in Toronto some years ago had been severely dealt with in the courts for a similar act. Ald. Duffus did not favor Ald. Gordon's move, because he thought that it was hardly fair to pick on the milkmen only. He favored the idea of going after all combines if such existed.

"Well, let us go after the milkmen first, then we can get after the others," was Ald. Gordon's answer.

Ald Gordon's motion carried however, only three voting contrary.

AFTER THE POLICEMEN

The new councillor, also brought up the question of the police salaries bringing in the following resolution, "That all fees for mileage, in making arrests giving evidence, etc., earned by the police in 1912, be turned into the city treasury for the use of the city, and that a copy of the resolution be sent to the police commissioners Ald. Brown seconded the motion which carried.

Ald. Gordon pointed out that a constable in some cases when making an arrest is allowed apart from his salary 17 cents a mile travelling expenses out of this he pays 5c a mile return railway fare. Then in the court house a constable is entitled to a witness fee of $1 a day.

His Worship offered that the policemen's fees are pooled and divided amongst the staff in which case the police extras do not amount to much per man.

Ald. Gordon — Altogether, they amount some years to $250 or $300 which might acceptably be applied to the costs of suits the city occasionally loses.

Ald Buller understood that when a constable is due in court as a witness, arrangement is made that he takes a night man's duty.

The Mayor—"In that case, if a man works night and day he is entitled to extra pay."

Ald. Gordon — "That arrangement may be made sometimes, but probably not on every occasion."

BANQUET OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH ASSOCIATION

To Stimulate Greater Interest in Work of the Church

The third banquet of St. John's Church Association was held last evening in the Sunday school room under most auspicious circumstances. Commencing at 7.30, and continuing for three hours, the event was one of unalloyed interest and significance to the seventy odd guests who sat down to the feast of good things, provided for mental assimilation, as well as the physical needs of those present. With Mr. R. J. Devey as the moving spirit in the chair, the meeting passed off without a single incident that would tend to mar its progress.

The program opened with a few brief remarks from the chairman, and was followed by a toast to the King, and the singing of the National Anthem. A toast to the ladies, in recognition of the splendid work performed by them in supervising the affairs pertaining to the catering, was proposed by Mr. Wainwright and responded to on behalf of the ladies by Mr. A. H. Stratton.

A general discussion was then entered into with a view to obtaining ideas and suggestions for the further propagation of the good work already carried on by the various organizations of the church. Mr. Devey broke the ice by saying that the main object of the discussion was to ascertain whether the Association was doing its duty as men towards the church. "In the Anglican Church," declared the speaker, "the greatest source of weakness lies in the lack of interest manifested in the Sunday school." He also sprung a surprise to many when he announced that he had only one man teacher in the Sunday school of the church, and that was Mr. Firth, of the Collegiate Institute staff.

Other speakers were Messrs. Aylmer, Deane, Cluxton, Campbell, Conway, Kingdon, Stratton, Pitchford, Coleman, Jay, Bell, Jamieson and Canon Davidson, and Rev. Mr. Ben Oliel, of Lakefield.

Solos by Messrs. Flower, Roberts, and Langley, with Mr. Devey, as accompanist, enlivened the proceedings of the evening, as also did a reading by Mr. Jamieson.

APPOINTMENT OF A TARIFF BOARD

Hon. Mr. White Introduces Bill In The Commons.

Grain Bill Brought in by Hon. Mr. Foster.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Two important measures were under discussion in Parliament yesterday. Hon. W. T. White introduced his bill to provide for the establishment of a Tariff Commission of three members, holding office for five years. It would not have the power to negotiate or fix rates, but merely to gather information, he said.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster's grain bill passed its second reading and made some progress in committee. By the appointment of a commission of three and giving the Government power to acquire terminal elevators it sought to cure the complaint of the middlemen "mixing" grain.

Some discussion took place on the desirability of making the commission independent of the Government, the Opposition speakers generally taking this view. Mr. Foster, however, was firm in his adherence to the principle that the commission should be responsible to the Government, and the Government should be responsible for the commission.

Before the orders of the day were called, Premier Borden rose to express on behalf of the members of the House their profound and sincere sympathy with the members of the royal family on the death of the Duke of Fife. The duke, he said, was a man of distinguished ability and one whose career had been characterized by earnest concern for the welfare of the United Kingdom and the entire Empire.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke of the sorrow of all British subjects in all parts of the world. The duke had earned their gratitude by his absolute devotion to duty. The mourning of the royal family would be the mourning of the whole Empire.

J. A. Best (Dufferin) and H. B. Morphy (N. Perth), both Conservatives, emphatically denied a report in The Toronto Globe of Monday to the effect that, at a meeting of the agricultural committee on Wednesday last, they had drawn the attention of the Minister of Agriculture to the necessity of "curbing that man Hughes." Neither of them had ever mentioned the Minister of Militia or his estimates.

Hon. W. T. White introduced a resolution dealing with the appointment of the Tariff Commission. It was intended, he explained, that it should consist of three members, holding offices for five years, the salary of the chairman to be $7,500 and of the two others $7,000 each. They should give their entire time to the work of the commission.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux asked if farmers would be represented on the commission.

Hon. Mr. White replied that the personnel of the commission had not been decided, but he thought it a mistake to appoint any man on account of his calling. The commission should be one that would commend it to all sections of the community.

W. F. Maclean (S. York) enquired if the commission would have any independent initiative.

Hon. Mr. White answered the commission could only act upon the instructions of the Minister of Finance. It had none of the functions pertaining to government; it could not negotiate or fix rates. It was only part of the machinery of the Government for obtaining information.

E. L. Cash (Mackenzie) asked if the information gathered by the commission would be made public.

Hon. Mr. White replied that the bill provided that confidential information could not be disclosed to business competitors, except as relating to the existence of combines.

Hon. Frank Oliver thought that, as the country was paying for the information it should have it.

A bill founded on the resolution was introduced and carried to its second reading.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster explained his grain bill when it came up for the second reading.

It was a replica to a large extent of the bill passed by the Senate in 1911, with a few important amendments.

One of the principal troubles in the west was that of transportation. The grain was not moving fast enough or not moving at all. For three, four or five months, by Canadian routes, no grain could come east except along the single rail of the C.P.R. The three railways of the west had all done what they could this year.

As to the remedy, an outlet with the N.T.R., Cochrane and the T. & N. O., which would double the facilities. Then the C.N.R. might in the near future have a line of its own to the east. The C.P.R. might double its track. The Hudson Bay Railway now gave promise of being available in two years.

Another trouble was that of storage. Western country elevators had a capacity of 57,000,000 bushels. Ontario elevators 25,700,000 bushels, elevators of milling firms 1,700,000 bushels, and eastern transfer elevators 20,500,000 bushels. With a total storage capacity of 105,000,000 bushels, there was a crying need for more.

The bill provided for a commission of three men of ability. The Government proposed to take power to expropriate or lease terminal elevators, and these would be operated by the commission.

Dr. Neely (Humboldt) in committee on the bill, objected to tying down the board of commissioners to the recommendations of the governor-in-council in regard to the management of the terminal elevators. This was not in accord with the demand of the grain growers, who desired an entirely independent body.

Hon. Mr. Foster declared that it was the intention of the bill, and of the Government, to give the commission the greatest degree of independence and freedom possible. At the same time, they had to preserve the connection or the way would be open to anarchy.

Hon. Frank Oliver declared that a board which was responsible for the grain trade had a responsibility beyond that of any board of railway commissioners and quick action by the authority on the ground would often be necessary to save a situation involving many thousands of dollars. They should be empowered to act independently in case of stress.

MEDINA'S FLAG AT HALF MAST

King and Queen arrived at Gibraltar Yesterday

Gibraltar, Jan. 31—King George and Queen Mary arrived here yesterday on board the steamer Medina, en route from India, where the King and Queen were crowned Emperor and Empress at the great Durbar in Delhi.

The Medina's flag was floating at half-mast as the vessel entered the port on account of the death of the Duke of Fife on Monday in Egypt. The program arranged for the reception of Their Majesties has been greatly curtained owing to the royal visitors being in mourning for the King's brother-in-law.

The Spanish fleet lying off Algeciras, and the British fleet anchored at Gibraltar, saluted the Medina as she entered the harbor.

A Moorish delegation will be presented to the King during his stay here.

THE C.N.O. GETS CONCESSIONS

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The Canadian Northern Ontario got a time extension from the railway committee yesterday for its main lines in Ontario. The Toronto-Ottawa section will be in operation to Ottawa by October next, and and the Montreal, Hawkesbury and Ottawa division is being rushed, as is the portion west of Ottawa to the Township of Chisholm.

The Ontario and Ottawa Railway Co., another Mackenzie and Mann proposal, went through with little opposition. It is a projected line from the mouth of the Severn River, on Georgian Bay, easterly to Orillia, thence to Renfrew, there crossing the Ottawa River and proceeding to Hull and Ottawa, connecting with the line to Montreal.

The Barcelona Light and Traction bill was finally passed yesterday. It is promoted by Toronto interests.

Relief Work Begins.

New York, Jan. 31.—A China famine relief committee to work in conjunction with the American Red Cross in aid of the 3,000,000 destitute dwellers of the stricken Anhwei and Kwangsu districts in this city was formed yesterday afternoon.

WOMAN ADMITS KILLING MAN; BROTHER TRIED FOR THE CRIME

New York, Jan. 31.—With an 11th hour confession that it was she who stabbed Charles Muldoon, Mrs. Theresa Martin, aged 22, brought to a dramatic climax yesterday the trial of her brother, James P. McDemott, who was accused of Muldoon's murder.

The victim of the stabbing, who was Mrs. Martin's former sweetheart, was stabbed to death in an east side saloon in March, 1911. McDermott fled to the west, and, after being captured in Denver, it was alleged that he confessed to the murder. The state was pressing the case against him when the sister unexpectedly appeared on Monday and confessed to guilty knowledge, so surprising the court that the case was halted until yesterday.

The woman spent an hysterical hour on the stand yesterday afternoon, hesitating to tell more than that on the night of the murder she had a quarrel with Muldoon, and that during it she went to her home for a breadknife. Promises of both the prosecutor and the judge for immunity failed to persuade her to continue her story yesterday, until finally she was asked point blank:

"Who drove the knife through Muldoon's heart?"

"I did," she replied. "I did it."

The woman collapsed as she left the stand and her brother wept, but said nothing. The lawyers in the case went ahead with perfunctory summing up arguments and the case will go to the jury to-day.

Mr. Stratton Made a Mess of It

The correspondence appearing in Monday's Examiner, re Buckhorn bridge, does not account for the fact that no agreement was made during all that long period elapsing between June 22, 1911, the day of the take-over (or take-in) of the Buckhorn bridge by the government, and Sept. 21, or one month later even than that, when the Laurier Government went out of power.

Long yarns on paper between the Minister and the member are a common means of refuge for the fakir. One short, sharp word, "agreed," would have settled it. But no. It was never said in all the long course of negotiations, although the Council to which Hon. G. P. Graham refers, viz.: the Cabinet Council, met at least three days a week during all that time. But there is something worse still. It is the very agreement which was made between the late government and the County that now stands in the way. If it were not for that agreement the present government would now find no difficulty in assuming the $3000.00. But in the face of that agreement, what can be done? It was held up us a club apparently, and forgotten to be taken down. Mr. Stratton ought to pay that $3000.00 himself.

CASHIER OF BIG CONCERN IS HELD UP BY MASKED MEN

Relieved of a 150,000 Francs—Robbers Held Back the Police and Made Their Escape.

Special to the Review.

Paris, Jan. 31—A wild west hold-up took place to-day in the centre of the French capital, when the cashier of a big manufacturing concern, while leaving the bank with one hundred and fifty thousand francs was robbed by four men, who kept the police at bay with volleys from their revolvers till they reached a side street and escaped.

UNIONISTS CONGRATULATE ULSTER LEADERS ON STAND

London, Jan. 31.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—At a large and enthusiastic meeting of anti-home rulers last night. Henry Chaplin, referring to the situation in Ulster, congratulated Sir Henry Carson, Lord Londonderry and Ulstermen for their noble stand in the cause of union. He said they've made it clear that despite the conspiracy to break up the constitution and emasculate the powers of the House of Lords, home rule without a direct mandate from the people never will be carried without civil war in Ireland." (Cheers.)

"The Government forgot to reckon with the courage and patriotism of Ulster. I believe the leaders of Ulster party have killed home rule before its birth and that it will be found to be stillborn." Austen Chamberlain said if the claim of Irish Nationalists for home rule was good, the claim of Ulster for a separate treatment was equally good. Account must be taken of the difference and of history between two sections of the Irish people. A home rule bill, he said, was useless. The history of the Irish Parliament was an inglorious one. It gave people no peace or prosperity; in short, there was no practical grievance to which they can point to-day that justifies their demand for breaking partnership in a united Parliament.

HAVE DECIDED TO ABDICATE

Chinese Throne Has Determined to Jump the Job.

Conference Between Empress Dowager, Prince Chun and Prince Ching Results, It Is Understood, In Plans For Flight—Will Keep Titles and Have a Pension of $2,000,000—Train Dynamited by Rebels.

Pekin, Jan. 31.—It is understood that immediate abdication of the throne has been decided upon as a result of the conference yesterday between the Empress Dowager, Prince Chun, the ex-regent, and Prince Ching, the ex-Premier, in accordance with the conditions laid down by the Republicans, namely, that the Imperial family and princes are to retain their empty titles, reside in Pekin or elsewhere at their pleasure and receive annual pensions aggregating 3,000,000 taels ($2,000,000), and that the transference of power will be effected with as little loss of dignity to the throne as possible.

The Empress Dowager has summoned a Cabinet meeting to-day to arrange the details of abdication. Premier Yuan Shi Kai, in a statement to the newspapers, avers his readiness to accept almost any solution which will ensure peace. He has no fear of the country's future, he says, if the settlement is the fruit of reason, truth and justice.

Yuan Shi Kai further says that he has no ambition to become the President of the new republic, and only desires the establishment of a stable government.

Many soldiers were killed by the explosion of a dynamite mine under an Imperialist train which was proceeding from Slaokan, 30 miles north of Hankow, to Honan. A bomb was thrown at the viceroy, who was traveling on another train, but it struck the car adjoining, killing a number of soldiers, but not injuring the viceroy.

Gen. Liang Pi, a former commandant of the Imperial guards, who was injured on Jan. 27 by a bomb thrown by a Chinaman while the general was alighting from his carriage at his home in Pekin, has since died.

G.T.R. Line to Boston.

Boston, Jan. 31.—The plans of the Grand Trunk Railway to extend its line to Boston advanced a step late yesterday when the joint rules committee of the Legislature voted to admit the petition of the Grand Trunk for legislation authorizing such extension. Upon being admitted the petition will be referred to a committee and hearings will be held.

PROMISES TO TELL THE TRUTH

Detective Franklin will be Called in the Darrow Case

Los Angeles, Jan. 31.—B. H. Franklin, the McNamara detective, who is to be tried here on a charge of having bribed members of the McNamara jury, probably will prove to be an important witness in the case of Clarence Darrow, the McNamara attorney, who has just been indicted for jury bribing.

When Franklin was asked yesterday whether he had made a confession to the grand jury on which the Darrow indictments were based, he declined to discuss that feature of the case. Franklin, however, in reply to questions said:

"If I am place on the witness stand I shall tell the truth. I will not perjure myself for anyone."

At the same time he declared there was no understanding between himself and the district attorney's office regarding possible immunity should he become a witness for the prosecution. Regarding a confession, Franklin is said to have made, he declared, he was before the grand jury too short a time for this.

CHURCH OFFICIAL ARRESTED HERE

Is Wanted in Kingston on Charge of Appropriating Funds

Kingston, Jan. 31.—The little village of Beulan is in a flutter of excitement owing to the arrest of a prominent resident, John W. Parker, who, as secretary-treasurer of the Methodist Church there, is alleged to have appropriated $75.91 belonging to the church for his own use.

Parker left his home suddenly some weeks ago, but Constable J. Haynes traced him to Peterboro and placed him under arrest.

He appeared before the justice of the peace, pleaded not guilty and was committed to stand trial at Kingston. Accused is married.

MONEY PROBE IS POPULAR

Will Deal with Alleged Conspiracy to Stifle Competition to the Trusts

Washington, Jan. 31.—The breeze which sprang up over the proposal in the House to investigate the money trust has suddenly developed into a cyclone.

Col. Wm. J. Bryan is credited with having inspired the agitation and he will have the support of a large majority of the Democratic members of the House. Representative Littleton and some eastern Republican members of the House will vote for the appointment of a committee with the largest possible powers.

The resolution proposed by Representative Henry, and which will probably be adopted, calls for an exhaustive and minute investigation into the affairs of the National banks, interstate railway companies and allied concerns, and will bring to public notice the activities of the so-called money trust. Among other subjects to be investigated will be the interest taken by the financial groups and their subsidiary concerns in acquiring, influencing and destroying newspapers in nominating and electing candidates to office, and in promoting and defeating legislation.

The enquiry will especially deal with the alleged conspiracy to stifle competition to the trusts by refusing credit to all independent enterprises.

PROUD BISHOPS ARE EXILED

Refused to Obey Imperial Orders Emperor Acts with Synod

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—By order of the Emperor and the Holy Synod, the recalcitant bishop, Hermogenes, has been dismissed from the Saratov diocese and exiled to the Zhirovitsky monastery, near Slonim, for open and persistent insubordination in refusing to depart for Saratov in spite of reiterated imperial and synodal orders.

Simultaneously the reactionary priest, Heliodorus, the Abbot of Tsaritsyn, has been exilted to a remote monastery in the government of Vladimir, for championing the cause of Hermogenes. Heliodorus was the cause of fanatical scenes in Tsaritsyn in February, 1911, when the whole Greek orthodox parish, becoming frenzied at his transfer by the Holy Synod to the Diocese of Tula, decided to starve themselves until the priest was restored. Eventually the Emperor intervened and Heliodorus was permitted to remain in his own diocese.

The fall and disgrace of Hermogenes and Heliodorus who in the past have been able to defy the highest authorities in the state, are described to antagonism on the part of Gregory Rasputin, reputed to be a holy man and mystic, who is wielding enormous influence at the court. The reigning Empress is a devotee of Rasputin.

WANT BOARD RETAINED

Montreal, Jan. 31.—At the annual meeting of the Montreal Board of Trade yesterday, the members declared themselves very strongly in favor of the retention in office of the present Montreal harbor commission irrespective of political opinions. A resolution was passed dealing with the proposed exploitation of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers for power purposes, strongly opposing the endangering of these waters for navigation purposes and advocating that if necessary the Government should take up the whole matter in the interests of the public so as to secure cheaper power, while at the same time preserving the interests of navigation.

The board also approved of the scheme for granting large powers to the metropolitan parks commission.

Eight Thousand Soldiers Under Arms in Lisbon

Strikers Claim To Have 20,000 Bombs---Several Outrages.

Lisbon, Portugal, Jan. 31.—Owing to the grave situation because of the general strike, the constitutional guarantees have been suspended and martial law has been proclaimed in the district of Lisbon. The city has been handed over to the keeping of Gen. Carvalhal, and troops surround the town. Reinforcements are constantly arriving, but because of the presence of the troops there were few disorders yesterday. Liberty to work is absolutely guaranteed by the Government.

There are 8,000 troops under arms in Lisbon, where the strikers declare they have 20,000 bombs with which they will be able to annihilate the soldiers. Several bombs have already been thrown with terrible effect.

The Government is desirous of preserving a moderate and prudent attitude and offers to concede part of the strikers demands, which include the release of all the strikers arrested during the course of the disturbances in the Evora district, and the dismissal of the governor of Evora.

But the situation last night was such that it was deemed expedient to proclaim martial law in the capital. A large number of agitators have already been arrested. The troops are under orders to make raids on all suspected places, with the result that wholesale arrests have been made and innumerable firearms seized. The prisoners are being placed aboard warships in the harbor.

Towards evening strikers assembled in various quarters and bombs were thrown at mounted Republican guards in Rocio Square, and in the suburb of Alcantare troops were obliged to charge the mobs with drawn sabres.

The Government has now ascertained that the strike was fomented by Royalists, who supplied the strikers in Evora with $600,000. The intention of the Royalists was to send 1,500 armed men across the frontier into Eastern Portugal, that region being favorable to a monarchy, and start a general rising, but the Government hurried reinforcements there.

It is reported that strikers, bandits and smugglers enticed a column of troops into the heart of the mountains near Evora, where the column was in danger of being surrounded and wiped out, but was finally saved from this fate by reinforcements, which were rushed up to its assistance.

NURSES HAVE SMALLPOX

Brockville, Jan. 31.—Two nurses of the Eastern Hospital for the Insane have contracted smallpox and one of them, who was never vaccinated, has it in a very virulent form. The victims have been placed in a large tent on the grounds and the strictest quarantine established on portions of the building where there has been any danger of infection.

All the patients of the institution at the present time are free from the disease, which will not likely spread beyond the hospital.

RUSSIA'S BIG SUGAR CROP

Brussels, Jan. 31.—The international sugar conference met yesterday. All the delegates except the Germans expressed themselves in favor of acceding to Russia's request to increase her export of sugar to 300,000 tons and the continuance of the present arrangement for another five years, with the additional proviso that Russia shall be permitted further to increase her export in the event of another dearth of sugar as in 1911.

The conference adjourned until Thursday. It is thought that Germany is not willing to consent to Russia exporting more than 150,000 tons.

Hamilton Radial Charter.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The Hamilton, Waterloo and Guelph Railway was able to secure from the railway committee a renewal of its charter. Sam Barker, M.P. for Hamilton, explained that the reason for asking the extension of the charter was the difficulty of securing the finances, but now New York capitalists had become interested in the enterprice and promised to press construction of the railway this year and to go on to completion.

Doctors Condemn Oily Liniments

The Public are Warned to Be Careful of These Strong-Smelling Oily Liniments Containing Harmful Acids, Ammonia, Etc.

Many people have clung to the old-fashioned idea that a thick, greasy liniment is the best kind. Doctors say not—and they know.

Recently a number of these white, oily liniments were analyzed, and they were found to contain an enormously high percentage of harmful acids, and such irritating chemicals as ammonia, etc. For the moment they may cause a warm sensation when first applied, but their continued use never cures rheumatism, and only deteriorates the skin, sets up inflammation and causes endless trouble.

When a doctor warns you to quit using a white, oily liniment—do so. He knows that a thick liniment can't penetrate, can't sink through the pores and reach the seat of the pain.

When asked his opinion a few days ago, Dr. Roberts stated that he considered a strong, penetrating, pain-subduing liniment such as "Nerviline," to be superior to any of the white, ammonia liniments. In his twenty-five years of practice he had witnessed cases of rheumatism, sciatica, and lumbago that simply would not respond to ordinary treatment—but Nerviline cured them. The same physician also spoke of the great advantages of keeping a preparation like Nerviline in the house always, because of cramps, diarrhoea, stomach disorders, earache, toothache, headache, and such minor ailments. Nerviline is a first-class cure. There is scarcely an ache or a pain, internal or external, that Nerviline won't cure. In thousands of homes no other pain-relieving medicine is used. Fifty years' continued success and the endorsement of the profession are proof that Nerviline is the liniment for the home.

THE FARNHAM FIRE

The college which was destroyed by fire at Farnham, Quebec, on Monday, was according to reports, constructed in a way to render fire probable and with little chance to conquer it. It was only recently that the building was supplied with a proper fire escape and then the authorities had to take a hand and insist that this be done. This fire escape alone prevented a serious loss of life. There are, it is reported, many such inflammable buildings in parts of the Dominion, and it is the duty of municipalities to see that at least proper fire escapes are installed, as it takes but a few minutes to turn one of these structures into a fiery furnace. Another feature of the fire is that it was started by a small boy, bent on revenge for some fancied wrong. The training at this college must be at fault somewhere when the youthful students can harbor such criminal ideas in their heads. Five boys were in the plot to burn the college. The dime novel likely played its part in the education of the boys.

SHUSTER IN LONDON

Great Britain is chiefly responsible for Persia's sorry plight, according to Shuster, the American, who has been talking to a British audience in London. Now while Shuster is making this statement the majority of people, if reports are correct, think that Shuster himself is responsible for Persia's degredation. He was not a big enough man for the job he undertook, is the general verdict. He is now playing the part of the innocent scapegoat, but his stories won't carry much weight.

He says Britain should have ordered Russia out of the game, but just on what grounds he fails to tell us. If Britain is going to start in and champion the cause of every small country that might be in trouble, she would need twice her present navy and would be in trouble all the time with the other powers. The British authorities in the foreign office should come out with a statement on the question. Some people think that Britain has played into the hands of Russia. An explanation from the foreign office would probably dispel this impression.

An exchange says there are at least 20,000 different kinds of butterflies in existence. Wonder does this include the society butterfly.

In many police courts in Southern Niagara the fines are paid in gin, and then the magistrate proceeds to celebrate, and usually winds up by fining himself for being intoxicated. This fine gives him an eye opener for the morning.

The army of India, compared with its heavy responsibilities is the smallest in the world. The territory it guards has a land and sea frontier of 6,000 miles. A force of 75,400 British troops planted in the midst of a population of 315,000,000 is assisted by 159,400 regular native troops.

The Mitsuris, the richest family in Japan, are estimated to be worth fifty million pounds. They are bankers with headquarters at Tokio, and have done much to improve the shipping faculties of Japan, in which they are also interested. They backed the plucky little Japs heavily in the war with Russia.

In parts of Germany it is illegal to play the piano after nine o'clock at night. We know a whole lot of people who would like to see such a law passed in Peterboro. Between the "young hopeful" who practices his scales between 6 and 7 a.m., and the charming creature who entertains her beau with love ditties at 12 p.m. the people who want to get some sleep have little chance.

The return of the King and Queen from India will be a sad home coming, on account of the death of the Duke of Fife at Assouan. The Duke's unexpected demise has cast a gloom over, not only court circles, but the people of England generally, as he was held in high esteem by everyone. The Duke's death was undoubtedly due to the terrible experience, he experienced in the shipwreck at Cape Spartel. He contracted a cold on that occasion from which pleurisy developed. It was reported that the Duke was ill, but his illness was not thought to be of a serious nature. The news came as a great shock to the Royal party at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, and the sympathy of Canadians will go out to them in their bereavement.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. Farmers Must Raise Wages

Hamilton Spectator.

The Sorby farm near Guelph, noted far and wide as the home of Clydesdales of high breed, and consisting of 355 acres has been sold. The reason given is the practical impossibility of securing domestic help. This is startling enough, if without remedy; but surely if farmers would conform to the times, by regulating their wage scale to the changed conditions of living, this undesirable state of affairs would cease to vex them and the nation.

The Paternoster Ruby

By Charles Edmond Walk.

Supplied exclusively in Canada by the British & Colonial Press, Limited, Toronto.

One night Cristofano Paternostro, the head of the firm, called at my hotel. He was nervous and ill at ease. He informed me, with many hems and haws, that the ruby Fluette and I had been snarling over was lying at the bottom of the English Channel, and that they would be unable to deliver the goods. He had a good deal to say about the prestige the ruby gave the firm, and much more to the same effect, until I cut him off short. I told him that the ruby was nearer making him ridiculous.

It seems that after they recovered the stone in Paris, the expert who accompanied them couldn't resist the temptation to steal it. Besides being a gem expert and an expert thief, this fellow was an expert swimmer. When the boat was near land he tried to get away with the prize by jumping overboard, under cover of night, and swimming ashore. He did succeed in reaching the nearest land—which is to say, straight down. And that was the last of him, the ruby, and pretty nearly of the three Italians.

Since the ruby couldn't be recovered, they agreed to make the best of it. They agreed to keep the matter among themselves, and to continue to reap all the advertising benefits which the supposed possession of such a costly trinket gave them.

It was a joke, that. Here was I, like an old idiot, trying to spend good money for something the other fellow didn't have to sell.

But pretty soon I saw a way to reach my end just the same as though I'd beat Fluette in the deal. It was a whole lot better than that, in fact. I could get out from under without it costing me a cent, and still make Fluette and the world believe that I had bought the ruby.

"Nice thing for the Paternostros," says I, "when all this comes out."

Crisofano turned green. He begged me not to tell. He promised me the pick of his gems if I'd only keep the secret.

I looked at him pretty sour. "Very well," says I at last. "You give me the imitation stone. I'll never disclose the fact that you didn't have the original ruby, if you will announce to the world that is was sold to me for $500,000. As long as you keep your mouth shut, I'll keep mine."

He was tickled to death. Nothing would do but he must have in the rest of the firm (his brother and cousin). When they came I had a written contract prepared for them, setting forth the terms of our agreement and binding them with a penalty heavy to keep them from blabbing. (Contract memo. attached hereto).

How long we remained silent in the midst of a speechless wonder, I havn't the least idea. Words were wholly inadequate even feebly to express the mingled feelings with which we slowly digested the full force and import of this remarkable document.

So the very heart and essence of the tragedy, the crimson woof that knitted together the dark warp of its fabric, had all along been unreal and without substance! or a gem that can not be applied to its ordained function can scarcely be said to have an existence. Yet the Paternoster ruby had been potent to project its maleficent influence from the depths of its watery grave, and shape the destinies of the living. Verily, Fate never played a grimmer joke.

My thoughts drifted back to the night of the murder. Why had Felix Page paused beside the table while going between the hidden safe and Maillot, who was waiting in the library? I could imagine only one explanation: as he passed the table he was siezed with a sudden impulse to impart the secret to the young man, even going to the extent of setting down the jewel-box so that one hand would be free to manipulate the tack-heads. But a second thought had prevailed. He picked up the box and proceeded on his way.

Genevieve, round-eyed, sat staring into the dying fire. (That was a jolly fire!) Presently her head bent over to my shoulder, and without looking up she quoted a familiar couplet which must have occurred to the reader ere this:

"Full many a gem of purest ray serene
The dark, unfathomed caves of ocean bear."

I mention the circumstance because it prompted an idea which suddenly set me to laughing. Genevieve looked at me in alarm.

"What in the world!" she marvelled, for the silence had been very sedate.

"Little girl," I at last enlightened her, "it will pay you to go with me when we leave here—to the Central Station. There's something I want us to enjoy together; it will compensate for a deal of your late trouble and anxiety."

"What is it?"

"I want to hand Alexander Burke these papers, tell him they're what was hidden in the table—then quietly watch him while he reads."

I meant to do it, too. But Genevieve failed to enter into the spirit of the suggestion.

"Mercy!" she shuddered. "I don't want to gloat over the poor wretch."

I said no more about it, but—well, the result was all that I had anticipated.

Genevieve reminded me that we should be thankful for having been relieved from a final perplexity.

"I don't understand," said I.

"Why, we haven't the ruby to dispose of; that would have puzzled even you."

"I don't know about that. Royal gave it to me. I see where I stand to lose a fortune. Five hundred thousand—whew!"

Suddenly she snuggled closer and clasped her hands tightly upon my shoulder. Her hair teased my cheek, and the delicate perfume of it made me light-headed. Twisting her pretty head sideways, she flashed an arch look at me from under her lashes, then glanced quickly away again. Blue eyes and long dark lashes are a potently disturbing combination.

"Well," she sighed, "the Page case may have cost you a fortune, but—it gave me you. And I—for one—am very content and happy, Mr. Swift."

THE END.

WIDOW M'NEE

Her Wooing Told in a Charming Complete Story

By MALCOLM MURRAY

Ralph McNee, who, according to his mother, Widow McNee, was the finest lad North of Tweed, but who had given a different impression of his virtues to some others north of the famous river, was pleading hard with Farmer Alan—pleading, withal, for the hand of the farmer's pretty lass, Margery. And knowing that the heart was already his, Master Ralph made exceeding bold.

"I'm not so poor, nor so unseemly in my looks, farmer," he said. "I've a farm as big as yours, and the finest mother in Scotland. What more could a father want for his daughter?"

Farmer Alan, who stood in his shirt-sleeves at his kitchen door, did not allow this young scapegoat of a lad to enter his house.

"If you were big enough," he announced, looking the unembarrassed lover up and down, "I'd give you a mighty good hiding! You ought not even to know my Margery!"

"But I do!"

"Ay, that's so, and she'll be sorry for it."

"You'll never blame her?"

"Won't I just! And for your farm, young man, it's the most barren—"

"You're a silly old Tory!"

"Ye lie!" exclaimed Alan at this insult, and then let it pass. "You're not rich enough, or handsome enough; and, mark my words now, you're not good enough for my Margery."

"My mother says I am," put in young Ralph.

Alan looked up in a flash.

"Oh, the Widow McNee!" he said, an infinite scorn in his tone.

"Well," cried Ralph, "and what's the matter with the Widow McNee? I'd be beholden to you, Mister Alan, for the information."

The farmer spread out his large hands expressively.

"She's the fussiest, busiest, most deceitful old body in the whole country!"

Ralph sniggered.

"She's the bonniest, prettiest mother a lad ever had to kiss him good-night!"

"Pretty!" gasped the farmer. "She's fifty—"

"Forty!" replied the youth. "Now, come, Mr. Alan, you know she's the only body in these parts who has ever got the better of you. She runs the farm better than yours, she could get more milk out of a motor-car than you could out of all your cows, and she fairly beat you over that field of Donald's."

"You young scamp! You young—"

But his wrath got the better of him. It was well known round Fairdare that the Widow McNee had long shown Alan how a prosperous farm ought to be run. When he spoke again it was in a burst of dismissal.

"Get you off, my lad," he cried, "before I kick you home to yon fine mother of yours! And if I find you hanging around Margery, I'll murder the very shadow of you!"

So it was that Master Ralph, fairly bursting with his story, took himself and his troubles back to his mother. As ever she received him with sympathy.

"You want to marry Margery, lad?" she said.

"Ay, and the old man would not hear of it. He's heard wicked, untrue tales of your poor boy, mither."

The widow raised her eyebrows shrewdly.

"If he's only heard true ones it's quite enough," she said. "But I do not like the mon refusing a McNee for his lass."

"It's certainly inconsiderate on you, mither," Ralph murmured.

The widow rose and went to the door where her cloak hung.

"What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to yon Alan," the widow announced, taking a bonnet from a cupboard. "I'm a woman of action, lad. I wish you were, but you're not." The widow's eyes sparkled, which, by the way, became her mightily. "Yes," she said, opening the door, "Mister Alan'll be very sorry that he refused Widow McNee's bonnie son."

"Ugh! Ye cruel, heartless monster, Mister Alan!" she exclaimed. "You thought nothing of sending my poor lad to a suicide's grave. So you turned up your fine nose at Ralph McNee?" she continued.

"Did you think I'd have a wicked, evil-looking young—young rascal for my lass?"

"He's a good enough lad," the widow returned. "I remember you as a young man, Mister Alan. I remember the night at Farmer Mackay's party when the lamps went out, and someone kissed someone else so loud, and, if you wish my mind of it, so clumsily, that even—"

"Hathers, woman, tell me what you've come for?" gasped the farmer, purple.

"I've come to arrange for my lad to marry your lass."

"He won't!"

"Oh, yes, he will!"

"I tell you he won't!"

Widow McNee held up her hands in mock surprise.

"And you a man was married for ten years, farmer, and you don't know that when a woman says a thing it will happen—well, it does happen!"

The farmer held open the door.

"I wish you'd go."

"You don't like me?" she laughed.

"You're doing no good, Mrs. McNee," he said.

The widow rose with a little sigh.

"And Ralph no' such a poor match, I'm thinking," she said gently, as though to herself.

"Eh?" put in Alan quickly. This was talking, this was more to the point.

"Well, he's got the farm and a bonnie mother." She hesitated, and then: "And, of course, there was his Uncle Kenneth who died in New Zealand."

"His uncle?" asked Alan quickly.

"Ay! You see, Ralph and I have kept it quiet. The lad did not wish to get a lass who cared more for his money than himself."

The farmer shut the door.

"His money?" he inquired.

"Ay; just a wee couple of thousand pounds." It was the widow's turn to open the door, and on the threshold she turned. "I'm sorry you cannot agree to the bairns making a match of it. But good-night, Mister Alan."

The man smiled rather sheepishly.

"Good-night, Widow McNee," he said.

From that day Mr. Alan obviously softened towards the reprobate Ralph; but he was too Scottish to have him in his house, or to give his consent.

The widow came to see him five or six times, and he was hard to refuse her. But he could not bring himself to give in to a woman.

Matters were brought to a head by his daughter's weeping announcement that Widow McNee had forbidden her son to continue the engagement any longer. It seemed that she had grown tired, and that meant an end of it.

"She's never said that?" asked Alan.

"Ay, and now there's no one to help us!" cried Margery. "Ye're a pair of cruel old wretches!"

The farmer was worried, not so much at the thought of his daughter's bleeding heart as Ralph's thousands. He took his daughter's hand, and patted it gently.

"Never you mind, lassie," he said, "you shall be married despite the old woman."

The girl cried aloud in her surprise.

So farmer Alan sent for Ralph to consult with him.

"I'm doing it just to spite the widow, mind ye," said the farmer when the astonished Ralph had arrived. "But you two bairns must get married."

"We've your permission?" gasped the prospective bridegroom.

"On one condition."

"Eh?"

"It's to be a secret wedding now," he replied. "If you keep it secret from the widow, I'll help you and see no harm comes to you. Ah, that woman will be just mad!"

Ralph evidently shared his opinion with the farmer, and hesitated in his reply. But he remembered his mother's advice about getting married first, and then worrying. He held out his hand to the farmer.

"It's a bargain," he said, and that day week Farmer Alan was a father-in-law.

Ralph was sent home to inform the widow of the news, while the farmer waited in anticipation of her glorious wrath.

She was rather more startled than otherwise, and went straight to see Alan. He met her alone in his kitchen.

Very pale, and, for her, wondrously nervous, she made her confession.

"Mister Alan," she said, "I have been a very wicked woman."

"Wicked?" asked the farmer, puzzled.

"Yes. I have deceived you most wickedly," she said, coming out with her confession in a rush. "I told you that Ralph had been left a heap of money. It was not true."

"Not true!"

"No," she rushed on. "I did it to make you agree. I thought that you would do it for the money."

The farmer colored deeply, and for a moment there was an awkward silence. Then, in a low voice, he said:

"And I did so, you think?"

"No, no!" she exclaimed. "I have been a very wicked woman."

Alan stepped up to her.

"Do you know why I did it?" he asked, almost roughly.

"No." Her eyes were frightened, but bright.

"So that I could be related to you."

"To me! But I don't understand."

"Don't you!" he cried, and took her in his arms.

And then, a little later, the Widow McNee said, looking up into his eyes:

"I think I understand now, dear."

"You ought to," he laughed. "Ma wurrd, but a widow's a verra dangerous thing, I'm thinking!"

DOCTOR ADVISED HER TO TAKE THEM

Dodd's Kidney Pills Cured Mrs. Belliveau's Bright's Disease

Now She Can do Any Kind of work—Why Dodd's Kidney Pills are so Popular.

Pre Dun Haut, Westmoreland Co., N.B., January 30. (Special.(It is becoming a proverb in New Brunswick that no place is to small to furnish at least one person who owes his or her good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills. And this place is no exception to the rule. Mrs. Dominique J. Belliveau, a well known and highly respected resident says in an interview:

"I took Dodd's Kidney Pills on the advice of my doctor for Bright's Disease, and I am glad to say three boxes cured me completely. I can do all kinds or wrok now. I always keep Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house in case we might need them."

Sometimes you wonder why people, cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills, are so enthusiastic in their praises of them. The reason is that they strike right at the root of ill-health. Dodd's Kidney Pills cure the kidneys. That means that all impurities are strained out of the blood. It means pure blood, and pure blood means good health all over the body. Good health means good spirits. Hence the enthusiasm.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystalline lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

DR. PORTER ON TUBERCULOSIS

Disease Should be Treated at Its very Beginning

The Combating Forces Necessary to the Consumptive Patient

One of the best and most comprehensive lectures delivered in Peterborough for some time, was given last evening in the Collegiate assembly hall by Dr. G. Dana Porter, on the prevention and treatment of the dreaded white plague, tuberculosis. His audience was fair sized, composed largely of women, and the attention given to the speaker's word denoted a sympathy and interest unmistakable in the subject created. It was certainly a pity that a better representation of citizens was not present, as Dr. Porter covered the subject in a both interesting, highly instructive and educating manner. His delivery was excellent, and he proved himself to be a very able lecturer. A vivid description of the ravages of the white plaeue, of the numberless victims it claims, and lastly the efficacy of fresh air, rest, good food, exercise and sunshine in conqueroring the disease, made a deep impression upon the audience.

Rev. Wm. Burns of Hastings, read a paper on "Christian Socialism," which was also discussed. The meeting concluded with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson. The visiting clergy dispersed to their homes last night and this morning.

This Coffee Pot FREE

Why Dalton's French Drip Coffee is so Wholesome, Delicious and Economical

When you have once tasted Dalton's delicious French Drip Coffee, made in a Dalton's French Drip Coffee Pot, you will never be tempted to drink ordinary boiled Coffee again.

The Coffee berry, or bean, is protected by nature from the insect world by a tough outer shell or husk which contains tannin and other acid, bitter principles which are poisonous to insects and certainly not wholesome to the human system.

Other roasters of Coffee do not remove this bitter husk, and this is why many people find that ordinary Coffee does not agree with them. Not only that, but the usual way of roasting Coffee in cylinders over coke or gas fires, drives off the volatile essences, so essential to aroma and flavor.

Dalton's French Drip Coffee

The DALTON way is to throw the Coffee berries against an intensely hot flame. This roasts them in half the time and prevents the volatile essences being driven off. Then the Coffee is cooled by a special process, during which a strong suction air-blast blows off all foreign substances. Next comes the grinding, during which another powerful air-blast removes the poisonous, bitter outer shell. The Coffee contains absolutely no chicory and is packed in sealed tins, which preserve all the delightful flavor.

We make Dalton's French Drip Coffee in two strengths Mild Blend and Strong Blend. You cannot tell however which you will like the best until you try both and that is why we ask you to buy two tins in our special offer.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER.

We feel so sure that you will find either Dalton's Mild Blend or Strong Blend French Drip Coffee just the Coffee that you have been looking for that we have authorized your Grocer to give you one of these handsome pots (worth $1.30) absolutely Free with your first purchase of a tin each of Mild and Strong Blend. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—It is highly amusing to read the frantic efforts of the "friends of good government" to show that Mr. Lancaster was betrayed. It may not be necessary to say it, but the fact remains that Mr. Lancaster, on the floor of the House on that memorable occasion, openly accepted the course ultimately agreed to by Mr. Borden.

I sent 500 copies of Hansard to Peterborough, in care of Col. Miller, and it can be seen from this official report that in reply to Mr. Porter's questions both Mr. Borden and Mr. Lancaster accepted the course ultimately adopted, of sending both Lancaster's bill and a general stated case on to the Privy Council. What more need be said?

Yours truly,
J. H. BURNHAM.

The man came to him in a very self-possessed and airy manner, with the remark that he was sorry, that he was was compelled to ask for some d—— charity.

The officer didn't like the tone, nor the remark, and assured the man that he would nto get any charity unless in need, and that he should consider charity in a better light than in the slighting way he spoke of it.

The man left after giving an order for some wood to be left at a certain address.

A day or so later the officer received a note from the applicant stating that he had found wrok, and that the order could be cancelled.

Roosevelt Is Ready.

Trenton, N.J., Jan. 31.—"It is for his party and his country, not for Col. Roosevelt to decide the question of whether he is again to be a candidate for the Presidency. If they decide to nominate him I am sure he will accept. He will no more decline their call than he would decline to enlist if needed in the time of war."

The above quotation is part of a formal written statement over the signature of Lawrence F. Abbott, president of The Outlook Co., of which Col. Roosevelt is contributing editor, sent yesterday to former Governor E. C. Stokes. This is the most authoritative announcement of Col. Roosevelt's attitude.

Exiled by Lloyd-George.

London, Jan. 31.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Rev. R. E. Walker, who, with his family and several parishioners are going to British Columbia to farms, says one reason for his going is Lloyd-George, who is taxing folk out of existence.

"In that wonderful country my four boys are sure to make good," he says. Lady Emily Walker is an expert poultry farmer.

C.N.R.'s Plans For Year.

Winnipeg, Jan. 30.—Sir William Mackenzie arrived yesterday morning from the coast and spent the day at the office of the Canadian Northern. Beyond the fact that the Canadian Northern will spend $25,000,000 west of the Great Lakes, employing 20,000 men on construction this year, he had nothing to say other than confirm the report that the company would shortly have to double track its line between Winnipeg and Port Arthur. Work on branch lines in the west will be pushed in all directions.

Yesterday the Canadian Northern drove the last spike in the 96-mile extension from Edmonton to Athabasca Landing. Work is to be started at once on the new station at Calgary.

EL TERREMOTO.

A Love Affair That Reached Its Climax With a Shock.

By HONORE WILLSIE.

For three months now Eleanor had been on the desert edge fighting for her brother's health. At first the desperation of the struggle had kept her thoughts from straying eastward; had crammed with anxiety each moment that otherwise would have been wretched with homesickness.

But now, with the leisure that came with Jack's returning health, homesickness was beginning its inroads upon her. This made doubly hard to bear the fact that Jack was developing the fractiousness of the convalescent and that an ordinary pacific disposition was becoming so irritable that it taxed even the devotion of this most devoted sister. On this particular afternoon he had expressed an inordinate desire for a certain brand of cigars.

"But, Jack, dear," objected Eleanor, "the doctor says that you must not smoke."

"Who says I want to smoke?" growled Jack. "I just want to look at them and sniff of them and feel them. And I want them today."

Eleanor sighed patiently. "It's five miles to town, Jacky. And though it's 4 o'clock, it's frightfully hot. Don't you want to wait until tomorrow?"

"Oh, of course, if you don't want to do the favor for me," replied the invalid, walking feebly across the tent to pick up a fan.

"Why, certainly I'm going, Jacky," she cried. "The heat won't last much longer," and she disappeared toward her own tent, leaving her brother looking a bit sheepish.

So now Eleanor was riding slowly along the blistering trail toward the sleepy little adobe village which boasted a single Yankee store, at which she thought she could get the cigars. She was a beautiful girl, slender of body and lovely of face, with the refinement of good blood through many generations showing in every lineament. Her dark blue eyes, shadowed by the heavy lashes, looked tired, and her figure drooped a little as if in utter weariness.

"It's getting pretty hard," she thought. "It's spring up there, with the snow melting into little rivulets and the pussy willows out and the wild flowers coming. Only the thought of Jack's getting well keeps me from going mad."

She started a little as a cheery halloo greeted her and she saw riding down the trail toward her a broad shouldered, jolly chap in cowboy attire. He wheeled his mustang and rode beside her.

"I was taking a jaunt out to tell you that I have almost finished my work and must fly eastward again."

"Oh, that is too bad!" cried Eleanor.

The man's fine brown eyes beamed. "I've only known you a week," he answered, "but it's been a mighty pleasant week."

"Jack will miss you," said the girl.

The man eyed her silently. "She's wearing herself out," he thought. "I wish I could take her away from here. Berwell's nearly strong enough to go it alone now. By Jove, she's a beauty!"

Eleanor wiped the alkali dust from her face and told him the reason for her trip to town.

"Rather hard on you," commented Hartley.

Eleanor smiled, but said nothing, and they rode for some distance in silence, Hartley's gaze scarcely leaving for an instant the drooping profile beside him.

"I wonder," he thought, "if she realizes that she's never told me a word of herself, who she is or—by the Lord Harry, if she'd have me I'd marry her tomorrow even if they both came from a foundling asylum."

By this time they were riding up the street of the dirty little Mexican village, whose inhabitants were too absorbed in the sight of the Americanos to move from beneath the horses' feet until urged to do so by Hartley in a patois that made up in vigor what it lacked in lucidity.

The Yankee store was the only frame building for miles around. It was owned by an enterprising Vermonter, who was making a small fortune in the lazy little town, where money went faster than it came.

Hartley tied the horses, and they entered the store. Just as they stepped within the door it slammed shut violently behind them, and the tremor of its impact shook the entire building. The storekeeper, the only other person in the dusky room, looked up in surprise that quickly changed to alarm. The tremor, instead of ceasing, increased.

"What's the matter?" he cried, running to the front of the store.

"I don't know," replied Hartley. "If I were up north I'd think it was a dynamite blast, but"—

Here the crockery in the window clattered and a roll of turkey red fell to the floor.

"It's an earthquake!" cried the Vermonter. "Come on, get out of here quick!" And he made a dash for the knob. But the door was fast, and immediately the floor was rocking so violently that the whole room seemed filled with flying articles from the store shelves. Hartley suddenly pulled Eleanor toward him, as if trying to shield her with his body. Then a great rumble, with continuous shocks like explosions, a fearful crash and darkness!

It had all happened in so short a space of time that Eleanor had scarcely realized that she was actually encountering an earthquake. She had been thrown violently to the ground, as the final shock came, and now she felt out in the darkness and encountered Hartley's quiet form. Almost hysterical with fright, she called to him and chafed his hands feverishly. Then came the voice of the storekeeper:

"Hello, you two in there!"

"Yes," called Eleanor weakly. "I'm all right, but Mr. Hartley seems badly hurt."

"The whole dinged front of the store has fallen in," called the Vermonter, "but I got out through a hole. Can you stay still till I get help?"

"Yes," answered Eleanor, and again she fell to chafing Hartley's hands.

It was a long and arduous task to remove the debris without injury to the prisoners beneath. The work was doubly long owing to the fact that what few natives had not fled to the desert were hovering over their ruined adobes with wails of "El terremoto! El terremoto!" so that the storekeeper did most of the work himself.

Long before their rescue Hartley had recovered his senses and by combining their two handkerchiefs Eleanor had bound the wound in his head that seemed to be his only injury. It was twilight when they reached the street, a quiet, southern twilight, with just the edge of a great full moon coming up over the edge of the desert.

As soon as it was possible Eleanor, with Hartley on guard, set out for camp. She was greatly disturbed over her brother, though the natives assured her that the shock was not serious where there were no buildings.

Hartley, looking like a picturesque bandit with his bandaged forehead, was in great spirits despite his aching head. He said little until they were well out on the trail. Then he rode close up to Eleanor's pony.

"Miss Burwell," he said, "an accident like this makes us friends of about ten years' standing, doesn't it?"

"It surely does!" cried Eleanor.

"Then," he went on eagerly, "don't you think that two such old friends could safely care for each other and—and perhaps marry each other?"

Eleanor did not seem so much astonished as the short acquaintanceship might warrant. But she blushed deeply in the moonlight.

"But you don't know me, and I don't know you," she said.

"Well, I'm an architect," he answered, "and I live in Chicago, and"—

"Not the 'John Hartley, architect,' that all the world knows?" cried Eleanor.

"I'm afraid so," he replied a little sheepishly.

Eleanor gasped. "My little name sinks into insignificance," she said.

Hartley looked at her suspiciously.

"You aren't E. Burwell, the illustrator?" he exclaimed.

"I'm afraid so," she mocked.

Hartley stopped the ponies and drew her close in his arms. "Whatever the names," he whispered, "we belong to one another, anyhow."

Dr. Hamilton's Pills Cured

"I think it should be the duty of the schools to teach children how to keep well," writes Miss Nannie E. Naydon, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of Bristol. "Ignorance of the laws of health and the use of improper remedies destroyed my vigor, and led me to the verge of invalidism. I was as a girl ruddy and strong. Nothing seemed to affect me until I was about thirty. Then gas began to form in the stomach. I suffered with bloating and a general failure in strength set in. If I went upstairs my breath hurt. My system was very irregular, and until I grew pretty bad I didn't pay much heed to my condition. Then I got blue, worried all the time, wakened in the night, and couldn't get to sleep again. None of the medicine I took helped me. One day I was reading of a very interesting case like mine cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I took the same treatment. It was just right—didn't physic me to death, but took hold of the weak, sick parts of my system, and set things right. It seems as if Dr. Hamilton's Pills have made me young again, and all my color, spirits, vigor, and health of former days have returned to stay."

Every girl and woman should use Dr. Hamilton's Pills regularly. They help a woman in many ways. Beware of the dealer who asks you to take an inferior pill on which his profit is larger than on Dr. Hamilton's. Sold in yellow boxes, 25c per box, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone, Co., Kingston, Ont.

PETES DEFEATED THE STRENGTHENED LINDSAY TEAM IN GRUELLING CONTEST AND ANNEXED THE DISTRICT HONORS

Locals Made a Great Start and Lead by 3-0 at an Early Period of the First Half—Lindsay Had Hard Time to Score With But Two Forwards and Derocher to Beat—Final Count Was 6-4.

"Bud" Kelly scored the first goal after but one minute's play; the score at half-time was 4-2; at the finish the figures stood 6-4, and the better team won.

It was Peterboro all the way, but they were going some, and had to keep it up. A let up would have done wonders for Lindsay.

Those fans who were unable to make the trip, missed a real hockey game. The 600 who did go, and were fortunate to find breathing space in the Lindsay rink will remember that game for a lon gtime to come. "Cap" Simpson said the crowd was the largest ever inside the doors and his statement goes undisputed.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC CROWD

It was a crowd closely numbering 1200 and in every way it was a typical gathering of followers of the king of winter sports—hockey. How they did cheer when a goal was scored and on the other hand gave vent to their feelings when the rules of the game were violated and the players were banished to the penalty box. The cheer that went up when Kelly netted the first counter for Peterboro; Peter Spratt the first for his team and Bearss the last tally of the night, which was the death knell of the Lindsay Intermediate team, so far as the 1912 championship was concerned, was enough to cause rain to fall. The last gaol by Bearss caused a sigh of relief from the local rooters and a groan from the camp of the enemy. With three goals behind, six minutes after the second half was commenced, Lindsay continued a game fight and succeeded through shots by Cain and Cote, in bringing the score to 5-4. This situation with the continual march of Peterboro players to the time keepers, fairly made the spectators hold their breath at times, the Lindsay rooters looking for a tie to be reached and the Petes supporters hoping for another score. For fourteen minutes the excitement was intense. Both goaltenders stopped what looked to be sure counters and with the rubber working overtime, it can readily imagined what the noise was like when the visitors' coverpoint shook the netting and put his team two shots in the lead. And although the end of the game was near at hand, Lindsay didn't give up. Young Jack Spratt, tired out as he was, with the assistance of Cote, Cain and Stoddard pressed on, but they were held safe, the effective checking of the invaders together with the sticky condition of the ice, doing the trick. When it was all over, it wasn't altogether like the stillness of a holiday in Peterboro. Henceforth or for some time at least, it is said, a considerable portion of the population of Lindsay will use tobacco stamps for money.

LOCALS DESERVED THE WIN

To the cistors, rightfully belong the spoils of the battle. If ever a team deserved to win aside from its strength or superiority, over its opponents it was the Petes. Some Lindsay fans held that the winners had all the luck, but when the list of absentees from the engagement is perused, it looks as though the boot was on the other foot. Of the twenty five penalties handed out by referee Burgoyne, seventeen went against Peterboro. Every man except Derocher did time, and some more than once. Each team was not allowed a goal which was claimed and the break in offside getaways was even.

WHERE LINDSAY FAILED

Lindsay had a great chance to land a few counters in the first half after the score stood 4-1 against them, but the best forthcoming was a lone tally by Stoddard. Then Peterboro was playing with a shortage in material to the extent of four men, Coughlin, Bearss, Giroux and Bond. Captain Park and Fred Kelly had to oppose the whole Lindsay team and at that Park wiggled through with an exhibition of that clever stick work, distinctly his own, and fairly earned a score but his shot went a little high of the nets. When the score did come and it was certainly not to be wondered at, it wasn't the phenomenal Jack Spratt who pulled the string but rather the old war horse Bill Stoddard. It was then that the famous youngster should have got in the wrok so much expected of him, but he fell down.

THE ROOTERS' CLUB.

The rink was comfortably filled at 7.30, and by this time the local supporters to the number of three hundred, who made the trip on the regular train, were on the inside. Led by Jimmie Callaghan and several others, choruses of the Rooters' Club broke out in different parts of the rink. It looked like business and the boys did well with their parodies. The crowd kept coming and managed to land a berth. The Lindsay team was first to appear, and in their company was the mascot. Joe Primeau. Hardly, however, had he taken several strokes when down he went in a heap. The sign was a bad one for the team. Next to appear was "Bingo," another mascot. This was the animal billed to do great things for Lindsay, and he did not. The players worked the puck for a short practice and looked fit for the coming battle. All eyes were upon Jack Spratt, and it was conceded by the opposition camp that there was nothing to it but a win for Lindsay. The Petes landed on the ice in good time and looked just as fit. Referee Burgoyne spent considerable time in completing preliminary arrangements, and when he started the teams away at 8.45, they were lined up like this:

PETERBOROUGH.
Derocher
Bond
Bearss
Giroux
Coughlin Park Kelly
Cain J. Spratt Cote
Stoddard.
Roberts.
P. Spratt
Gamble.
LINDSAY.

KELLY SCORED FIRST.

The play started off with a rush and down to the Lindsay end. Jerry Coughlin drew first shot and Roberts the first penalty. After going but one minute the puck was passed out to Kelly, who was settled and waiting for such a thing to happen, and he beat Gamble by a swift shot.

Right after the faceoff, Kelly again secured and shot dead on the nets from his wing. Gene Hurtubise elevated his hand and a mighty roar from the Peterborough fans went up. Lindsay, however protested, and Burgoyne allowed, Hurtubise being relieved of the job, and Stan Cook taking his place. Lindsay rushed the puck to Derocher, who blocked in clever style, and Park was banished. Bond, Bearss and Cote followed him and with the odds in their favor Lindsay tried hard to land a tally, but couldn't beat Derocher. The teams were travelling at a terrific pace, all eyes watching the battle between Spratt and Park. All hands returned to the ice and Derocher blocked a hard shot from Bill Stoddard, and a few seconds later roamed from his nets to get in the way of another. A scrammage resulted, but no harm was done. In six minues Jerry Coughlin, after having one shot turned aside, tried again, and the score stood

Peterborough 2, Lindsay 0.

In another three minutes he accepted a pass from Park, and the locals were three to the good. Lindsay was having their share of the rubber, but the checking of the Petes was superb, and Bearss and Bond were working all to the good. From the faceoff Jack Spratt secured, and with a speedy rush went right to Derocher and placed the rubber behind. It was a pretty piece of hockey and Lindsay fans went wild. Lindsay pressed, but Derocher was too much of a proposition. Giroux was chased, and Kelly got in a pretty board rush. Lindsay recovered and Pete Spratt raised a cheer when he went into Bearss and sent the local cover to the ice. Coughlin tore down the boards, but failed to count. Peter Spratt received a nasty cut from a skate, and had to retire, Giroux accompanying him. This injury placed Spratt at a big disadvantage for the remainder of the game. Bond broke up a three man combination, and Burgoyne put on a "sprawling" specialty. Cain scored, but the play was offside. Lindsay missed a great chance to gather a tally on a rebound off Derocher, but there was nothing doing. Bearss went off. The next score went to Coughlin, who worked his way clear through, making the count

Peterborough 4 Lindsay 1.

Lindsay secured the second tally, while four of the Petes were in the coop, Stoddard find the hole, and the half came without further scoring.

SECOND HALF.

The ice for the second half was in poor condition, and after fifteen minutes had gone by it was almost impossible to work the puck. The play was not so fast, but the result was uncertain and interest remained at a high pitch. Lindsay started off without Cain and Peterborough was short Giroux and Bond, who had to finish terms from the first half. Jack Spratt took a jaunt, but received the necessary attention. Bearss was banished and Cain and Bond returned to the ice. Lindsay had the better of the play for a few minutes, but found it impossible to score. Bond was seized with a cramp. Peterborough worked the puck up to Gamble; Spratt returned and Derocher made a great stop, the puck almost finding its way over the line. Another shot came his way, but he was right on. Bearss got into action again, and Pete Spratt drew time. The assault of Lindsay was brief, and finally the Petes were right at it again. Kelly and Giroux combined, but the shot was wide. Park was sentenced, and a minute later was joined by Cain. Kelly broke away for a high shot and a second one went wide. Bond went off again. The ice was now in a wretched condition, but Bearss was the more at home of his team, and rushed repeatedly. Neither team let up and the crowd was calling for a score. Giroux and Stoddard drew penalties, and the first tally of the half followed one of Bearss' rushes, he taking the shot.

Park came on again. Derocher stopped J. Spratt's shot. Cain resumed play, and taking a pass from J. Spratt, beat Derocher, making the score

Peterborough 5, Lindsay 3.

Bond and Stoddard returned to the ice and Derocher blocked from Spratt. Lindsay worked the puck about Peterborough territory, and after the play went into the corner, a pass went out to Cotey and he scored. With Lindsay lacking one to tie, the teams went at it strong again, but the condition of the ice prevented fast play. Good chances were lost to both teams by overskating the puck, or by losing it in the slush. The procession of players to the fence continued, and at times the focals played minus their defence. Bearss made the score 6—4 and the finale as the gong sounded can easily imagined.

Conserving the Forests.

The progress of the conservation policy of Canada, as applied to forest resources, depends more upon the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior than upon any other organization. Upon the technical knowledge and executive ability of the officers of the Forestry Branch depends the future of the forest on 16,000,000 acres of Dominion forest reserves, as well as upon the large area of non-agricultural forest land in Western Canada, which for the good of the country may yet be set aside as permanent forest reserves. In addition to looking after Dominion lands the Forestry Branch is now being asked by Eastern land owners to furnish advice as to the best means of securing at the earliest date a profitable crop of timber on waste land or wood lots. In order that the new Rocky Mountain forest reserves may be administered according to the latest scientific knowledge and the best experience, the Forestry Branch is now making detailed studies of the habits of the merchantable species of trees on the eastern slope of the Rockies in Alberta and has sent one of the men in charge of the work to study the systems of forest management practiced during the past few years by the Forest Service in the national forests of Montana.

Cost of Living

The Transvaal in 1911 produced just about as much gold as the entire world did in 1894. This and kindred facts go far to explain the added cost of living, i.e., the lessened purchasing power of the dollar.

EXPLANATION & THANKS

ROBERT FAIR & CO., Limited, wish to thank the people of Peterborough and surrounding country for the splendid response that came during the recent great Sale. The very heavy liquidation of their big stock which was brought about was done entirely without profit to the Store, all benefits going to the patrons of the Sale. The reasons for Mr. Fair's contemplated retirement are just as urgent as ever, but the opportunity for relinquishing his interests has not quite materialized. In the meantime the business of the Company will and always will be continued. Every department will be kept fully equipped and amply supplied with the most reliable merchandise, and with the same high standard of quality maintained throughout that has hitherto characterized this store. The superintendents of the departments and selling staff, with a few exceptions, will not undergo any change; all courtesies and conveniences in the way of open accounts will be available, and continue as in the past.

In order to relieve Mr. Fair to as great an extent as possible, Mr. George S. McCartney, for a long period a valued employee, and Mr. Arthur D. Wood, who has been in the service of the Company since entering as an apprentice, both young men of splendid dry goods experience, will be promoted to more responsible positions, thereby making the management a much less arduous undertaking.

MR. FAIR feels that he owes this explanation to the public, and in doing so wishes to emphasize his thanks for the material assistance his patrons have been in furthering the object he has in view.

HAPPENINGS AT OMEMEE

A Golden Wedding—Church Meeting

Special Correspondence

Omemee, Jan. 29.—At the annual business meeting of the Presbyterian church at Mount Pleasant on Tuesday evening, the congregation took occasion to present their organist, Mr. Herman McLean, with a watch and an address.

Reeeve R. J. Mulligan attended the meeting of the County Council at Lindsay last week, and so did Mr. Isaac H. Fee, Reeve of Emily township.

Reviewing the weather of the past two or three weeks, we have about concluded that the weather prophet using the pancreas of the domestic hog as his guide, has a frail staff to lean on, and his prognostications for the season have been anything but accurate.

The Public Library Board has completed arrangements with a high class musical organization for a concert in Coronation Hall on the 10th of Feb.

The Canadian Order of Foresters held their election of officers last week, and in the near future the installation of the same will take place and be concluded with an oyster supper. The order shows vigor and progress.

The Christian Brotherhood are completing arrangements for their concert on February 14th. Reserve the date

Mrs Gliddon, of Peterborough, was in town on Thursday.

Mrs Harriet Purdy-Smith, of Lindsay, was a visitor to Omemee on Monday.

Ice is being harvested and the crop is pronounced excellent.

On Monday afternoon, the annual meeting of the Omemee Creamery was held in Coronation Hall.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Elliott, of King street west, was celebrated on Monday. Their son, Mr. Walter Elliott, I. P. S., of Toronto, and their daughter, Mrs. Hart, with their respective families, were present, as were a large number of local people. A sumptuous repast concluded, there were many toasts honored, and none with more fervor than that of the venerable bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Elliott are enjoying vigorous health and are the recipients of many felicitous expressions from their numerous friends.

The annual business meeting of the Presbyterian Church was held on Wednesday, 17th inst., at 7.30 p. m. After tea had been served by the ladies, the reports from the various organizations were read by their respective secretaries. Advance and increase was the note sounded by every report, and all present joined in acknowledging that 1911 was one of the best years in the history of the church. It was decided to adopt the duplex envelope for ordinary revenue and missions. A vote of thanks and appreciation was passed in favor of Mr. Harry Lamb, the efficient secretary and treasurer; also a vote of confidence and appreciation was unanimously passed to the Pastor, Rev. D. H. Currie, through whose energetic efforts the success of the past two years is largely due. It was agreed to have the usual number of copies of the annual report printed for distribution.

The Ladies' Aid Society met on 24th inst., at the home of Mrs. John Morrison and elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—Mrs. Kelley,

Would Quash Reduction Bylaw.

Kingston, Jan. 31.—The battle between liquor and temperance interests commenced yesterday, when the liquor men entered an appeal against putting into effect the license reduction bylaw, passed by 66 votes on Jan. 1. T. J. Rigney is acting for hotelmen and will apply for a hearing before high court judge at Osgoode Hall. The charge is that the bylaw should be quashed on the ground that there were irregularities and that some ratepayers voted in more than one ward.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC OFFICES MOVE

Accomodation for Staff in Parliament Buildings—New Labratory Building

Toronto, Jan. 31.—Preparations are under way for the transfer of the hydro-electric commission's offices to the new north wing of the parliament buildings. From the cramped downtown offices of the seventh floor of the Continental Life building, the headquarters of the cheap power movement in Ontario is soon to be removed to the palatial north wing that is nearing completion in Queen's Park.

No better estimate of how the scope of the hydro-electric policy is extending could be obtained than by a glance at what floor space is needed for the general commission's offices and engineering departments. They will occupy the second and fourth floors of the new wing, the education department being slated for the first floor and the library for the third.

The purchasing department, testing department, storehouses, workshops and laboratories will be located in a new building, which is to be erected on Garrison common. Plans for this building are already prepared, and tenders will be advertised for immediately. It will cost in the neighborhood of $70,000, and is to be of three storeys and basement, with a garage atached. A railway siding will be built in connection with the new building for transportation conveniences.

Apart from the work of the hydro-electric commission throughout the province, this building will be of great assistance to the city's hydro-electric department, for testing can be done in the laboratories, and supplies of all kinds for the needs of the Toronto system can be accommodated there.

TO THE FARMERS OF THE West Riding of Peterborough

Gentlemen,—To-day (Jan. 26) Hon. Mr. Pugsley, Mini ter of Public Works in the late Laurier Administration moved in the House of Commons that the Borden government take immediate steps to bring about preferential reciprocal trade with Australasia. He was supported by Mr. Ames (Conservative) of Montreal Centre, and others from populous centres. The government, through Hon. Mr. Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, promised to bring it on accordingly and to send commissioners to Australasia early in the spring, for that purpose. Australasia exports in vast quantities mutton and beef and poultry, and in some years vast quantities of butter and eggs, and other farm products, at prices less than one-half (delivered here) of the like products of Canadian farmers. Such a treaty, on the proposed list for list basis, would rob the farmer here of this protection and almost ruin him. That is my opinion. But I believe that our farmers should be protected as well as our other manufacturers and I do not propose to discriminate against the farmer and in favor of the manufacturer, unless the farmers wish it. I appeal therefore to the farmers of W. Peterborough to let me know with all speed if they are in favor of preferential reciprocity with Australasia. If so I will vote for it. If they consider it contrary to their interests and will let me know I will vote against it. No time is to be lost.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier supported very strongly the proposition for an Australasian preferential reciprocity treaty.

Yours truly,

J. H. BURNHAM.

Father, Mother, Sister, Brother, All Should Use Parisian Sage

Prevents Baldness—Banishes Dandruff—Stops Falling Hair and Itching Scalp

PARISIAN SAGE is a family hair tonic and dressing that will do much good in every home.

The man who uses PARISIAN SAGE if only occasionally will never grow bald. Baldness is caused by dandruff germs which dig down into the the roots of the hair, devour its nourishment and cause the root to die and the hair to fall and thin out.

PARISIAN-SAGE is a scientific hair remedy that not only kills the dandruff germs, but gives the hair roots just the same nourishment that nature gives it.

PARISIAN SAGE first kills the germs; then nourishes the weakened hair roots and causes a growth of healthy hair.

This same nourishment (PARISIAN SAGE) causes the hair to grow vigorous, which means that the hair becomes full of life and lustre, and grows radiant and beautiful.

Thousands are wasting time, losing hair and growing bald because they are using superficial tonics. While they may clean the scalp and make it feel refreshed, they do not get to the root of the hair where the real destroyer of hair, the pernicious dandruff germs, thrives and multiplies.

PURCHASE PHONES AND TELEGRAPHS

J. E. Armstrong Urges the Government to Purchase Rights.

Favors the Appointment of a Commission to Investigate.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—J. E. Armstrong (E. Lambton) brought up in Parliament yesterday afternoon the question of nationalization of telephones, telegraphs, wireless telegraphy and cables. He urged that the commercial telegraph system of Canada could be purchased for $10,000,000. The Government should own the trunk lines of telephones.

In both telegraphs and telephones we get "the lean end of it." the monopolies reaping the big profit. It was the same with the parcel post and the express companies.

Mr. Armstrong moved the following resolution: "That in the opinion of this House, a commission should be appointed to investigate the systems of national telegraphs and telephones, wireless telegraphs and cables, also postal conditions, laws and regulations, parcel post, means of collecting and distributing mails, with a view to submitting such data and information to the Postoffice Department as would help to improve existing conditions in all the above, and to further enquire into postal facilities in rural districts in other countries in order that a better system of rural free mail delivery may be inaugurated."

The Premier had declared on his Halifax platform of 1907 that he did not see why the nationalization of telegraphs and telephones, which had been demonstrated a success in Great Britain should not be equally so in Canada.

"If Canada went about acquiring these great public utilities under common sense business methods," declared Mr. Armstrong, "they would become a source not only of revenue, but of great advantage to the people.

"There were five great means of transmitting intelligence of vital importance to every man, woman and child in the country, the telegraph, telephone, wireless telegraphy, cables and postoffice. They should all be part of the postoffice system.

"To-day the Dominion operated 8,000 miles of telegraph at a loss of $270,000. The C.P.R. operated over 12,000 miles of pole lines, and over 76,000 miles of wire, and their net profit last year was $1,270,000. The G.N.W., with 11,000 miles of pole line, and 50,000 miles of wire had been able to cover up their earnings to a great extent, because they were controlled from the U. S. The purchase of the entire telegraph system of Canada, however, should not exceed $13,000,000 or $14,000,000 or probably $10,000,000 after deducting the lines necessary to operate the railways.

As to telephones, there were 460 independent companies in Ontario, and in the Dominion about 1,000. These were practically on their knees to the Bell Telephone Co.

"The proposal that I have to make to Parliament," said Mr. Armstrong, "is that we should own the trunk lines of telephone, that these trunk lines should go to the independent companies and let the municipalities or the independent companies own, control and operate these lines and make them local concerns."

Telegraph and telephone should go hand and hand as the same wires could be used for both.

In telegraph and telephone we owned the "lean end of it," the productive end was left to the great monopolies.

Wireless telegraphy was in much the same position. Of the 25 stations, costing Canada $10,000 to $25,000 each, 15 were controlled by the Marconi people, the unprofitable end being operated by the Government, at a very great loss. The whole system should be nationalized.

As to parcel post, the postoffice again did the unprofitable end of it. The remunerative end was done by the express companies, who were able to par 100 and 200 per cent. dividends.

The bulk of the stock owned in our principal telegraph companies, said Mr. Armstrong, was owned in the United States. There was no British-owned cable.

Lowering of rates did not necessarily mean lowering of revenue, as was shown in lowering of the postal rate from 3 to 2 cents in 1896. The "night letters" advertised by the telegraph companies showed that there was profitable business at a much lower rate. A telegram of 10 words could be sent anywhere in Holland for 10 cents.

The proposed commission should go abroad to study public utilities and get information about the most improved systems. Not one per cent. of the people used the cables. Surely this was an argument for the Government taking over the system.

The House adjourned at 6 o'clock. Mr. Armstrong not having concluded his discussion.

Richard Blain's (Peel) resolution declaring, that where possible, telephones should be placed in the postoffices, was declared out of order, although Hon. L. P. Pelletier expressed his anxiety for the discussion to go on, on the ground that a private member could not introduce a resolution involving expenditure of money.

SERIOUS STREET RIOTS IN PARIS

Many Are Injured When Police and Soldiers Make Charge

Special to the Review.

Paris, France, Feb. 1—Serious street riots brought about by a strike of the taxicab chauffeurs, occurred to-day.

The police and soldiers charged the mobs and many were injured.

Numerous non-union drivers were pulled from their seats and their cars burned or destroyed.

Decree Does Not Apply.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Rev. Father O'Connor, of St. Bridget's Church, an authority on Roman Catholic ecclesiastical law, in a statement to the press yesterday says that the Quantavis Deligentia, the papal decree which forbids Roman Catholic laymen to bring clerics of their faith before the courts, is not applied to this country. He explains that in the decree, after it is set forth that excommunication will be the lot of whomsoever brings a priest or bishop before a lay court, there appear the words "contrary to canon law." Furthermore, he stated, the Quantavis is really but the restatement of an old decree and by expert authorities it is considered that it will apply only where the old decree was in force. The latter, in Canada as well as other English-speaking countries, was not enforced and there is in this country a general ecclesiastical permission to bring clerics before lay judges when such course becomes absolutely necessary.

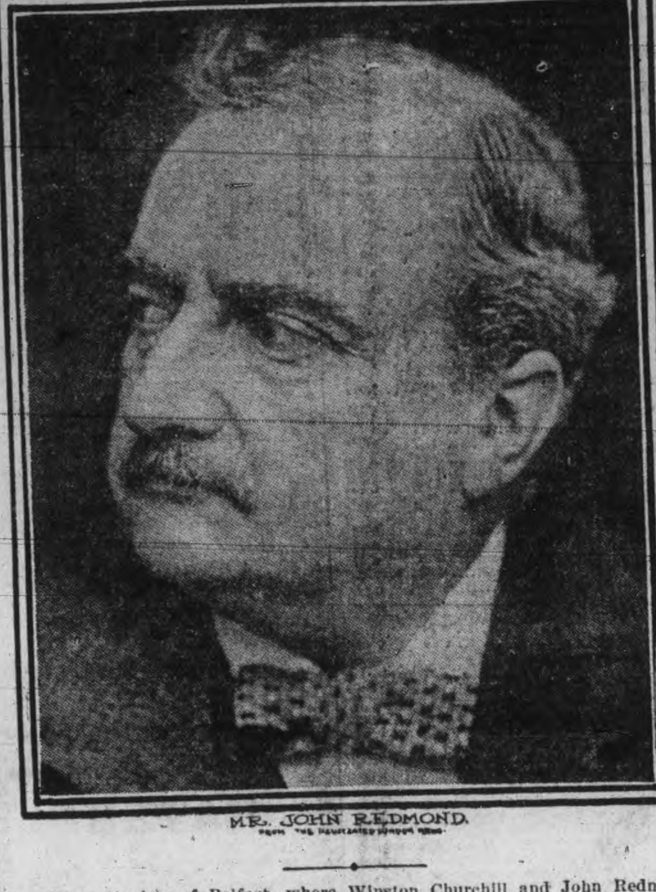
REDMOND WILL BRAVE ANGRY UNIONISTS TO SPEAK FOR HOME RULE AT BELFAST



MR. JOHN REDMOND.

The unionists of Belfast, where Winston Churchill and John Redmond are scheduled to speak for home rule on February 8, have taken Ulster Hall for February 7, with the object, it is said, of retaining possession of it for twenty-four hours or longer to keep the nationalists out. Some alarmists go so far as to predict bloodshed

EMPRESS DOWAGER OF CHINA SIGNS ABDICATION DECREE

London, Feb. 1.—The edict of abdication of the Chinese throne has been signed according to a message from Tientsin.

The court will not quit Pekin for a month as the Manchu troops of the garrison threaten to shoot the royal family and the princes if they attempt to leave the capital.

Empress Orders Flight.

Pekin, China, Feb. 1.—The Imperial Foreign Board announces that the Empress Dowager informed the members of the Cabinet at their meeting in the palace yesterday that the throne had decided on a solution of the situation which would insure peace. She instructed the Ministers to arrange accordingly.

It is believed that Premier Yuan Shi Kai and the Republicans are now in complete agreement. While he is endeavoring to persuade the recalcitrant Manchu elements to accept abdication peaceabaly, Yuan Shi Kai is taking measures to prevent any outbreak on their part from becoming serious.

Martial Law In Tientsin.

London, Feb. 1.—A terrible panic among the officials in Tientsin has caused many of them to seek shelter in the foreign concessions.

Martial law has been proclaimed in the native city, according to a special despatch received here yesterday.

GERMAN PAPER ASSAILS KNOX

Says He is One of the Bitterest Foes of Germany in the U.S.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—The Kreuz Zeitung couples with a despatch giving the substance of the speeches of Secretary Knox and the German Ambassador Count von Bernsdorff, at the National Press Club in Washington Tuesday night, a half column attack upon the American Secretary of State as one of the bitterest enemies of Germany in the United States, "as shown in his recent attempt to inaugurate anti-German tariff reprisals."

"Those well informed on American conditions," says the paper, "assert that Mr. Knox is chiefly responsible for the strong anti-German trend which is now and then manifested in the official American policy."

The Kreuz Zeitung says that the very manner of taking up the arbitration treaties indicates that President Taft and Secretary Knox are interested, first and foremost, in concluding the French and British treaties, to hold as a club over Germany. American comment on the visit of the Duke of Connaught, it adds, shows that American statesmen are more inclined to an alliance with Great Britain than to a friendship with Germany.

Sister's Confession Unavailing.

Ne wYork, Feb. 1.—James McDermott was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree by a jury yesterday afternoon, notwithstanding the testimony of his sister, Mrs. Theresa Martin, that it was she and not the defendant who stabbed to death Charles Muldoon in the back room of a saloon. The woman made this confession on Tuesday, when promised immunity, but the judge charged the jury to take into consideration when weighing her testimony that she had lied to the coroner and that she was a participant in a saloon brawl.

POSTMASTERS WANT A RAISE

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Hon. L. P. Pelletier, Postmaster-General, heard a deputation yesterday representing the Postmasters' Association of Canada, asking for an increase in salary.

There are six thousand members of the association and they claim the postmasters are underpaid.

They ask that the commission on the sale of stamps may be made a sliding one in proportion to the revenue of the office. They also want an allowance for heating, lighting, and maintenance of offices which are not situated in Government buildings and that for work before eight in the morning and after seven in the evening over time be paid at the rate of twenty-five cents an hour.

Mr. Pelletier promised the matter every consideration. The deputation consisted of J. V. Bourque, Shediac, president of the association, H. E. Proctor, Aurora, Ont., secretary, and H. S. Moore, Norwich, Ont.

DEATH OF MRS. WM. NICKLE AT KINGSTON

Attack Judge Who Released Burns.

Indianapolis, Feb. 1.—Condemning Federal Judge Anderson for releasing Detective William J. Burns, accused of kidnapping in connection with the arrest of J. J. McNamara, the convention of the United Mine Workers of America yesterday adopted a resolution demanding that Congress investigate the action with a view to removing him.

The resolution also criticises the federal judge for taking documents held by the country court, declaring that his action set at naught the laws of the state.

REMINDS THE OPPOSITION OF THEIR FORMER SHORTCOMINGS

Memories of the Liberals Are Short in Regard to Bye Elections.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—The Opposition yesterday afternoon made a determined attack on the Government in connection with the delay in the issue of the writ for the South Renfrew election.

A. H. Clarke (S. Essex) moved the adjournment of the House "in order to discuss a question of public urgency." Nearly two months, he said, had elapsed since the constituency of South Renfrew had been vacated by the resignation of Mr. Low on Dec. 7, but no writ had been issued. The constituency had been "bound and gagged."

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden referred to Mr. Clarke's argument as "excellent fooling." The hon. gentleman himself had sat in the house "dumb" while periods exceeding four times that which the South Renfrew seat had been vacant, has passed.

A number of cases in which the late Government had kept constituencies vacant for long periods were quoted by the Premier. They ranged from 111 to 299 days, including Beauce (1901) 111 days; St. James' Division of Montreal (1901), 111 days; Addington (1901), 111 days; L'Islet (1901), 111 days; Montmagny (1908), no writ before dissolution; Saskatchewan (1905), 118 days; West Assiniboia (1905), 131 days; Vancouver (1900), 141 days; North Grey (1902), 147 days; London (1901), 157 days; York, N.B., (1908), 167 days; N. Simcoe (1898), 168 days; Lisgar (1901), 173 days; W. Durham (1901), 181 days; Bagot (1898), 216 days; W. Huron (1898), 241 days; W. Hastings (1901), 260 days; Winnipeg (1899), 279 days; St. James Division of Montreal (1903), 229 days.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier declared that the only defence the Government seemed capable of was the "tu quoque" argument. In none of the cases mentioned by the Premier, with the exception of one or two, he remembered a word of protest from the opposition.

He recalled that Mr. Borden, when in Opposition, had introduced a bill providing for automatic issue of the writ following the issue of the Speaker's warrant. What a change now?

Rt. Hon. R. L. Borden: "Did you support it?"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "The case of my Rt. Hon. friend is different. If I have sinned I have been chastised for it."

THOUSANDS ENTER STRONG PROTEST

Taft Defends Tariff Board.

Akron, O., Feb. 1.—President Taft brought his three days' trip through northern and central Ohio to an end here last night with a reception and a dinner given by the Akron Chamber of Commerce in his honor. The President spoke on the tariff board at the dinner, and gave his reasons for wishing its continued existence, threatened, he said, by a Democratic House of Representatives for the first time in the memory of his party.

Murder Suspected.

Ridgetown, Ont., Feb. 1.—The body of a young child was found near the Pere Marquette tracks yesterday morning. It was first noticed by Mrs. McCauley, who at once communicated with the police. Dr. Marr, who made an examination of the remains, gave it as his opinion that the child had been murdered, and the police are investigating. The body had been partly eaten by dogs.

Brick Industry For Galt.

Galt, Feb. 1.—A $75,000 project, in which Toronto capital is concerned, is being promoted here. The proposition is an extensive plant to manufacture pressed brick, of sand and lime. An option has been secured on an immense sand deposit adjoining the Grand Trunk track north of the town.

MARKS FOUND ON THE BODY

Peculiar Circumstances Revealed at Inquest

Man Who Died in Hospital Cut and Bruised

Toronto, Feb. 1.—When the body of John Sterling, who died Saturday night at the Weston Consumptive Hospital, was brought home Sunday evening, his widow, Annie Sterling, according to her testimony last night, noticed that his right arm was so tightly bound behind him that for a moment she thought he had lost that member. In lifting the arm into proper position she discovered it bathed in blood, which had spread over his shoulder. At the inquest opened at the morgue, at the request of the chief coroner, by Coroner Hopkins of West Toronto, last night, she was firmly conviced that her husband's body had been opened without permission after death, which gives a new phase to the already peculiar circumstances surrounding Sterling's death.

"My husband's arm and shoulder were saturated with blood where he had been opened," said Mrs. Sterling, on the stand, "and I want to know who did this, for it was done without any permission."

Coroner Hopkins assured her that the next session of the inquest, Wednesday, Feb. 7, would bring out evidence that would ascertain the truth. Accordingly some of the physicians and nurses at Weston Sanitarium will be summoned to give evidence next Wednesday.

Sterling was found dead beside his cot at the sanitarium last Saturday night. He was in a ward with one other patient, who discovered the lifeless body on the floor and immediately rang for a nurse, who quickly responded. The pulse had stopped completely, she found, and the physician who was later called said he believed Sterling must have been dead when he struck the floor, rolling from his cot during his last struggle.

When the body was removed to Atterlink's home, 250 Berkeley street, several marks and abrasions about the man's head, which could not be accounted for, gave rise to curiosity as to how he met his death, and the case was reported by Mrs. Sterling to the chief coroner, who gave orders that an inquest be held and that the funeral be deferred. The body was later removed to a vault in St. James' Cemetery, whence it was taken to the morgue yesterday.

Mrs. Sterling, the widow, and Andrew Phiney, 285 Sumach street, were the only witnesses to give evidence last night. Phiney's evidence was immaterial.

COMMITTEE FOR OLD AGE PENSIONS

Special to the Review.

Bye-Election March 25.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—It is very possible that the South Renfrew bye-election may be held on March 25 with nominations a week earlier, March 18. If the new lists are used this is the earliest possible date and it is considered highly probable these dates will be fixed, as it is felt the new lists should be used. The old lists were made up in 1910, which makes them two years old. The campaign in South Renfrew is proceeding vigorously on both sides. A big mass meeting will be held in Arnprior on Friday night when Hon. W. J. Roche, Secretary of State, and Mr. Haughton Lennox will be the chief speakers.

Against the Proposal to Stop Sunday Tobogganing in Toronto.

Indignation Meeting Held in Massey Hall--- Prominent Men Take Part.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—"Britons never shall be slaves" was the music played by the Grenadiers' Band at the opening of the citizens' meeting in Massey Hall last night. And "Britons never shall be slaves" was the sentiment of the 4,000 people who crowded there to make their protest against the proposal of the City Council to close the slides on Sunday. It was no assemblage of juveniles or people particularly interested in sports. It was essentially a representative gathering of the citizens of Toronto, of the fathers and mothers of Toronto and of the whole people generally. Scores of men well advanced in years were seen in the audience. Rich and poor vied with each other in enthusiastic applause of the speakers, and the presence of 100 Y.M.C.A. boys showed that there was no ill-feeling intended on the part of either of the factions in the fight for the liberty of the individual. Ladies were there, too, in great numbers. The sane, sensible tone of the meeting in evidence all the way through, even up till the time the crowds were filing out of the hall, with the band playing the National Anthem. There was no cheap ridicule of any section of the community, no boisterous language, no enmity.

Entirely in keeping with the tenor of the whole proceedings was the simple, straightforward wording of the resolution that was carried unanimously at the close. With uplifted hand, practically every individual in the big assemblage gave his endorsation to the following:

"That in the opinion of this meeting the bylaw which has received its first reading providing for the closing of all park slides be not passed. And that the opinion of this meeting be conveyed to the mayor and City Council by the chairman and secretary of this meeting."

Farmers May Be Ruined.

Winnipeg, Feb. 1.—Hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain have been exposed to the weather all the winter for want of storage facilities. At Verigin, Sask., in one pile there is 500,000 bushels covered with snow. This belongs to the Doukhobors.

"It is not a question," said a grain man yesterday, "of the ruin of an individual. It is a question of the ruin of whole districts. We are on the verge of the worst calamity which has ever happened in Western Canada. From 15 to 20 per cent. of the cars of grain which have come into Winnipeg has been wet.

A few days of wet weather would destroy the value of every bushel of this grain. Yesterday I heard of one elevator with 25,000 bushels which had already all gone bad. The same thing may happen in a month to 10,000,000 bushels of wheat and to similar quantities of flax, oats and barley.

Expect an Agreement.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—"I have nothing to say yet on the boundaries question," said Premier Roblin. "Everything is getting along smoothly and the details are being worked out even more satisfactorily than I expected. We anticipate no trouble in coming to our agreement with Ontario."

At the close of the Conservative caucus Premier Borden was asked as to the accuracy of the report that Ontario had made an offer of 25,000 square miles of territory in exchange for 4,000 square miles at the mouth of the Nelson river.

"The Globe," he said, "evidently knows more about it than we do. It is the first I have heard of it."

Chinese Smuggling Plot.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 1.—It became known yesterday that five Chinamen were smuggled across the border into the States last Thursday or Friday night. The Celestials are now being held by American immigration authorities in New York, pending their deportation to China.

It is believed the same gang has been interested in smuggling undesirable aliens into Canada during the past two years. Smugglers has been active since the Dominion Government placed the immigration inspectors on duty along the frontier several years ago. So far the principals have succeeded in escaping apprehension although many of their subordinates have been arrested and heavily fined.

It is known that the gang that smuggled aliens into Canada has agents in Hamilton. It is believed these men arranged for smuggling the Chinamen into the States.

A Discovery of Vast Importance

It Is Now Admitted That Bronchitis, Asthma, Catarrh, Coughs, and Colds Can Only Be Quickly Cured By Mixing a New Medicine With the Air You Breathe.

Scientists acknowledge that medicated air treatment is the only treatment that will cure these diseases, and that stomach medicines are worse than useless.

Catarrhozone air treatment has been found to be the most effective way to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs, and nasal passages. Its action is so prompt that in less than an hour an ordinary cold is cured, and after a more thorough use of Catarrhozone, Bronchitis, Catarrh, and all diseases of the throat and lungs are completely cured.

Catarrhozone is a very simple and powerful method of treatment. You simply breathe it through the inhaler and it immediately passes over every air cell of the throat, lungs, and bronchial tubes, curing and healing as it goes.

Catarrhozone treatment affords little drops of healing for sore places in the lungs, throat, and nasal passages.

PAY OF RAILWAY EMPLOYEES

That the railways should be compelled to pay their employees at least twice a month, is the proposal of Senator Casgrain, and the idea seems a reasonable one. Men in most employments get paid weekly and then don't think that it comes any too often. The worker who only gets paid once a month must depend to a certain extent, at least, on his credit with the people who supply him with the various necessities of household life. This means that he will have to buy from one grocer or butcher even though their prices be higher than some other dealer because he is "dealing on credit." The housewife who has ready cash to do her purchasing has many advantages. Of course the paying of the men twice a month would mean a lot more work and increased office help for the railway companies, but they can well afford this.

PUBLIC HEALTH

The National Insurance Act of Great Britain, which Mr. Lloyd George was mainly instrumental in bringing about, will likely have the effect of reducing sickness among the workers, for which the act in its other sections sections is designed to provide indemnity. If the commissioners, whose duty it is to administer the act, note a case of what appears to be excessive sickness, and one which is likely to unduly tax the funds, created and disbursed under the act, they will make an enquiry, to find whether or not the excess is due to the condition or nature of the employment of the sufferers or to bad housing or unsanitary conditions in any locality, etc.

A claim for the extra insurance expenditure may be made if it is found that the fault lies with any individuals or bodies concerned. A further enquiry may then follow, and action taken and the offender made to pay the bills for same. Municipalities, public or semi-public bodies and proprietors of industrial establishments are all subject to the act, as of course are private individuals. This will have the effect it is hoped of making the municipalities enforce their sanitary regulations with more vigor, and the workers in factories should have much better conditions to labor under, as the proprietors will have to comply with the act, or face an enquiry, with heavy costs attached.

DAWN OF NEW ERA IN CHINA

The capitulation of the Manchus in China means the dawn of new era in China and should mean wonderful strides in the advancement of that country, which has been held back by the Manchu rule for a long period. The opinion now is that China will soon take her place with the other enlightened nations of the world. The main work of the new government will be to try and put down the revolutionary spirit as speedily as possible as this has a tendency to break out at any time, and may destroy the new regime just as effectively as it destroyed the Manchu dynasty. A country with such a vast territory and such an immense population, makes the problem a difficult one, but Dr. Sun, the president, seems to have a complete grasp of the situation and predicts that China will emerge from her present anarchic conditions with the people royal to the Republic, and the new government.

EDITORIAL NOTES

January certainly established a record for steady cold weather. There was only two or three really mild days in the month.

Montreal Harbor Board will not be sacrificed to the spoils system and the Borden Government is to be congratulated on this fact.

"Wet grain," is a serious problem in the West. Fully half a million bushels are outside and exposed to the elements owing to the lack of storage facilities.

Charles Dana Gibson, the noted artist, while in Ottawa stated that "the Senators are a good looking lot of fellows." But then Gibson always did enjoy his little joke.

The Italians go right on seizing boats of other nations but we dont hear much of their seizing any positions held by the Turks lately. Italy has tackled a bigger job than she figured on in Tripoli.

The militia in firing at a body of strikers, in Lawrence, Mass., recently, just paved the way for further trouble. There was no attack but the shooting was done to frighten the mob. This act only inflamed the passions of the people.

Premier Borden gives an emphatic denial to the reports that he is negotiating with the U. S. to re-open the reciprocity question. Just another canard. The story caused much amusement in Government circles.

"Teddy" Roosevelt now admits that he will run for President "if his party wants him." He might have announced this months ago, as he has been after the honors for many moons past. Taft says he is again out for the nomination, so there will be a lively fight for the Republican Convention.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Jan. 27 were 1100 cattle, 500 sheep and lambs, 2000 hogs and 400 calves, while the supply on the market this morning for sale amounted to 850 cattle, 225 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 300 calves.

The trade in cattle was very slow, owing to the fact that the quality of the stock was common, and a large percentage of it showed that they were taken out of the barns half-finished, consequently the demand was limited, as buyers only bought sufficient to tide them over the balance of the week, and a number were left unsold. The tone of the market for this class of stock was weaker, and the prices accepted by the drovers for what there was sold showed big losses, the top price realized being $6 per 100 pounds for the best steers; but if there had been a hundred good to choice beeves on the market in place of all the above trash, a good trade would have been done at firm prices. There is a good demand for milch cows at present, of which the offerings are also limited, and the undertone to the market for them is stronger.

The trade in small meats was quiet, and the quality of the stock offered was generally poor. Supplies of common calves were ample, but good stock continues scarce.

Receipts of hogs were in excess of the requirements, and an easier feeling prevailed in the market, the bulk of the trading being done at $7 to $7.15, with a few odd lots selling as high as $7.25 for selected stock, weighed off cars.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $6.50 to $6.75; do., medium, $4 to $5.50; do., common, $3 to $3.75; do., choice cows, $4.75 to $5.25; do., medium, $3 to $4.75; do., bulls, $3 to $5; milkers, choice, each, $75 to $80; do., common to medium, each, $50 to $65; springers, $30 to $45.

Sheep, ewes, $4.50 to $4.75; bucks and culls, $3.75 to $4.25; lambs, $6.50 to $7.

Hogs, f.o.b., $7 to $7.35.

Calves, $3 to $12.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

Chapter I

I DON'T know yet whether I'm pleased or not, but I do know that I'm excited—more excited than I've ever been in my life, except perhaps when Miss Mackinstry, my last governess, had hysterics in the schoolroom and fainted among the tea things.

I suppose I shan't be able to decide about the state of my feelings until I've had more of them on the same subject or until I've written down in this book of mine everything exactly as it's happened. I like doing that. It makes things seem so clear when you try to review them afterward.

The excitement began at breakfast by mother having a letter that she liked. I knew she liked it by the way her eyes lighted up, as if they had been lamps and the letter a match. All the other letters, mostly with horrid, tradesmanny looking envelopes, which had been making her quite glowery, she pushed aside.

Mother won't have a crown on her envelopes. She thinks it's vulgar. Besides, putting it only on the paper saves expense. This envelope had a great sprawly gold crest, but she didn't seem to disapprove of it. She read on and on, then suddenly glanced up as if she would have said something quickly to Victoria. She didn't say it, though, for she remembered me. I am never taken into family conclaves because I'm not out yet. I don't see what difference that makes, especially as I'm not to be allowed to come out till after Vic's married, because she was presented four years ago and isn't even engaged yet. So for all I can tell I may have to stay in till I'm a hundred or leak out slowly when nobody is noticing, as Vic says girls do in the middle classes. This time I didn't mind, however, for I couldn't see how the letter concerned me, and as I was dying for a sight of Berengaria's puppies, which were born last night, I was glad when mother told me not to fidget after I'd finished breakfast, but to run down to the kennels if I liked.

Soon I forgot all about the letter, for the puppies were the dearest ducks on earth (can puppies be ducks, I wonder?), and besides, it was such a delicious June morning that I could have danced with joy because I was alive.

I often feel like that. But there's nobody to tell, except the trees and the dogs and my poor pony, who is almost too old and second childish now to understand. She was my brother Stanforth's pony first of all, and Stanforth is twenty-eight. Then she was Vic's, and Vic is—but mother doesn't like Vic's age to be mentioned any more, though she is years younger than Stan

I took a walk in the park and afterward went through the rose garden to see how the roses were getting on. There were a lot of petals for my potpourri, and gathering them has kept me for some time. Then as the jar stands in Vic's and my den (she calls it her den, but it has to be part mine, as I have no other), I was going in by one of the long windows when I heard mother's voice. "The question is," she was saying, "what's to be done with Betty?"

I turned around and ran away on my tiptoes across the lawn, for I didn't want to be an eavesdropper, and it would be nearly as bad to have mother know I had heard even those few words. She would be annoyed, and mother chills me all the way through to my bones when she's annoyed. It is wonderful how she does it, for she never scolds. But the thermometer simply drops to freezing point, and you feel like a poor little shivering crocus that has come up too soon by mistake to find the world covered with snow and no hope of squeezing back into its own cozy warm bulb again.

I stopped out of doors till luncheon and played croquet against myself, wishing that Stan would run down, for although Stan rather fancies himself as a gorgeous person since poor father's death gave him the title, he is quite nice to me when it occurs to him. I'm always glad when he comes to the Towers, but he hardly ever does in the season, and then in August and September he's always in Scotland. So is Vic, for the matter of that, and she hates being in the country in May and June, though Surrey is so close to town that luckily she doesn't miss much. But this year we seem to have been horribly poor for some reason. Vic says it's Stan's fault. He is extravagant, I suppose. However, as everything is really his, I don't see that we ought to complain. Only it can't be pleasant for him to feel that mother is worrying lest he should marry and make her a frumpy dowager before we two girls are off her hands.

At luncheon mother mentioned to me that she had wired to ask Mrs. Stuyvesant Knox and her cousin, Miss Sally Woodburn, down to dinner and to stay the night. "You will be pleased, Betty, as you like Miss Woodburn so much," she said.

"I like her, but I don't like Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox, and I don't know how to pronounce her," said I.

"For goodness' sake, don't call her Mrs. Ess Kay to her face again," cut in Vic.

"I didn't mean to; it slipped out," I defended myself. "Besides it was you who nicknamed her that."

"Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox is a very charming person and a thorough woman of the world," mother asserted in that way she has of saying the word which you had better leave for the last if you know what is good for you.

I did leave it for the last so far as answering was concerned, but inside, where, thank goodness, even her eyes can't see, I was wondering hard when mother had formed that flattering opinion. A fortnight ago I heard her announce that Americans "got upon her nerves," and she hoped she would not soon be called upon to meet any more. As she had made this remark directly after bidding Mrs. Ess Kay goodby, I naturally supposed that lady to be the immediate cause for it. But now it seemed this was not the case.

"You would be very ungrateful if you disliked her," mother went on, "as she took such a tremendous fancy to you."

"Dear me, I didn't know that!" I exclaimed, opening my eyes wide. "I thought it was Vic she"—

"You are her favorite, as you are with Miss Woodburn also," said mother, who gets the effect of being so tremendously dignified, partly, I believe, from never clipping her words as the rest of us do. "I am asking them down again especially on your account, and I want you to be particularly nice to them."

"It's easy enough to be nice to Sally Woodburn, but"—

I caught a look from Vic and broke off my sentence, hurrying to change it into another. "As they're sailing for the States so soon, I shan't have time to spread myself much."

"Don't be slangy, Betty, it doesn't suit you," said mother. "You pick up too many things from Stanforth."

"Trust him not to drop anything worth having," interpolated Vic, which was pert. But mother never reproves her.

"Perhaps Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox and Miss Woodburn won't come," I said for the sake of getting on safer ground.

"Not come? Of course they will come. It is short notice, but if they have other engagements they will break them," returned mother. And though it would be as impossible for her to be vulgar or snobbish as it would for a tall white arum lily to be either of these things, still I couldn't help feeling that her unconscious thought was, "The invitation to a couple of unknown touring Americans from the Duchess of Stanforth is equivalent to my receiving a royal command."

She was probably right, anyhow so far as Mrs. Ess Kay is concerned. As for Sally Woodburn, I don't think she has a drop of snobbish blood in her veins. She's southern—not South American, as I was stupid enough to think at first, but from some southern state or other, Kentucky, I believe it is. She's short and plump and olive and smooth as ivory satin, with soft, lazy brown eyes, a voice like rich cream, a smile which says, "Please like me," and pretty, crinkly dark hair that is beginning to glitter with silver network here and there, though she isn't exactly old, even for a woman, perhaps about thirty.

Woman's World

Mrs. Craig Biddle Gives Society a Jolt.

MRS. CRAIG BIDDLE.

To smoke or not to smoke in public places has been the question agitating ultra smart society for several seasons. On the continent and in England it no longer causes a start of surprise even to the conservative member of society to see milady while sipping her after dinner coffee at one of the fashionable restaurants puff daintily at her monogrammed cigarette.

Society of the ultra smart set did, however, receive a jolt recently when Mrs. Craig Biddle, "one of the Biddles of Philadelphia," openly smoked a cigarette while dining with her husband and a woman guest in the public dining room of the Quaker City's most exclusive hotel. Up to this time smoking by women at this hotel had been confined to the private smoking room fitted up for them.

Staid Philadelphia seems to be setting aside the conventinal. What next?

Concerning Women.

Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president general of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, is the owner of a tract of 10,000 acres of land in Illinois on which she is conducting a back to the farm enterprise. Only a short time ago Mrs. Scott was elected president of a coal mining company to succeed former Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson.

Mrs. Florence Fenwick Miller writes in one of the illustrated papers of London that Englishwomen have absurd ideas about American home life. She says she was asked repeatedly after her visit to the United States if American women keep house. The general impression seemed to be that they had no real homes, in the English sense of the word, while Mrs. Miller declares she found the home life in this country most beautiful.

The reason that the French people enjoy the well earned reputation of being the politest people in the world is because "la politesse," or good breeding, is an accomplishment they always acquire at home and in childhood. A Frenchman, his wife and a couple of children will observe all the most exquisite social amenities in the privacy of their own home, and the family life presents all the social advantages they require. A French boy of even the humblest parentage does not wait to go out in the world to learn how to offer a woman a chair, give an elderly gentleman his arm, invite you to dine or discover the topics of conversation that engage your interest. He has lived from his babyhood in an atmosphere of family deference and cheerfully unselfish consideration, and he is charmingly polite by precept and example wherever he may find himself.

A Gift Suggestion.

An ideal gift for the bachelor is the "handy" box containing tags, rubber bands, labels, thumb tacks, twine—in fact, almost any article one might need in dispatching a package or for the hundred and one other conveniences to which these needful articles may be put. One bachelor relates he derived more pleasure from one of these boxes, which was given to him, than from almost any other gift he could mention. The boxes come in various sizes, the number of useful articles contained varying with the size of the box. A gift of this character is well worth considering where a personal gift is not desirable.

Highly Recommended.

"Why did you leave your last place?" asked Mrs. Hiram Daly of the would be cook.

"I haven't left me lasht place," replied the applicant. "I haven't any lasht place to lave. I've been workin' for meself for the past year, an' I can recommend meself to yez very hoighly."—Boston Transcript.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystal line lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

WE RECOMMEND GLASSES ONLY WHEN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

YOUTH IS SENTENCED TO CENTRAL FOR ONE YEAR

For seducing a fifteen year old girl, Judge Huycke sentenced Antoine Lasure this morning, to one year in Central prison, with hard labor. Practically the same unpublishable evidence heard at the police court trial was submitted.

The father and mother of the girl were both present in court. The severity of the penalty given by the judge was caused to some extent by the unwillingness of the parents of the prisoner, to make a provision for the young girl whom their son had so wantonly wronged.

F. D. Kerr acted for the young man and R. E. Wood represented the crown.

THE WEATHER DURING JANUARY

While December, which is regarded as the first of our winter months was comparatively mild, and in great contrast to December of last winter, January must be credited with a considerable amount of zero weather, much more than the corresponding month of last winter.

The first time zero was reached this winter was on the 5th of January, when we had it 10 degrees below, and for the next two weeks we had below zero weather almost every day.

The lowest temperature during the month was on the 13th, with the low mark of 29 degrees below zero.

The highest temperature was on the 1st, with 37 degrees above. The "January thaw" failed to materialize.

The following table gives the low readings the month.

Jan. 5th	10 below
Jan. 6th	23 below
Jan. 7th	12 below
Jan. 8th	14 below
Jan. 10th	2 below
Jan. 11th	6 below
Jan. 12th	16 below
Jan. 13th	29 below
Jan. 14th	10 below
Jan. 16th	4 below
Jan. 17th	6 below
Jan. 20th	1 below
Jan. 25th	17 below
Jan. 25th	25 below
Jan. 27th	7 below
Jan. 28th	17 below

We had snow on nine days to a depth of 38 inches. There was rain on one day. There was considerably over twice the depth of snow on the ground at the end of the month, as there was at the same date last winter.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—With reference to the recent suit between Andrew McFarlane and W. H. Collier, I wish to remove an impression that the Wm. Hamilton Co., Ltd., is in some way connected with this matter. Our company is not interested in the suit in any way. It is purely a personal matter between these two gentlemen. I may add that no other officer or director of our company has any liability in connection with this or any other lawsuit.

Yours truly,
GEO. G. GLADMAN,
President.

COMPLAINS OF SERVICE.

To the Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Kindly allow me space in your valuable paper with regard to our post office. How is it the public cannot be attended to. Last night I waited for fully 10 minutes at wicket and then was not waited on. I was so disgusted that I walked out. Later on I came back, when I noticed that some other person was trying to draw some one's attention. He told me he had been there for five minutes. He got tired of waiting, so he yelled, "Is there anyone here?" when the answer came back, "No, we are all dead."

The saying may have been true, and I must say the service is very poor, and should be looked after.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I remain, yours,

BETTER SREVICE.

The writer does not state at what hour he appeared at the wicket. Possibly it was after closing time.—Ed.

Milk Vendor not Afraid of Any Investigation

Mr. J. T. McCrae is another milk vendor who fails to see any reason for the move taken by Ald. Gordon on the milk question.

"I for one, am not afraid of any investigation," said Mr. McCrae when seen by the Review to-day, "Neither are any of my customers who have spoken to me about the milk, been inclined to object to the price which they are paying; on the other hand, they seem to think that it would be difficult to sell at a lower rate."

Mr. McCrae stated that at the time the milk was raised from six, to seven cents last fall, no complaints were made to him and his customers seemed to expect the increased price.

Each of the milk dealers, as has been said before, have by common consent placed $10 with their Association, the same to be forfeited if evidence of underselling is sustained. This is solely for their own protection.

Sometimes a customer will run up a bill and refuse to pay it. The other dealers are therefore instructed not to supply her with milk until the bill is paid. Or a customer occasionaly may kick at paying the regular price and sooner than allow the loss of a customer, the dealer without backbone enough, will allow it to go a cent cheaper. The $10 put up by each dealer will be forfeited if it comes to the ears of the other milk vendors that any of their fellows are selling such a customer milk under the standard price.

TO FORM AUXILIARY FOR HEALTH ASS'N

A meeting for the women of Peterboro is to be held on Monday evening, Feb. 5 at eight o'clock, in the lecture room of the Public Library for the purpose of forming a Women's Auxiliary for the Peterboro Health Association. Mr. W. H. Moore K.C., Dr. Cameron and Dr. Neal, have kindly consented to address the meeting.

AN AT HOME

One of the most tastefully arranged and enjoyable events of the social season, was the "At Home" on Wednesday afternoon tendered by Mrs. Morley W. Lyle, to about one hundred and seventy-five guests at her residence, 617 Park street. The hostess was assisted in the receiving by her aunt, Mrs. John Clegg. The tea-room was presided over by Mrs. S. Clegg, who was assisted by a staff of charming young ladies. The refreshments were very dainty, and the whole reception was most pleasingly carried out.

Candlemas Day To-morrow

To-morrow is Candlemas Day. The day commemorates the feast of the Purification of the Virgin Mary, or presentation of Christ in the temple—so called because the candles for the altar or other sacred uses are blessed on that day. In some parts of the world, and particularly in America, the tradition is prevalent that the bear or woodchuck comes out from his lair and if he casts a shadow runs back, in which case a return of wintry weather is expected. In some places it is popularly known as ground hog, or wood-chuck, day.

WANTED—500 MEN AND BOYS

His Honor Judge Huycke has consented to give an address on "The Investment of Influence," at the men's mass meeting and rally to be held under the auspices of the Helping Hand Bible Class at the Park street Baptist church on Sunday afternoon, February 11th, at 3 o'clock. No more vital subject could be brought before young men to-day than the right investment of influence, and no better speaker could have been secured for the subject than Judge Huycke, whose very calling brings him in contact with so many of our unfortunate brothers who have invested their life influence on the wrong side, and consequently have suffered. All men and boys are invited.

LINDSAY PRESS ON THE GAME; A "ROAST" FOR LOCAL COVER

Lindsay Warder

Peterboro played consistent, classy hockey all the way, but at that they hadn't much on the local Midgets—and they were Midgets in the real sense of the word as compared with the sturdy porridge-eaters from Quakerville.

The play was wonderfully close, but there was no stopping the oatmealers. They whirled straight in on goal and the forwards bombarded the Lindsay nets like rounds from a gatling gun. It was hockey of a class and brand that spells C-H-A-M-P-I-O-N-S-H-I-P, and Gamble, the custodian of the local nets, had an exceedingly busy night. It is pretty good betting that the Petes, if they play up to the form displayed last night, will make all other teams hustle in the race for the intermediate O. H. A. championship.

Peterboro had it on Lindsay in condition, and towards the dying stages of the fray some of the locals showed about as much snap as a marathon winner in the 23rd. mile of his journey. The Petes when told by their fans that but three minutes remained ere the finish, not only played a grand defence game, but also rammed the puck through the slush into Lindsay territory and cinched the game by nothching another one minute before full time.

Lindsay Post.

Had the visitors earned their victory by playing a far, gentlemanly game, Lindsay would unhesitatingly congratulate them and wish them every success in their race for the championship. This is not said in a spirit of soreness too often resorted to by those who are poor losers, as the fact was apparent to all, and the penalty list will also prove that rough house tactics were resorted to by members of the Peterboro team who were evidently bent on crippling several of the locals in order to win out. This contention is borne out by the statements made by Peterboro supporters who openly declared that the "Spratt's would get theirs." and true enough, one of them fell a victim early in the game. P. Spratt had checked Bearss, when the latter, it is claimed by eye witnesses, kicked the local player with his skate, inflicting an ugly wound in the leg. The plucky player retired from the ice for a time, but when he returned it was soon seen that he was in a crippled condition. Bearss may claim that the injury was accidental. But his actions on the ice during the evening contradicts him. He is a brutal player, and unless he is taken in hand by the team management, or warned by the O.H.A., he will cause his team some trouble. He was repeatedly urged by several of the visitors to play clean and stay on the ice.

CHASING THE RUBBER

Oshawa will go to Cobourg Friday night with a goal lead. Peterborough will probably play the winner, Monday night. Definite word from the O.H.A. was expected to-day.

Members of the Rooters Club are asked to attend the meeting at Brock street rink to-night, when songs for the junior game to-morrow night will be rehearsed.

According to the Belleville papers, the fans there are indignant over the action of the Trenton management in sending a scrub junior team for the return game on Tuesday night. One fan writes a very severe letter.

The Hockey Club executive meets to-night to decide on the team for to-morroiw and discuss the excursion question for the return game.

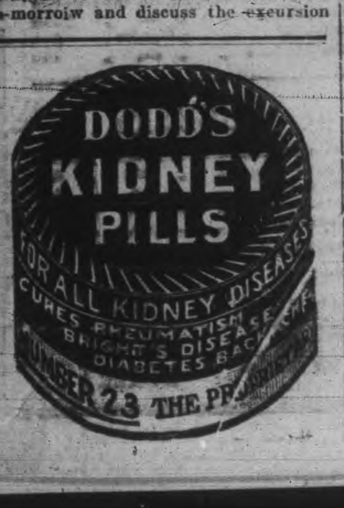
The Capitals and Wanderers of the Y.M.C.A. Big Four League meet Saturday morning.

Walter Miller is drawing attention in the Maritime Province Hockey League by his work with New Glasgow. In the game against Moncton Victorias he gave the pass to Gaul, who scored the winning goal in overtime. In the New Glasgow-Halifax Crescents contest Tuesday night he is mentioned with Gaul, Doran and Power as having been prominent. In the latter game New Glasgow lost by 2 goals. The League standing is:—

	Won.	Lost.
Moncton	7	2
New Glasow	5	4
Halifax Socials	4	5
Halifax Crescents	2	7

A hockey aggregation picked from the ranks of the barbers of the city, are literally itching to do the fine comb act on Tuesday night next, Feb. 6th. with a hockey team from the Grand Trunk. As has heretofore been the practice, the barbers will be thoroughly searched before going on the ice for razors and sharp instruments. The battle royal is billed to open at 10 o'clock at night, and is expected to last one hour. Elric White has been coaxed into refereeing the conflict. The line-up is appended for the barbers:—

Goal—Feather-edge Campbell.
Point—Clipper Flannery.
Cover Point—Soapsuds Walker.
Rover—Razorblade Riley.
C.—Nipper Donohue.
L. Wing—Lighted taper Croker.
R. Wing—Lather Slinger Edwards.



ANOTHER FOR ABSTAINERS

Havelock Was Too Light and Couldn't Stand Pace

McPhee Scored Six of the Winners Goals

A goodly bunch of Havelock rootters were gathered in Brock street rink last night to watch their braves clash with the local T.A.S. seven in A Trent Valley League game. Those who were confident of a Havelock win got a rude shock before the game was over, and were mortified to see the Havelock seven wiggle out of the game with the small end of an 11-1 score.

The Havelock team was lighter than the T.A.S. aggregation, and had to take some rough handling at times, but the youngsters stuck to their game and kept the locals wide awake to save their nets.

For their size the Havelock boys played real fast hockey, in spite of the fact that this was the first time they had ever played together, but they were far behind the T.A.S. men, who kept the play near the visitors' nets.

The T.A.S. bunch worked together like veterans in the last half, and joined in some combination stunts that at times made the game look like a uniform procession to the invaders goal. McPhee played the fastest game on the ice, making several end to end excursions that resulted in counters for the teetotalers. He scored six goals for his team.

The line-ups were:

Havelock.		T.A.S.
	Goal
Darling		McFadden
	Point
Rose		T. Lansfield
	Cover
McGuire		C. Lansfield
	Rover
Quinlan		McPhee
	Left
Ferguson		O'Dette
	Right
Warne		Coughlin
	Centre
Bohan		Halpin

Right after the face off, Halpin, McPhee and O'Dette began a series of individual rushes that kept the puck in the enemy's territory. These were well met by the Havelock kids, and Quinlan, with his two wings, carried the puck to the other end. The game continued in a sew-saw fashion, both teams putting up only individual stuff for 8 minutes, when Halpin jollied Darling for the first counter. Rose broke up a two-man combination and got the puck away, but it came back with Coughlin, who again found the Havelock nets. For the next 15 minutes the teams played without scoring. Rose and Darling were worked overtime at intervals, and the men began to settle down to team work. Bohan and Warne, the two kids, played like heroes, but failed to plant a counter behind McFadden. McPhee received, on a pass from Coughlin, passed to Halpin, accepted a return from Halpin and scored, making the figures 3—0.

There was no more scoring before half time.

After the face off in the second half the Havelock fans brightened when they saw their kids riding over the T.A.S. This did not last long, but before they were under control Warne pounded the nets for Havelock's first goal. Quinlan and Ferguson kept the puck away for a while, but the T.A.S. soon started the old game, and T. Lancefield scored in two minutes, after a rush from in front of his own nets. Score 4—1. T.A.S. repeated in a few minutes, and after that the play was even for twelve minutes when McPhee notched another. In the next ten minutes of play T.A.S. walked off with five counters, McPhee and O'Dette being responsible. The visitors were easily all in, but put up a scrap to the finish and called upon McFadden for some fine work more than once.

Leo Derocher, the star Peterborough goal minder, refereed satisfactorily. The penalties were:

Havelock—McGuire, Rose, Quinlan, Bohan, Ware 2, McGuire 3.

T.A.S.—Halpin 2, Lansfield 5, Halpin 4, McPhee 1.

The T.A.S. bunch played hockey in the last half of last night's game, and certainly look good for the district or league championship.

NOT INTENTIONAL SAYS LOCAL COVER

Injury to Peter Spratt Was Simply An Accident

Whitty Bearss, the husky cover of the local intermediates, expressed himself to-day as regretting very much the injury to Peter Spratt in the game Tuesday night.

The charge made by the Lindsay Post that the assault was intentional, he said was far and wide of the mark and uncalled for, the affair being purely an accident.

"No one regrets more than myself the injury to Spratt." said Bearss.

PETERBORO AND THE CANADIAN BALL LEAGUE

Harry Burridge Nentioned as Possible Manager of Team

Bobby Robinson, secretary of the Canadian Baseball League, has the following to say in the Hamilton Spectator:—

Evidently the situation in Ottawa could not be brighter, and about all that is needed now to complete the circuit is a little more work in Peterborough. The writer has had a letter from Dr. Harry Wightman, who is taking a great deal of interest in the Peterborough team, and steps are being taken to organize a stock company there this week. The Peterborough fans are very eager to land in the league and a definite announcement is expected from them this week as to their plans. Among those mentioned as possibilities for the managership of the Electric City team are Old Folks Templin, of the Champion Berlin team; Jo Jo Keenan, last year with London, and Harry Burridge, the Toronto boy who did so well in the Western Canada League. Burridge is well liked in Peterborough and is making a strong bid for the position. As Dr. Wightman writes, "Peterborough will be satisfied with nothing but a real good team, and in order to round one up we want to get real busy at once." This is in connection with an invitation to the writer to come to Peterborough for a few days and assist in the organization work.

As soon as the Peterborough club is definitely organized, the schedule meeting of the Canadian league will be called, the meeting to be held in Hamilton. At this meeting the composition of the circuit of 1912 will be definitely announced, while many important matters will be discussed, chief of which will be the salary limit, there being a movement on foot to increase the salary limit to $1,500, with the London club owners as prime movers in this. No doubt this question will produce a lively argument. The schedule will also prove a troublesome topic, owing to the peculiar situation of Ottawa and Peterborough in reference to the other six clubs.

CURLING

There were three scheduled games played off at the curling rink last night. The teams and scores were;

A. H. Munro	T. Eastwood
M. C. Tooley	W. P. Adamson
J. Montgomery	J. J. Bowes
A. Moore, Skip—6	W. G. Morrow, Skip—20

T. McGeachie	M. Comstock
E. C. Macleod	T. H. Hooper
W. H. Denham	C. J. Seymour
T. F. Matthews, Skip—14	R. M. Waddell, Skip—13

M. O'Brien	F. Clarke
J. Wolstenholm	W. C. Austin
R. J. Soden	H. Rose
R. Neill, Skip—13	W. G. Read, Skip—10

Six rinks from the Victoria Curling Club of Toronto will be here to-morrow. In the afternoon the first games for the Waddell-Paton Cup will be played, while for the evening friendly games are on the program.

Waterloo has defaulted the intermediate games yet to be played with Galt and Preston.

GRAND TRUNKS RAN UP BIG SCORE

Defeated Canadian Express Outfit With Count of 15-2

The G.T.R. team walloped the Canadian Express seven last night at Brock street rink by the score of 15—2. The G.T.R. had the game all the time, leading at half time by the score 7—1. Long, for the winners, was responsible for most of the goals, and played a great game. Palmer, in goal had his hands full more than once, but emerged from the game with only two tallies against him. Sargînson and Bitzer were the goal-getters for the losers. The teams were:

Schooner In Peril.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The British schooner Success, with three of her crew washed overboard, is off the coast of Florida, appealing to passing vessels unavailingly for help to get to a haven of safety, according to wireless despatches to the Navy Department.

The few remaining men aboard are striving to pilot the little craft into Jacksonville. One wireless message stated that the steamer Antilla had been asked for two men to assist the diminished crew. Volunteers were called for, but none replied.

The revenue cutter Yamacraw, which has been advised of the schooner's plight, will go to her assistance.

Queen's Makes Concession.

Kingston, Feb. 1.—At a conference between the legislative committee of Queen's University and committees representing the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, it was decided to waive the provision in the bill now before the House of Commons requiring the university to build within five years a building for the theological faculty. In view of this the faculty will continue in the old Arts Building, the name of which will be changed to the Theological Hall.

Freight Wrecks Near Kingston.

Kingston, Feb. 1.—A wreck with no loss of life, but with heavy damage to rolling stock, occurred on the Grand Trunk at Thousand Island Junction, when freight train 96, one of the fastest in that division, was thrown off the track by a sharp flange. Ten cars, filled with merchandise, went off, the two cars being thrown clear over the fence.

Shortly after this mishap the engine of a Grand Trunk freight train jumped the track at Thousand Island Junction, with the result that five cars were thrown into a ditch. None of the crew were injured.

A wire was sent to Belleville and a wrecking crew was sent out to clear away the wreckage.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and a weakness there, and often after my meals my food would distress me and cause soreness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better, and I can walk with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it, as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers."—Mrs. WILLIAM BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N.B., Canada.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

Tea and Concert Held — George McCue Injured

Special Correspondence

Oshkimong, Jan. 31—The 44th annual tea and concert of the Chemong Reserve, held Thursday of last week was materially successful, and evidently the concert is becoming more famous every year. The main feature of the evening was the "Indian Drill" performed by eight of our young ladies and the singers and actors from the city, who contributed much to the success of the concert and the committee is to be congratulated for making the occasion a success. The program consisted as follows—

Recitation—"Gladiator" by Mr. W. C. Parsons.

Recitation—"Nigger Baby" by Miss Maggie Whetung.

A number of songs both comic and sentimental were given by the Peterboro boys and the Chemongites. All were encored.

The proceeds of the tea and concert were $70.

Mrs John Kenice of Rama accompanied by her grand daughter, Abigail, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Whetung.

While chopping the other day Mr. George McCue met with a painful accident. The unfortunate man almost severed the toes off his right foot. Dr. Blakeman, who is attending him, reports that George will be laid up the rest of the winter.

The annual concert of the C.A.C. will be held here on the 22nd of Feb. Great preparation are being made by the boys.

NORWOOD NEWS

Golden Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearce

Special Correspondence.

Norwood, Jan. 30th, 1912.—On Friday of last week was the 50th anniversary of the wedding of our esteemed townspeople, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Pearce.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Pearce were at home to receive their friends, and entertained about one hundred and fifty well of their well-wishers.

At eight o'clock a large number of the business men of Norwood assembled in the Council Chamber and went in a body to pay their respects to the happy couple, who were rejoicing in the golden jubilee of their wedding day. As a mark of esteem the business men presented Mr. Pearce with a handsome gold-headed cane, while Mrs. Pearce was given a beautiful gold ring as a memento of the happy event. During the evening Mr. Pearce presented his happy bride with fifty ten dollar gold pieces, which bespoke fifty years of golden memories.

The visitors were handsomely entertained during the evening, during which time events of the past were talked over and brought to pleasant remembrances. Lunch was served and about midnight the gathering dispersed, all extending to the host and hostess hearty thanks for their characteristic hospitality, and wishing them both a long continuation of a joyous and happy life.

The Norwood senior hockey boys journeyed to Tweed on Tuesday to play the Tweed septet.

Miss Lodemia Johnston was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Wm. Andrews, in Havelock on Friday.

A quiet but pretty event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. L. Johnston, Peterborough street, on Wednesday, Jan. 24th, when their eldest daughter, Mary Mable, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Wm. J. Andrews, son of James Andrews, ex-Reeve of Asphodel, by Rev. W. Benj. Tucker, B.A., B.D., pastor of the Methodist church, here.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in her travelling suit of navy broadcloth, with picture hat and willow plume to match.

Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present.

The happy couple left on the afternoon train amid showers of confetti and good wishes, for Toronto and other points west. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Andrews will reside in Havelock.

Miss Jean Buck, of Peterborough, spent Sunday at the home of her parents here.

Mr. F. Sedgwick, of Peterborough, is in town on business.

BENSFORT BRIEFS

Mr. Harry Kerr has been replenishing his store of farm implements having purchased a horse rake at Stirton Bros. sale.

Miss Taylor spent the last week at Mr. Lancelot Nicholson's.

Stirton Bros.' sale, on the 19th inst. was quite remunerative to them, they having sold over $2000 worth of stock implements, etc.

Mr. Whittington of Chatham is renewing acquaintances in this part.

Miss Lizzie and Mr. Robt. Pue are visiting their sister, Mrs. Pimmott of Allandale.

Dances were held at the home of Mr. John Finnie and Mr. Wilbert Barnard, on Wednesday, Thursday evenings. A very enjoyable time was spent.

Mr. Russel Thompson who has spent the past two weeks in the shanties is now home.

Quite a number attended the horse show in Peterboro on Tuesday, amongst whom were Messrs. Jas. Whittington and Stanley Robinson.

No game news has come to our notice as yet, but we expect to hear of Mr. Geo Smithson, one of our local sports having a similar fortune to that of a few winters ago, when he made a haul of nine raccoon in one day.

Mr. Hiram Shaw who is in the employ of Mr. James Whittington, has acquired a fondness for tools recently and may be a contractor during the summer months.

One of our young men had quite a search for a glove on Sunday night. Larger pockets would be recommended for young ladies and probably should the idea become popular, it might prove beneficial to many of our young men.

The Grand Trunk Railway System have issued a little booklet entitled "Politeness Pays," the contents of which were written by the well known litterateur, Mr. Elbert Hubbard, who has jotted down a number of thinks thought on a little journey over the Grand Trunk. The text is epigramatic in style, and interesting as all this well known writer's text and epigrams are. It is printed in the Roycrofter style on handmade antique paper, with a four page cover, printed on a light blue and black on a sepia decked stock. There is not only good advice in this booklet to the railroad man, but to the public. A copy of the booklet may be had free on application to any of the Grand Trunk offices.

Be Kind to the Birds

(Rochester Times.)

During the spring and summer the birds are the farmers' best friends, eating millions of insects and eggs of insects which injure crops, fruit trees and other growing things. It is well to remember this during the cold winter days and to throw out a little food for them.

BASEBALL ETHICS.

When the Pitcher Has the Right to "Bean" the Batter.

In "The Right and Wrong of Baseball," in the American Magazine, Hugh S. Fullerton gives an interesting account of what is considered sportsmanship and what cheating in the national game. He writes:

"The best batters are those who 'crowd the plate'—that is, who stand as near the plate as the rules or the umpire will permit and lean over the corner of the rubber to make it difficult for the pitcher to pitch across that corner without taking a chance of hitting the batter.

"The players recognize the fact that the lines of the batter's position are obliterated within a few minutes after a game starts and that the umpires practically are helpless to enforce the rules or to tell while watching the course of a pitched ball whether or not the batter steps over the line. So it has become part of the unwritten law of the game that the pitcher may 'bean' (that is, pitch at the 'bean' or head) any batter who 'crowds' in order to drive him back from the plate. It is ethical under the players' code to hit and to injure any player who persists in encroaching upon the forbidden ground, and the batters themselves recognize this danger and accept it as part of the game."

THRIVED ON MISFORTUNE.

A German Peddler Who Insulted the Kaiser and Got Rich.

A German hawker, Hans Bauermeister, retired from business, having amassed a little fortune. According to a Paris contemporary, misfortune was the foundation of his success. The hawker's specialty was the sale of portraits of the imperial family.

His mode of haranguing his audience was something like this: "Buy a portrait of William I., whose motto was, 'I have no time to be wearied.'" "Who'll buy this Frederick II., whose prayer was, 'Teach me to suffer without complaining?'" "Do not fail to complete your collection and buy this portrait of our great emperor, William II., whose favorite phrase is, 'Augusta, you pack your trunks.'"

This last always brought down the audience, and in time the police, in another sense. Bauermeister was sentenced to sixty days for lese majesty. He did his time and on release restarted his business. He sold his portraits with the old formula until he came to that of the kaiser, and then he said, "I have learned to my cost that it is not lawful to repeat what he says so often." The people were just as well pleased, and the portraits sold splendidly.

Verdi Was Right.

When Verdi was putting the last touches to "Il Trovatore" he was visited in his study by a privileged friend, who was one of the ablest living musicians and critics. He was permitted to examine the score and run over the "Anvil Chorus" on the pianoforte. "What do you think of that?" asked Verdi. "Trash!" responded the connoisseur. Verdi rubbed his hands and chuckled. "Now look at this," he said. "Rubbish!" said the other, rolling a cigarette. The composer rose and embraced him with a burst of joy. "What do you mean?" asked the critic. "My dear friend," cried Verdi, "I have been making a popular opera. In it I resolved to please everybody except the purists, the great judges, the classicists like you. Had I pleased you I should have pleased no one else. What you say assures me of success. In three months 'Il Trovatore' will be sung and roared and whistled and barrel organed all over Italy." And so it proved.

One Helped the Other.

A lady was continually accusing her servant of extravagance without any real cause. The servant always bore this accusation patiently.

One day the servant informed her mistress that the coal had all been consumed. This was followed by the usual remarks on the part of the mistress, who finished up by saying:

"You evidently eat them."

The next day the candles were all gone.

"Candles gone!" said the mistress. "Why, I bought half a pound only a fortnight ago."

"Oh, well," rejoined the servant, who could stand this sort of thing no longer, "I can tell you where the candles have gone. I ate them to grease my throat so that I could swallow the coal more conveniently!"—Pearson's Weekly.

The Royal Fish.

Sturgeon are abundant in Russia, where the fisheries are of great value. The flesh is eaten when fresh, but is chiefly smoked or salted. More than 10,000 fish are sometimes caught at a single fishing station. The eggs are removed in quantity from the ovaries and separately prepared as caviar. The annual value of the Russian sturgeon fisheries, including the production of isinglass, or fish gelatin, is estimated at $5,000,000.

A Personal View of Seward.

I talked also with Seward, who looked dirty, rusty, vulgar and low; used such words as hell and damn and spoke very loud. I think better of Mrs. Lincoln for her excessive dislike of him.—"Life and Letters of George Bancroft."

TRUST DENIES ALL.

Steel Corporation Enters Rejoinder to Charges.

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 1.—Absolute denial of alleged violations of the anti-trust law is made by the U. S. Steel Corporation, its subsidiaries and directors in their answers, which will be filed this morning in the U. S. District Court here, to the Government's dissolution suit. Five separate answers will be filed among 33 defendants.

The answers made public last night are those of Andrew Carnegie, J. D. Rockefeller, J. D. Rockefeller, jr., and Edmund C. Converse. The Rockefellers make a joint answer.

The Messrs. Rockefeller deny that they had an active part in the formation or management of the corporation, the elder Rockefeller declaring that he has had no immediate relation to the iron or steel business since 1901.

Mr. Carnegie says he had no part in the plans for organizing the corporation and no voice, direct or advisory, in its management. He admitted selling the Carnegie Steel Co. to the United States Steel Corporation, but denies that the acquisition by the Carnegie Co. of its subsidiaries was in restraint of trade.

The answer of Edmund C. Converse, a director of the U. St. Steel Corporation, is similar to the corporation's answer.

Each of the defendants prays that the suit be dismissed.

Tilbury's Corn Exhibition.

Tilbury, Feb. 1.—The fourth annual corn show held by the Ontario Corn Growers' Association is now in full swing here. Tuesday was preparation day, and the largest number of exhibits in the history of the show were placed in position yesterday morning.

Prof. J. Klinch, Macdonald College, gave a talk on the method of selecting good seed corn, and yesterday afternoon Prof. Chamberlain of St. Paul, who is a native of Essex County, gave an excellent address on corn growing for profit.

Last evening the big official opening was held, Mayor Crawford of Tilbury in a neat address of welcome presenting a large bronze key of the town to the president of the association. Hon. James E. Duff, Minister of Agriculture, was unable to be present, and the opening address was delivered by D. O. C. Creelman of the O.A.C., Guelph. There was also a musical and literary program.

ADVICE TO LEAP YEAR GIRLS

New York, Feb. 1—Leap year possibilities and the proper time to boil eggs were among topics discussed by Mayor Gaynor in an address to-day before 125 girls of the senior class in a public school.

"The tidy woman who knows how to sing a little, and dance a little and jump through the hoop a little if necessary, and knows how to cook—she is the woman worth having," said the mayor.

Other excerpts from his advice to the girls—

"Look as pretty as you can."

"Be able to write a nice gossipy letter."

"Don't trouble yourself about the future. You will come out all right"

"Learn how to make your own dresses and your own hats."

"Some women would rather go to work in a cigar factory than do housework. That is not right."

The mayor was shown an exhibition of cooking that some of the fourteen-year-old girls had done, and he asked them how long it would take them to cook him an egg.

"Six minutes," one girl answered, and the mayor fled in dismay.

SERMONETTES from OLD SAWS

In these days when simplicity in entertaining has almost vanished, we will do well to consider this saying. I feel sure many of you can recall hospitality, where you were fairly overpowered with the elaborateness of it all, and after you returned to the quiet of your home, were equally unable to decide whether or no there was much welcome in it all. It was a sort of competition with Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones in an effort to outdo them, and you felt somehow that you were invited to behold, and not with any thought of welcome.

I was much impressed with what an English woman who had been spending a few months in a wealthy family on this continent, once told me. She said she had dined and dined until she was glad to get home and get something to eat.

We all know how it is in English houses as a rule. You have such a warm welcome, and you feel so much at home, because the even tenor of the household is not disturbed by your presence, and the food placed before you is not made the chief feature of your entertainment.

But we are young yet, and as the years of our nationhood roll by, we will gradually, like old wine, attain a smoothness and reach a higher state of refinement, and become accustomed to possessions and be able to place them where they belong. We will come to realize that people do not want to admire our houses, see our flowers, or eat our elaborate dinners, but they just want to see us as we are, and find us sincere, and know they have been invited because they are welcome and congenial.

PLENTY OF SPORT THIS SATURDAY

Regular Field Day for Lindsay and Local Collegiates

The pupils of the P.C.I. anticipate a great time next Saturday, when they will engage with Lindsay in several friendly contests. The Lindsay bunch will come in on the early morning train, and in the morning their Collegiate senior hockey team will play a senior team from the local Collegiate. Immediately after this game two junior hockey teams, composed of men under 115 pounds' weight, will clash, and the game will finish about 11 o'clock. The Brock street rink has been secured from 9 to 11 Saturday morning. The hockey teams are not chosen yet, and for that purpose there will be a practice for all Collegiate hockey players, at Sacred Heart rink this afternoon from five to six.

Besides this the local Collegiate basketball team will play a team from the Lindsay Collegiate in the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium. The teachers, too, are taking a hand in the sports of the day, a curling match between the teachers of the rival Collegiate Institutes having been arranged for.

There will, of course, be a good crowd of rooters for both schools at each of the games.

ANTI-HOME RULE AGITATORS MEET

Great Protestant Demonstration Held in Belfast.

Dozen Large Halls and Churches Packed With People.

Belfast, Feb. 2.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Special trains from all parts of Ireland brought thousands of Presbyterian demonstrators against home rule yesterday to Belfast. About a dozen large halls and churches were packed. There were scenes of wild enthusiasm and stern determination to resist any effort of the Government to bring in a measure of home rule.

Twenty-five thousand demonstrators voted resolutions declaring their undying determination not to obey the laws of any Irish Parliament whose demands for money in the shape of taxes would be thrown into the fire.

The resolutions declared that the religious and industrial interests of Ireland would be calamitously imperilled by home rule and appealed to both the British Government and to their co-religionists in Great Britain to save the Presbyterians from disaster.

The proceedings passed off without any disturbance.

Sir William Crawford said: "I have no doubt I shall have promises of freedom and toleration for all men from the Nationalist leaders when the provisions of the bill are revealed, but let none of these guarantees and promises deceive you. A Dublin Parliament we will not have; its laws we will not obey, its demands for money we will throw into the fire. Our Nationalist countrymen, may if they so desire, establish their claim to manage their own affairs, but they will not manage our affairs. Let an Irish Government be formed, let it send its officers here to take taxes by force. We shall not pay. Our decision is final and unchanging. We trust in God our Father, and our duty is clear."

George S. Clarke, the famous shipbuilder, said that knowing the demoralizing and blighting effect home rule had upon so many countries, was it any wonder Unionists of Ulster were prepared to take any steps which God-fearing men thought necessary to preserve and hand down those rights and liberties which they had inherited as their birthright?

Free Trade With England.

London, Feb. 2.—The Daily Chronicle publishes a forecast of the home rule bill. This provides that the Irish Parliament shall have full control of customs and excise, and provision will be made for the continuance of complete free trade between England and Ireland.

Ireland is to receive for fifteen years, an annual imperial subsidy of $10,000,000, after which she will make contributions to the imperial expenditure, based on a percentage of her revenues.

The Irish Parliament will consist of two Houses—a legislative council of about fifty members, and a legislative assembly of 103 members. The council will have a suspensory veto on legislation. In the event of a disagreement between the two Houses, after the second rejection of a bill by the council, it will be submitted to the Houses deliberating and voting together, and adopted or rejected according to the decision of the majority.

Ireland will continue to be represented in the Imperial Parliament, but in greatly diminished numbers. The Irish Parliament shall have no control with respect to the navy, army or militia, foreign policy, coinage, military camps or coast lighting, and will be forbidden to establish or endow any religion or deal with any religious matters.

Pennsylvania Out of Debt.

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—With funds on deposit at a Philadelphia bank to meet all claims the State of Pennsylvania was practically freed of all interest bearing debt yesterday when bonds aggregating $1,605,100 matured. The bonds maturing yesterday were authorized in 1881 and were issued to take up maturing loans at that time, some of which came down from Civil War times. Just 125 firms, persons or estates held the bonds that matured.

MOTOR AND TROLLEY CLASH

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 2.—W. P. Marseilles, president of the Electrode Company, one of the most prominent citizens here, was injured yesterday in a head-on collision between his motor car and a Buffalo-bound trolley on the American side, Alexander McLare, his chauffeur, was also seriously injured. Physicians last night said both will recover.

Because he became intoxicated over the river Wednesday night while celebrating his appointmen as constable of Fonthill, Ont., Bert Carner was fined two dollars yesterday.

CHILDREN BITTEN BY MAD DOG

Montreal, Feb. 2.—Four school children, two boys and two girls, were badly bitten by a mad dog yesterday as they were on their way home from St. Ann's School. Attracted by their screams, a passer-by managed to strangle the dog sufficiently to force it to loosen its hold on one of the little girls whom he had on the ground worrying like a rat.

The wounds of the children, all of whom were badly bitten about the arms and legs, have been cauterized by Dr. Charles Viyond. The dog, the property of E. Gagnier, is a cross between a bulldog and a fox terrier. It is being kept under observation at the Young street police station. In the opinion of Dr. Vipond the animal exhibits the symptoms of rabies.

The children, Willie Guy, the 14-year-old son of Francis Guy; Francis Talmadge, Gertie Howard, 14 years of age, and Catharine Furlong, will all likely be inoculated against rabies.

MONTREAL ELECTIONS

Ald. Lavelle is Mayor by Large Majority — Five of Famous "23" Elected.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—Ald. L. A. Lavallee, advocate, was yesterday elected mayor of Montreal by a large majority over Ald. George Marcil, real estate dealer.

The referendum vote on the abolition of the property qualification for mayor and aldermen showed a large majority of voters in favor of abolition. This vote, however, can have no effect until the Legislature at Quebec passes a bill in accordance with the wishes of the citizens.

In connection with the polling for aldermen chief interest centered around the wards, ten in number, in which candidates black listed by the citizen's association were running. The association had opposed ten candidates, either members of the famous "23" of the 1909 council, who are charged with voting to grant huge contracts to high tenderers for the benefit of middlemen, or men who, since their advent to the council, have been classed as reactionary.

Despite the opposition of the citizen's association, backed by the majority of the newspapers of the city, no less than five of the candidates opposed by them were returned, including ex-Ald. Giroux, whose defeat they secured in the 1910 elections; ex-Ald. Mederic Martin, whose name was prominent in the records of the royal commission, and who also failed to return to the council in 1910; ex-Ald. Seguin, ex-Ald. Lariviere and ex-Ald. Judge.

Ex-Ald Sauvegeau, Gallery, Marin, Lamoureux and Levesque were defeated.

A feature of the elections is the return of three more English aldermen to the council than in the last election, these being Stroud, Macdonald and Blumenthal.

3,000 DELEGATES WILL ATTEND

New York, Feb. 2.—Announcement was made last night that the national men and women forward movement will hold its culminating congress in New York City, April 18-24. The delegates, all men, will be limited to 3,000, and will be apportioned among the cities where the movement has held campaigns during the winter.

It is said that the congress will be the most representative large gathering of Christian laymen ever held in North America.

Sessions will be held in Carnegie Hall, with auxiliary meetings in neighboring churches. The lay speakers already secured include President Taft, Ambassador Bryce, William Jennings Bryan, John Mitchell, Booker T. Washington and J. A. Macdonald of Toronto.

Got Rich Loot From Express Co.

Winnipeg, Feb. 2.—George Powers confessed yesterday to robbing the Canadian Express Co., for whom he was a driver, on Jan. 11 last, of $2,390 in currency and $4,500 in securities, most of which have been recovered. He was remanded for sentence.

He said that he concocted the robbery with Charles Verral, a butcher of St. James', and that they divided the spoils in the latter's house.

Verral was committed for trial at the next assizes by Magistrate Macdonald.

Miguel and Manuel Make Up.

London, Feb. 2.—According to information from an authoritative source, at a meeting at Dover on Tuesday, as reported by the Paris newspaper Excelsior, between ex-King Manuel and the Portuguese pretender, Dom Miguel of Braganza, the latter voluntarily offered to help in every way in his power to restore Manuel to the Portuguese throne. The reconciliation between the two branches of the house of Braganza, it is added, is complete.

SINGLE TAX FOR VILLAGES

Bill to be Introduced in Alberta Legislature

Edmonton, Feb. 2—A bill will be introduced in the Alberta legislature by Government members, providing for single taxation in villages. If the scheme proves a success, the entire taxation of the province will be put on a single tax basis.

NOT ANGRY WITH DUFF

Corn Growers Resent the Toronto Globe's Exaggeration.

Tilbury, Feb. 2.—The Ontario Corn Growers' Association had a bumper attendance on this the third day of the big corn show. The exhibits are of such a superior quality that the staff of judges are having a difficult task to make the awards. They hope to complete their work this morning and the prize and trophy winners will be announced to-day.

Prof. Klinck yesterday gave another interesting talk and practical demonstration on the selection of seed corn.

Prof. Day of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, delivered an illustrated address on underdraining during the afternoon. He said that the producing value of land was increased at least twenty dollars an acre, and were the corn lands of Essex and Kent properly underdrained, the gain would be enormous for the corn growers in this section.

Indignation was expressed yesterday at the exaggerated reports attributed to President Williams of the Corn Growers' Association with reference to the absence of Hon. Mr. Duff. Jocular references were twisted in an apparent attempt to introduce politics in the association. It was well understood that Mr. Duff was quite unable to leave Toronto, and Dr. Creelman of the Ontario Agricultural College came to take his place.

TORPEDO DESTROYERS FOR BRITAIN

London, Feb. 2.—An unexpected call has been made yesterday on the shipbuilders on the list of constructors for the British navy to send in tenders for a new fleet of torpedo boat destroyers of the most up-to-date type. Each of the firms has been invited to tender for three boats.

No provision for the construction of these craft was made in this year's naval estimates, but prominent naval men have for a long time complained of the lack in the British navy of fast seagoing torpedo boat destroyers, capable of coping with modern cruisers.

CURFEW LAW FOR HUSBANDS

Chicago, Feb. 2.—A curfew law for husbands is advocated by Robert B. Glenn, formerly governor of North Carolina. "The man who stays away from his family at night is the most contemptible creature on earth," he said. "I wish we had a law that would make every husband stay at home from 8 o'clock in the evening until 6 o'clock the next morning."

Wabash Receivership Certificate.

St. Louis, Feb. 2.—The bid of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., of New York, for the $10,000,000 receiver's certificates of the Wabash Railroad Co. probably will be approved by Federal Judge Adams. The bids were opened yesterday afternoon and the above firm bid par and 1-4 of 1 per cent. for the issue.

GERMANY RECLAIMS LAND FROM NORTH SEA AT MOUTH OF ELBE

THE RESULT OF TEN YEARS' LABOR — THE SAME BREAKWATER AS IT APPEARS IN 1912

A STONE BREAKWATER BETWEEN THE MAINLAND AND HAMBURG HALLIG AS IT APPEARED IN 1900

Engineers on this side of the Atlantic are interested in reclamation operations now being carried on at the mouth of the Elbe in Germany. Dams and dykes have been constructed by the German government. Wonderful transformations have been wrought and there is no telling at this time how far it is intended to go with the work.

The reclaimed land has proved to be of great value. Excellent crops have been grown and fine grazing has been supplied for cattle.

PREDICTS EASY WIN FOR TAFT

Washington, Feb. 2.—In the first authorized statement he has issued in connection with the Taft campaign, Charles D. Hilles, secretary to the President, yesterday said:

"President Taft's nomination in June is as certain as anything can be. I am confident that there will be comparatively little opposition to him in the national convention, and when the nomination is made the Republicans of the country will rally to the party standard and win a great victory in November.

"I would not make this prediction did I not feel that my information from all parts of the country warrants me in doing so."

MILLION DOLLAR FIRE AT HALIFAX

Workmen Had Narrow Escape From Death.

Halifax, Feb. 2.—The Woodside plant of the Acadia Sugar Refining Co. located on the Dartmouth side of the harbor, was totally destroyed by fire last evening with a loss of considerably over a million dollars. The insurance will come measurably up to the million mark and there is not a company here but what is interested.

The fire began in a large wooden warehouse on the waterfront, where 10,000 barrels of sugar were stored. This was swept away and with amazing velocity the fire shot to the seven storey brick structure across the railway track, which is the refinery proper. This was soon enveloped by the fire and some of the workmen had difficulty in escaping with their lives. Many of them engaged in the hot rooms got out with practically no clothing, and one man, Hennebery, who is missing, is reported to have perished.

The steamer Aurora of the Pickford and Black line, had been at the wharf discharging raw sugar for three days. She was pulled out, but the sugar she had discharged was burned. Besides the refined sugar destroyed, more than 25,000 bags of raw sugar are gone. A number of loaded Intercolonial Railway cars were on the siding, but no engine could be secured quick enough to haul them out and they were burned.

At 10 o'clock everything was gone of the splendid plant, which is the largest of the two owned by the Acadia Sugar Refining Co., except the boiler house, and there was slight chance of saving that. The fire departments of Dartmouth and Halifax could do nothing to fight the fire, the plant being nearly three miles out of town and isolated. The company is one of the most prosperous in Canada. A considerable portion of the capital stock is held in Glasgow.

PROBABILITIES

Chinaman Has Smallpox.

Montreal, Feb. 2.—The latest victim of smallpox in this city is a Chinaman, and as a result 100 of his mellow-countrymen are in quarantine at the C.P.R. immigration headquarters, while he has been removed to the civic hospital. A party of Chinamen arrived here a few days ago from the west and while awaiting examination one of them became ill. On investigation he was found to be suffering from smallpox.

SUBMARINE IN COLLISION GOES TO THE BOTTOM

Had Crew of Eleven Men and All Went Down

Special to the Review.

London, Feb. 2.—The British submarine "A3" was rammed to-day by the torpedo boat Hazard, near Princess shoals, Isle of Wight, and immediately sank, with the entire crew of eleven.

Little hope is entertained for the rescue of the men, if they are still alive.

Warships and divers are endeavoring to bring the craft to the surface.

Addlondon, Feb. 2— A later wireless message from the scene of the accident announces that all the compartments are flooded and the whole crew is dead.

TO ENLARGE FIELD OF PARCEL POST

Parliament Approves Resolution Offered by W. F. McLean.

Sample Market for Winnipeg Grain Men Discussed

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—Parliament last evening adopted with hardly a dissentient voice, a resolution proposed by W. F. Maclean (S. York), declaring that "this House is of the opinion that the expansion and extension of the parcel post system would be in the public interest."

The adoption of such a system of an effective scale, said Mr. Maclean, would result in express rates being cut in two. Public competition was the newest and best way of bringing corporations to time. This had been strikingly exemplified in the success of the Ontario hydro-electric system.

The parcel post has been a success in Europe, Australia, and New Zealand, and both parties in the U. S. were committed to it.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux declared that the time had come for Canada to adopt a bold policy in the matter.

"The companies," he said; "have taken out of our hands the business we ought to be carrying on."

Hon. L. P. Pelletier declared himself in general accord with the motion, though he thought the system Canada should adopt could not be as extensive as that obtaining in England. No express companies should stop the Government if it decided to proceed with the reform.

J. F. Armstrong (E. Lambton), made a vigorous attempt to have the whole debate ruled out of order, but Speaker Sproule effectively squelched him with voluminous quotations from Bourinot.

Dr. Neeley (Humboldt) stated that for lack of a sample market in Winnipeg the farmers of the Northwest lost millions a year. The spread between grades was great, and a man whose grain was not good enough for grade 1, but very high grade 2, got no more for it than the man whose grade 2 was of low quality.

F. Z. Schaffner (Souris) remarked that the grain growers who were in Ottawa the other day were opposed to a sample market.

Hon. George E. Foster said that, whether there were a sample or a grade market no one would propose to take away from the farmer the right to sell his product in the way he pleased. Both the grain growers and millers were pressing for Government-owned and controlled terminal elevators as more urgent than a sample market. They were strongly opposed to mixing grain, and the sample market was no use unless mixing were allowed.

J. D. Staples (Macdonald) was in favor of the sample market. The identity of the grain should be preserved so long as there was no loss in dollars and cents. If the evil of mixing by manipulators could not be done away with the country should do it itself in a sample market.

J. G. Turriff (Assiniboia) thought the Department should remedy the evil of substitution of grain.

W. F. Maclean (S. York) declared that there was too much intimacy between the railway companies, the milling companies and the elevator companies, to the detriment of the farmer and their own special profit.

J. A. M. Aikens (Brandon) pointed out that the railways were bound to deliver the identical article consigned to them by the consignee and anyone who took away that grain might be reached under the criminal code.

Hon. Frank Oliver declared that a more important question than the private rights of the parties was the degradation of the standard of the country's grain.

Dr. Schaffner (Souris) was emphatic in declaring that the only remedy was Government control of terminal elevators.

Before the orders of the day were called, W. E. Knowles (Moose Jaw) rose to a question of privilege. He objected to what he termed an anonymous dodger, which had been distributed to the members through the postoffice, charging him with falsehood in connection with his remarks on the alleged British Columbia lumber combine. The pamphlet was written by A. E. Watts of Wattsford, B.C., and he charged A. E. Goodeve (Kootenay) with the distribution.

Mr. Goodeve replied that he was well within his rights. The circular was not anonymous. It was forwarded to him for distribution by a prominent lumberman. The Speaker ruled that such distribution was the common custom and perfectly justifiable.

W. M. Martin (Regina) drew the attention of the Minister of Agriculture to the necessity for seed distribution in Saskatchewan.

The Speaker announced that after further consideration, he had come to the conclusion that his ruling out of order Wednesday of the resolution of Richard Blain (Peel) in favor of placing telephones in postoffices was not well founded, as it was merely an academic recommendation to the Government which might, at a future date, involve, if acted upon, the expenditure of public money.

In answer to a question by J. E. Armstrong (E. Lambton), Hon. L. P. Pelletier stated that the former Postmaster-General had stated in the House that clause 60 in the postal regulations, providing for the collection of one cent per four ounces in newspapers sent to new subscribers during the election contest, would be enforced. The Toronto postoffice had referred to the question of excess charges on The Toronto Globe, Toronto News, and other papers but no reply was sent, the rule being well known. The Globe had not, as it claimed, a binding agreement from the Postoffice Department to carry those papers at the regular rate of one-quarter cent a pound.

STILL TALKING IRON BOUNTY

Ottawa, Feb. 2.—Government supporters had another lengthy caucus yesterday, adjourned from Wednesday's sitting.

It is understood that the only matter of outstanding importance discussed had further reference to the bounty on pig iron. The situation is not changed from Wednesday, but the sentiment in the main appears to be favorable to the bounty being granted temporarily.

The final decision rests with the Government.

Bullet Hit Aviator.

Tripoli, Feb. 2.—While throwing bombs from an aeroplane into an Arab encampment near Tobruk, in Cyrenatica, Capt. Monte, an Italian military airman, was severely wounded yesterday. A companion escaped. The aeroplane was struck four times by the Arab rifle fire and one bullet hit Monte.

UNION LABEL

NAVAL EXPENDITURE

The Socialists of Germany are strongly opposed to the further enlargement of the navy. This was one of the planks of their election platform, and their success at the polls would indicate that a goodly portion of the people were in favor of this policy. But the Germans have had the military spirit fostered to such a degree that it is doubtful, even if the Socialists held full sway, if they would lessen the expenditure in naval construction. Many pre-election promises are soon dropped when a party assumes power, and the expenditure keeps right on. The Germans are proud of their military and naval strength, and will have it maintained at all costs.

CONTROL OF WATERPOWERS

Thomas A. Edison, the noted inventor, in speaking at a dinner given in Chicago recently, made the prediction that within a comparatively short time coal would be virtually unknown as an article of common usage, in fact would be more of a curiosity. Further he predicted: "As the electric motor has but one movement—rotary—the time is coming when the electric motor will move the world," Continuing, the speaker said:

"In a few years all of the railroad terminals of this country will be electrified. The main lines of railroad systems in mountain regions where there is water will also be electrified, and ultimately all lines of railroads will be propelled by this motive power.

"The time is not far distant when all traction vehicles will be operated by electricity."

Mr. Edison might have gone further and said that most of the electric energy in the future would be secured by development of the waterpowers and not by the consumption of coal. This is an important question, as in a quarter of a century practically all the electric energy will come from the waterpowers and the people who control these powers will, to a large extent, control the industrial world.

Control of the water powers by the people is the only solution. The capitalists are busy making plans to secure the water powers everywhere, and their move is shown plainly by the group of speculators who propose to secure the entire water power of the St. Lawrence in its 90-foot fall from Lake St. Francis to Lake St. Louis, thereby developing one million horse power at an estimated outlay of $100,000,000. Our great water powers should be controlled by the people and not by private capital.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Britain is to build a fleet of up-to-date torpedo boat destroyers. They will be of the most improved pattern Tenders are being called for.

To read the accounts in the Liberal press of the doings of the Opposition at Ottawa, one would think that they were in charge of affairs and had the government trembling before them.

Five of the largest halls in Belfast are held by opponents of Home Rule and the wildest excitement is prevailing. Churchill and Redmond will have a decidedly lively night of it on Feb. 8th, unless there is a change in the temper of the Ulster people.

Hamilton civic officials are wrathing. The Mayor has put forth a "No Smoking" decree in the city hall. This only refers to offices, however, where the public is served and where ladies have to transact business, and there is no doubt that it is objectionable to the women folk.

The appointment of a provincial fire marshall, was urged by a deputation that waited on Hon. W. J. Hanna yesterday and the matter will be given consideration by the government. The move is a good one and the government would be making no mistake in giving the plan a trial. The system as tried elsewhere has worked out well.

The chief issue in the next general election in Great Britain is apparently going to be home rule for Ireland, and the fight promises to provide a most bitter campaign, if the stirring times at Belfast can be taken as an indication of the feeling of the factions opposed to the measure. Tariff reform has been relegated to the background by the Unionists, and they are making the campaign against home rule practically the whole issue.

In sentencing a youth for burglary recently Judge Fawcett, of Brooklyn, declared that of the 2,700 boys before him for sentence in a period of five years, not one of them attended Sunday school. The Sunday schools are doing a great work for the young people, but the question arises why were these 2,700 boys not attendants at Sunday school. The parents of these youthful criminals must have been lax in their duty, but, then, perhaps more effort on part of the Sunday school officials might have have brought them into the fold.

Each section of Germany desires low tariff on what it buys and high tariff on what it sells. Mere theories cut little figure in the last resort. The final result is always a compromise, accomplished by log-rolling and trading of interests, each section scrambling for all it can get to reduce its buying and to increase its selling price.

Convenient Repudiations

Toronto News

In the local room of the News office, in the presence of the city editor and two reporters, Joseph Fels, millionaire and single tax advocate, gave an interview in which he said that he had no more blame for the McNamaras than for any other unfortunate victims of modern civilization. The statement, consisting of about 20. words, made by Mr. Fels, was made slowly and carefully, and was taken down in long hand word for word by a capable reporter. At the Empire Club two days after the interview appered Mr. Fels modified considerably his former statements with respect to these dynamiters, and declared that he had been misreported in the News. Mr. Fels misleads the public when he makes that declaration. His statement is untrue. There might be little advantage in referring particularly to the incident if it were not one of a class. Too often men in the public eye try to shift responsibility for their injudicious public statements upon the shouders of a newspaper or one of that newspaper's employes. It is small business. As a general rule reporters are accurate observers and careful writers. Mr. Fels is not original in his complaint. He is tiresomely unoriginal. For that very reason it is worth while to show the lack of courage in his make-up and to assert his statement to the News was printed once more, indefinitely and clearly, that exactly as he gave it.

Lady Betty Across the Water

By C. N. & A. M. WILLIAMSON

Copyright, 1906, by McClure, Phillips & Co.

I knew that Miss Woodburn rather fancied me, and I was quite pleased to take her up to her room when she and her elder cousin arrived about an hour before dinner. I stopped for a few minutes and then left her with her maid, while I went to help Vic and get myself ready. We've only one maid between the three of us nowadays, which means (unless there's some reason why Vic should be made particularly smart) that mother gets more than a third of Thompson's services. That's as it should be, of course, and we don't grudge it. But Vic's rather helpless, and I always have to hurry to see her through.

This evening, though, I found Thompson in Vic's room, next to mine, and just as I scientifically dislocated my arms to unhook my frock, which does up behind, mother came in. "Betty," she said, quite playfully for her, "I have a very pleasant surprise for you. You would never be able to guess, so I will tell you. I have consented to let you go and visit Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox and Miss Woodburn in America. Aren't you delighted?"

I felt as if the wall of the house were tumbling down and I would presently be crumpled up underneath.

"My goodness gracious, mother!" I managed to stammer, forgetting how I've always stood in awe of her since I could toddle. "How—how perfectly extraordinary! Why am I going? And is it all decided, whether I like or not?"

"Of course you will like. To travel with pleasant companions and see a great, new country under such charming auspices is an immense privilege—a very unusual privilege for a young girl," mother replied promptly. "As for the 'why,' you are going because you have been cordially invited; because I think the experience will be for your advantage, present and future; because also it will be good for a growing girl like you to have the bracing effect of a sea voyage."

"Mother, I haven't a thing the matter with me, and I haven't grown the eighth of an inch this whole last year. You can see by my frocks," I protested, more on principle than because it would be of any use to protest or because I was sure mother wanted to change her mind. Naturally the protest had no effect, but mother's mood mercifully remained placid and she didn't give me a single freezing look.

"Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox is a woman of good family and position in her own country," she went calmly on. "I have satisfied myself on those points beyond doubt or I should not dream of allowing you to be her guest. She has a cottage at Newport and will take you there, as summer, it seems, is not the season in New York. You may stay with her through July and August—even for September, if you are amusing yourself. Later Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox will send you home with friends of hers, who can be trusted to take good care of you. She knows several people, she tells me, who are crossing in the autumn to winter abroad, and they would bring you to me. Of course I should have to be nice to them by way of showing my appreciation of any trouble you had given, but a dinner and a Saturday to Monday at most would be quite enough."

So it was all arranged, even to the details of my homecoming and the price to be paid for returning me, like a parcel, to my owner! Suddenly I remembered the words I had overheard at the window of the den, "The question is what is to be done with Betty?"

Mother had evidently been so anxious to have the question answered that she had at once taken measures to settle it. But why should anything be done with me? Nothing ever had been so far, except when I was sent last autumn to stop with my aunt, and she was so much annoyed because my Cousin Loveland came home unexpectedly that after that I could do nothing to please her and was packed back to Battlemead Towers in disgrace. I never could understand for what crime.

"How did Miss Ess—I mean Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox—happen to ask for a visit from me?" I ventured to wriggle out, like a worm who isn't sure whether it had better turn or not. I was certain that for some reason of her own mother had suggested the idea, if only hypocritically. But she seemed almost too frank as she answered, and it was frightening not even to be snubbed.

"I told you today that she had taken a fancy to you, my dear. Of course she could not hope to secure Victoria, even if she preferred her, for Victoria has important engagements which will carry her through the season and afterward to Cowes and up to Scotland for the shooting at Dorloch castle. But you are still almost a child, and children do not have engagements. Nevertheless you are Lady Betty Bulkeley, the Duke of Stanforth's sister, and as such, though in yourself you are an unimportant little person, it's not impossible that as a member of your family these Americans may think you worth cultivating. One hears that they worship titles."

"I'm sure they can't worship them as much as some people in our own country who haven't got them do," I cried, defending Americans for Miss Woodburn's sake. "Vic says"—

"Never mind what Victoria says," returned mother. "The less you think on these subjects the better, my dear Betty. I merely hinted at a possible and partial incentive to these people's friendship for you, so that you need not feel it incumbent to be oppressively grateful, you know. I should wish you to keep your dignity among foreigners, even though you would, of course, look upon Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox as, in a way, your guardian. Now I must call Thompson and have her put me into my dinner dress, as there is no more time to waste. When Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox speaks of your visit you will know what to say."

I mumbled something vaguely dutiful and began to dress as quickly as I could. But the more I thought of it the more I felt that I hadn't been fairly treated, to be disposed of in such an offhand way. After all, I am eighteen, and a person of eighteen isn't a child.

I'm not sure I wasn't pouting when Vic came in, ready for dinner, asking if she should fasten up my frock. I had nearly finished it, for practice has made me almost as clever as a conjurer about manipulating my hands behind my back, but when Vic flew at me and began giving useless little touches I guessed that she wanted to whisper something in my ear without mother seeing, if she should happen to prance in at the wrong moment, as she often does.

"Look here, Betty, are you going to be a good little girl and do what you're bid without making a fuss?" she asked in a quick, low voice.

"I'm not certain yet," said I. "I'm thinking it over. I don't see why I should be sent off across the water with strangers at a moment's notice, and I"—

"'Tisn't a moment's notice. It's five days. They're not sailing till Wednesday, and as they've a suit engaged—the best on the ship, Mrs. Ess Kay says—your going won't put them out a bit, and they'll love having you. As for the whys and wherefores, mother's been telling you, hasn't she?"

"She talked about my health and valuable experiences and a lot of things in the air, but I feel there's something behind it, and I hate mysteries"—

A Turkish band invaded a Bulgarian monastery in the valley of Kossovo, bound the nine inmates and decapitated them. The band then plundered the monastery.

Walter Blake, a well-known Galt citizen, driving to Berlin late at night, was held up by two masked men armed with guns and robbed of a gold watch and all his money.

At the annual meeting of the Montreal exchange yesterday a resolution was passed strongly opposing Government ownership of terminal elevators, as demanded by the western grain growers.

Cookery Points

A Dainty Luncheon.

Although this little lunch is dainty enough to tempt the most capricious, yet it is sufficiently satisfying to serve as the only meal between breakfast and dinner.

Hard boil as many eggs as necessary, allowing two for each plate required. When cool enough to handle remove the shells and carefully cut each egg in two lengthwise.

Crumble yolks in a bowl, add salt, pepper, paprika and mustard to taste and finely chopped cold ham or veal in the proportion of about a teaspoonful for each egg. Mix well. Then moisten with lemon juice and olive oil in proportion to suit the taste, adding enough liquid to make a very soft, smooth paste.

Replace this mixture in the empty whites and arrange four halves around a lettuce leaf on a plate. In the center place a generous tablespoonful of cut-up radishes and celery, being careful in cutting these that each piece of radish shows some of the bright red outside.

Around the outside of plate, between the halves of eggs, put more radishes, cut in larger pieces than those used in the center.

Then put the plates in the icebox until the sandwiches are prepared. Make these of thinly sliced white bread spread with butter and cheese. While any kind of cheese will make tasty sandwiches, if American cheese is used it is better to grate it and then sprinkle it over the buttered bread than merely to slice it.

When the sandwiches are ready to serve remove the plates of salad from the icebox and over the center of each pour some mayonnaise dressing. Coffee is the drink to be served. And the salad is so satisfying that few will feel the need of a sweeter course to follow.

If one has the mayonnaise dressing ready this lunch can be prepared very quickly by systematizing the work to be done.

If one has no mayonnaise the salad will be just as delicious if the celery and radishes are marinated in French dressing while the eggs and sandwiches are being prepared. The French dressing then should be passed around at the table.

When Poultry Is High.

When poultry is high in price economies may be practiced by adding enough vegetables to the dish in some savory style to extend its possibilities. A casserole of young fowl is made in this way by a house mother who is known for ingenuity in making a little go further than most cooks. She has the fowl cut into the usual joints and pieces and sautes them in two tablespoonfuls of butter and one tablespoonful of olive oil. When they are a rich golden brown she puts them into a fireproof casserole with a little stock and white wine, salt and pepper, covers the dish and lets the contents simmer very slowly. Meanwhile she fries little young onions, little young carrots and some potato balls in the fat in which the chicken was cooked, and about half an hour before the chicken is done she turns the vegetables into the casserole and cooks all together. The casserole goes to the table on a folded napkin over a round platter. If the cooking is long and slow there is no need to provide an expensive chicken for a casserole. A tender fowl will be equally tasty.

Macaroons.

Macaroons, so delicious a cake and so very expensive to buy, can be made at home if one will be careful. Prepare a pound of almonds the day before by blanching and when perfectly cold pounding to a paste, adding a little rosewater now and then to prevent oiling. When a smooth paste add a large tablespoonful of bitter almond extract and set aside until next day.

Stir the whites of eight eggs lightly and then stir in a pound of finely powdered sugar. Gradually whip in the almond paste. Have a broad baking pan lined with white paper and drop the paste by the spoonful far enough apart to prevent running together. Sift powdered sugar thickly over and bake to a delicate brown.

Pancakes.

To four tablespoonfuls of prepared flour add enough milk to make an ordinary batter. Beat four egg yolks very light and stir them into the batter. Stir in a scant teaspoonful of salt and fold in the stiffened whites of the eggs. Melt a little butter in a frying pan and pour in enough batter to cover the bottom of the pan. When the pancake is done on one side turn it. Pile the pancakes on top of each other on a plate, strewing each one thickly with powdered sugar or maple sugar or spreading each with jelly or honey. Cut in triangles, as pie is cut, and eat very hot.

Deep Apple Pie With Cream Cheese.

Bake a nice deep apple pie about three-quarters of an hour before dinner. Have a small cream cheese pressed through a ricer and mixed with a cupful of whipped cream and a little salt. Press through a pastry tube or tin funnel on top of the pie in a pattern and serve warm for dessert. The cheese and cream combinations may also be used on a two crust apple pie.

A Common Mistake

A common mistake, and one that is quite excusable, is that so many people between the ages of 40 and 50 feeling the need of glasses either refuse to wear them or continue putting it off.

There is no greater mistake than the common saying that "so-and-so" had such strong eyes, lived to be 80 and never used glasses to read. It is a physiological fact that at the age of 45 years the crystal line lens looses some of its elasticity; it looses more as age advances, so that even under accommodation it cannot become convex as it did before; consequently, this convexity (needed for reading) must be supplied artificially by means of glasses.

The above is taken from the Family Doctor a large American publication.

We Recommend Glasses ONLY When Absolutely Necessary.

BOARD OF WORKS BRIEF SESSION

Chairman Buller Suggests Insurance for Pumping Station

The city Board of Works met last night. There were present Mayor W. H Bradburn, chairman Ald. Buller, and Aldermen Duffus, Johnston, Anderson and Gillespie.

The Board will supply the tools, supplies, etc., needed at the south city pumping station, according to the chairman's judgment.

Chairman Ald. Buller suggested that the south city pumping station and plant be insured. The machinery in this building, apart from installation, cost $4,056.05. The chairman was authorized to enquire as to the advisability of insuring this plant, and what class of insurance could be put on with advantage to the city, especially in the case of fire resulting in damage to the motors.

MR. SHEEHY'S BILL AGAIN REDUCED

Will Pay Only $10 for Use of City Property

At the Property Committee meeting last night Mr. Richard Sheehy was present to object to a charge for rental levied upon him of $22.17 for vacant land on the water front near the C.P.R. A quantity of stone belonging to Mr. Sheehy are stored there. The latter's reasons for objecting to paying the rental were that there was no demand at present for stone, and that therefore he did not feel justified in paying the rent. The stone would also cost considerable to remove. Mr. Sheehy was assessed for the land at $18 a year, the Council last year reducing it for him from $25 per year.

Mayor Bradburn asked Mr Sheehy why he had not waited upon the Council earlier in place of waiting until he had been billed twice.

Mr. Sheehy said that he had notified the Council in writing.

Mayor Bradburn finally made the following motion: That Mr. Sheehy's account up to Dec. 1st, 1911, be $15, and thereafter the rent be $10 a year, and with the understanding that should the city require land at any time, the owner must remove his stone within a month after receiving notice.

PROMPT DELIVERY.

TRIO FROM MONTREAL GET ONE MONTH ON THE HILL

Were Beating Their Way to Toronto on the C. P. R.—Jas. Wilson Also Goes to Jail—Windover Case Still Unsettled.

Mr. E. L. Goodwill, solicitor for the Children's Aid Society, asked Magistrate Dumble for an order, given the Windover children over as wards of the Society.

His Worship, however, withheld the oder till the hearing of further evidecne on Monday next.

The father, as was stated before, has disappeared presumably to the lumber or railway camps. He was traced as far as Lindsay by Mr. Cochrane.

The mother is in the hospital and the attending physician advises that she be sent to Muskoka.

30 DAYS IN JAIL

A fine of $10 or one month in jail was the dose handed out to three strangers, who occupied the box with James Wilson, at police court this morning. The money was not forthcoming and the trio will, for the next 30 days, assist in the household duties of Castle Nesbitt.

They were caught yesterday afternoon endeavoring to beat their way to Toronto on the 4.28 C.P.R. and this morning answered to the names of Thomas Dougan, Alex Macdonald and Herbert Nuttell.

Each pleaded guilty.

"You'd like a nice four months," suggested His Worship to Dougan. This propect however, failed to appeal to Thomas, who replied that he would like to get to Toronto. He explained that he and his pals were from Montreal, where there was a scarcity of work.

Nuttell said he was a corduroy worker in England, and that there was nothing doing for him in this country. Just to show that he was not afraid of work, Herbert added that he had drawn pay in the explosive works in Montreal.

KEEP OFF THE SIDEWALK

Although John Quinlan said he had but one runner of his sleigh on the sidewalk, he was called upon for a contribution of $2.00.

He was hauling ashes from the T.A.S. rooms.

"I didn't know anything about it," said Quinlan, when told that he had violated the by-law, by having his sleigh on the sidewalk.

"Some people do sin unconsciously," remarked the Magistrate.

The $2 was paid and John said he would know better the next time.

A HOCKEY ROOTER

James Wilson was the last.

"You will remember," said the Chief to Magistrate Dumble, "that his case was adjourned to give him a chnace to do better. He has evidently fallen from grace."

And James looked it. He had had a peach, although on the blacklist.

"I was up to Lindsay to the hockey match—

"Are you guilty, or not guilty," was the magisterial request.

"Guilty," answered James.

It was $10 or a month, and Wilson took the time vowing that Lindsay whiskey was too stong for him.
